A Meeting of the London Miniſters that were Preſbyterian to thank the King for his late Declaration.

Mr. Baxter's Life written by himſelf, Fol.

When the King's Declaration was paſſed, we had a Meeting with the Miniſters of London called Preſbyterian, (that is, all that were neither Prelatical, nor of any other Sect) to conſult with them about their returning Thanks to the King for his gracious Declaration, that ſo it might appear that thoſe that were not with us, were thankful for it, as well as we. At the firſt Meeting, the City Miniſters firſt voted their Thanks to be given to us for our Labours in procuring it, Nemine Contradicente. But old Mr. Arthur Jackſon, a very worthy Man, and Mr. Crofton, ſpake againſt returning Thanks to the King: Not that they were not truly thankful, but becauſe their Thanks would ſignify an Approbation of Biſhops and Archbiſhops, which they had covenanted againſt. This I undertook to confute, by proving that the Biſhops and Archbiſhops in the King's Declaration, are not ejuſdem ſpeciei with what they were before; and that there is the ſame Name but not the ſame Thing; and withal by proving, that the Covenant did not meddle againſt all Biſhops and Archbiſhops, but only thoſe of the Engliſh Dioceſan Species: And that there was a ſpecifical Difference, I proved, in that by the King's Declaration the Eſſentials at leaſt of Church Government is reſtored to the Paſtors, whereas before the Paſtors had no Government; and this altereth all the Frame, as much as if you let the Foundation, Walls and Roof of your Houſe ſtand, and all that is viſible without, but within you pull down the Partitions, and turn it into a Church. For before every Biſhop was the loweſt and ſole Governour (with his Court and Conſiſtory) of many hundred Churches: And now every Paſtor is the loweſt Governour of his Flock, and the Biſhop is but the ſuperiour Governour of the lower Governours and the Flocks; and indeed are all Archbiſhops, though they have the Name of Biſhops ſtill. Moſt of the Miniſters were ſatisfied, but ſome remained unſatiſfied to the End. But at the next Meeting, thoſe that were ſatiſfied reſolved upon Thankſgiving to the King, and they drew up their Acknowledgment in Writing.

Some ſpoke againſt it, and Baxter labour'd to reconcile them to it.

See Nov. 16.

And here you may note by the Way, the Faſhion of theſe Times, and the State of the Preſbyterians: Any Man that was for a ſpiritual ſerious Way of Worſhip (though he was for moderate Epiſcopacy and Liturgy) and that lived according to his Profeſſion, was called commonly a Preſbyterian, as formerly he was called a Puritan, unleſs he joyned himſelf to Independents, Anabaptiſts, or ſome other Sect which might afford him a more odious Name. And of the Lords, he that was for Epiſcopacy and Liturgy was called a Preſbyterian, if he endeavoured to procure any Abatement of their Impoſitions, for the reconciling of the Parties, or the Eaſe of the Miniſters and People that diſliked them. And of the Miniſters, he was called a Preſbyterian that was for Epiſcopacy and Liturgy, if he conformed not ſo far as to ſubſcribe or ſwear to the Engliſh Dioceſan Frame, and all their Impoſitions. I knew not of any one Lord at Court that was

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 278.

Yet in another near Part of his own Life, Mr. Baxter ſeems to conclude, that the Majority of the Nation were Preſbyterians.

was a Preſbyterian, yet were the Earl of Mancheſter (a great Man) and the Earl of Angleſey and the Lord Hollis called Preſbyterians, and as ſuch appointed to direct and help them; when I have heard them plead for moderate Epiſcopacy and Liturgy myſelf, and they would have drawn us to yield further than we did.

The Land had been but lately engaged againſt them, [the Dioceſan Doctors] the Covenant had been taken even by the Lords and Gentlemen of their own Party [the Royaliſts] at their Compoſition. The Army that brought them in were Preſbyterians, as to moſt of the ruling Part, &c.

MONDAY Nov. 5.

The Gun-Powder Treaſon kept up in the late Times for a Day of Thankſgiving.

A Sermon the laſt Year at St. Paul's by Dr Reynolds, who complain'd of the Papiſts, who then ſwarmed, and infuſed their Doctrines in a myſterious Way.

Life of Mr. Baxter, p. 287.

London, for George Thompſon, 4to. 1659.

The fifth of November was the only ſolemn Day that had been generally obſerved in the late Times, after the Contempt and Diſuſe, of all other Holidays, even of Chriſtmas Day; the laſt Anniverſary in 1659. had been celebrated at St. Paul's by the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and Companies of London, with a Sermon on that Occaſion by Dr. Edward Reynolds, intituled, the Brand pluck'd out of the Fire. [Wherein he complain'd how buſy the Papiſts then were to fiſh in troubled Waters; and that the Confuſion of Things and Men muſt ſoon end in a Change of Government, and was indeed the ſureſt Prognoſtick of it.]

And brought a Contempt upon Magiſtracy and Miniſtry.

And thence a dreadful Confuſion.

P. 36. We know how buſy foreign Emiſſaries are, who are ſaid to ſwarm among us under a Diſguiſe, and in a myſterious Way to infuſe their Doctrines into the Minds of credulous and ſeduced People. We ſee what hideous Errours are every where broached. What Contempt is poured out, upon a learned and faithful Miniſtry. What Diſhonour is caſt upon Magiſtrates; as if it belonged not either to their Power or Duty to take Care either of the Truth or Worſhip of God in their Territories. What immenſe and boundleſs Licenſe Men take to write, print and publiſh the moſt horrid Opinions without Check or Controul: What ſad Effects this infinite Liberty hath produced, in ſome Atheiſm, in others Scepticiſm, in others Apoſtacy, in others ſad Diviſions, Jealouſies, Animoſities; ſcarce any Face left of that chriſtian Love and holy Communion which heretofore ſhined in the Aſſemblies of Profeſſors. What woful Symptoms we have of God's threatning to remove our Candleſtick and his Glory from us.—— The doleful Confuſions and Changes in the State; Governments changing as it were with the Moon, up one Month and down another. Certainly it is for the Tranſgreſſion of a Land that many are the Princes thereof. It was the Forerunner of a final Wrath among the ten Tribes, when God left them to pull down one another.

And again to the like Purpoſe.

The Miſery of a deſerted People. A Sermon at St. Paul's, by Edward Reynolds, D. D. Lond. 1659. 4to.

And in another Sermon preached to the like Congregation, at the ſame Church of St. Paul's, December 2. 1659. he pointed at the Swarm of popiſh Prieſts and Jeſuits: P. 31. Multitudes of ſeducing Spirits, and Emiſſaries of Satan, who go up and down without Controul; ſowing Tares, and laying Levens, ſhaking the Minds of credulous and ſimple People, who are apt to be turned about with every Wind of Doctrine, and ſlyly inſinuating under Diſguiſes and other Shapes, ſuch Doctrines as in their own proper Colours would be rejected, &c.

Hodie prima vice lecta eſt Billa, An Act for Maintenance of the Vicar for the Time being of the Vicarage of Royſton in the Counties of Hertford and Cambridge, and of the ſucceſſive Vicars of the ſaid Vicarage.

Reſolved by the Commons, that it be referred to a Committee to inform themſelves what Form of Prayer hath been heretofore uſed in this Houſe, and preſent it to this Houſe.

Reſolved by the Commons of England in Parliament aſſembled, (Nemine Contradicente) that the humble and hearty Acknowledgment and Thanks of this Houſe be preſented to his Majeſty by the whole Houſe, for his Majeſty's gracious Care and Indulgence expreſſed to his People, in his laſt gracious Declaration concerning eccleſiaſtical Affairs. And that his Majeſty be humbly moved to appoint a Time and Place, where this Houſe may attend him for that Purpoſe.

Their Addreſs to congratulate the ſafe Return of the Queen Mother and Princeſs Henrietta.

Publick Intell 4to.

As a further Teſtimony of the Commons Loyalty and Affection to his Majeſty and the Royal Family, the Houſe ordered an Addreſs to be made by ſuch Members of their Houſe as were of his Majeſty's Privy Council, to congratulate the ſafe Return of the Queen and Princeſs Henrietta to England, and appointed that ten thouſand Pounds ſhould be preſented to the Princeſs Henrietta.

FRIDAY Nov. 9.

Thanks of the Houſe of Lords to his Majeſty for his late Gracious Declaration.

In the Houſe of Peers, the Lord Roberts took Notice of a Declaration of his Majeſty concerning eccleſiaſtical Affairs, publiſhed in Print in the Time of the Adjournment of the Parliament; and moved the ſame might be read, which was accordingly done, and their Lordſhips conceived this Declaration to be of ſo great Grace and publick Concernment, that it was ordered, that this Houſe ſhould wait upon the King in a Body, and return his Majeſty Thanks for the ſame.

The Speaker's Speech to the King:

The Houſe of Commons this Day waited on his Majeſty in the Banquetting-Houſe in Whitehall, where the Speaker ſaid,

Moſt Gracious and Royal Sovereign,

Preſenting the Thanks of the Commons for his Declaration.

That had given ſtrong Meat to ſound Stomachs, and Milk to Babes;

Which would ſatiſfy the ſober-minded.

But nothing would agree with thoſe foul Stomachs that craved a licentious Liberty.

If I had the Command of as many Tongues, as your Majeſty hath of Hearts, I could not expreſs the great Joy and Thankfulneſs of your Commons now aſſembled in Parliament, for your continual and indefatigable Labour and Pains in repairing and making up our ſad Breaches, and compoſing our unhappy Differences; and in particular for your late moſt gracious Declaration concerning eccleſiaſtical Affairs, wherein your Majeſty hath provided wholſome Food for all clean Stomachs, ſtrong Meat for ſuch as are able to bear it, allowing them the Uſe of our Church Liberty, together with comely Veſtments, Ornaments, and Ceremonies in the Service and Worſhip of God; as likewiſe Milk for tender Babes, diſpenſing with their Conformity in ſuch Matters and Things, as are not ſo much of the Subſtance and Eſſence of Faith and Religion, as of Decency and Becomingneſs; which giveth abundant Satisfaction to all peaceable ſober-minded Men, and ſuch as are truly religious: For thoſe that are really and truly ſo, will find themſelves bound ever in Conſcience to the Obſervation and Practice of that excellent Leſſon taught us by the Apoſtle, which is, Sapere ad temperantiam & Spartam ornare, with a Vade tu & fac ſimile. As for thoſe that have foul Stomachs, or rather foul Hearts, and will be pleaſed with nothing, unleſs they may have a licentious Liberty, Libertatem Perditionis, a Liberty Legem ponere Oculis, minime cogitantes quod ſunt Pedes. Men of turbulent Spirits and Diſturbers of the Peace, and civil Government of your Nation, your Declaration takes no Care of them, for they will indeed better deſerve your Majeſty's Penance and Puniſhment, than your Piety and Indulgence.

The Diſturbers of the Peace will deſerve Puniſhment, rather than Indulgence.

A Bill ordered to be prepared in purſuance of the Declaration.

Royal Sir, the End of this humble Addreſs at this Time is to aſſure your Majeſty, that your gracious Declaration doth give general Satisfaction; and I am commanded by your Commons now aſſembled in Parliament, to preſent your Majeſty with as general Thanks, in which they were all unanimous, Nemine Contradicente: And in Purſuance of your Majeſty's Directions therein, they have ordered a Bill to be drawn for that Purpoſe; which after it hath paſſed the Scrutiny of both your Houſes of Parliament, they will then humbly beg your Favour and Leave, to tender it unto your Majeſty for your Royal Aſſent.

Concluding with a high Acknowledgment of the King's Goodneſs, &c.

Sir, That gracious and pious Diſpoſition which God hath put into your Royal Heart, of doing your People Good, is the greateſt temporal Bleſſing we are capable of here in this World. We muſt confeſs your Majeſty hath not only Jacob's Voice, but you have likewiſe Jacob's Hands: You have ſpoken kindly unto the People, and you have handled them gently; and therefore we muſt for ever make it our humble Requeſts in our daily Prayers unto his Throne of Grace, to beſtow upon your Majeſty Jacob's Bleſſing,

And Prayers for a Bleſſing upon him.

De rore Cœli variaque pinguedine Terræ; that you may have for your Portion of the Dew of Heaven, and of the Fatneſs of the Earth, Serviant tibi Populi, & incurvent ſe tibi Nationes, Honorem exhibentes. Let your People ſerve you, and let the Nations of the Earth bow down before you: Thoſe that curſe you, let them be curſed, and they that bleſs you, let them be bleſſed.

Berks*, where Hezekiah Woodward, the Intruder, had a ſelect Congregation out of his Pariſh of thoſe that were to be ſaved, who frequently met to pray in the Vicarage Houſe, which if he had ſtay'd a Year longer, would have deſtroy'd all that were to be ſaved by falling upon them; for he was a great Dilapidator, ſuffer'd

Some of the Offices, Stable, and Wood-house to fall, [illegible] of the [illegible] Chambers, and suffer'd one Side of the Hall (the [illegible]) to drop down. Insomuch that Dr. Edward Fulham who succeeded him at the Restauration, was forced to build it up in the first Month he had it; and Dr. N. Gosswell in short Time succeeding Dr. Fulham, spent about 150 l. to make the House habitable. He received his Maintenance out of the then Augmentation Court, neglecting his Tythes, and put Whims into the Peoples Heads, that they were Romiſh and Antichriſtian, and only pleaſed himſelf in taking Preſents of the Peoples free-will Offering, as moſt becoming the Goſpel. By theſe Courſes he had almoſt ruined a good Vicarage, —— and an Age is ſcarce able to repair that Miſchief which he hath done there, as other Saints elſewhere.

The Lord Chancellour of England inſtall'd Chancellour of Oxford.

Publick Intelligence, 4to. No. 47.

The Vice-Chancellour and Proctors, with divers Heads of Colleges, and other Doctors and Graduates of the Univerſity of Oxford came in their Formalities according to their Degrees to Worceſter Houſe in the Strand, and preſented themſelves to the Lord Edward Hyde Baron of Hendon, Lord Chancellour of England, whom the ſaid Univerſity with unanimous Conſent had choſe for their Chancellour: After two Speeches made to his Lordſhip, the one by the Vice-Chancellour, the other by the ſenior Proctor, the Seal and Keys were deliver'd to his Lordſhip, as the Symbols of his Authority over the Maſters and Scholars of that famous Univerſity. His Lordſhip return'd his hearty Thanks in a ſhort material Speech, telling them, he was ſorry they had loſt their Election, whereby they might have made another Friend, and he had ever been ſo much theirs, that no Honour or additional Favour could make him more. Which ended, he led them where he had provided an excellent Banquet, and having himſelf begun, left them all to their Freedom.

Reſolved by the Commons, that the Privilege of Parliament extends only to their own Perſons, and their menial Servants.

Extracts from the Journal of the Houſe of Commons.

Reſolved and declared by the Commons aſſembled in Parliament, that the Privilege of this Houſe in point of Protection from Arreſts, doth belong to the Members of this Houſe, and their menial Servants only, and to the Officers attending the Service of this Houſe, and that all Protections in Writing, granted by any Member of this Houſe, to any Perſon whatſoever, be forthwith called in, and are hereby declar'd to be null and void. And all Perſons whom this may concern, are requir'd upon all Occaſions, to take Notice of the Privilege belonging to the Members of this Houſe; and their menial Servants, and to the Officers attending the Service of this Houſe, at their Peril.

Account of Mr. Serjeant Maynard.

Wood's Ath. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 649.

John Maynard, an eminent Lawyer, who had been appointed one of the Committee to draw up Evidence againſt Thomas Earl of Strafford, whom he baited to ſome Purpoſe in the Name of the Commons of England; and afterwards managed the Evidence againſt Archbiſhop Laud; took the Covenant, was one of the Lay-men nominated in the Ordinance of the Lords and Commons to ſit with the Aſſembly of Divines. ——— In 1653. (1 Oliv. Protect.) by Writ dated 4 Febr. called to the Degree of Serjeant at Law, having before taken the Engagement; and on the firſt of May following he was by Patent made the Protector's Serjeant, and pleaded in his and the then Cauſes Behalf againſt ſeveral Royaliſts that were tried in the pretended High Court of Juſtice, wherein ſeveral generous Cavaliers and noble Hearts received the diſmal Sentence of Death. Afterwards he continued in great Repute under that Uſurper, was ſettled in his Place of the Protector's Serjeant by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of England, continued ſo in Richard's Reign, and obtained Wealth as he pleaſed. But now after his Majeſty's Reſtauration he wheel'd about, ſtruck in with his Party, took thoſe Oaths that he done before to King Charles I. and by Writ dated in the Beginning of June, he was called again to the Degree of Serjeant, was made the King's Serjeant by the corrupt Dealing of a great Man of the Law on the ninth of November, and knighted on the ſixteenth of the ſame Month 1660. at which Time he was appointed one of the Judges, but by ſeveral Excuſes he got clear off from that Imployment. Addreſs of the London Miniſters for the King's Declaration.

London; printed by his Majeſty's Approbation, for John Rothwell, 1660.

To the King's moſt excellent Majeſty: The humble and grateful Acknowledgment of many Miniſters of the Goſpel in and about the City of London, to his Royal Majeſty, for his Gracious Conceſſions in his Majeſty's late Declaration concerning Eccleſiaſtical Affairs.

Preſented to the King by Mr. Samuel Clark, Miniſter of Bennet Fink in London, in the Name of the City Miniſters, uſing theſe few Words: —Your Majeſty's loyal Subjects, the Miniſters in and about the City of London, have commanded us humbly to preſent this their gratulatory Acknowledgment to your royal Majeſty, for your gracious Condeſcenſions in your Majeſty's late Declaration concerning Eccleſiaſtical Affairs. Calamy's Abridgment, Vol. II. 8vo. p. 11.

Moſt Dread Sovereign,

We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, Miniſters of your Goſpel in your City of London, having peruſed your Majeſty's late Declaration concerning eccleſiaſtical Affairs, and finding it to the Joy of our Hearts, ſo full of Indulgence and gracious Condeſcenſion, we cannot but judge ourſelves highly obliged, in the firſt Place to render our unfeighed Thanks to our good God, who hath ſo mercifully inclined your Majeſty's Royal Heart to this Moderation, and next our moſt humble and hearty Acknowledgments unto your ſacred Majeſty, that we may teſtify to your Royal Self, and all the World, our juſt Reſentment of your Majeſty's great Goodneſs and Clemency therein expreſſed.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

The Liberty of our Conſciences, and the free Exerciſe of our Miniſtry in the Work of our great Lord and Maſter, for the Converſion of Souls, ought to be, and are more dear to us, than all the Profits and Preferments of this World; and therefore your Majeſty's Tenderneſs, manifeſted in theſe ſo high Concernments doth wonderfully affect us, and raiſe up our Hearts to an high Pitch of Gratitude.

They acknowledge the King's ſtedfaſt Adherence to the Proteſtant Religion.

We cannot but adore divine Goodneſs for your Majeſty's ſtedfaſt Adherence to the Proteſtant Religion, notwithſtanding all Temptations and Provocations to the contrary, and your profeſſed Zeal for the Advancement and Propagation thereof, declaring, that nothing can be propoſed to manifeſt your Zeal and Affection for it, to which you will not readily conſent.

Your Majeſty has graciouſly declared, that your Reſolution is, and ſhall be, to promote the Power of Godlineſs, to encourage the Exerciſes of Religion, both publick and private, to take Care that the Lord's Day be applyed to holy Exerciſes, without unneceſſary Divertiſements; and that inſufficient, negligent and ſcandalous Miniſters be not permitted in the Church. Your Majeſty hath granted that no Biſhop ſhall ordain, or exerciſe any Part of Juriſdiction which appertains to the Cenſures of the Church, without the Advice and Aſſiſtance of the Preſbyters, and neither do, nor impoſe any Thing, but what is according to the known Laws of the Land. Excluded Chancellors, Commiſſaries, and Officials from Acts of Juriſdiction; ſo happily reſtored the Power of the Paſtors in their ſeveral Congregations; and granted a Liberty to all the Miniſters to aſſemble Monthly for the Exerciſe of the paſtoral Power, to the promoting of Knowledge and Godlineſs in their Flocks. Your Majeſty hath graciouſly promiſed a Review, and effectual Reformation of the Liturgy, with additional Forms to be uſed at Choice: And in the mean Time, that none be puniſhed or troubled for not uſing it. Your Majeſty hath graciouſly freed us from Subſcription required by the Canon, and the Oath of canonical Obedience, and granted us to receive Ordination, Inſtitution and Induction, and to exerciſe our Function, and enjoy the Profit of our Livings without the ſame. Your Majeſty hath gratified the Conſciences of many, who are grieved with the Uſe of ſome Ceremonies, by indulging to, and diſpenſing with their omitting thoſe Ceremonies, viz. kneeling at the Sacrament, the Croſs in Baptiſm, bowing at the Name of Jeſus, and wearing of the Surplice.

All this your Majeſty's Indulgence and tender Compaſſion (which with Delight we have taken the Boldneſs thus largely to commemorate) we receive with all Humility and Thankfulneſs, and as the beſt Expreſſion thereof, ſhall never ceaſe to pray for your Majeſty's long and proſperous Reign; and ſtudy how in our ſeveral Stations we may be moſt Inſtrumental in your Majeſty's Service: And that we may not be defective in Ingenuity, we crave leave to profeſs, that though all Things in this Frame of Government be not exactly ſuited to our Judgment, yet your Majeſty's Moderation hath ſo great an Influence upon us, that we ſhall to our utmoſt, endeavour the healing of the Breaches, and promoting the Peace and Union of the Church.

They beg that Re-ordination and the Surplice in Colleges may not be impoſed.

There are ſome other Things that have been propounded by our reverend Brethren, which, upon our Knees, with all humble Importunity, we could beg of your Majeſty, eſpecially that Re-ordination, and the Surplice in Colleges may not be impoſed; and we cannot lay aſide our Hopes, but that that God, who hath thus far drawn out your Majeſty's Bowels and Mercy, will further incline your Majeſty's Heart to gratify us in theſe our humble Deſires alſo.

That we be not further Burthenſome, we humbly beg Leave to thank your Majeſty for the Liberty and Reſpect vouchſafed to our reverend Brethren in this weighty Affair of Accommodation. The God of Heaven bless your Majesty, and all the Royal Family.

Your Majesty's most loyal Subjects,

This Addreſs was preſented to his Majeſty at Whitehall Nov. 16, by ſome of theſe Miniſters, to whom he was pleaſed to return a very gracious Anſwer.

The King's kind Countenance to Mr. Baxter.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Edit. I. Part II. p. 286.

Whether this came to the King's Ears, or what elſe it was that cauſed it, I know not, but preſently after the Earl of Lauderdale came to tell me, that I muſt come the next Day to the King, who was pleaſed to tell me, that he ſent for me only to ſignify his Favour to me: I told him, I feared my plain Speeches October 22, which I thought that Cauſe in hand commanded me, might have been diſpleaſing to him: But he told me, that he was not offended at the Plainneſs or Freedom or Earneſtneſs of them, but only when he thought I was not in the Right; and that for my free Speech he took me to be the honeſter Man.

I ſuppoſe this Favour came from the Biſhops, who having Notice of what laſt paſſed, did think that I might now ſerve their Intereſts.

Bill againſt Curſing and Swearing.

Mercur. Publicus, No. 47.

In the Houſe of Commons, the Amendments to the Bill againſt Curſing and Swearing were reported, and the Bill with the ſaid Amendments ordered to be engroſſed.

Will. Drake diſcovered to be the Author of the Long Parliament revived.

For which he was apprehended and impeached by the Commons.

The Printer and Diſperſer of the Book called, The Long Parliament revived, being ſecured by ſuch as his Majeſty hath appointed for preventing ſcandalous and ſeditious Books and Pamphlets: On Friday Night Mr. William Drake was apprehended, who contrary to Expectation being examin'd, hath ſince confeſs'd himſelf to be the Author of that Book; which being reported to the Houſe this Morning, the Houſe ordered him to be taken into Cuſtody, and the Particulars of the Book to be examined by the Committee for Privileges, who have found the Book to be ſcandalous and ſeditious, and ordered a Charge to be drawn up againſt the Author, and the Book to be burnt by the Hand of the common Hangman.

On Wedneſday following, the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes in Parliament aſſembled, do, in the Name of themſelves and of all the Commons aſſembled in Parliament, impeach William Drake of London Merchant of Sedition, for writing, printing, and publiſhing a ſeditious Pamphlet, entituled, The Long Parliament revived.

Monday Nov. 19.

Thomas Fuller, Son of John Fuller Miniſter of Stebbing in Eſſex, had been conſecrated Biſhop of Ardfert in 1641. and now tranſlated to this Archiepiſcopal See of Caſhal.

Adviſ'd from Caſhal in Ireland, that when the moſt reverend Father in God, Thomas Lord Archbiſhop of that Place firſt arrived there, he was accommodated with the beſt Houſe and Garden in that Town, and many in and about the Place were much rejoyc'd at it, and very complying with his Grace in the Common-Prayer: But when all found his Grace ſo laborious as to perform both the Office of Parſon and Curate among them, they all generally acknowledg'd it as a great Mercy of God that ſo worthy a Prelate is come into this Place: And many which formerly ſeemed to be of a contrary Judgment, do now confeſs themſelves convinc'd by his indefatigable Pains and exemplary Piety, and are (as we hope) become real Converts.

It was ſoon after adviſ'd again from Dublin, that the Piety of the Biſhops which his Majeſty had bleſs'd them with, had ſo generally won the Hearts of the People, that daily many of both Extremities were added to the Church; and that ſeveral of thoſe who were Leaders of the People of a contrary Perſuaſion, do now incline to Conformity, &c.

His Zeal for the Church of St. Paul.

Epiſt. Ded. To the Right Honourable Sir Richard Brown, Knight and Baronet, Lord Mayor of the City of London.

Your Lordſhip hath the Honour of eternizing your Name, by being an active Inſtrument in digging the Church and State from under thoſe Heaps of Ruin and Rubbiſh, the Ambition and Covetouſneſs of a popular Tyranny had long buried them under, in the bleſſed Reſtoring of his ſacred Majeſty to his ſuffering Subjects, for which Generations to come ſhall bleſs your Memory. Go on my Lord, go on to plant whole Groves of Laurel, to crown yourſelf, your City, your Poſterity with unperiſhable Glories, by a generous and charitable Reflection upon that aged Heap of Ruins, once the Wonder of the World, and the Crown of this Queen of Iſlands. I mean the Church of St. Paul, in a Canton of which this Sermon was delivered to you. —— Pardon my Zeal, it is for the Houſe of God. —— I owe my Birth and Breeding to the Neighbourhood of that Mother Church. —— You know, when a Den of Thieves made it a Stable for Horſes, and ſo or worſe they would have uſed all our Churches —— at leaſt theſe Mother Churches —— now reſtore to God the Houſe of God. Let me ſay to your Lordſhip, as Mordecai ſaid to Eſther, who knows whether thou art come to this Honour for ſuch a Time as this. —— You cannot want Encouragement; for beſides that the Wiſhes of Prince and People concenter in it, God hath bleſſed London with a prudent Biſhop, cut out as it were for all manner of Church-Work, &c. Dated Weſtminſter, Jan. 1. 1660.

The Presbyterian Persecution of the loyal and orthodox Clergy in the late Times.

A Discourse of Toleration, in Answer to a Discourse of the Religion of England, 4to. p. 28.

The Presbyterians were preparing now for the Cry of Persecution, forgetting that while they were in Power, they persecuted all other Religions. Did not those who took the Covenant bind themselves to it by Oath? viz. To extirpate Popery and Prelacy and Superstition, Heresy and Schism, and whatsoever they should find contrary to sound Doctrine: And whether this Extirpation was not a Persecution, let all Ages judge when they shall read the History of the late Times, and there find the Plunderings of Papists: The Sequestrings, Plunderings, and Imprisonments in the nastiest Prisons, and in Holds of Ships, of those Ministers and Fellows of Colleges, that were the Asserters of Liturgy, and the Government legally established in the Church of England. —— And being then encouraged, they so far laboured to bear down all before them, that at last they put all in Disorder, and were themselves upon the Brink of Destruction, together with a confused Nation.

Bill for making the King's Declaration effectual rejected.

In the House of Commons. A Bill for making the King's Majesty's Declaration concerning Ecclesiastical Affairs effectual, was this Day read the first Time. And the Question being propounded, that this Bill be read a second Time, it passed in the Negative.

When there was a Motion made in the House of Commons, that the Declaration might pass into an Act, it was opposed by one of the Secretaries of State, which was a sufficient Indication of the King's Averseness to it.

Account of Walter Rumsey, Esq;

Ath. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 166.

Walter Rumsey, Esq; of Grey's-Inn, where he was made Barrister, Bencher, Lent-Reader 9 Car. I. and at length a Judge in South-Wales, being then so noted for his Profession, that he was usually called the Pick-lock of the Law. In 1640. he was elected one of the Knights for Monmouthshire to serve in that Parliament which began at Westminster Apr. 13. and might have been chosen again to serve in the Long-Parliament, but refused it. He was an ingenious Man, had a philosophical Head, was a good Musician, and most curious for grafting, inoculating, and planting, and also for ordering of Ponds. But that which he is most to be noted for is, that he having been always much troubled with Phlegm, was the first that invented the Provang, or Whale-bone Instrument to cleanse the Throat and Stomach, which hath not only been since used by noted Physicians and Virtuosi at home, but by those beyond the Seas. At length he wrote a Book of it and its Use, entituled, Organon Salutis. An Instrument to cleanse the Stomach: To which he added divers new Experiments of the Virtue of Tobacco and Coffee. He died at his House at Llannover about (this Time) 1660. and was buried in the Parish Church there.

FRIDAY Nov. 30.
A good Bill for erecting and endowing Vicarages out of impropriate Rectories.
From which Bishops, Deans, and Chapters, would have been exempted, for fear they should not be able otherwise to subsist.

Extracts from Journal of the Commons.

The Commons read the third Time the engrossed Bill for the erecting and endowing of Vicarages out of impropriate Rectories.

A Proviso was tender'd to this Bill, that neither this Act nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to his Majesty's Chapel of Windsor. The Question being put, it pass'd in the Negative.

Another Proviso was tender'd, that neither this Bill nor any Thing therein contained, should extend to any of the Rectories impropriate, which are Parcel of the Possessions, or belonging to the Bishopricks of Ely or Lincoln, or to either of them, any Thing herein before to the contrary notwithstanding: And the Question being put, it pass'd in the Negative.

In the Houſe of Peers. A Meſſage was brought from the Houſe of Commons by Mr. Buckley, who brought up a Bill of augmenting Vicarages.

The Diſcovery and Diſappointment of a dangerous Conſpiracy form'd by Ludlow and other Republicans, whereof the Lord Chancellor gave this Account in his next Speech to the two Houſes on Saturday the 29th of December following.

Diſcovery of a Plot formed by Ludlow and other Republicans,

Communicated to the Parliament at their next Meeting.

To deſtroy Monarchy, and erect a Republick.

They intended to have attempted a Reſcue of the Regicides;

And a Surprize of the Tower of London and Caſtle of Windſor.

A Riſing to have been in the Weſt and in the North.

To have ſecur'd the General D. of Albemarle, &c.

You have heard of many ſuſpected and dangerous Perſons, which have been lately clapp'd up, and it was high Time to look about. His Majeſty hath ſpent many Hours himſelf in the Examination of this Buſineſs, and ſome of the principal Officers, who before they came to his Majeſty's Preſence could not be brought to acknowledge any thing, after the King himſelf had ſpoken to them, confeſſed that their Spirits were inſenſibly prevailed upon and ſubdued; and that it was not in their Power to conceal their Guilt from him. They have confeſſed, that there is a Party of the late diſbanded Officers and Soldiers, and others full of Diſcontent and ſeditious Purpoſes, and a Reſolution to attempt the Change of the preſent Government, and to erect the Republick. They acknowledge, that they did purpoſe to have made their Attempt for the Reſcue of thoſe Wretches that were juſtly condemn'd at Newgate, and ſo worthily executed; and that Ludlow ſhould then have appeared at the Head of them; that they made themſelves ſure Time by Parties and Confederacies to have ſurpriz'd the Tower of London and the Caſtle of Windſor. —— The King had Notice of all their Deſign, what Progreſs it made, and the Night they intended to have ſurpriz'd the Tower and Windſor, and gave Notice to the ſeveral Governours; and ſo without any Noiſe that Miſchief was by God's Goodneſs prevented. They acknowledge, that they have ſince recovered their Courage and Reſolution, and were about this Time to have made their full Attempt. They have been promiſed ſome conſiderable Riſing in the Weſt under Ludlow, and in the North under others. But this Place was the Scene of greateſt Hope; they made ſure of a Body here, I think they ſay, of two thouſand and five hundred Men, with which they reſolved in the firſt Place to ſecure (you know what that Security is) the Perſon of the General the Duke of Albemarle, with whom they have ſo much Reaſon to be angry, and at the ſame Time to poſſeſs themſelves of Whitehall; you know the Method uſed in ſuch poſſeſſing, Kill and take Poſſeſſion. —— Oh! Gentlemen, you cannot be yourſelves, nor you cannot make your Friends too zealous or too jealous for ſuch a Prince's Safety, or too ſolicitous for ſuch a Prince's Satisfaction and Content, to whom we may very juſtly ſay as the King of Tyre writ to Solomon, Becauſe God hath loved his People, he hath made thee King over them; even his Defects and Infirmities are very neceſſary towards the full Meaſure of our Proſperity.

See Nov. 15.

The King's Majeſty having publiſhed a Declaration concerning eccleſiaſtical Affairs, the London Miniſters drew up a gratulatory Addreſs to his Majeſty for the ſame, adding a Prayer for the Removal of Re-ordination and Surplices in Colleges, and choſe me to preſent it, which I did at Whitehall November 16, 1660. and when I began to ſpeak upon my Knee, his Majeſty bad me twice to riſe up, which I did, and ſpake thus, "Your Majeſty's loyal Subjects, many of "the Miniſters in and about the City of London, have commanded us humbly "to preſent this their gratulatory Acknowledgment to your Royal Majeſty for "your gracious Condeſcenſions, in your Majeſty's late Declaration concerning "eccleſiaſtical Affairs." The King took my Paper, and return'd this Anſwer, Gentlemen, I will endeavour to give you all Satisfaction, and to make you as happy as myſelf; and ſomething more to the like Purpoſe.

Acknowledging the Miracle of his Reſtauration.

In procuring which Happineſs, his Subjects of Ireland have born a good Part,

For which they deſerve his Royal Favour and Protection.

CHARLES the Second, by the Grace of God, &c. To all our loving Subjects of the Kingdom of Ireland, of what Degree or Quality ſoever, greeting. It having pleaſed Almighty God out of his great Mercy and Compaſſion towards us and all our Subjects, to reſtore us in ſo wonderful a manner to each other, and with ſuch wonderful Circumſtances of Affection and Confidence in each other, as muſt for ever fill our Hearts (if we are in any Degree ſenſible of ſuch Bleſſings) with an humble and grateful Acknowledgment of the Obligation we owe to his Divine Providence, that he would vouchſafe to work that Miracle for us himſelf, which no Endeavours of our own could bring to paſs: We think it agreeable to the juſt Senſe we have and ought to have of the good Affection of all our good Subjects, who have contributed ſo much in bringing this unſpeakable Bleſſing upon us and themſelves, that we acknowledge that our good Subjects in our Kingdom of Ireland have born a very good Part in procuring this Happineſs, that they were early in their dutiful Addreſſes to us, and made the ſame Profeſſions of a Reſolution to return to their Duty and Obedience to us during the Time of our being beyond the Seas, which they have ſince ſo eminently made good and put in Practice. ——— Given at our Court at Whitehall the thirtieth Day of November 1660. in the twelfth Year of our Reign.

Epist. Ded. To the Countess of Arundel.

Epist. Ded. To the most illustrious and excellent Lady the Countess of Arundell and Surrey.

—— The Book carries no other Intent but what a Person of Honour may own, and its Purpose written upon its Face answers directly to its Heart and Spirit. It would, forsooth, pacify our rural Distempers about Affairs of Religion, and it shews a Light that Madness may see what it does, where it mistakes, and how irrationally it rages. —— Your Honour was pleased as soon as it was conceived, and before it was born into the World, when you had once perceived it to study Moderation and Charity, so good a Design, and in these Times so wholsome and necessary, to call it your Book, &c.

Contents of the Book.

The Matter and Method of the Book is contained in these Chapters:

I. There is no Colour of Reason or just Title may move us to quarle and judge one another with so much Heat about Religion.

II. All Things are so obscure that no Man in Prudence can so far presume of his own Knowledge, as to set up himself a Guide in Religion to his Neighbour.

III. No Religion or Sect, or Way hath any Advantage over another, nor all of them over Popery.

IV. All Religions who have Opposition to the Catholick are equally innocent to one another, as likewise is the Roman Religion truly innocent and unblameable to them all.

V. Moral Topicks for Charity and Peace.

Commendation of the King's late Speech.

P. 8. But I am finally inflamed to this Work by a Sight of his Majesty's most gracious Speech, together with the Lord Chancellour's unto the two Houses of Parliament, upon their Adjournment in September 1660. where one may evidently see our Sovereign's most earnest and even groaning Desire of a moderate and prudent Comportment in this Land one of us towards another, according to the Dictamen of our Christianity, and right Reason in these Matters of Religion, together with a Promise of his utmost Endeavours to our general Satisfaction, if we in the Interim could but have Patience and Charity one towards another, 'til he may understand how to please us all. Could Wisdom and Goodness itself desire ought of us more facil or rational, or more pleasing, &c.

The Protestant or Church of England Man worse than the Presbyterian or Independent.

Ch. 3. p. 188. The Independent is in the Wrong, saith the Presbyterian and Protestant; the Presbyterian errs, saith the Protestant and Independent; the Protestant is deceiv'd, saith the Independent and Presbyterian; you are all mad Men quoth the Roman Catholick. You first abused and supplanted me, and now by the same Ways and Means you do supplant and abuse one another. But if I may interpose my Judgment, the Protestant, altho' I honour his Gravity above the rest, seems to be in a worse Case than either Presbyterian or Independent: For these in maintaining themselves and their Ways, do but strike home the first Principles of Protestant Reformation: Whereas the Prelate Protestant to defend himself against them, is forced to make Use of those very Principles, which himself aforetime, when he first contested against Popery, destroy'd. As be the Difference betwixt Clergy and Laity, the Efficacy of episcopal Ordination, the Authority of a visible Church, which all use to obey, and the like: So that upon him falls most heavily, even like Thunder and Lightning from Heaven, utterly to kill and cut him asunder, that great Oracle deliver'd by St. Paul in his Letter he wrote to the Christians of Galatia, Si quæ destruxi iterum hæc ædifico, Prævaricatorem me constituo. If I build up again the Things I formerly destroy'd, I make myself a Prævaricator, an Impostor, a Reprobate, a heavy Sentence. But Truth will out and Wisdom will be justified at long running, even by her greatest Adversaries.

Dr. Manton's Preface.

Preface to the Reader by Dr. Thomas Manton.

—— This Work which the Stationer hath now revived (that it may not be forgotten, and like a Jewel after once ſhewing, ſhut up in the Cabinet of private Studies only) was penned by ſeveral worthy Divines of great Note and Fame in the Churches of Chriſt, under the borrowed and covert Name of Smectymnuus; that is, Mr. Stephen Marſhall, Mr. Edmund Calamy, Dr. Thomas Young, Mr. Matthew Newcomen, and Dr. William Spurſtow. —— This ſecond Publication of it was occaſioned by another Book for the Vindication of the Miniſtry, by the provincial Aſſembly of London. Wherein there are frequent Appeals to Smectymnuus; though otherwiſe I ſhould have judged the Reprinting ſeaſonable, for the Lord hath now returned us ſuch a Juncture of Time, wherein there is greater Freedom of Debate, without Noiſe and vulgar Prejudice, &c.

Concluding.] But to return to Jeroboam with whom we first began: He laid the Foundation of his Government in destroying, though no doubt he coloured it with the Name of reforming God's Worship: But see the Issue; consider him cursed by God; maintaining his usurped Title by continual vexatious Wars against the Kings of Judah; smote in his Posterity, which was made like the Dung upon the Face of the Earth, as low and vile as those Priests whom he had imployed: Consider him branded and made odious to all after Ages. And now when his Kingdom and Glory was at an end, and he and his Posterity rotting under Ground, and his Name stinking above it; judge what a worthy Prize he made in getting of a Kingdom by destroying the Church. Wherefore the Sum of all is this, to advise and desire those whom it may concern, to consider Jeroboam's Punishment, and then they will have little Heart to Jeroboam's Sin.

In the late Times they would not suffer any Royalist to preach at St. Paul's.

He had given some Offence by speaking against the Sacrilege committed in that Place.

The Passages are at large in the 22d, 23d, 24th and 25th Pages of the Sermon:

When I see my Saviour whipping the Buyers and Sellers out of the Temple, i. e. out of the Verges and Precincts of the Temple; when I see him overthrowing the Tables of the Money-Changers and Exchangers: When I see and consider this, methinks it is no very comely or handsome Sight to see either Church Iles exchanged into Shops, or Church-yards into Markets, &c.

[illegible] Service. [illegible] Burials, because [illegible] For when these Offices and Ordinances were [illegible] for my Preaching at St. Paul's, which Duty belonged to [illegible] Years) by Virtue of a Place I hold in the University, [illegible] open unto me), she had the Favour to be admitted [illegible] I am told, seemed to take a little Distaste and Offence at a Passage or two which I delivered, concerning the Misuse and Profanation of that famous Cathedral wherein we were assembled, and the Burying-place or Church-yard adjoining thereto. As to this, I must needs profess, I have been so much affected to see and observe the Ruins and Devastations of that Church, that of late Years I could never pass through it almost without Fear, lest the Stones should drop down upon me; so I could never pass by it without Pity and Regret to behold so sad a Spectacle. Whereupon I resolved with myself (I had almost said solemnly vowed) and I hope in the Fear of God, and out of Zeal to his Glory, that if ever Providence called me to that Place, I would speak my Thoughts freely and plainly, (though soberly and modestly) as to that Particular. —— The Lord put it into the Hearts and Hands of our Governours, both Civil and Ecclesiastical, like good Nehemiah's, to promote and set forward the Building of the Temple, and to help to repair the Breaches and Ruins of our Churches and Cathedrals.

Mr. Baxter's Account of the Lady Anne Lindsey's turning Papist.

Seduced by one Johnson alias Terret.

Of great Veracity while a Protestant; but no Truth in her when a Papist

She had complain'd to the Queen-Mother.

Convey'd into France and put into a Nunnery; where she died.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. from p. 219. to p. 229.

Hearing that the Countess of Balcarres was not well, I went to visit her, and found her grievously afflicted for her eldest Daughter the Lady Anne Lindsey about sixteen or seventeen Years of Age, who was suddenly turn'd Papist by she knew not whom. —— At last, it was discovered that the Man that seduced her, and refused Disputation with me, was Mr. Johnson (or Terret) the same Man that I had before conferred and wrote with: And yet when I asked her whether it were he, she plainly and positively said, it was not; and when a Servant went after her Coach (in which she was secretly stolen from her Mother) and overtook her in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, she positively promised to come again, and said she went but to see a Friend. Also she complained to the Queen-Mother of her Mother, as if she used her hardly for Religion, which was false: In a Word, her Mother told me, that before she turned Papist, she scarce ever heard a Lye from her, and since then she could believe nothing that she said. They that stole her away convey'd her to France, and there put her into a Nunnery, where she is since dead. Not long after her Departure, she sent a Letter superscribed to her Lady Mother, and subscribed Sister Anna Maria. It contained the Reasons of her Perversion; and though I knew they were not likely to suffer her to read it, I wrote an Answer to it, at her Mother's Desire, which was sent to her by her Mother. The Letter which I sent her the Day before she was stolen away, and the Answer to that her Letter from the Nunnery, I thought meet here to insert.

Sufferings of the Clergy, P. II. p. 304.

Daughters, was by that Prelate preferred to the great Living of Cotenham in Cambridgeshire. He was diſpoſſeſs'd upon Articles againſt him in 1641. Soon after that rich Parſonage was given to Oliver Cromwell's Daughter Robina, who beſtow'd both it and herſelf upon Peter French, who upon his Removal to Oxford (made Canon of Chriſt-Church) reſigned it (as I have been informed) to John Nye, who had married a Daughter of Stephen Marſhal. But Dr. Manby after terrible treble Perſecutions, having not one Farthing of Fifths ever paid to him or his Wife, made a hard Shift to ſupport himſelf and Family until the happy Reſtoration. Nor was there an End put to his Troubles even then: For Mr. Nye, altho' he had long ſuck'd the fat Morſel, was very loth to let it go from between his Teeth; and therefore not only gave Dr. Manby the Trouble of diſpoſſeſſing him by Law, but alſo carried away the Corn of that Harveſt into other Peoples Yards, and threſh'd out what was in the Parſonage Barns, directly contrary to an Order of the Houſe of Lords, bearing Date the latter End of June 1660. and forbidding him to uſe any of the Profits of the Rectory during the Dependence of the Suit; as appears by the Original Breviate made Uſe of at the Tryal, and written with the Doctor's own Hand. However, at length the Doctor gets himſelf re-poſſeſſed of his Living, &c.

Many of the Intruders had refuſed to pay Fifths, 'till now forced by Law.

Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, P. II. p. 387.

Moſt of the Intruders had refuſed to pay the Fifths to the ſequeſtred Clergy though bound ſo to do; and were now after the Reſtauration compell'd by Law to do it. Thus Mr. Richard Ven, a worthy Divine, having been ſequeſtred from the Vicarage of Otterton, Com. Devon. lived to re-poſſeſs it, and what is more to recover the Fifths from the Intruder Mr. Conant, who could not forbear diſcovering how loth he was to pay them, by throwing the Money upon the Floor, at which Mr. Ven ſmiling, ſaid, Well, well, I'll take the Pains to pick it up.

SUNDAY Dec. 2. Conſecration of ſeven Biſhops.

Reg. Juxon.

This Day ſeven Biſhops were conſecrated at St. Peter's Weſtminſter, by the moſt reverend Father in God Accepted Lord Archbiſhop of York, by Virtue of a Commiſſion and Diſpenſation from his Majeſty, and from the moſt reverend Father in God William Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Four of the Biſhops were of the Province of Canterbury, and three of the Province of York. In this ſacred Performance, the Lord Archbiſhop of York had for Aſſiſtants Gilbert Lord Biſhop of London Chancellour of the Province of Canterbury, and Dean of his Majeſty's Chapel Royal; John Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter, Humphrey Lord Biſhop of Sarum, and George Lord Biſhop of Worceſter.

1. Dr. John Coſin Biſhop of Durham.

Publick Intelligence, 4to.

The firſt that was conſecrated was that eminent and faithful Son of the Church of England, Dr. John Coſin Maſter of Peter-Houſe in Cambridge, late Dean of Peterborough, now Lord Biſhop of Durham, in whom a Man may read the Reward of a learned pious Conſtancy againſt all Extremities. For this is he whom our buſy Firebrands in the Year 1640. would perſuade the World was warping towards Popery, when (to their Shame and our Churches Honour) no Divine of our own or of foreign Nations, hath been a greater Buckler for the Proteſtant Cauſe, and that in the Midſt of its greateſt and ſtrongeſt Adverſaries.

2. Dr. Will. Lucy Biſhop of St. David's.

William Lucy, D. D. had been for his Loyalty ſequeſtred from the Rectories of Burgh-cleer and High-cleer in Hampſhire.

The ſecond Biſhop was Dr. William Lucy, now Lord Biſhop of St. Davids, a Perſon not only of a noble ancient Family, but of ſignal Candour and Virtues requiſite in a Churchman, which in theſe worſt of Times have gained him great Eſteem from the very Enemies of his Order and Function.

3. Dr. Benjamin Laney Biſhop of Peterborough.

The third was that learned Dr. Benjamin Laney, Maſter of Pembroke-Hall in Cambridge, late Dean of Rocheſter, who after many Years faithful Service to his late Majeſty (as Chaplain in Ordinary) and eſpecially at the Treaty at Uxbridge, went into France to attend his preſent Majeſty, who now hath made him Lord Biſhop of Peterborough.

4. Dr. Hugh Lloyd Biſhop of Llandaff.

The fourth was that reverend Dr. Hugh Lloyd, D. D. who hath done and ſuffer'd ſo much in Wales, in the Service of his Majeſty and the Church, for which and other epiſcopal Qualities he is now conſecrated Lord Biſhop of Llandaff.

5. Dr. Rich. Sterne Biſhop of Carliſle.

The fifth was that learned and pious Man Dr. Richard Sterne, Maſter of Jeſus College in Cambridge, whom that renowned Martyr William late Archbiſhop of Canterbury choſe to be near him when he was put to death (for endeavouring to prevent thoſe Confuſions which we have all ſince ſufficiently taſted) whoſe Death poſſibly had ſuch Influence on this pious Biſhop, that his Notions and Converſations have been ever ſince ſo exemplary, as if from that Hour he himſelf alſo had expected Martyrdom; for which Piety, great Learning, and Prudence he is now (by his Majeſty's Favour) Lord Biſhop of Carliſle.

6. Dr. Brian Walton Biſhop of Cheſter.

The ſixth was that great Inſtrument of our Churches Honour Dr. Bryan Walton, whoſe Learning, Prudence, and Integrity have been ſignally manifeſt, not only at Oxford in that excellent Diſcourſe written in Defence of the Church of England, called, (An Anſwer to an ungodly Pamphlet, &c.) but alſo by that eternal Work of ſetting forth the Holy Bible in all the Oriental Languages, which (without the leaſt Shadow of Boaſting) is the moſt abſolute and famous Edition of the Bible, that the Chriſtian World hath or is like to enjoy; for all which Virtues he is now moſt deſervedly the Lord Biſhop of Cheſter.

7. Dr. John Gauden Biſhop of Exeter.

The ſeventh is that accompliſh'd Dr. John Gauden, who upon all Occaſions hath taken ſuch worthy Pains in the Pulpit and at the Preſs to reſcue his Majeſty and the Church of England from all the Miſtakes and heterodox Opinions of ſeveral and different Factions, as alſo from the ſacrilegious Hands of thoſe falſe Brethren whoſe ſcandalous Converſation was conſummate in devouring Church Lands, and then with Impudence to make Sacrilege lawful; whereof his ſacred Majeſty (the greateſt Defender of the Faith and Patrimony of the Church) hath took ſuch ſpecial Notice, that therefore he hath made him Lord Biſhop of Exeter.

The Conſecration Sermon by Mr. Sancroft.

Printed at Lond. 1660. 4to.

A Sermon preached in St. Peter's, Weſtminſter, on the firſt Sunday in Advent, at the Conſecration of the right reverend Fathers in God John Lord Biſhop of Durham, William Lord Biſhop of St. Davids, Benjamin Lord Biſhop of Peterborough, Hugh Lord Biſhop of Llandaff, Richard Lord Biſhop of Carliſle, Brian Lord Biſhop of Cheſter, and John Lord Biſhop of Exeter. By William Sancroft, B. D. [Chaplain to Biſhop Coſins, Dean of York, of St. Paul's, Archbiſhop of Canterbury.]

A Compenſation granted by the King to the Biſhop of Durham, for taking away his Court of Wards.

Dr. Baſire's Funeral Serm. and Life of B. Coſin, 8vo p. 56.

By Way of Compenſation for the Court of Wards belonging of old to this County Palatine, but for the Exigence of the bad Times, taken away of late by Act of Parliament, his preſent Majeſty, our gracious King Charles II. out of his wonted royal Equity, was graciouſly pleaſed to grant unto the Lord Biſhop of Durham, Dr. John Coſin, an Exemption from the Annuity of eight hundred eighty Pounds per Annum, belonging to the Queen Mother in Reverſion after her Death, unto this Biſhop and his Succeſſors (he being much older than the Queen Mother, and ſo in the Courſe of Nature not likely to enjoy it in his own Time, but in his Intention to procure it for the Good of his Succeſſors:) A ſpecial Royal Bounty.

Myrth Waferer Prebend. of Wincheſter.

Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, P. II. p. 405. Ath. Oxon. Vol. II p 500.

Myrth Waferer, A. M. ſequeſtred in the Times of Rebellion from the Rectory of Upham in Hampſhire and of Compton in Surrey, outliving the Uſurpation, was rewarded for his Loyalty with a Prebend of Wincheſter (inſtall'd in the fourth Stall, Sept. 15, 1660. void by the Death of Edward Meekirke, S. T. P.) created D. D. at Oxford Oct. 17, 1660. and died in the Year 1680. ſucceeded in his Prebend by Samuel Woodford, S. T. P. inſtall'd Nov. 8, 1660.

The Clergy when reſtored to their ſequeſtred Livings were very kind to the Intruders.

Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, P. II p. 226.

Some of the ſequeſtred Church Incumbents who were legally reſtor'd to their Livings were ſo kind and charitable to the Uſurpers of them, as to offer them to ſerve the Cure, if qualified, with a ſufficient Salary. Thus the reverend Dr. John Crofts, Dean of Norwich, when ſequeſtred from his Rectory of Barnham in Suffolk, had for his Succeſſor one Légate, who had pérſonated Ignoramus in Cambridge, when that Play was acted there before King James I. and continued ever after a perfect Comœdian in the Pulpit. And though he had never paid Dr. Crofts the Fifths any more than once, yet the Dr. generouſly proffer'd him 50 l. a Year after he was re-poſſeſſed of his Living in 1660. on Condition he would continue there and ſerve the Cure. But having been inſtrumental in bringing King Charles I. to the Block, he was forced to fly beyond the Seas, and ſettled in Maryland; the Governour of which Place told Dr. Crofts (who met him one Day by chance, and enquired after Mr. Legate) that he had taken him into Cuſtody the very Morning he came away, for heading a Faction, and as it ſeems, endangering a Tumult there.

Upon Reading the Petition of Nathaniel Jones, Miniſter of Weſtmeſton in the County of Suſſex, being accuſed and impriſoned for ſaying in his Sermon, that the King had broken the Covenant, and made the People to break it; which Words he denied to be by him ſpoken, to prove which there were ſeveral Certificates annexed: It was ordered by the Board, that the Juſtices of the Peace for the County of Suſſex at the next Quarter-Seſſions for the ſaid County, do fully hear and examine the whole Buſineſs, and do therein as ſhall be agreeable to Juſtice.

A Letter

Mr. Auſtin of Peterb. Letter to the new Biſhop of Durham.

A Letter of Mr. Humphrey Auſtin to the right reverend Lord Biſhop of Durham, dated Peterborough Decemb. 5, 1660.

My Lord,

I am very joyful to hear of your Conſecration which I long expected. I wiſh you all Happineſs and long Life; that you may be, as you have always been, an Upholder of the Houſe of God, and a Repairer of the Breaches thereof.——

The great Hardſhips ſuffer'd by the late ſequeſtred Clergy were a Comfort to remember at their Reſtauration.

Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, P. II. p. 227.

The poor ſuffering Clergy who had now the Benefit of the Law, a Reſtitution of the Livings ſtol'n or forc'd from them in the late Times of Rebellion, were the more joyful by reflecting on the Miſeries they had undergone. Thus Henry Collier, M. A. Rector of Steeple-Langford in the County of Wilts, where he was an early Sufferer, being turned out ſome Years before the general Diſſolution began in that County, forced to abſcond, and to fly for his Life, of which he was ſeveral Times in Danger. At the Time of his Ejectment and 'till his Return, he had eleven Children, who with his Wife, were turned out in a very deep Snow, and forc'd to ſtand, not a little while, in the open Street, before the Neighbours would or dar'd admit them into their Houſes. But even then they had but cold Comfort, for they were forc'd to lye ſix Nights in a Barn, before they could procure any thing like a Bed to lye on. Happy if they could get Barley Bread! The Children went daily to Grovely Wood, about a Mile and a half off, for dry Wood, which they brought back in Bundles upon their Shoulders. This laſted 'till they were diſperſed, either to Service, or the loweſt Condition in the Army, or to hard Labour in Jamaica, except thoſe that were bound to mean Trades in London. Of all which (ſaith the Relator) my Father was the only one, who met with Friends (being the youngeſt of eleven) who placed him to Wincheſter School, &c. But he out-lived all his Miſeries, and Sept. 18, 1660. was reſtor'd to his Parſonage, having then been about fifteen Years deprived of it; during which Time the bare Income of his Living was at leaſt 5000 l. The Perſon who robb'd him of it was one Giles, who is to this Day a Proverb in the Pariſh for his Litigiouſneſs. He uſed to preach, as is ſaid, with a Piſtol, which moſt commonly hung at his Neck.

This Grandſon of Mr. Collier (ſaith Mr. Walker*) now enjoyeth this rich Living (of* Steeple-Langford).

Walker, ib. p. 372.

And yet the Intruders who by Law were bound to give Place to the lawful Incumbents are made the Sufferers and the Ejected by their partial Writers.

Mr. Sefton, Rector of Burton cum Coates in Suſſex, for preaching up Loyalty and Obedience to the King after the Rebellion broke out, had been threatned with Impriſonment, fled and abſconded for almoſt half a Year in a poor Lodge belonging to a Warren, whither a poor Boy, under Pretence of carrying Victuals to the Servants which work'd upon a neighbouring Farm, brought him his Meat. After he had lain concealed there about five or ſix Months, he fled to the Eaſt-Indies, from whence he lived to return before the End of the Uſurpation, and repairing again to his Living, was ſought after a ſecond Time by a great Man of theſe Parts, who miſſing of him went into his Study, and rifled it, taking away, among other Papers of Value, a Dialogue which Mr. Sefton had writ in the Weſt-Indies, being the Summ of a very learned Diſcourſe, containing the Diſputes he had with ſeveral Heathens, in order to convert them to the Chriſtian Faith. ——Living to ſee the Reſtauration, he was made Reſidentiary of Chicheſter, Rector of Stoke in Suſſex, and of Winchfield in Hampſhire. So that it may be, he did not return to Burton. He was a very learned and pious Man, Man, and was ſucceeded in the Times of Confuſion by an illiterate mechanical Fellow.

Mr. John Riland, Archdeacon of Stafford; his Sufferings and Preferments.

John Riland, M. A. was admitted Archdeacon of Stafford, Decemb. 9, 1660. and in 1666. was ſucceeded in that Dignity by Mr. Francis Cook. Mr. Riland, born at Over-Quinton in the County of Glouceſter, enter'd firſt of Magdalen Hall, then Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, 1641. About which Time he obtain'd the Rectory of Exhal in Com. Warwick, and was turned out of it about 1647. Being diſpoſſeſs'd by a Party of Soldiers from the Town of Warwick, who at the ſame Time ſettled one Moor, a Jerſey-Comber, in his Rectory. He ſpent ſeveral Years in Proſecution of his Right, but all in vain. He was put in great Danger of his Life, plunder'd of his Books and Papers, and ſo great a Sufferer, that he was glad to live a very private retir'd Life 'till 1660. At which Time he was preſented to the Rectory of Bilton in this County of Warwick, Dec. 6, 1661. to the Archdeaconry of Coventry, as alſo about the ſame Time to a Prebend in the Church of Litchfield, and in 1665. he had the Rectory of Birmingham conferr'd upon him, where he continued 'till the Time of his Death, which happen'd March 3, 1672. in the 53^d Year of his Age. He was a very learned and humble, pious and peaceable, charitable and heavenly-minded Man; ſtill called at Birmingham, that Holy Man. —— All his Preferments were freely conferred on him without any ſeeking of his, nor did he any Ways enrich himſelf, or his Family, by them. —— See his Sermons and his Epitaph recited by Ant. à Wood.

A Letter from a Gentleman to his Friend in London, in Confutation of the ſcurrilous Libel of an anonymous Blackloiſt, againſt the reverend and learned Dr. P. R. upon the Occaſion of his Latin Epiſtle of the Clergy's Obedience to the See Apoſtolick: With all incloſed to the Libeller himſelf. —— P. 24. Your Friend Mr. White brought a Scandal upon Catholicks by their publiſhing and maintaining of that deteſtable Book of Obedience and Government printed in Cromwell's Time, to aſſert his Uſurpation againſt the then diſpoſſeſſed ſupreme Governour. —— It is too well known how theſe petty Levellers were content to wait on and brag of their Favour with Committee-Men, perſuading their Friends to deſpair of the Happineſs Heaven hath now reſtored to us. — P. 36. The ſacred Faculty of Divinity at Doway have cenſur'd twenty two Propoſitions of his [Mr. White's] for heretical, erroneous, dangerous, temerarious, impious, ſcandalous and offenſive to pious Ears, &c. Subſcribed your humble and faithful Servant *T. A Receipt for the Books which Biſhop Coſin had left at Peterhouſe in Cambridge.

Ex notis MS. Rev. Viri T. B.

Whereas Edward Allen, Library-Keeper of St. Peter's College in Cambridge, being intruſted with the Library that the Lord Biſhop of Durham left in the ſaid College, conſiſting of 1174 Books, hath according to his Lordſhip's Order and Appointment, delivered the ſaid Number of Books 1174. into my Hands. I do by theſe diſcharge him fully from all further Demands for the ſaid Books, December 11. 1660. Bernard Hale.

Dr. Hale's Letter to the Biſhop of Durham upon taking away his Books from the College Library.

A Letter of the ſaid Dr. Bernard Hale, Maſter of Peter-Houſe, to the Lord Biſhop of Durham, dated Cambridge, Feb. 1. 1660.

—— I hope your Lordſhip will be pleaſed without Offence to pardon my Boldneſs, if in behalf of the College I crave ſo much Favour, that your Lordſhip would vouchſafe to command one of your Lordſhip's Servants in your Name, to write to Dr. Francius and the Deans, and whom it may concern, to provide the 100*l.* which the College is indebted to me, that it may be laid out in Books for the College Library before Dr. Perne's Day. For your Lordſhip's Books being taken out of the Library, and divers of Dr. Perne's Books being loſt, unleſs we can get ſome new Books to ſupply the Vacuum which is there, I ſhall not know what to anſwer the Viſitors, &c.

Some of the fanatical Intruders into Livings might have kept Possession upon the Death of the former Incumbent, but that they had preached so much Treason, that upon Complaint of it the Commissioners would not suffer them to continue.

Some of the Intruders into Benefices had been so insolent in their treasonable Preachings, that tho' the former Incumbents were dead, and they had a Title by conforming to continue in their usurped Livings, the Commissioners would not suffer them to remain there. As Mr. James Rawson, the Intruder upon Mr. Tho. Clark into the Rectory of Haslebury Brian in the County of Dorset, upon the Death of Mr. Clark during some Part of the Usurpation, laid claim to the Living on the King's Return: But his Majesty's Commissioners would not by any means allow him to keep it, because he had said in a Sermon that the Queen Mother was a Whore, and all her Children Bastards; and had publickly pray'd, that God would root out the Royal Family Root and Branch. Both which appear from the original Instrument of the Commissioners which dispossess'd him, and is remaining at this Day.

Addreſs of the Officers and Soldiers diſbanded at Northampton.

Colonel Richard Ingoldſby with ſeveral Officers of his Regiment; preſented to his Majeſty this humble Acknowledgment and Declaration ſubſcribed by all the Officers and Soldiers of that Regiment, the Day of their diſbanding at Northampton, which his Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to accept of.

Preſented by Colonel Richard Ingoldſby.

To his moſt ſacred Majeſty Charles the Second, by the Grace of God King of England, &c. the humble Acknowledgment and Declaration of the Gratitude, Duty and Loyalty of us the Officers and Soldiers this Day diſbanded at Northampton, under the Command of Colonel Richard Ingoldſby.

May it pleaſe your moſt excellent Majeſty,

To look upon your moſt humble and loyal Subjects, as ſenſible of any Royal Favour vouchſafed unto them, who having received from your Majeſty's princely Goodneſs a full Week's Pay (beſides their Arrears) as a Signal of your Royal Grace, cannot but in Demonſtration of both their Loyalty and Gratitude moſt humbly preſent this enſuing Declaration.

Declaring a Deteſtation of all diſloyal Principles and Practices.

Whereas Perſons diſcontented with your Majeſty's Government, have been active to inſinuate Principles of Diſſatisfaction amongſt your late Army and Subjects, eſpecially at this Time of their Diſbanding, as if your Majeſty's moſt happy Reſtoration (effected by the infinite Wiſdom and Goodneſs of Almighty God) could againſt all Reaſon imaginable be any Occaſion thereof, thereby endeavouring to diſturb the Minds of your Majeſty's good Subjects: We your Majeſty's moſt humble and moſt loyal Subjects and late Soldiers have thought it our Duty to declare, as well unto your moſt ſacred Majeſty as unto the whole Kingdom, our moſt real Deteſtation of all ſuch Principles and Practices, being aſſured that your Majeſty's moſt juſt, moſt free and honourable Reſtoration, was the only Expedient to revive the languiſhing Spirits of your diſtreſſed Subjects. It is that alone which hath ſcattered thoſe Clouds of Miſery which darkned and interrupted that Brightneſs and Joy which now glorioufly ſhines throughout your whole Dominions: And therefore it is that this Day of our Diſbanding is a Day of Gladneſs unto us, who behold your Majeſty moſt graciouſly governing, and your People governed, by the ancient and laudable Conſtitutions of theſe your Kingdoms, and both moſt happily ſecured from the Violence of Tyranny and Uſurpation.

Profeſſing their Day of Diſbanding to be a Day of Gladneſs to them.

And as we now have a bleſſed Opportunity to evidence our Loyalty unto your moſt ſacred Majeſty in our civil Capacities, ſo alſo are we all reſolved (if your Majeſty ſhall command us) to hazard our Lives and Fortunes in the Defence of your Majeſty's Crown and Dignity, whereof if our former Endeavours (in your moſt Royal Breaſt) create any ſmall Perſuaſion, our future Loyalty ſhall give unto the World a full Demonſtration, that we your Majeſty's moſt humble Servants are, and will always approve ourſelves,

And promiſe all faithful Loyalty.

Your Majeſty's moſt faithful and loyal Subjects.

A grateful Preamble to it.

Preamble.] The Commons aſſembled in Parliament, in Gratitude for an humble Acknowledgment of your Majeſty's great Grace and Favour to us your Commons beyond Example of any of your Royal Progenitors, expreſſed in many publick Acts and Declarations, to the great rejoycing and general Satisfaction of all your People, which they deſire to anſwer with Returns ſuitable, and exceeding the Examples of any of their Anceſtors, for the Increaſing of your Majeſty's Revenue during your Majeſty's Reign (which God long continue) do therefore give and grant unto your moſt excellent Majeſty the Rates and Duties, Impoſitions, Charges, and Sums of Money herein after following, &c.

2. For taking away the Court of Wards, &c.

Cap. 24. 12 Car. II.

II. An Act for taking away the Court of Wards and Liveries, and Tenures in Capite, and by Knights Service and Purveyance, and for ſettling a Revenue upon his Majeſty in lieu thereof.

As a Burden and Grievance to the Subject.

Preamble.] Whereas it hath been found by former Experience, that the Courts of Wards and Liveries, and Tenures by Knights Service, either of the King or others, or by Knights Service in Capite, or Soccage in Capite of the King, and the Conſequents upon the ſame have been much more burthenſome, grievous, and prejudicial to the Kingdom, than they have been beneficial to the King: And whereas ſince the Intermiſſion of the ſaid Court, which hath been from the four and twentieth Day of February 1645. many Perſons have by Will and otherwiſe made Diſpoſal of their Lands held by Knights Service, whereupon divers Queſtions might poſſibly ariſe, unleſs ſome ſeaſonable Remedy be taken to prevent the ſame: Be it therefore enacted, &c.

A Meſſage to the Lords upon the Bill for Augmentation of Vicarages.

Extracts from Journal of the Houſe of Lords.

A Meſſage from the Houſe of Commons to the Lords by Mr. Buckley, to put their Lordſhips in Mind of paſſing the Bill brought from the Houſe of Commons for the Augmentation of Vicarages.

Speech of the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons to the King.

His Majeſty on the Throne ſent for the Commons to attend him, and the Speaker ſaid,

Moſt Gracious Dread Sovereign,

Printed by the King's Printers, Fol. in two Sheets.

The Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes now aſſembled in Parliament, being the repreſentative Body of your Commons of England, are as Conduit Pipes or Quills to convey the Streams of your Peoples dutiful Affections and humble Deſires into your Royal Preſence; and that being done they need no other Speaker but yourſelf, for they know your Skill, and they have had Experience of your Will.

In any Matters of Right or Conveniency, the King is partial on the Peoples Side,

And is ready to undo himſelf to do his People Good;

And yet, Royal Sir, though they have no Cauſe to complain, they cannot but take Notice of your Partiality; for when any thing in Point of Right, or but Conveniency, hath fallen out to be, as we uſed to ſay, a meaſuring Caſt, a diſputable Caſe between yourſelf and your People, without any Regard or Reſpect had unto your own Right, or the Advantage that might accrue to yourſelf by aſſerting the ſame, if the Good of your People hath come in Competition tion with it, you have always caſt it againſt yourſelf, and given it in on your Peoples Side.

And therefore the Commons will ſacrifice themſelves and their All to the Service of ſuch an incomparable Sovereign.

Royal Sir, thus to undo yourſelf to do your People Good, is not to do as you would be done unto; and what can we do leſs, than by Way of a grateful Retribution, chearfully to pay your Majeſty the juſt Tribute of our dutiful Obedience unto all your royal Commands, and upon all Occaſions readily to ſacrifice Se & Sua, all that we have or enjoy, Lives and Fortunes in the Service of ſuch an incomparable Sovereign.

A King of Kindneſs, and a Prince full of good Works.

The healing Expedients have been all propoſed by his Majeſty himſelf,

For Paying off the Army and Navy,

And diſbanding the Land Forces;

And Ways and Means for ſufficient Supply,

By two other Bills.

But, Royal Sir, it becomes not me to fill your Majeſty's Ears with Air, Loquere, ut te videam, is the only Rhetorick People ought to uſe to ſuch a King of Kindneſs, and a Prince ſo full of good Works; and therefore, as I am commanded, I muſt humbly aſſure your Majeſty, that the many healing Expedients propounded by yourſelf in your ſeveral moſt gracious Declarations, have been the Subject Matter upon which your Commons have wrought all this Parliament: And in the firſt Place, they took into Conſideration, the great and growing Charges which then lay upon your People, for the Pay of your Army and Navy; and they conceiv'd it neceſſary, to begin with that Part thereof, next at Hand, wherein your People would receive the moſt Eaſe, and the greateſt Security and Satisfaction, which was the Diſbanding your Majeſty's Forces by Land, and the Paying off five and twenty of your Ships then in the Harbour, and of no Uſe: And this led them to the Conſideration of ſuch Ways and Means, as were to be uſed to raiſe Monies for that Purpoſe: And that for Poll-Money being propounded and paſſed, ſome were of Opinion, that that alone would have overdone the Work: Others having had Experience of a former Bill of the ſame Nature, and upon the like Occaſion, fearing it might not anſwer Expectation; and being not willing to be deceived the ſecond Time, eſpecially in ſuch a Buſineſs as this, wherein a Miſtake was like to prove ſo penal, moved for a further Supply, which after ſome Debate was agreed upon, of two Months Aſſeſſment at 70,000 Pounds a Month, and both have not yet fully done the Work for which they were deſigned, but with the Help of two other Bills here in my Hand; the one entitled, An Act for the levying of the Arrears of the twelve Months Aſſeſſment, commencing the four and twentieth of June, 1659. and the ſix Months Aſſeſſment commencing the five and twentieth of December, 1659. And the other entitled, An Act for the further Supplying and Explaining certain Defects in an Act for the ſpeedy Proviſion of Money for Diſbanding and Paying off the Forces of this Kingdom both by Land and Sea: They hope this Account will be fully cleared off at laſt.

The Charge of the Summer Fleet,

And a third Bill of Aſſeſſment,

To pay off the Arrears of Army and Navy.

Sir, your Commons have likewiſe taken into their Conſiderations, the Charge of your Summer Fleet, which beſides that Part thereof your Majeſty is pleaſed to take upon yourſelf, for your ordinary Guard of the Seas, will amount unto a very great Sum. And as 'tis a great Debt, ſo it is a growing Debt, in a few Months it doubles. There is a Saying, Qui cito dat, bis dat, I am ſure it is moſt true in this Caſe, Qui cito ſolvit, bis ſolvit; to pay this Debt readily, is the Way to pay it but once; and to take Time to pay it, is the ſure Way to pay it twice: And therefore your Commons laying aſide the ſad Thoughts of their long Sufferings, and thoſe miſerable Devaſtations and Preſſures they have lain under for many Years laſt paſt; and looking upon the Neceſſity of Affairs, which call importunately, and muſt be anſwered effectually, have paſſed another Bill here in my Hand, entitled, An Act for ſix Months Aſſeſſment at 70,000 Pounds per Menſem, to begin the firſt of January, and to be paid in, the one Moiety thereof before the firſt of February, and the other Moiety, being the remaining Part, by the firſt of April next enſuing; which is to be apply'd wholly to the Paying off the Arrears of your Majeſty's Navy and Army.

Act for eſtabliſhing a Poſt-Office.

Act for Exciſe on Beer, Ale, &c.

I have three other Bills in my Hand, which have Relation to your Majeſty's Revenue, and are Branches thereof; the one entitled, An Act for the better Ordering the Selling of Wines by Retail, and for preventing Abuſes in the Mingling, Corrupting, and Vitiating of Wines, and for ſettling and limiting the Prices of the ſame: And this Bill is tendered unto your Majeſty, for preventing all future Diſputes touching the Legality thereof: For we know it is your Majeſty's Deſire, that nothing might be done, by any of your Officers or Miniſters that act under you, Sine figura Juſtitiæ, & warranto Legis. Another is entitled, An Act for erecting and eſtabliſhing a Poſt-Office: And this being likewiſe legally ſettled, will be of very great Uſe to all your Majeſty's People, and eſpecially your Merchants, for holding Intelligence with their Correſpondents, Factors, and Agents in foreign Parts; Literæ ſunt Indices Animi; and without the ſafe and ſpeedy Diſpatch and Conveyance of their Letters, they will never be able to time their Buſineſs, nor carry on their Trades to an equal Advantage with the Merchants of other Countries. The other Bill provides for the increaſing your Majeſty's ordinary and conſtant Revenue by the Grant of an Impoſt to be taken upon Ale, Beer, and other Beveridges therein particularly mentioned and expreſſed; to hold to your Majeſty for Life, which God long continue: And as it is the Deſire of your Commons, that your Majeſty might never be neceſſitated to reſort to any extraordinary or unparliamentary Ways and Means, for the Raiſing of Money upon your People; ſo they likewiſe acknowledge it to be their Duties, to ſupport and uphold, to the utmoſt of their Powers, the Honour and Grandeur of your Majeſty's Royal State and Dignity. And for a further Evidence of your Commons dutiful Affections to your Majeſty's moſt dear and Royal Perſon, they Act for preſent Supply of 70,000 l.

they have paſſed another Bill, for the raiſing of 70,000 Pounds for your Majeſty's further Supply; all which Bills I am commanded humbly to preſent your Majeſty withal, and to pray your gracious Acceptance thereof, and your Royal Aſſent thereunto.

Act of Attainder of the Regicides.

For Confirmation of College Leaſes.

There are other Bills likewiſe of publick Concernment which have paſſed both Houſes, and do now attend upon your Majeſty, waiting for your Royal Aſſent. The one is intituled, an Act for the Attainder of ſeveral Perſons guilty of the horrid Murther of his late ſacred Majeſty, your Royal Father of ever bleſſed Memory. There is another Bill intituled, an Act for Confirmation of Leaſes and Grants from Colleges and Hoſpitals. This will tend much to the quieting of many Mens Eſtates, that in the late unhappy Times were enforced to renew, and change their Eſtates much for the worſe, were it not for the Favour your Majeſty intends them in this Bill.

For prohibiting the Exportation of Wool.

There is another Bill to prohibit the Exportation of Wool, Wool-Fells, Fullers Earth, or any other ſcouring Earths. Woollen Manufactures; beſides the Duties they pay your Majeſty for your Cuſtoms here at home, have great Impoſitions laid upon them in foreign Parts where they are vented: In the Low-Countries 16 or 17 per Cent. and in Portugal 20 per Cent. at the leaſt. But thoſe who for their own private baſe filthy Lucre Sake, having no Regard or Reſpect unto the publick Good, that ſteal over the Materials of which thoſe Manufactures are made, pay not one Penny either here or there, and by that Means Strangers do make thoſe Manufactures of our Wool upon ſuch eaſy Terms, that they can afford and do underſell your Merchants, which is the Occaſion of a double Loſs: Firſt to your Majeſty in your Cuſtoms, and in the next Place to your People, who are thereby diſheartned and diſcouraged, and in a ſhort Time, if not prevented, will be utterly beaten out of that ancient native Staple Trade, upon which many Thouſands of Families do wholly depend for all their Livelihood and Subſiſtence.

To prohibit the Planting of Tobacco.

There is another Bill intituled, an Act for prohibiting the Planting, Selling or Sowing of Tobacco in England and Ireland. This Climate is ſo cold that it never comes to any Maturity or Perfection: For we find by Experience, though it be never ſo well healed, made up with the greateſt Art and Skill that poſſible can be, yet it is impoſſible, after it is made up into the Roll, to keep it and preſerve it from putrifying, above three or four Months at the moſt; and therefore Phyſicians, even thoſe that love it beſt, and uſe it moſt, conclude generally, that it is unwholſome for Mens Bodies: Beſides many other great Damages and Inconveniences will follow upon it, if it ſhould be permitted. The Abatement of your Majeſty's Cuſtom, the Deſtruction of your Plantations abroad, the diſcouraging of Navigation, and ſo conſequently the Decay of Shipping, which are the Walls and Bulwarks of your Majeſty's Kingdom.

For taking away the Court of Wards and Liveries.

There is another Bill intituled, an Act for the taking away the Court of Wards and Liveries, together with Tenures in Capite, Knight-Service, Tenures and Purveyances. This Bill ex re nata may properly be called a Bill of Exchange: For as Care is therein taken for the Eaſe of your People; ſo the Supply of that Part of your Majeſty's Revenue, which formerly came into your Treaſury by your Tenures, and for your Purveyances, is thereby likewiſe fully provided for by the Grant of another Impoſition to be taken upon Ale, Beer, and other Liquors, to hold to your Majeſty, your Heirs and Succeſſors for ever: And yet they ſhould not look upon the Conſiderations mentioned in this Bill, as a full Compenſation and Recompence for your Majeſty's parting with two ſuch Royal Prerogatives and ancient Flowers of your Crown, if more were not implyed then is expreſſed. For, Royal Sir, your Tenures in Capite are not only turned into a Tenure in Soccage (though that alone will for ever give your Majeſty a juſt Right and Title to the Labour of our Ploughs, and the Sweat of our Brows) but they are likewiſe turned into a Tenure in Corde: What your Majeſty had before in your Court of Wards, you will be ſure to find it hereafter in the Exchequer of your Peoples Hearts. The King of Spain's Mines will ſooner deceive him, than this Revenue will fail you; for his Mines have Bottoms, but the deeper your Majeſty ſinks your ſelf into the Hearts and Affections of your People, the greater you will find your Wealth to be, and the more invincible your Strength.

Concluding with a thankful Acknowledgment of God's Mercy in his Majeſty's Reſtoration, and his being the Reſtorer of our Religion and Liberties.

Royal Sir, We have nothing more to offer or to aſk, but muſt conclude all our Work this Parliament, with an humble and thankful Acknowledgment of God's infinite Goodneſs and Mercy in reſtoring your Majeſty to your Royal and Imperial Crown, Throne and Dignity: And for making you the Reſtorer of that which is dearer unto us than our Lives, our Religion; in which through God's Bleſſing and gracious Aſſiſtance we are reſolved to live and die. As likewiſe for reſtoring us to our Magna Charta Liberties, having taken the Charge and Care of them into your own Heart, which is our greateſt Security, and more than a thouſand Confirmations.

The King denied nothing the Parliament aſked.

This a happy, healing, peace-making, bleſſed Parliament

Royal Sir, you have denied us nothing we have aſked this Parliament, indeed you have outdone your Parliament by doing much more for us, than we could agree amongſt our ſelves to aſk, and therefore muſt needs be a happy Parliament: This is a healing Parliament, a reconciling peace-making Parliament, a bleſſed Parliament, a Parliament propter excellentiam, that may truly be called Parliamentiſſimum Parliamentum: No Man can ſay, that hath made the moſt curious Search into Books or Records, that there ever was ſuch a Parliament as this; and it's our unſpeakable Joy and Comfort that no Man can ſay, ſo long as your Majeſty lives, but we may have ſuch another; for you have ſet your Royal Heart upon it to do your People good. And as we have nothing more to ſay, ſo we have nothing more to do, but that which will be a doing as long as we have a Being; the pouring out our Souls unto Almighty God for your Majeſty's long, long, long, and moſt happy, bleſſed, glorious and proſperous Reign over us.

After which Speech of the Speaker, his Majeſty paſſed twelve publick Acts of Parliament, and twenty private.

Act of Attainder.

I. An Act for the Attainder of ſeveral Perſons guilty of the horrid Murder of his late ſacred Majeſty King Charles the Firſt.

Preamble.

The King's Murder committed by a Party only of wretched Men.

And a ſeduced Part of the Army.

A Piece of a Houſe of Commons was a pretended Parliament;

Who erected a prodigious high Court of Juſtice,

By which his Majeſty was publickly murthered:

To the Reproach of the Proteſtant Religion, and the Infamy of the People of England.

The Act of a few Miſcreants being imputed to the whole Nation.

The Papiſts.

Which the Lords and Commons renounce and abominate.

In all humble Manner ſhew unto your moſt excellent Majeſty, your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Lords and Commons in Parliament aſſembled, that the horrid and execrable Murder of your Majeſty's Royal Father, our late moſt gracious Sovereign Charles the Firſt, of ever bleſſed and glorious Memory, hath been committed by a Party of wretched Men, deſperately wicked, and hardened in their Impiety, who having firſt plotted and contrived the Ruin and Deſtruction of this excellent Monarchy, and with it of the true Reformed Proteſtant Religion, which had been ſo long protected by it and flouriſhed under it, found it neceſſary in order to the carrying on of their pernicious and traiterous Deſigns, to throw down all the Bulwarks and Fences of Law, and to ſubvert the very Being and Conſtitution of Parliament, that ſo they might at laſt make their Way open for any further Attempts upon the ſacred Perſon of his Majeſty himſelf; and that for the more eaſy effecting thereof, they did firſt ſeduce ſome Part of the then Army into a Compliance, and then kept the reſt in Subjection to them, partly for Hopes of Preferment, and chiefly for fear of loſing their Employments and Arrears, until by theſe and other more odious Acts and Devices, they had fully ſtrengthened themſelves both in Power and Faction; which being done, they did declare againſt all manner of Treaties with the Perſon of the King, even while a Treaty by Advice of both Houſes of Parliament was in Being, remonſtrate againſt the Houſes of Parliament for ſuch Proceedings, ſeize upon his Royal Perſon, while the Commiſſioners were returned to the Houſe of Parliament with his Anſwer; and when his Conceſſions had been voted a Ground for Peace, ſeize upon the Houſe of Commons, ſeclude and impriſon ſome Members, force out others; and there being left but a ſmall Remnant of their own Creatures (not a tenth Part of the whole) did ſeek to ſhelter themſelves by this weak Pretence under the Name and Authority of a Parliament, and in that Name laboured to proſecute what was yet behind and unfiniſhed of their long intended Treaſon and Conſpiracy: To this purpoſe they prepared an Ordinance for erecting a prodigious and unheard of Tribunal, which they called an high Court of Juſtice for Trial of his Majeſty; and having eaſily procured it to paſs in their Houſe of Commons, as it then ſtood moulded, ventured to ſend it up from thence to the Peers then ſitting, who totally rejected it; whereupon their Rage and Fury increaſing, they preſume to paſs it alone, as an Act of the Commons, and in the Name of the Commons of England; and having gained the Pretence of Law made by a Power of their own making, purſued it with all poſſible Force and Cruelty, until at laſt upon the thirtieth Day of January, one thouſand ſix hundred forty and eight, his ſacred Majeſty was brought unto a Scaffold, and there publickly murthered before the Gates of his own Royal Palace; and becauſe by this horrid Action the Proteſtant Religion hath received the greateſt Wound and Reproach, and the People of England the moſt inſupportable Shame and Infamy that was poſſible for the Enemies of God and the King to bring upon us; whilſt the fanatick Rage of a few Miſcreants (who were as far from being true Proteſtants, as they were from being true Subjects) ſtands imputed by our Adverſaries to the whole Nation: We therefore your Majeſty's ſaid dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Lords and Commons in Parliament aſſembled, do hereby renounce, abominate, and proteſt againſt that impious Fact, the execrable Murder, and unparallell'd Treaſon committed againſt the ſacred Perſon and Life of our ſaid late Sovereign, your Majeſty's moſt Royal Father, and all Proceedings tending thereunto; and do beſeech your moſt excellent Majeſty, that it may be declared, and be it hereby declared, that by the undoubted and fundamental Laws of this Kingdom, neither the Peers of this Realm, nor the Commons, nor both together, in Parliament or out of Parliament, nor the People collectively or repreſentatively, nor any other Perſons whatſoever, ever had, have, or ought to have, any coercive Power over the Perſons of the Kings of this Realm; and for the better Vindication of ourſelves to Poſterity, and as a laſting Monument of our otherwiſe inexpreſſible Deteſtation and Abhorrency of this villainous and abominable Fact, we do further beſeech your moſt excellent Majeſty that it may be enacted, and be it hereby enacted —— That every thirtieth Day of January, unleſs it falls out to be on the Lord's Day, and then the next Day following, ſhall be for ever hereafter ſet apart to be kept and obſerved in all the Churches and Chapels of theſe your Majeſty's Kingdoms of England and Ireland, Dominion of Wales, and Town of Berwick upon Tweed, and the Iſles of Jerſey and Guernſey, and all other your Majeſty's Dominions, as an Anniverſary Day of Faſting and Humiliation, to implore the Mercy of God, that neither the Guilt of that ſacred and innocent Blood, nor thoſe other Sins by which God was provoked to deliver up both us and

No coercive Power over the Perſons of the Kings of this Realm.

The thirtieth of January to be a Day of Faſting and Humiliation.

and our King into the Hands of cruel and unreaſonable Men, may at any Time hereafter be viſited upon us or our Poſterity.——

The King's Speech. Familiar and ſhort Thanks, hearty Thanks, a Heart full of Thanks.

After the King had given his Royal Aſſent to theſe Acts, he made this Speech:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I will not entertain you with a long Diſcourſe, the Sum of all I have to ſay to you, being but to give you Thanks, very hearty Thanks, and I aſſure you I find it a very difficult Work to ſatiſfy my ſelf in my own Expreſſions of thoſe Thanks; perfunctory Thanks, ordinary Thanks for ordinary Civilities are eaſily given, but when the Heart is as full as mine is, it is a Labour to thank you: You have taken great Pains to oblige me, and therefore it cannot be eaſy for me to expreſs the Senſe I have of it.

A Heart enlarged with an Acknowledgment of their out-doing all former Parliaments.

I will enlarge no further to you upon this Occaſion, than to tell you, that when God brought me hither, I brought with me an extraordinary Affection and Eſteem for Parliaments: I need not tell you how much it is improved by your Carriage towards me. You have outdone all the good and obliging Acts of your Predeceſſors towards the Crown; and therefore you cannot but believe my Heart is exceedingly enlarged with the Acknowledgment.

This therefore to be called the healing and bleſſed Parliament.

Many former Parliaments have had particular Denominations from what they have done; they have been ſtyled Learned and Unlearned, and ſometimes have had worſe Epithets; I pray let us all reſolve, that this be for ever called the Healing and the Bleſſed Parliament.

The Rule of his Actions and Counſels ſhall be, what will a Parliament think of them.

As I thank you, though not enough, for what you have done, ſo I have not the leaſt Doubt by the Bleſſing of God, but when I ſhall call the next Parliament, which I ſhall do as ſoon as reaſonably you can expect or deſire, I ſhall receive your Thanks for what I have done ſince I parted with you: For I deal truly with you, I ſhall not more propoſe any one Rule to myſelf in my Actions and my Counſels than this, What is a Parliament like to think of this Action or this Counſel? And it ſhall be want of Underſtanding in me, if it will not bear that Teſt.

Our good Diſpoſition and Security owing to the happy Act of Indemnity.

Which the King will himſelf inviolably obſerve, and exact the Obſervation from others.

I ſhall conclude with this, which I cannot ſay too often, nor you too often where you go, that next to the miraculous Bleſſing of God Almighty, and indeed as an immediate Effect of that Bleſſing, I do impute the good Diſpoſition and Security we are all in, to the happy Act of Indemnity and Oblivion, that is the principal Corner Stone which ſupports this excellent Building, that creates Kindneſs in us to each other; and Confidence is our joint and common Security. You may be ſure, I will not only obſerve it religiouſly and inviolably myſelf, but alſo exact the Obſervation of it from others: And if ever any Perſon ſhall have the Boldneſs to attempt to perſuade me to the contrary, he will find ſuch an Acceptation from me, as he would have, who ſhould perſuade me to burn Magna Charta, cancell all the old Laws, and to erect a new Government after my own Invention and Appetite.

There are many other Particulars, which I will not truſt my own Memory with, but will require the Chancellor to ſay the reſt to you.

The Lord Chancellour's Speech.

After his Majeſty had done, the Lord Chancellor ſaid as followeth:

My Lords, and you the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of the Houſe of Commons,

The King and Parliament agree at the Diſſolution as much as at the firſt Convention.

The two Houſes having ſatiſfied their own Conſciences, and the King's Expectations.

Denying nothing the King had aſked or wiſhed.

They may return now to the Care of their own particular Affairs, which they have ſo long ſacrific'd to the publick Good.

This Parliament will give Example to all ſucceeding Parliaments, and be approved and reverenced by them.

There cannot be a greater Manifeſtation of an excellent Temper and Harmony of Affections throughout the Nation, than that the King and his two Houſes of Parliament meet with the ſame Affections and Chearfulneſs, the ſame Alacrity in their Countenance at the Diſſolution, as when they met at the Convention of Parliament: It is an unqueſtionable Evidence, that they are exceedingly ſatisfied in what they have done towards each other, that they have very well done all the Buſineſs they came about: This is now your Caſe, you have ſo well ſatisfied your own Conſciences, that you are ſure you have ſatisfied the King's Expectation and his Hope, and the Deſires and Wiſhes of the Country. It was very juſtly obſerved by you, Mr. Speaker, that you have never aſked any one thing of the King, which he hath not with all imaginable Chearfulneſs granted; and in Truth his Majeſty doth with great Comfort acknowledge, that you have been ſo far from denying him any Thing he hath aſked, that he hath ſcarce wiſhed any Thing that you have not granted: And it is no Wonder, that having ſo fully complyed with your Obligations, and having ſo well compoſed the Minds of the Nation, you are now willing to be relieved from this extraordinary Fatigue you have ſubmitted ſo long to, and to return to the Conſideration of your own particular Affairs, which you have ſo long ſacrificed to the Publick: And this reaſonable Wiſh and Deſire hath brought the King to comply with you, and, which nothing elſe could do, to part with you with an equal Chearfulneſs; and he makes no doubt, but all ſucceeding Parliaments will pay you their Thanks for all you have done, and look upon your Actions, and your Example with all poſſible Approbation and Reverence.

The King and his People have ſhewn all poſſible Marks of mutual Affection.

And have made good all Declarations and Promiſes to each other.

The King and you have given ſuch earneſt to each other of your mutual Affection, you have been ſo exact and punctual in your Proceedings towards each other, that you have made no Promiſe, no Profeſſion to each other, of the making good and performing of which the World is not witneſs: You declared at the Adjournment in September laſt, your Reſolution to ſettle a noble Revenue on the Crown; you have done it with all the Circumſtances of Affection and Prudence. The King promiſed you to eſtabliſh a Council for Trade, a Council for the foreign Plantations, a Commiſſion for compoſing all Difference upon Sales; all this he did before your coming together, and with very good Effect; and you ſhall hear that the Proceedings in every one of them are more vigorous and

His Majeſty hath more eſpecially endeavoured to reſtore the Church to Peace, Unity, and Order,

By his private Conference with learned Men:

Yet ſome Men will endeavour to continue our Breaches, and keep up the Diſtinction of Parties:

Who ought to be reduced by Law unto Obedience to the Laws.

The City will diſcountenance all ſeditious Deſigns.

effectual after the Diſſolution; his Majeſty then promiſed you, that he would give up all his Endeavours to compoſe the unhappy Differences in Matters of Religion, and to reſtore the languiſhing Church to Peace, Unity and Order: Conſtantine himſelf hardly ſpent ſo much of his own Time in private and publick Conferences to that purpoſe; his Majeſty in private conferred with the learned Men, and heard all that could be ſaid upon ſeveral Opinions and Intereſts apart, and then in the Preſence of both Parties, himſelf moderating in the Debates, (and leſs Care and Diligence and Authority would not have done the Work) and God hath ſo bleſſed his Labour, and made his Determinations in that Affair ſo generally agreeable, that he hath receiv'd Thanks from his Houſes of Parliament, that is, from the whole Kingdom: If after all this, his Majeſty doth not reap the full Harveſt he expected from thoſe Condeſcenſions; if ſome Men, by their Writing and by their Preachings endeavour to continue thoſe Breaches, and very raſhly and I think unconſcientiouſly keep up the Diſtinctions, and publickly juſtify and maintain what hath heretofore been done amiſs, and for which the Act of Indemnity was the beſt Defence. I ſhall ſay no more, than that I hope their Want of Modeſty and Obedience will cauſe them to be diſclaimed by all pious and peaceable Men, who cannot but be well contented to ſee them reduced by Law, to the Obedience they owe to Law: And his Majeſty is confident, that this his beloved City, towards which his Heart is ſo gracious, and ſo full of princely Deſigns to improve their Honour, their Wealth, and their Beauty, will Diſcountenance all thoſe ſeditious Deſigns, and by returning and fixing themſelves upon their good old Foundations, make themſelves the great Example of Piety, of Loyalty, and of hearty Affection to the whole Kingdom.

The only Thing the Parliament has left undone is the Buſineſs of the Militia.

To be hereafter ſettled to mutual Satisfaction.

In the mean Time, to prevent Diſorders, and diſappoint any ſeditious Deſigns,

Many ſuſpected Perſons have been lately clapped up,

Who could not conceal their Guilt when brought into the King's Preſence.

There is a Party full of Diſcontent, and a Reſolution to attempt a Change of the preſent Government,

Who would have reſcued the Regicides, with Ludlow at the Head of them,

And ſurpriz'd the Tower of London, and the Caſtle of Windſor.

The King had Notice of all their Deſigns, and prevented the intended Miſchief of them.

They had promis'd a Riſing in the Weſt and North.

To ſecure the Duke of Albemarle, and to poſſeſs Whitehall.

Some deſperate Inſurrections and Attempts may ſtill be made.

This Diſcourſe puts me in Mind to ſay to you, that though the King wonders much more at the many great Things you have done, than that you have left any Thing undone, yet he could have wiſhed, and would have been glad that your other weighty Affairs had given you Time to have publiſhed your Opinion and Advice in the Buſineſs of the Militia, that the People after ſo many Diſputes upon that Argument, might have diſcerned that the King, and his two Houſes of Parliament are as much of the ſame Mind in that as in all other Things, as no doubt they are. But ſince that could not be done, you may all aſſure your ſelves, that the King will proceed therein with all imaginable Care and Circumſpection, for the Eaſe and Quiet and Security of his People: And as he did before the laſt Receſs by the unanimous Advice of his Privy-Council, iſſue out his Commiſſions of Lieutenancy for the ſettling the Militia in the ſeveral Counties, to prevent any Diſorders which many apprehended might ariſe upon the Diſbanding the Army; ſo he will now again recommend it to them to keep themſelves in ſuch a Poſture, as may diſappoint any ſeditious Deſigns which are now on Foot; and there cannot be too much Circumſpection and Vigilance to fruſtrate thoſe Deſigns. You have heard of many ſuſpected and dangerous Perſons which have been lately clapp'd up; and it was high Time to look about: His Majeſty hath ſpent many Hours himſelf in the Examination of this Buſineſs; and ſome of the principal Officers, who before they came to his Majeſty's Preſence, could not be brought to acknowledge any thing, after the King himſelf had ſpoken to them, confeſſed, that their Spirits were inſenſibly prevail'd upon, and ſubdued, and that it was not in their Power to conceal their Guilt from him. They have confeſſed, that there is a Party of the late diſbanded Officers and Soldiers, and others, full of Diſcontent and ſeditious Purpoſes, and a Reſolution to attempt the Change of the preſent Government, and to erect the Republick; they acknowledge that they did purpoſe to have made their Attempt for the Reſcue of thoſe Wretches, who were ſo juſtly condemned at Newgate, and ſo worthily executed; and that Ludlow ſhould then have appeared in the Head of them; that they made themſelves ſure at the ſame Time, by Parties and Confederacy to have ſurprized the Tower of London, and the Caſtle of Windſor, but that they found, or at leaſt apprehended, that their Deſign was diſcovered; which ſo broke their Spirits, that they concluded they muſt acquieſce for the preſent, and ſtay 'till the Army ſhould be diſbanded, which they ſaid was generally debauched, that is, returned to an honeſt and faſt Obedience to the King; and that it was evident they were betrayed by thoſe who were moſt entirely truſted by them; and they were in the right: The King had Notice of all their Deſign, what Progreſs it made, and the Night they intended to ſurprize the Tower and Windſor, and gave Notice to the ſeveral Governours; and ſo without any Noiſe, that Miſchief was by God's Goodneſs prevented: They acknowledge that they have ſince recovered their Courage and Reſolution, and were about this Time to make their full Attempt; they have been promiſed ſome conſiderable Riſing in the Weſt under Ludlow, and in the North under others; but this Place was the Scene of greateſt Hope, they made ſure of a Body here, I think they ſay of two thouſand five hundred Men, with which they reſolved in the firſt Place, to ſecure (you know what that Security is) the Perſon of the General, the Duke of Albemarle, with whom they have ſo much Reaſon to be angry, and at the ſame Time to poſſeſs themſelves of Whitehall; you know the Method uſed in ſuch poſſeſſing, Kill and take Poſſeſſion; and this inſupportable Calamity God hath again diverted from us; though I muſt tell you, the poor Men who ſeem to ſpeak honeſtly, and upon the Impulſion of Conſcience, are very far from being confident, that there will not be ſome deſperate Inſurrections and Attempts in ſeveral Parts of the Kingdom within a ſhort Time, which all poſſible Care will be taken to prevent;

The City of London will give no Encouragement to them.

vent; and in Truth, this very good City ſo well requites the King's abundant Grace and Kindneſs to it, that not only by the unwearied Pains and Diligence of the worthy Lord-Mayor, but by the general Temper and Conſtitution of the whole City, the diſcontented and ſeditious Party (which can never be totally extirpated out of ſuch a Metropolis) is like to receive little Encouragement to purſue their deſperate Counſels.

Some in Cuſtody to be ſet at Liberty.

To prevent ſuch Diſtempers the Conduct of the Militia ſhall be put into good and ſafe Hands;

To the Eaſe and Quiet of the People.

The King doth not believe that all thoſe Perſons who at preſent are apprehended, and in Cuſtody, will be found guilty of this Treaſon; it is a vulgar and known Artifice, to corrupt inferior Perſons, by perſuading them, that better Men are engaged in the ſame Enterpriſe; and the King will make as much haſte as he can to ſet thoſe at Liberty, againſt whom the Evidence or Suſpicion is not too reaſonable; in the mean Time, they who are in Truth innocent, muſt confeſs, that the Proceeding towards them, hath been very natural and full of Clemency; and no Man will wonder, if his Majeſty be very deſirous, that in this Conjuncture, and in order to prevent, or ſuppreſs theſe two viſible Diſtempers and Machinations, his Militia in all Places be in good Order and Preparation: And you may aſſure yourſelves that in the Forming and Conduct of it, he will have ſo great a Care of the Eaſe and Quiet of his People, that if any Perſon truſted by him, ſhall, through want of Skill, or want of Temper, ſatisfy his own Paſſion or Appetite, in grieving or vexing his Neighbours, his Majeſty will be ſo ſenſible of it, that if it can be cured no other Way, his Truſt ſhall be quickly determined, and he is not at all reſerved in giving thoſe Animadverſions and Reprehenſions when there is Occaſion; and his Ears will be always open to receive thoſe Complaints.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Their Duty at returning to their ſeveral Countries,

To poſſeſs the People with a due Senſe of their own Happineſs,

And of their late Miſeries and Confuſions.

The Parliament Men to be Examples of Juſtice and Piety to their Neighbours in the Country.

England not the beſt Place, and yet the beſt People in the World.

The Nobility to be ſo much the greater and better Examples.

You are now returning to your Countries to receive the Thanks and Acknowledgments of your Friends and Neighbours, for the great Things you have done; and to make the Burthens you have laid upon them eaſy, by convincing them of the inevitable Neceſſity of their ſubmitting to them; you will make them ſee that you have proceeded very far towards the Separation, and even Divorce of that Neceſſity from them, to which they have been ſo long married, that they are now reſtored to that bleſſed Temper of Government, under which their Anceſtors enjoyed ſo many hundred Years, that full Meaſure of Felicity, and the Miſery of being deprived of which they have ſo ſenſibly felt, that they are now free from thoſe midnight Alarms, with which they have been terrified, and riſe out of their Beds at their own healthy Hours, without being ſaluted with the Death of a Huſband, a Son, and Friend, miſerably killed the Night or the Day before, and with ſuch Circumſtances kill'd, as improved the Miſery beyond the Loſs itſelf; this Enfranchiſement is worth all they pay for it: Your Lordſhips will eaſily recover that Eſtimation and Reverence that is due to your high Conditon, by the Exerciſe and Practice of that Virtue, from whence your Honours firſt ſprang; the Example of your Juſtice and Piety will enflame the Hearts of the People towards you; and from your Practice, they will make a Judgment of the King himſelf; they know very well, that you are not only admitted to his Preſence, but to his Converſation, and even in a Degree to his Friendſhip, for you are his great Council; by your Example they will form their own Manners, and by yours they will make ſome Gueſs at the King's: Therefore under that Obligation you will cauſe your Piety, your Juſtice, your Affability, and your Charity to ſhine as bright as is poſſible before them. They are too much in Love with England, too partial to it, who believe it the beſt Country in the World; there is better Earth, and a better Air, and a better, that is, a warmer Sun in other Countries; but we are no more than juſt, when we ſay that England is an Encloſure of the beſt People in the World, when they are all well informed and inſtructed; a People in Sobriety of Conſcience the moſt devoted to God Almighty; in the Integrity of their Affections, the moſt dutiful to the King; in their good Manners and Inclinations, moſt regardful and loving to the Nobility; no Nobility in Europe ſo entirely loved by the People; there may be more Awe, and Fear, and Terrour of them, but no ſuch Love towards them as in England. I beſeech your Lordſhips, do not undervalue this Love; they have looked upon your Lordſhips, and they will look upon your Lordſhips again, as the greateſt Examples and Patterns of Duty to the King, as their greateſt Security and Protection from Injury and Injuſtice, and for their enjoying whatſoever is due to them by the Law, and as the moſt proper Mediators and Interpoſers to the King, if by any Failure of Juſtice they ſhould be expoſed to any Oppreſſion and Violence: And this Exerciſe of your Juſtice and Kindneſs towards them, will make them the more abhor and abominate that Parity upon which a Commonwealth muſt be founded, becauſe it would extirpate, or ſuppreſs, or deprive them of their beloved Nobility, which are ſuch a Support and Security to their full Happineſs.

The Commons are Deputies from the People to the King, and again from the King to the People.

His Plenipotentiaries, to inform them of the full State of Affairs, &c.

And you Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, you are now returning to your Country, laden with a Truſt not inferior, or leſs weighty, than that you brought from thence; you came up their Deputies to the King, and he returns you now his Deputies to them, his Plenipotentiaries to inform and aſſure them, that he thinks himſelf the happieſt, and the greateſt Prince of the World, not from the Situation of his Dominions and the Power of his great Navy, with which he can viſit his Neighbours, and keep them from viſiting him, or from

Eſpecially of his Love for his Subjects,

And his Reſolutions to provide for the Honour and Intereſt of the Nation.

You may even publiſh his Defects and Infirmities

That he is hard to believe he can have any ill Subjects.

That he is not vigilant enough for his own Safety.

That he had rather dye than live in Fear of his People, or that they ſhould live in Fear of him.

He would have fewer Enemies if he and they were better acquainted.

Becauſe God hath loved his People, he hath ſet ſuch a King over them.

from the noble Revenue you have ſettled upon him, which he will improve with all good Husbandry, but from being poſſeſſed of the Affections and Hearts of ſuch Subjects, that he doth ſo entirely love them, and depend upon them, that all his Actions and all his Counſels, ſhall tend to no other End, but to make them happy and proſperous; that he thinks his Honour and his Intereſt principally to conſiſt in providing for, and advancing the Honour and Intereſt of the Nation. That you may have the more Credit in what you ſay, he will not take it unkindly, if you publiſh his Defects and Infirmities. You may tell them, that he is ſo confident in the Multitude of his very good and faithful Subjects, that he is very hard to be perſuaded that his few ill and unfaithful Subjects can do him much Harm; that he ſo much depends upon the Affection of honeſt Men, and their Zeal for his Security, that he is not ſo ſolicitous and vigilant for his own Safety as he ought to be, amidſt ſo many Combinations, of which he is ſo well informed, that his Servants, who with Grief and Anguiſh importune him not to take ſo little Care of his own Safety, can obtain no other Anſwer from him, than what Cæſar heretofore gave to his jealous Friends, Mori ſe malle quam timeri, or timere; he will die any Death, rather than live in Fear of his own Subjects, or that they ſhould live in Fear of him. You may tell them as a great Infirmity, that a troubled and diſcontented Countenance ſo afflicts him, that he would remove it from them at his own Charge, as if he himſelf were in the Fault; and when he hath been informed of any leſs kind, or jealous Thing ſaid amongſt you, as your Windows are never ſo cloſe ſhut, but that the Sound of your Words goes to the ſeveral Corners of the Town, his Majeſty hath been heard to ſay no more, but, What have I done? I wiſh that Gentleman and I were acquainted, that he knew me better. Oh, Gentlemen, you cannot be yourſelves, nor you cannot make your Friends too zealous, or too jealous for ſuch a Prince's Safety, or too ſolicitous for ſuch a Prince's Satisfaction and Content, to whom we may very juſtly ſay, as the King of Tyre writ to Solomon, Becauſe God hath loved his People, he hath made thee King over them: Even his Defects and Infirmities are very neceſſary towards the full Meaſure of our Proſperity.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Succeſs has been urged in an ill Cauſe.

It is more reaſonable in a good one.

That God's Miracles of Mercy to us are an Argument he will not forſake us.

What a Sentence lately went forth againſt us!

God hath enabled us to invert one Argument, which I hope may to a good Degree repair the much Miſchief it hath heretofore done: It hath been urged very unreaſonably, yet ſucceſsfully urged in the worſt Times, that it was not Faith, but Preſumption, to expect that God would reſtore a Family, with which he ſeemed to have a Controverſy, and had humbled ſo far; that he would ever countenance a Party, that he had ſo much diſcountenanced, and almoſt deſtroyed. We may now much more reaſonably, and therefore I hope as effectually, preſs the Miracles that God Almighty hath lately wrought for King and People, as an Evidence that he will not again eaſily forſake them: We may tell thoſe who are uſing all their Endeavours to imbroil the Nation in new Troubles, that it is not probable, that a Nation, againſt which God ſeemed theſe late Years to have pronounced his Judgment in the very Language of the Prophet;

Go ye ſwift Meſſengers to a Nation ſcattered and peeled, to a People terrible from the Beginning hitherto, a Nation rooted out and trodden down, whoſe Land the Rivers have ſpoiled. ——— The Lord hath mingled a perverſe Spirit in the Midſt thereof.

What a Happineſs now reſtored to us!

That he ſhould reduce that Perverſeneſs to the greateſt Meekneſs and Reſignation; that he ſhould withdraw his Judgments from this Nation, and in a Moment reſtore it to all the Happineſs it can wiſh; and to no other End, but to expoſe it to the Mercy and Fury of a few diſcontented Perſons, the worſt of the Nation, is not eaſy to be believed.

Our Church the beſt reformed in the Chriſtian World,

Plucked as a Brand out of the Fire,

Raiſed from the Grave,

Preſerved in a manner miraculous;

With her Revenues ſaved and reſtored after a Deluge of Sacrilege.

And even ſome of the Poſſeſſors of them moved in Conſcience to reſtore them.

We may tell thoſe who ſtill contrive the Ruin of the Church, the beſt, and the beſt reformed Church in the Chriſtian World; reformed by that Authority, and with thoſe Circumſtances as a Reformation ought to be made, that God would not ſo miraculouſly have ſnatched this Church as a Brand out of the Fire; would not have raiſed it from the Grave, after he had ſuffer'd it to be buried ſo many Years, by the boiſterous Hands of profane and ſacrilegious Perſons under its own Rubbiſh, to expoſe it again to the ſame Rapine, Reproach, and Impiety: That Church which delights itſelf in being called Catholick, was never ſo near Expiration, never had ſuch a Reſurrection: That ſo ſmall a Pittance of Meal and Oyl, ſhould be ſufficient to preſerve and nouriſh the poor Widow and her Family ſo long, is very little more miraculous, than that ſuch a Number of pious, learned, and very aged Biſhops, ſhould ſo many Years be preſerved, in ſuch wonderful Streights and Oppreſſions, until they ſhould plentifully provide for their own Succeſſion: That after ſuch a deep Deluge of Sacrilege, Profaneneſs, and Impiety had covered, and to common Underſtanding ſwallowed it up; that that Church ſhould again appear above the Waters, God be again ſerved in that Church, and ſerved as he ought to be, and that there ſhould be ſtill ſome Revenue left to ſupport and encourage thoſe who ſerve him; nay, that many of thoſe who ſeemed to thirſt after that Revenue 'till they had poſſeſſed it, ſhould conſcientiouſly reſtore what they had taken away, and become good Sons and willing Tenants to that Church they had ſo lately ſpoiled, may make us all piouſly believe, that God Almighty would not have been at the Expence and Charge of ſuch a Miracle, ſo manifeſted himſelf to us in ſuch a Deliverance, but in the

Behalf

A Church acceptable to God, to be eſtabliſhed by him.

Behalf of a Church very acceptable to him, and which ſhall continue to the End of the World, and againſt which the Gates of Hell ſhall not be able to prevail.

The deſperate Wretches of wicked Deſigns againſt the King may be told, that God's leading him through ſo many Dangers, is an evident Sign he will ſtill ſupport him.

We may tell thoſe deſperate Wretches, who yet harbour in their Thoughts wicked Deſigns againſt the ſacred Perſon of the King, in order to the Compaſſing their own Imaginations; that God Almighty would not have led him thro' ſo many Wilderneſſes of Afflictions of all Kinds, conducted him thro' ſo many Perils by Sea, and Perils by Land; ſnatch'd him out of the Midſt of this Kingdom, when it was not worthy of him; and when the Hands of his Enemies were even upon him, when they thought themſelves ſo ſure of him, that they would bid ſo cheap, and ſo vile a Price for him; he would not in that Article have ſo cover'd him with a Cloud, that he travelled even with ſome Pleaſure, and great Obſervation through the Midſt of his Enemies; he would not ſo wonderfully have new modelled that Army, ſo inſpired their Hearts, and the Hearts of the whole Nation, with an honeſt and impatient longing for the Return of their dear Sovereign; and in the mean Time have ſo exerciſed him (which had little leſs of Providence in it than the other) with thoſe unnatural, or at leaſt unuſual Diſreſpects and Reproaches abroad, that he might have a harmleſs and an innocent Appetite to his own Country, and return to his own People with a full Value, and the whole unwaſted Bulk of his Affections, without being corrupted, or byaſſed by extraordinary foreign Obligations: God Almighty would not have done all this, but for a Servant whom he will always preſerve as the Apple of his own Eye, and always defend from the moſt ſecret Machinations of his Enemies.

The Diſreſpects and Reproaches met with abroad, have more endeared him to his People at home,

And happily preſerved him from any extraordinary foreign Obligations.

Theſe Arguments fairly urged by the Members would turn and fix the Hearts of the whole Nation,

If theſe Argumentations, Gentlemen, urged with that Vivacity as is moſt natural to your own Gratitude and Affections, recover as many (and it would be ſtrange if it ſhould not) as have been corrupted by the other Logick, the Hearts of the whole Nation, even to a Man, will inſenſibly be ſo devoted to the King, as the only Conſervator and Protector of all that is dear and precious to them, and will be ſo zealous to pleaſe him, whoſe greateſt Pleaſure is to ſee them pleaſed, that when they make Choice of Perſons again to ſerve in Parliament they will not chooſe ſuch, who they wiſh ſhould oppoſe the King, but therefore chooſe them, becauſe they have, and becauſe they are like to ſerve the King with their whole Hearts; and ſince he deſires what is beſt for his People, to gratify him in all he deſires: This bleſſed Harmony would raiſe us to the higheſt Pinacle of Honour and Happineſs in this World, a Pinacle without a Point, upon which King and People may ſecurely reſt and repoſe themſelves againſt all the Guſts, and Storms, and Tempeſts which all the Malice of this World can raiſe againſt us, and I am ſure you will all contend to be at the Top of this Pinacle.

And make a bleſſed Harmony and Happineſs of King and People.

And ſo this Parliament is diſſolved.

I have no more to add, but the Words of Cuſtom, That the King declares this preſent Parliament to be diſſolved; and this preſent Parliament is diſſolved.

Saturday Night Dec. 29.
Interment of the Body of Mary Princeſs of Orange

Publick Intell. N°. 1.

The chiefeſt of the Nobility and Gentry in the Kingdom met in the Houſe of Peers to attend the Royal Corps of Mary Princeſs of Orange, which being brought about nine at Night from Denmark Houſe to Weſtminſter, they proceeded thro' a Lane of Guards of the Duke of Albemarle's Regiment of Foot. —— His Highneſs the Duke of York following the Corps with an Herald before him, and divers Perſons of Quality bearing his Train. Thus they proceeded 'till they came to King Henry the Seventh's Chapel, where the Corps was interred in a Vault particularly ſet apart for the Royal Line.

MONDAY Dec. 31.
Death of Mr Tho. Powell, a great Sufferer and a learned Man.

Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, Part II. p. 137.

Death of Mr. Thomas Powell Canon of St. David's. He was the Son of John Powell Rector of Cantreffe in the County of Brecon, and was born there in the Year 1608. He was educated at Jeſus College in Oxford, became ſucceſſively Scholar and Fellow of that Houſe, and at length obtained the Rectory of his native Place, and the Vicarage of Brecknover or Brecon; but was ejected from both by the Commiſſioners for propagating the Goſpel, &c. His unpardonable Crimes, as aſſigned by the Propagators themſelves, were adhering to the King, and reading the Common-Prayer. There are within the Liberty of the Town of Brecon (which is the Shire Town) Four Churches and Chapels, and there were at that Time in it no leſs than three thouſand Souls. Notwithſtanding which the Commiſſioners for the better Propagation of the Goſpel, permitted it to lye vacant and unſupply'd (otherwiſe than as Mr. Powell himſelf ſometimes ventured to preach there) for nine Years together, although they did not forget to take all the Profits of the Living during that Time. Mr. Powell, ſome Time after his Ejectment went beyond the Seas, to what Place, or what Time he ſtay'd there, I know not. But in 1660. he was reſtored to his Livings (or to the former of them at leaſt) created Doctor of Divinity, made Canon of St. Davids, and died December 31, this ſame Year. He would, without Doubt, have riſen higher in the Church, had he not been thus untimely ſnatch'd away from it. He was a Perſon well vers'd in ſeveral Parts of Learning, was an able Philoſopher, a curious Critick, was well ſkill'd in various Languages, and not to be contemned for his Knowledge in Divinity, as Wood gives his Character: Or as another Perſon in thoſe bad Times ventured to ſay of him, a learned and orthodox Man, of a godly Life and Converſation, and a conſtant Preacher in Welſh and Engliſh. He died at London, and was the next Day buried in the Church of St. Dunſtan in the Weſt in Fleetſtreet, leaving then behind him the Character of a moſt ingenious and polite Man.

Gifts, Legacies, and other Benefactions within this Year 1660.

A Gift by Will of Brian Cook, Eſq; for augmenting the Vicarage of Arkſey, Com. Ebor. to the Value of 100 l. per Ann. With School-Houſe and Hoſpital.

Camb. Brit. by Biſhop Gibſon, laſt Edit. Vol. p. 848.

Brian Cook, Eſq; (Uncle of Sir George Cook, Baronet, of Wheatley in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire) gave by Will the whole Rectory of Arkſey to five Truſtees for the Payment of ſo much to the Vicar there, as with his ancient Stipend of 12 l. 13 s. 4 d. ſhould amount to one hundred Pounds per Annum. He gave alſo forty Pounds per Annum to a School-maſter to inſtruct the Poor of the Pariſh, and ſixty Pounds for the building an Hoſpital for twelve of the ancienteſt of the poor People, who receive each five Pounds per Annum. His Brother, Sir George Cook, Baronet, gave by Will two hundred Pounds and two Cottages for building of a fair School-Houſe.

The Rectory or impropriate Tythes of Adwick in the Street, Com. Ebor. given in to the Incumbent and Succeſſors for ever; by Mrs. Anne Savill.

See a Character of this Lady given by the exact Editor of the Eng. Life of Dr. Barwick.

Scarce two Miles from Arkſey lies Adwick in the Street, memorable on this Account, that Mrs. Anne Savill (a Virgin Benefactor) Daughter of John Savill of Medley, Eſq; purchaſed the Rectory thereof (for about nine hundred Pounds) and ſettled it in the Hands of Truſtees for the Uſe of the Church for ever; and this from a generous and pious Principle, upon the Reading of Sir Henry Spelman's noted Treatiſe, De non temerandis Eccleſiis. The Incumbent [Mr. Joſhua Brook] erected this Inſcription over the Door of the Parſonage Houſe, built from the Foundation at his own Charge; Rectoriâ de Adwick acceſſit Clero ex Donatione Dominæ Annæ Saville ex proſapia Savillorum de Methley oriundæ.

To the Poor of Cottingham Com. Northampt.

Regiſter of Peterb.

John Aldwyncle the Elder of Cottingham in the County of Northampton, by Will, dated the eleventh of April, 1660. bequeathing his Body to be buried in the Pariſh Church of Cottingham aforeſaid, did give to the Town of Market Harborough in the County of Leiceſter the Sum of ten Pounds, to remain in Stock perpetually, to buy Coals for the Poor there at the beſt Rate. —— And ten Pounds to remain in Stock perpetually, for the Uſe of twelve of the pooreſt Widows in the Pariſh, that is to ſay, eight in Cottingham and four in Middleton, to be elected and choſen by my Executor, and Miniſter and Church-Wardens of the Pariſh of Cottingham; the Uſe of the ſaid ten Pounds to be given monthly in Bread to the twelve poor Widows ſo elected, the firſt Sunday in every Month, for ever, —— to be brought in a Baſket, and the Baſket with twelve Pence in Bread to be hung at the Pillar where my Executor doth now ſit, during the Morning Prayer and Sermon, and afterwards to be given and diſpoſed as aforeſaid.

Epiſt. Ded. to his Pariſhioners of Sepulchres.

To my dearly beloved Friends and Neighbours the Inhabitants of Sepulchres Pariſh
Grace, Mercy, and Peace, &c.

My dear Friends,

Conſidering with myſelf, how beſides my Lord's-Days Preaching, and Week-Days Catechiſm, I might be further ſerviceable to your Souls, in promoting your ſpiritual Welfare; it pleaſed God to put it into my Heart to draw up ſome practical Directions for your better Guidance in the Way to Heaven, and to give to every Family in my Pariſh one of them, &c.

Two Conſiderations among others, have had ſome Influence upon me in this Undertaking.

St. Sepulchres a Vicarage endow'd with a third Part of the impropriate Tythes.

The one is of that mutual Love which hath hitherto been between us. During the whole Time of my Abode with you (which is now above two and twenty Years) I do not remember that we have had the leaſt Difference, no not about the Point of Maintenance, the uſual unhappy Make-Bate between Miniſter and People. For though the Value of the Living be not ſo much by half as is generally reported abroad, (being no Parſonage, but a Vicarage endowed with a third Part of that Tythe which the Parſon doth collect) yet I cannot but with much Thankfulneſs acknowledge, that what I have had hath been with much Love and Friendlineſs. For when you have made any Compoſition with me for my Part of the Tythe, you have always given me more than I could demand or expect. ——

Charity Schools and Work for the Poor.

Another was the gladſome Reflexion upon your great and godly Care for the Poor. —— 1. All the poor Children in your Pariſh are taught to read and write gratis, by ſuch School-Maſters and School-Miſtreſſes, who teach them their Catechize, whereof my ſelf ſometimes take an Account. 2. All the ancient Poor who can either ſpin or knit, may have Flax and Yarn for fetching, to ſet themſelves on work, and are well paid for the ſame, immediately upon the Return thereof.

Your moſt affectionate though moſt unworthy Miniſter,
THO. GOUGE.

Power of the Prince, and Obedience of the Subject written by Archbiſhop Uſher, publiſh'd by Biſhop Sanderſon.

London, 1661. 4^to. A ſecond Edition corrected and publiſh'd in 8^vo. 1683.

The Power communicated by God to the Prince, and the Obedience required of the Subject. Briefly laid down and confirmed out of the Holy Scriptures, Teſtimony of the primitive Church, Dictates of right Reaſon, and Opinion of the Wiſeſt among the heathen Writers. By the moſt reverend Father in God, James late Lord Archbiſhop of Armagh, and Primate of all Ireland. Publiſhed out of the original Copy written with his own Hand. By the Reverend Father in God, Robert Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, with his Lordſhip's Preface thereunto, dated London, Dec. 31. 1660. With an Epiſtle Dedicatory to the King by James Tyrrill. [Son of Sir Timothy Tyrrill by a Daughter of Archbiſhop Uſher.]

And an Epiſtle Dedicatory to the King by the Archbiſhop's Grandſon Mr. Tyrrill.

Concluding.] I ſhall now make this my moſt humble Suit to your Majeſty, that as the reverend Author in his Life time publickly profeſſed his Loyalty to his Sovereign, and conſtantly prayed for your Majeſty's happy and glorious Return to theſe your Kingdoms, and in all Things ſhewed himſelf your loyal Subject, ſo you would be pleaſed to own him as ſuch, by affording your gracious Countenance to this his poſthumous Work, which will eternize the Memory of the deceaſed Author, and thereby confer the greateſt temporal Bleſſing on Your Majeſty's moſt loyal and obedient Subject,

JAMES TYRRILL.

Preface of Biſhop Sanderſon.

Biſhop Sanderſon's Preface begins:

The Reader is deſired to take Notice, That this Treatiſe was written by the reverend and learned Author, at the ſpecial Command of our late gracious Sovereign (of bleſſed Memory) King Charles I. about the Time when thoſe unhappy Diſtempers did firſt begin to appear openly in our Land. As ſoon as the Treatiſe was finiſhed, the Author cauſed a Copy thereof to be fairly tranſcribed, and with a Dedicatory Epiſtle prefixed thereunto to be preſented to his Majeſty; who having read the Book, ſignified his Will and Pleaſure that it ſhould be Printed: Which notwithſtanding, whether by the Negligence or Unfaithfulneſs of the Party to whoſe Care and Truſt it was committed, was not done, &c. He calls Cromwell a monſtrous Uſurper, the moſt mercileſs Tyrant, and withal the moſt perfect Diſſembler in the World. —— He complains, that it is a Thing very much to be deſired by Men piouſly zealous of the publick Peace, that by the prudent Care of thoſe that are in Authority, ſome timely and effectual Proviſions were made for repreſſing the exorbitant Licentiouſneſs both of the Preſs and Pulpit, and the ſuppreſſing of ſeditious Sermons and Pamphlets, by means whereof thouſands of well meaning Souls become poiſoned in their Judgments, have their Affections ſowred towards their Governours, &c.

Concluding.] That Princes remembring from whom they have their Authority, may with all Faithfulneſs exerciſe it to the Honour and Glory of him that gave it, to the Comfort, Benefit and Happineſs of the People under their Government, as the End for which it was given; and to the Furtherance and Advantage of their own Tryal at that laſt great Day, when they are to render an Account for all the Power committed to their Truſt, and how they have adminiſtred the ſame. And that all Subjects duly conſidering whoſe Authority their Princes have, may faithfully ſerve honour and humbly obey them, according to God's holy Word and Ordinance. So ſhall Peace and Righteouſneſs flouriſh upon Earth, and God ſhall ſend down his Bleſſing both upon King and People from Heaven. Even ſo, Amen.

The Moderation of K. Charles the Martyr.
By Dr. John Arnway.
Account given of the Author.

The Tablet: Or Moderation of Charles the Firſt, Martyr: As alſo an Alarm to the Subjects of England. Both written by Dr. John Arnway, Archdeacon of Litchfield. [Who died in Virginia about 1653, firſt publiſhed at the Hague in 1650, and now reprinted by the Care of William Rider, who married the Author's near Kinſwoman. He was a Shropſhire Man born, became a Commoner of St. Edmund Hall in Oxford, 1618. took the Degrees in Arts, entred into the ſacred Function, and had a Cure of Souls beſtowed on him. The Civil Wars breaking forth, he adhered to the King's Cauſe, ſuffer'd much for it in his own Country, went after him to Oxon. and was actually created Doctor of Divinity in 1642. being about that Time (as I conceive) made Archdeacon of Litchfield, in the Place of Dr. Brownrig promoted to the See of Exeter. He had then quitted a large Fortune to ſerve his Prince and thereupon was plundred by the Rebels, and loſt his Books and Papers, which he could never recover. Afterwards upon the declining of the King's Cauſe, he went to the Hague in Holland, and afterwards to Virginia, where he died about Lyn-haven, Elizabeth River or Nanſumum.]

Account of the Author's Sufferings.

Concluding.] I am not now to learn the Temper of the rigid Preſbyterians; they did me once the Honour to condemn me almoſt at Midnight by a pack'd Committee, and without a Hearing; well nigh four Years they kept me in Newgate upon that Account: This was a pretty Taſte of their good Nature. I do not now complain, but I confeſs, it would have pleas'd me as well, if the Biſhop that chriſtens ſtill by the Directory had choſen ſome other Chancellor inſtead of my Judge Advocate. —— By this Reply I ſhall do ſomething in order to the removing of that vaunting Complaint of theirs, that their Books are not anſwered, but that they muſt be beaten down by Club-Law, as they phraſe it. For they cannot reaſonably take it ill, that I have deferred the Publication of it till now, ſince hitherto there have been great Expectations from certain Conferences, that the Yoak which diſſatisfies their tender Conſciences would be relaxated. But Things ſtanding as they did when they put forth their Diſcourſe of Liturgies, I thought the Publication now would be no more too ſoon than it is too late. —— My Deſign is only to ſhew the Weakneſs of thoſe Reaſons, which are pretended to juſtify thoſe Miniſters who forbear to uſe the Common-Prayer, not that I may render their Perſons more odious and obnoxious, but rather that I might perſuade them to walk in the Ways of Peace. — My only End is Peace, and the Fruits of Peace. — Indeed they affirm again and again, that the Common-Prayer is not eſtabliſhed by Law; and therefore it would be requiſite to my Purpoſe to prove ſuch an Eſtabliſhment, were it not that they have ſaved me the Labour by profeſſing, that they would never the more conform, if it were eſtabliſhed, &c.

The Practice of Piety. Directing a Chriſtian how to walk that he may pleaſe God, &c. —— Printed about forty Times in Octavo and Twelves, the eleventh Edition of which was printed at London, 1619. It was alſo printed once or more in the Welſh Tongue, and once or more in the French An. 1633, &c. written by Dr. Lewis Bayley, conſecrated Dec. 8. 1616. Biſhop of Bangor.

Aſſerted to be the true Author. — Lewis du Moulin Patronus bonæ Fidei, 8vo, 1672.

It is ſaid by an Author who takes all Advantages to ſpeak againſt the Biſhops and Church of England, that this Book called the Practice of Piety was written by a Puritan Miniſter, and that a Biſhop not altogether of a chaſte Life, did after the Author's Death bargain with his Widow for the Copy, which he received, but never paid her the Money; afterwards he interpolating it in ſome Places, did publiſh it as his own, &c. But let this Report, which hath been common with ſome, as alſo that, which ſaith, it was written by one Price Archdeacon of Bangor, remain with their Authors, &c.

By Biſhop Humfryes of Bangor, afterward of Hereford. — Original Papers in the Hands of the Biſhop of Peterborough.

Dr. Humphry Humfryes, Biſhop of Bangor, to whom Mr. Wood ſent his printed Sheets as they came from the Preſs, return'd him this Anſwer to that Paſſage. It is not doubted, but Biſhop Bayley was the true Author of The Practice of Piety: I have heard from ſome old Men that knew the Biſhop, and from others that had it from many of the Clergy here that were intimate with him, that the Biſhop did not want Learning for a greater Work than that; and that they were well aſſured he was the true Author of it. But this is a lying, malicious, puritan Story, invented by that proud phariſaical Faction, who were not willing a Book ſo well eſteemed ſhould be writ by a Biſhop. And indeed after this Book had been printed above thirty Times in Engliſh, and often in ſeveral other Languages in the Biſhop's Name, and particularly in Welſh above fifty Years ago: Yet when a new Edition of it in that Language was ſet forth 167.. and the Title Page had been wrought off as the former with the Biſhop's Name, Mr. Gouge ordered that Title to be torn out of the Book, and another without the Biſhop's Name printed inſtead of it. And when he was by ſome Gentlemen of this Country charged with injuring the Biſhop by this, he had the Confidence not only to ſay, that Biſhop Bayley was not the Author of it, but to alledge that the then Biſhop of Bangor (Dr. Humphrey Lloyd) had told him ſo: Whereas on the contrary, I was preſent and heard that Biſhop, not many Days before this, rattling Gouge for abuſing Biſhop Bayley by omitting his Name in that Edition; and Mr. Gouge leaving a Parcel of thoſe Books to be diſtributed in this Neighbourhood, the Biſhop himſelf did write Biſhop Bayley's Name in the Title Page of many of them, as I did in the reſt by his Order: And the Biſhop then ſaid, he was well aſſured that his Predeceſſor Bayley was the Author of it. And all this was in Mr. Gouge's Preſence, tho' he ſo far forgot it, as to tell a contrary Story a few Days after.

The Author's Preface to the Reader.

—— Giving an Account of his former Writings, and the Occasion of this Discourse; an Apology for bringing Mahomet upon the Stage, and H. N. and for his large Excursions and frequent Expostulations with the Quakers and Familists; and declaring, that the wonderful Hopes and Expectations of the Religious of the Nation, yea, of the better meaning Fanaticks themselves, are more likely to be fulfilled by the happy Restoring of the King than by any other Way imaginable. And that the Honour of beginning that pure and Apostolick Church, that is so much expected, seems to have been reserv'd by Providence for Charles the Second, our Gracious Sovereign, with pregnant Arguments of so glorious an Hope. —— Dated from my Study at Christ's College in Cambridge, June 12, 1660. *H. My Lord,

The Lord Mayor had appeared with Succeſs in his Undertakings for the beſt of Kings and Cauſes.

His Lordſhip had deſired the Preacher to print this Sermon,

And had before intimated a Deſire, that he would not meddle with Government;

Tho' it was a happy Change of Government from the worſt of Tyrants to the beſt of Princes.

God hath ſhed ſuch a Glory upon the Succeſs of your Undertakings for the beſt of Kings and Cauſes (For like your famous Predeceſſor Wallworth, you did not only ſtab the Rebels, but gave the Death's Wound to Rebellion itſelf) as hath raiſed me into ſuch a high and paſſionate Veneration of your Lordſhip's Perſon and Parts, as well as Place and Power; that I think it little leſs than a Sin to think the leaſt of your Deſires leſs than Commands; as appears not only in Preaching this Sacrifice, but ſacrificing this Preaching, by Printing this broken Diſcourſe of a broken Heart. I had pitch'd upon another Theme, that had ſpoke more home and more handſome to the Times, had I not been taken off by your Lordſhip's Officer intimating to me your Deſire not to meddle with Government. ——— I did comply with your Deſires in it, even though the Times were ſo happily fruitful, as to afford a large Crop of excellent Matter, that would prodeſſe & delectare, to entertain you with Profit and Pleaſure in the bleſſed Change of Government from the worſt of Tyrants to the beſt of Princes. And I the rather choſe to reſolve myſelf into the Obedience of your Lordſhip's Dictates, becauſe the laſt Piece I printed was the Bowing of the Hearts of Subjects to their Sovereign, and I could hardly do leſs than follow it with Breaking the Heart in Sacrifice to God. ——— Never was Lord-Mayor welcom'd into his Office with more general Alacrity and Acclamations, which as they did loudly ſpeak the Good you had done, ſo they did lovingly beſpeak the Good they would have you to do. And therefore let me be ſo bold, as to ſay to your Lordſhip, as David did to his Son Solomon, who was deſigned for ſuch Work, the Building of the Temple, Ariſe therefore and be doing, and the Lord ſhall be with thee. You cannot want Encouragement, for beſides that the Wiſhes of Prince and People concenter in it, God hath bleſſed London with a prudent Biſhop, cut out as it were for Church Work. Therefore I will ſay no more, than that when I ſee two ſuch benign Stars in Conjunction, and vertical over this great City, I cannot but propheſy (prognoſticate is too fallible a Term) great Bleſſings, and I pray that I may be a true Prophet, as I am truly,

A great Bleſſing of the City of London to have a good Lord-Mayor, and a prudent Biſhop.

My Lord,

Your Lordſhip's moſt humble Servant

in the Work of our great Maſter,

Francis Walsall.

Extracts from Council Books.

Whereas divers factious Perſons, under Pretence of the Liberty indulged by his Majeſty's late gracious Declaration, in Reference unto tender Conſciences, do meet in great Numbers, and at unuſual Times, whereby it may be juſtly apprehended, that many of them enter into Plots and Conſpiracies to diſturb the Peace of the Kingdom. It was thereupon ordered by his Majeſty in Council, That Mr. Solicitor General ſhould forthwith prepare a Proclamation, commanding all ſuch Perſons going under the Notion of Anabaptiſts, Quakers, and other Sectaries, henceforward not to meet (under Pretence of ſerving God) at unuſual Hours, nor in great Numbers; and particularly that none of them go out of the Precincts of his or their Habitation to any ſpiritual Exerciſe, or ſerving of God after their own Way, but that they do the ſame in their own Pariſh. And if any ſhall be found to offend therein, the next Juſtices of the Peace are to cauſe them and every of them to be proceeded againſt according to the Laws provided againſt riotous and unlawful Aſſemblies.

Popiſh Prieſts ſent over from Doway into England.

Such as the Catholick Dean and Clergy in England complained of as very bad Miſſionaries.

Many popiſh Prieſts were ſent over into England as Miſſionaries for propagating their Faith, called Catholick; eſpecially from the College of Doway by Dr. Leyburne, Preſident of the ſaid College. But how unfit they were for ſuch a Miſſion was a Matter of Complaint made by the Dean and Chapter of the Catholick Clergy in England in their Encyclical Epiſtle publiſh'd in 1660.

And give Inſtances of ſuch as are a Horrour and Shame to the Church.

We only hint the Unfitneſs of ſome he (Dr. Leyburne) hath ſent hither not long ago as Miſſionaries. And to omit many others, of one who in another Seminary was denied Preſentation to Orders, becauſe of his unſettled Brain, and (as we are informed) wiſh'd the next Day his Throat had been cut when he took Orders. Of another a Perſon in a manner phrenetical, who within ſix or ſeven Months at moſt was a married Man, a Widower, a Prieſt, and Miſſionary. The third of a wild mad Nature, for open Sedition in the Houſe, and publick ſoliciting all the Scholars to the Wars, was expell'd the College by him, to whom yet after his Expulſion, he ſent Faculties to come hither as Miſſionary: He hath now been half a Year in England, yet never officiates, nor performs any Duty belonging to a Prieſt. We only hint theſe few of many at preſent, hoping that the Horrour and Shame expreſſed by all who hear of it, and reflect how ſacred the Function of a Prieſt and Apoſtle is, will make him more circumſpect for the future; and that theſe are enough to let our Brethren ſee, how neceſſary 'tis to have a Dean and Chapter to examine who are fit, who not, e'er they admit them.

To which Dr. Leyburn Preſident of Doway anſwers by recriminating on Dr Ellis the Catholick Dean in England,

Making Bradford a Deacon of incompetent Age;

Dr. Leyburn's Encyclical Epiſtle, 1661. 4to.

To which Dr. Leyburne retorts on Dr. Ellis. —— To come more cloſe to Dr. Ellis in Order to the Charge ſet down againſt me, I am able to object more clearly his Miſgovernment during his Preſidentſhip over Liſboa College. He made Mr. Bradford Deacon, though he told him he did not think that he was come to Years required by the Churches Canons for the Receiving of that Order, and indeed he wanted a competent Age, as himſelf hath ſaid, &c.

And Williams a Prieſt without Philoſophy or Divinity;

Secondly, Dr. Ellis made one Mr. Williams Prieſt in his Logick, and before he heard either Philoſophy or Divinity ſent him into England, and him I received into our Houſe out of meer Compaſſion gratis, &c.

And Holland a Prieſt and Secretary, while a Novice;

Who had been a Scribe to the Biſhop of Durham.

Thirdly, Dr. Ellis made Mr. Holland Prieſt ſoon after his being received into the Church, and before he was grounded either in ſcholaſtical or moral Theology came Miſſionary into England, and for the great Zeal he had ſhewn at Liſboa towards Mr. Blackloe's new Notions of Philoſophy, and for his Readineſs in writing of Engliſh, (who had been Scribe to the Biſhop of Durham afore) he Mr. Blackloe cheriſh'd and employ'd, and finding him very nimble, wanton, and active, as to maintaining and ſpreading his new Doctrines, preferr'd him to be Secretary of the Chapter, &c. becauſe ſuddenly after he had abjur'd the Errours wherein he was bred, embraced the profane Novelties of Mr. Blackloe, —— and was a Neophyte preferred unadviſedly, &c.

Dr. Edward Rainbow made Dean of Peterborough;

His Birth, Education, and Preferments;

Life of Biſhop Rainbow, 1688, 8vo. with Funeral Sermon by Mr. Chancellor Tully.

After the Promotion of Dr. John Coſin Dean of Peterborough to the Biſhoprick of Durham, Dr. Edward Rainbow was made Dean of Peterborough, inſtall'd Jan. 5, 1660. He was born at Bliton near Gainſborough in Lincolnſhire (Son of Mr. Thomas Rainbow Rector of that Church, and of Wintringham in the ſame County) Apr. 20, 1608. ſent to the publick School of Gainſborough 1619. and from thence in April 1620. to Peterb. to be one of the Scholars of Dr. J. Williams, then Prebendary of that Church. And to Weſtminſter School in June 1621. Dr. Williams being then Dean of Weſtminſter. Sent to Corpus Chriſti College, Oxon. in July 1623. where his elder Brother John died Fellow of that Houſe. Tranſplanted to Magdalen College in Cambridge, June 1, 1625. Scholar of that Houſe, B. A. in 1627. M. A. in 1630. And in July after he was ſent by Sir John Wray to teach the Free-School at Kirton in Lindſey Coaſt. Thence to London, ſettling firſt in Fuller's Rents, and then in Sion College. Called back to a Fellowſhip in his College Novemb. 13, 1633. a celebrated Preacher in that Univerſity. Sermon by Dr. Alleſtre.

London, for John Martin, 1660. 4^to.

A Sermon preached at St. Peter's Weſtminſter, on Sunday January the ſixth, at the Conſecration of the right reverend Fathers in God Gilbert [Ironſide] Lord Biſhop of Briſtol, Edward [Reynolds] Lord Biſhop of Norwich, Nicholas [Monk] Lord Biſhop of Hereford, William [Nicholſon] Lord Biſhop of Gloceſter. By Richard Alleſtre, D. D. Canon of Chriſt-Church in Oxford, and one of his Majeſty's Chaplains.

Reg. Juxon, Cant. MS.

The Office of Conſecration was ſolemnly perform'd by Gilbert Lord Biſhop of London, aſſiſted by Accepted Archbiſhop of York, John Biſhop of Durham, Henry Biſhop of Chicheſter, Robert Biſhop of Lincoln, and Benjamin Biſhop of Peterborough, by Virtue of a Commiſſion from the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

Venner's Preaching to raiſe an Inſurrection.

Publick Intelligence, by Authority, 4^to. No. 1.

Account of the Sermon preach'd by Venner in a Meeting of his Fifth Monarchy Crew this Sunday Morning before their Inſurrection, ſtirring them to fight for King Jeſus, aſſuring them that one ſhould chaſe ten, and ten ſhould chaſe a thouſand, that their Enemies ſhould not be able to touch one Hair of their Heads; that they muſt never ſheath their Swords again, untill Babylon become a Hiſſing and a Curſe, and no Remnant be left; that they ſhould lead Captivity Captive. —— Riſe up againſt the Carnal, to poſſeſs the Gate, &c.

The Uneaſineſs of the People was kept up by factious Preachers even in the Pariſh Churches.

Biſhop Saunderſon's Letter dated Dec. 31, 1660. prefixed to Archbiſhop Uſher's Power of the Prince.

The uneaſy Temper of the People, diſturbed by the half-conformity Preachers (denying in Effect the King's Supremacy) was thus complained of by the meek and pious Biſhop Saunderſon.

Such as have diligently obſerved the Temper and Carriage of the moſt active Men of thoſe Times, or ſhall duly take into Conſideration theſe few enſuing Particulars:

Great Multitudes of Nonjurors to the Oath of Supremacy;

I. The deſperate Principles and Reſolutions taken by Quakers, Fifth-Monarchy Men, and other enthuſiaſtical Sectaries, of what Denomination ſoever, who utterly refuſe to take the Oath of Supremacy, and what Multitudes in a few Years, for want of timely Coercion, they are increaſed unto, in all Parts of the Land.

And even thoſe who took the Oath, denied the Force and Obligation of it.

II. How ſtrangely ſome of thoſe that have taken the ſaid Oath (and they a far more conſiderable Party than the former) do yet ſeek to mince it by ſuch an Interpretation of the Word onely, as quite deſtroyeth the Force of it, and leaveth a Gap open for any rebellious Attempt to enter, that ſhall offer ſo to do.

The Miniſters in their Pulpit Prayers avoided the Recognizing his Majeſty Supreme Governour.

III. That the Miniſters of that Party, who in their Prayers before and after Sermon do not uſually ſhew themſelves over-ſtudious of Brevity, are generally obſerved, when they pray for the King (whether for Fear of offending their Grandees, or a diſcriminating Character or Shibboleth, whereby to diſtinguiſh themſelves from Men of different Principles from them, or for whatever other Reaſon it is) to omit in reciting his Majeſty's Royal Titles that Clauſe which in former and peaceable Times was generally uſed [In all Cauſes and over all Perſons, as well Eccleſiaſtical as Temporal in his Dominions ſupreme Governour.]

Some of them in their Prayers and Sermons openly aſperſe the King and his Government; or covertly inject Suſpicions of Male-Adminiſtration.

IV. With what Boldneſs ſome of the ſaid Miniſters do in their ordinary Prayers and Sermons openly aſperſe the King and his Government; and with what Cunning other ſome of them do covertly and glauncingly inject Suſpicions into the Minds and Thoughts of their credulous Auditors concerning the ſame, by theſe Means to beget in the People an Opinion (to which the common Sort are as eaſily perſuaded as to any other thing in the World) that they are not ſo well governed as they ſhould be.

To take away the Rights of the Crown, that were grown up under the Neceſſity of the late Times.

V. What Endeavours have been uſed, that the Encroachments made upon the Regalities, by ſuch Advantages as either the late King's Neceſſities or Condeſcenſions miniſtred, ſhould ſtill continue? And that all publick Actings from the Beginning of the Long Parliament 'till the Year 1648. (whereof it were a Miracle, if ſome, while the Diſpute was ſo hot, were not illegal enough and unprecedented) ſhould be avowed and juſtified.

To ſpread a World of wicked Pamphlets and Sermons.

VI. What a World of wicked Pamphlets, Sermons, and other Treatiſes, full of moſt dangerous and ſeditious Poſitions, have been ſent abroad within theſe few laſt Years, vented and diſperſed through all the Parts of the Kingdom, and lye ſtill upon the Stalls, and in the Shops, free for any Man that liſt to buy.

The more need to publiſh Antidotes in midſt of ſo much Poyſon.

When all this, and ſome other Things (which to avoid the provoking of ſome unpeaceable Spirits, I forbear to mention) are notorious themſelves, and ſufficiently known to the whole Nation, let any Man now ſay, if he can ſhew Cauſe, why it would be either unſeaſonable or unneceſſary, that Books ſhould be publiſhed to aſſert the juſt Right and Power of Princes, and to remind the People of their bounden Duty of Subjection and Obedience.

Inſurrection of Venner and his deſperate Crew.

An Account of the Inſurrection of Venner and other Fifth Monarchy Men.

Many reſtleſs Spirits, ready to attempt new Troubles.

Philips's Continuat. of the Reign of Ch. II. Fol. p. 756.

Of all the manifold Sects and Separations that ſprung up from the Licence of the late War and the Anarchy that reign'd from that Time, till the Time of his Majeſty's Reſtauration, there were ſcarce any that dreaded not the Name of Monarchy, as apprehending the Conſequence thereof to be a Tendency to Uniformity in Church and State: And therefore no marvail, if they who were heretofore profeſs'd Enemies to the King and his Right of Government, were after his coming in agitated with a reſtleſs Spirit of Impatience and Diſſatisfaction, which forbore not ſeveral Times to manifeſt itſelf in ſuch Attempts, as had not a timely Stop been put unto them, by the prudent Foreſight, and vigilant Care of the King and his Council, might very much have endanger'd the imbroiling of the Nation in a new Civil War. The firſt Alarm that was given, was by the Fifth Monarchy Men (they at leaſt were the only hardy Men that openly appear'd) a Generation of People, however ſo call'd, the moſt inveterate Enemies to the ancient ſettled Monarchy of the Nation, of all the whole Hydra. Of thoſe about fifty or ſixty mad Perſons, reſolving to venture Neck or Nothing, broke forth into open Hoſtility and Rebellion, under the Conduct of one Thomas Venner a Cooper, that had lived for ſome Time in New-England, and was of the Principle of the Fifth Monarchy, and a Preacher to a Conventicle of thoſe of that Opinion, who uſually met in Coleman-ſtreet. That which firſt gave him and his Partakers a Pretence to their Treaſon, was the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy (which all good Subjects are oblig'd by the Law to take) exclaiming not only againſt them in particular, but againſt all Oaths in general. And when ſome amongſt them more ingenious than the reſt, adviſed their Companions not to diſpute what was commanded by their Superiours, ſince Subjection was naturally due to thoſe Powers from whence they expected Protection, they were anſwered by the Seditious, that they had no Protection in the Exerciſe of their Religion, but were for the Practice thereof expoſed to all manner of Contempts and Miſeries: As if a juſt Reſtraint from Extravagancies in divine Worſhip were to be eſteem'd Oppreſſion.

The firſt Alarm given by the Fifth-Monarchy Men.

Under the Conduct of Venner a Cooper, and Teacher in Coleman-ſtreet.

His Doctrine was Againſt taking of any Oaths.

And againſt Subjection, becauſe not protected in the Exerciſe of their Religion.

Mad in their Opinions and Practices.

The Madneſs of theſe Men extended ſo far, as to believe they and the reſt of their Judgment were called by God to reform the World, and make all the earthly Powers (which they called Babylon) ſubſervient to the Kingdom of King Jeſus; and in order thereunto, never to ſheath their Sword, till the carnal Powers of the World became a Hiſſing and a Curſe; and by a miſguided Zeal, they were ſo confident in their Undertaking, that they were taught and believ'd, that one ſhould ſubdue a Thouſand, making Account when they had led Captive Captivity in England, to go into France, Spain, Germany, and other Parts of the World, there to proſecute their holy Deſign.

Mr. Baxter calls them twenty or twenty two furious Fanaticks called Fifth-Monarchy Men (one Venner a Wine Cooper, and his Church that he preached unto) being tranſported with enthuſiaſtick Pride, did riſe up in Arms, and fought in the Streets like Mad-men againſt all that ſtood in their Way, till there were ſome killed, and the reſt taken judged and executed. Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. p. 301.

Their Conſpiracy and Rebellion was Sunday-Work in their Conventicle.

Diſcovered by the Landlord of the Houſe.

The Place where they conſulted and continued their Conſpiracy, was the Meeting Place for their Devotion, and thither they had at ſeveral Times conveyed Arms. On Sunday the Sixth of January, which was the Day before their Excurſion (his Majeſty at that Time being gone to accompany his Royal Mother the Queen Dowager of Great-Britain, and his Siſter the Princeſs Henrietta Maria, part of their Journey towards France) they were very late at their Aſſembly, which made one Martin, the Landlord of the Houſe, but not of their Party, ſomewhat inquiſitive after their Doings; and as he was going into the Chamber to them, he met Venner, who ſeeing him troubled, told him, he perceiv'd he thought their Stay too long, and that in half an Hour's ſpace, after they had ſought God in their Prayers, they would diſperſe. Martin's Jealouſy of their Actions made him conſult with a Friend about their unuſual Manner of aſſembling, and he was adviſed to liſten at the Door, or peep through ſome Chink to hear or ſee what they were about. Which he did, and found them arming themſelves with Back, Breaſt, and Head-Piece, and thereupon he immediately gave Notice thereof to ſome of the next Officers: But within half an Hour of this, they came down, and being met by the Miſtreſs of the Houſe great with Child, who in Amazement would have ſhut the Door upon them, they offer'd to ſhoot her with a Muſquet, upon which in great Terrour ſhe left them.

The ſeeking of God in Prayer was one Pretence of the Regicides, Jan. 30. 1648. and now again ſerv'd for the Rebels, to the great Hurt of Piety and true Devotion.

This deſperate Attempt made the Government more jealous of Sir Henry Vane, the only Man of Parts and Figure who had wrote in defence of thoſe wild Principles, of our Saviour coming down to erect a Fifth-Monarchy upon Earth to continue for a thouſand Years; eſpecially in his enthuſiaſtick Treatiſe, entitled, The retired Man's Meditations: Or the Myſtery and Power of Godlineſs ſhining forth in the living Word, to the unmaſking the Myſtery of Iniquity in the moſt refined and pureſt Forms. And withal preſenting to View, 1. The Riches and Fulneſs of Chriſt's Perſon as Mediator. 2. The natural and ſpiritual Man in their proper Diſtinctions. 3 The Reign and Kingdom of Chriſt in the Nature, Limits and Extent thereof, as well in his Saints as over his Enemies. In which old Light is reſtored, and new Light juſtified, being the Witneſs which is given to this Age by Henry Vane, Knight. London, 1655. 4to. Wherein the 26th and laſt Chapter is treating of the Time of the Manifeſtation of the Sons of God, their ſitting with Chriſt on his Throne, ruling and influencing all Things on Earth, during the Space of a thouſand Years.

In the Preface to the Reader he begins with ſome Prophecy of himſelf and of his Party. There is not any Thing which lies more croſs to the buſy and boundleſs Spirit of Man, than that which takes him off the Wing of his natural Deſire, and is as a Bar unto that Activity in him, which if permitted to run its Courſe, makes his Feet ſwift to his own Deſtruction.

The Rebels firſt march'd to St. Thomas-Apoſtles, to call ſome of their Party, and from thence to Biſhopſgate, and after to White-Croſs-Street. Sir Richard Brown, the Lord-Mayor, having Notice of their being abroad, got together ſome Files of the Trained Bands, but not ſufficient as was ſuppoſed to make any Impreſſion upon them, they being imagin'd to be more numerous than they were; by which means they had Opportunity to eſcape to St. John's Wood, and from thence to Cane-Wood, betwixt Highgate and Hampſtead. By this Time the Alarum being come to Whitehall, and the General's Regiment drawn up, the Duke of York and he, with the Earl of Oxford and ſome others, and ſome of the Guards march'd into London, where they were informed all the Rebels were diſperſed, except a Party of them that were ſeen to go towards Cane-Wood, whither Sir Thomas Sandys was ſent with ſome of the Guards and a Company of Foot: But by the Darkneſs of the Night they got away, and on Wedneſday Morning came again into London, and divided themſelves into two Parties, one whereof about five or ſix in the Morning appear'd about Leaden-hall, and from thence marched to Little-Eaſt-Cheap, where they fought obſtinately enough, but were diſperſed by the Trained Bands. Venner and another Party came to my Lord-Mayor's Houſe, thinking to have taken him Priſoner; but miſſing him they march'd into Wood-ſtreet, where they were met by Colonel Corbet and about twenty Horſe; Corbet and nine of his Party charged through the Rebels, and broke them, whereby the Trained Band Foot that ſeconded them had little more to do, than to purſue them. They fought with Courage to Admiration, and if they had not been hindred by the Care of the Lord-Mayor from increaſing their Numbers, a thouſand Men ſo reſolv'd, might have cauſed ſuch a Diſturbance in the City, as might have had an Influence much further.

Venner himſelf was very much wounded before he was taken, and about five or ſix kill'd that refuſed Quarter, of which ſome of them were ſo obſcure that their Names were not known. And about eight or ten Days after, Venner with about ſixteen or ſeventeen of the moſt notorious, were arraigned at Juſtice-hall in the Old-Bailey, found Guilty, and executed in ſeveral Parts of London.

Thus ended this deſperate Enterpriſe of a formidable Army of threeſcore Men, who were inſenſated to that Heighth of enthuſiaſtick Valour, that they thought themſelves ſtrong enough to encounter the whole armed Force of one of the greateſt and moſt populous Cities of the World; the Prince's Guards, the General's Troops, the City Train'd Bands were all ſwallow'd up in Conceit by theſe Men of mickle Might and little Wit: And I have heard ſay they were ſo infatuated with their golden Dreams, and ſo Cock-ſure of Succeſs, that they had promis'd to themſelves the Partage of the whole Empire of the World among them, Thirty being deſign'd for the ſubduing of the Eaſtern Parts, and Thirty of the Weſtern.

With the Suppreſſion of this Inſurrection, and the bringing the Authors thereof to exemplary Puniſhment, together with the Deceaſe of Sir Arthur Haſlerigg in the Tower, who is thought to have died with very Anguiſh of Mind, to ſee all his great Deſigns in an Inſtant brought to nothing, and himſelf at the Mercy of a Power over which he had ſo long triumph'd, we conclude.

Lord Chancellor in his next Speech in Parliament takes Notice of them.

The Reflections made on Venner's Inſurrection by the Lord Chancellour in his Speech at the Opening of the next Parliament.

Their Number was contemptible, and yet the Combination reached very far.

It was in a very little Time after the Diſſolution of that Parliament, his Majeſty giving himſelf a few Days to accompany his Royal Mother to the Sea-Side (the only Time that he hath ſtepp'd out of this Town near theſe twelve Months) that the moſt deſperate and prodigious Rebellion brake out in this City, that hath been heard of in any Age, which continued two or three Nights together, with the Murder of ſeveral honeſt Citizens. Let no Man undervalue the Treaſon becauſe of the Contemptibleneſs of the Number engaged in it. No Man knows the Number, but by the Multitude of intercepted Letters from and to all the Counties of England, in which the Time was ſet down wherein the Work of the Lord was to be done; by the deſperate Carriage of the Traitors themſelves, and their bragging of their Friends, we may conclude the Combination reached very far.

Whitehall Council Board, Jan. 7. 1660.

Petition of the People of Tipton Com. Staff. againſt their diſaffected Miniſter Richard Hinckes.

There were many ſuch Pulpit Incendiaries.

Upon reading the Petition of the Inhabitants of Tipton in the County of Stafford, who therein accuſe the Clerk or Incumbent of the Pariſh called Richard Hinckes as a Perſon notoriouſly diſaffected to his Majeſty and his Government: It was thereupon ordered by the Board, that the Complainants ſhould apply themſelves (in purſuance of the late Act of Parliament for ſettling of Miniſters) unto the next Juſtices of the Peace, who are to proceed upon due Proofs againſt him, according to the Directions given in ſuch Caſes by the ſaid Act.

The Quakers diſown the Fifth-Monarchy People,

And ſay they ſhould have had an Inſtrument for their own Liberty, if it had not been hindred by the others wicked Attempt.

George Fox in a great Fright, and Henry Fell knock'd down.

Fox's Journal 8vo, Vol. I. p. 557.

There ſeemed at this Time an Inclination and Intention in the Government to have granted Friends Liberty, becauſe they were ſenſible, that we as well as they had ſuffered in the former Power's Days. —— It was ſaid, there was an Inſtrument drawn up, for confirming our Liberty, and that it only wanted Signing; when on a ſudden that wicked Attempt of the Fifth Monarchy People brake forth, and put the City and Nation in an Uproar. This was on a firſt Day Night, and very glorious Meetings we had had that Day, wherein the Lord's Truth ſhined over all, and his Power was exalted above all: But about Midnight, or ſoon after the Drums beat, and the Cry was Arm, Arm: I got up out of Bed, and in the Morning took Boat, and landed at Whitehall Stairs, and walked through Whitehall. They looked ſtrangely on me there, but I paſſed through them, and went to the Pall-Mall, whither divers Friends came to me, though it was now grown dangerous paſſing the Streets: For by this Time both the City and Suburbs were up in Arms, and exceeding rude the People and Soldiers were, inſomuch that a Friend Henry Fell going to a Friend's Houſe, the Soldiers knock'd him down; and he had been killed if the Duke of York had not come by. Great Miſchief was done in the City this Week, and when the next firſt Day came, that Friends went to their Meetings, as they uſed to do, many were taken Priſoners, &c.

Wednesday Jan. 9. The ſad Eſtate of Religion in the late Times, by the Neglect of the Preſbyterians. Multitude of Baſtards without any Diſcipline upon Offenders.

London, 4to. 1660.

The ſad and degenerate State of Religion in the late Times, was thus ſet forth by the Author of the Apology for the Biſhops to ſit and vote in Parliament.

P. 60. By the Preſbyterians Neglect, there was no Puniſhment for groſs Offences and Sins. There is of late an infinite Number of Baſtards gotten, and the Juſtices of Peace only take Care for keeping the Baſtard, but there is no Puniſhment or Correction for the Scandal to Religion. And the vulgar People go together like Dogs and Bitches, without Licence or Publication of Banns in any Pariſh. The holy Communion caſt aſide and neglected in moſt Pariſhes moſt ſhamefully. The common People in moſt Pariſhes will rather be without the Sacrament, than give one Penny to buy Bread and Wine for it; ſo that they are become Atheiſts in moſt Places. And moſt Sectaries profeſs publickly, that they will not have Churches or Stone Houſes, nor Miniſters or Magiſtrates: And yet the Parliament pretended to reform all according to the Word of God, in all Things to advance the Throne of Chriſt: And the Tribunal of Chriſt with all his holy Ordinances in full Force and Power, as the Language is of the Preſbyterian Miniſters.

The holy Communion ſhamefully ſet aſide,

And the People were become Atheiſts in moſt Places.

Moſt of the Sectaries openly declared againſt Miniſters and Magiſtrates.

And yet thoſe were called the bleſſed Times of Reformation.

P. 76. The Puritans were ſecretly diſpleaſed, becauſe they were not preferred to the beſt Offices and Dignities in Church and Commonwealth, which now they have invaded by open Force and Violence in moſt outragious Manner: Eſpecially the Puritan Miniſters, without any regard to the Laws of God or Man, thruſting themſelves into the beſt Preferments by Way of Sequeſtration, and then getting Acts and Orders to be continued in for their Lives, without any Reſpect to the Title of the lawful Patrons, whoſe Rights they ſet aſide and ſuſpend, as well as the Incumbents moſt unjuſtly. Whereas they are neither by deſert for Learning or Education in the Univerſities, capable of the beſt Preferments, they being only ſuch, as have been only poor Lecturers, poor Vicars, poor School-Maſters and poor new Lights, ſuch as are not qualified, as the Statute requires, to enjoy the beſt Livings of Value, 13 Eliz. Cap. 12.

The Puritans invaded by Force the beſt Offices and Dignities in Church and Commonwealth.

And the Puritan Miniſters thruſt themſelves into the beſt Preferments,

Without any Reſpect to the Title of Patrons, or the Right of Incumbents;

Tho' incapable of them by Learning or Univerſity Education.

Thursday Jan. 10. A Proclamation for reſtraining Part of that Indulgence which had been allowed to tender Conſciences by the King's late Declaration.

Becauſe of the Abuſe of it by Anabaptiſts, Quakers, and Fifth-Monarchy Men.

Who correſpond and combine againſt the Government.

London, by John Bill, 1660. in two Sheets.

By the King. A Proclamation prohibiting all unlawful and ſeditious Meetings and Conventicles, under Pretence of religious Worſhip.

Charles R.

Although nothing can be more unwelcome to us, than the Neceſſity of reſtraining ſome Part of that Liberty which was indulged to tender Conſciences by our late gracious Declaration: Yet ſince divers Perſons (known by the Name of Anabaptiſts, Quakers, and Fifth-Monarchy Men or ſome ſuch like Appellation, as a Mark of Diſtinction and Separation) under Pretence of ſerving God, do daily meet in great Numbers in ſecret Places, and at unuſual Times, by Reaſon whereof they begin to boaſt of their Multitudes, and to encreaſe in their Confidences, as having frequent Opportunities to ſettle a perfect Correſpondency and Confederacy between themſelves, of which ſome evil Effects have already enſued, even to the Diſturbance of the publick Peace by Inſurrection and Murder, for which the Offenders muſt anſwer to the Law, and far worſe may be ſtill expected, unleſs ſome ſpeedy Courſe be taken to prevent their further Growth.

The King's Will and Pleaſure, that there be no Meetings of any of thoſe People but in ſome Pariſh Church or Chapel, or in private Houſes by the Perſons only there inhabiting.

Other Meetings declared to be unlawful Aſſemblies, and ſeditious Meetings and Conventicles.

To the Intent therefore that none of thoſe Perſons who have preſumed to make ſo ill an Uſe of our Indulgence, may be ſtrengthened in ſuch their Proceedings by any general Words or Expreſſions in our late Declaration; we have thought fit by theſe Preſents to publiſh and declare our Royal Will and Pleaſure, that no Meeting whatſoever of the Perſons aforeſaid under Pretence of worſhipping God, ſhall at any Time hereafter be permitted or allowed, unleſs it be in ſome parochial Church or Chapel in this Realm, or in private Houſes by the Perſons there inhabiting. And that all Meetings and Aſſemblies whatſoever, in order to any ſpiritual Exerciſe, or ſerving of God by the Perſons aforeſaid, unleſs in the Places aforeſaid, ſhall be eſteemed, and are hereby declared to be unlawful Aſſemblies, and ſhall be proſecuted accordingly, and the Perſons therein aſſembled ſhall be proceeded againſt as Perſons riotouſly and unlawfully aſſembled.

All Perſons otherwiſe aſſembling, to be apprehended and bound over with Sureties for their good Behaviour.

And for the better Execution of this our Proclamation, and the Prevention of all illegal and ſeditious Meetings and Conventicles, we do hereby ſtraitly charge and command all Mayors, Sheriffs, Juſtices of the Peace, Conſtables, Headboroughs, Commanders, and other our chief Officers and Miniſters whom it may concern, that they cauſe diligent Search to be made from Time to Time, in all and every the Places, where any ſuch Meetings or Conventicles, as aforeſaid, ſhall or may be ſuſpected. And that they cauſe all and every the Perſons therein aſſembled, to be apprehended and brought before one or more Juſtices of the Peace, and to be bound over to appear at the next Seſſions within the reſpective Precincts, and in the mean Time to find Sureties for the good Behaviour, or in Default thereof to be committed to the next Gaol.

The Juſtices of Peace to tender the Oaths.

And further we do will and command our Juſtices of the Peace, that they cauſe the Oath of Allegiance to be tendred to every Perſon ſo brought before them, and upon his or their Refuſal to proceed according, as by the Statute made in the ſeventh Year of the Reign of our Royal Grandfather of ever bleſſed Memory, they are directed and commanded. Given at our Court at Whitehall the tenth Day of January, in the twelfth Year of our Reign 1660.

The Anabaptiſts publiſh an Apology for themſelves, and a Proteſtation againſt the late wicked Inſurrection.

The humble Apology of ſome commonly called Anabaptiſts in behalf of themſelves and others of the ſame Judgment with them: With their Proteſtation againſt the late wicked and moſt horrid treaſonable Inſurrection and Rebellion, acted in the City of London. Together with an Apology formerly preſented to the King's moſt excellent Majeſty.

We ſhould be ſtupid and ſenſleſs, if we did not deeply reſent thoſe black Obloquies and Reproaches caſt upon thoſe of our Profeſſion and Practice in the Point of Baptiſm, by Occaſion of the late moſt horrid Treaſon and Rebellion in this City of London, &c. Reg. Sheldon, London.

The Inhabitants of Covent-Garden (where ſo many noble and loyal Perſonages are pleaſed to live) are ſenſible how they were uſed in the Days of Obadiah Sedgwick, and how they were to ſeek for the Exerciſe of our Religion according to the Laws, and therefore conſidering how happy they are in the exemplary Prudence and religious Moderation of their preſent Dioceſan, they preſented this following Petition:

Mercur. Publ. No. 8. to Feb. 28.

A Petition of the Inhabitants of Covent-Garden to the Biſhop of London to have the Exerciſe of Religion as by Law eſtabliſhed, i. e. the Common-Prayer.

To the Right Reverend Father in God Gilbert Lord Biſhop of London.

The humble Petition of the Pariſhioners of the Pariſh of St. Paul's Covent-Garden,

Sheweth,

That ſince by the Bleſſing of God we have ſeen the happy Reſtauration of our gracious King, we hope that we ſhall not be deprived of the Exerciſe of Religion, in ſuch Manner and Form as is by Law eſtabliſhed.

Wherefore we humbly pray your Lordſhip to uſe your epiſcopal Power, that we may have divine Service celebrated, and both the Sacraments duly adminiſtred in ſuch Form and with ſuch Rites, as by the Laws of the Land hath been moſt laudably ordered.

And your Petitioners ſhall ever Pray, &c.

Upon which Dr. Manton ſuffer'd the Common-Prayer to be uſed in his Church.

The Affection of this Pariſh to the Liturgy of the Church, without queſtion, is one Reaſon why Dr. Manton hath daily the Book of Common-Prayer at St. Paul's Covent-Garden, and if all his Brethren would do the like, we ſhould have more Devotion and leſs News.

Mr. Baxter gives a further Account of his refuſing a Biſhoprick, and deſiring to be reſtored to Kidderminſter.

With an ill Character of the old Vicar.

And call'd his Ceſſion required by Law, as well as by Conſcience, to the right Owner by the Name of Ejectment.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 286.

When I had refuſed a Biſhoprick, I did it on ſuch Reaſons as offended not the Lord Chancellour, and therefore inſtead of it, I preſumed to crave his Favour to reſtore me to preach to my People at Kidderminſter again, from whence I had been caſt out (when many hundred of others were ejected) upon the Reſtauration of all them that had been ſequeſtred. It was but a Vicarage, and the old Vicar (Mr. Dance) was a poor, unlearned, ignorant, ſilly Reader. —— Before the Wars, I had preached there only as a Lecturer, and he was bound in a Bond of five hundred Pounds to pay me ſixty Pounds per Annum, and afterward he was ſequeſtred, &c. I was now to return, and it was ſo contrived, that all muſt ſeem forward in it except the Vicar; the King himſelf muſt be engaged in it, the Lord Chancellour earneſtly preſſeth it; Sir Ralph Clare (the Ruler of that Place) is willing, and very deſirous of it; and the Vicar is willing, if he may but be recompenſed with as good a Place. —— The Lord Chancellour to make the Buſineſs certain, will engage himſelf for a valuable Stipend to the Vicar, and his own Steward muſt be commanded to pay it him. But the poor Vicar was to anſwer him, that this was no Security, —— he would have a legal Title to any thing of equal Value, and then he would reſign. ——

And would have the Lord Chancellour oblige the Vicar to reſign to him.

Or if he could not get the Vicarage, he would have the Lecture in that Place.

If they thought beſt for the Vicar to keep his Place, I was willing to take the Lecture, which by his Bond was ſecured to me, and was ſtill my Right; or if that were denied me I would be his Curate, while the King's Declaration ſtood in Force.

The Letter wrote for me by the Lord Chancellour. To my noble Friend Sir Ralph Clare, Theſe,

The Lord Chancellour's Letter on his Behalf to Sir Ralph Clare.

SIR,

I am a little out of Countenance, that after the Diſcovery of ſuch a Deſire in his Majeſty, that Mr. Baxter ſhould be ſettled at Kidderminſter, as he was heretofore, and my Promiſe to you by the King's Direction, that Mr. Dance ſhould very punctually receive a Recompence by Way of a Rent, upon his or your Bills charged here upon my Steward. Mr. Baxter hath no Fruit of this his Majeſty's good Intention towards him, ſo that he hath too much Reaſon to believe that he is not ſo frankly dealt with in this particular as he deſerves to be. I do again tell you, that it will be very acceptable to the King if you can perſuade Mr. Dance to ſurrender that Charge to Mr. Baxter; and in the mean Time, and 'till he is preferred to as profitable an Employment, whatever Agreement you ſhall make with him for an annual Rent, it ſhall be paid Quarterly upon a Bill from you charged upon my Steward Mr. Clutterbucks, and for the exact Performance of this, you may ſecurely pawn your full Credit. I do moſt earneſtly entreat you, that you will with all Speed inform me what we may depend upon in this particular, that we may not keep Mr. Baxter in Suſpence, who hath deſerved very well from his Majeſty, and of whom his Majeſty hath a very good Opinion; and I hope you will not be the leſs deſirous to comply with him for the particular Recommendation of,

For the Vicar to ſurrender, and accept a Penſion payable by the Chancellour, 'till he ſhall be better provided for,

That Mr. Baxter might ſucceed him in that Church.

Sir,

Your very Affectionate Servant,

EDW. HYDE.

Mr. Baxter full of Acknowledgment of this great Favour of the King and his prime Miniſter:

With Reflection on them.

Can any thing be more ſerious and cordial, and obliging than all this. For a Lord Chancellour that hath the Buſineſs of the Kingdom upon his Hand, and Lords attending him, to take up his Time ſo much and often about ſo low a Perſon, and ſo ſmall a Thing. And ſhould not a Man be content without a Vicarage or a Curateſhip, when it is not in the Power of the King and the Lord Chancellour to procure it for him, when they ſo vehemently deſire it? But oh! thought I, how much better a Life do poor Men live, who ſpeak as they think, and do as they profeſs, and are never put upon ſuch Shifts as theſe for their preſent Conveniencies? Wonderful, thought I, that Men who do ſo much over-value worldly Honour and Eſteem, can poſſibly ſo much forget Futurity, and think only of the preſent Day, as if they regarded not how their Actions be judged of by Poſterity, &c.

And yet Mr. Baxter might have ſucceeded if he would have conformed.

And ſome report, that if he had been ſettled in this Cure, he would have afterwards conform'd.

In the End it appeared, that two Knights of the County, Sir Ralph Clare and Sir John Packington, who were very great with Dr. Morley, newly made Biſhop of Worceſter, had made him believe that my Intereſt was ſo great, and I could do ſo much with Miniſters and People in that Country, that unleſs I would bind myſelf to promote their Cauſe and Party, I was not fit to be there. And this Biſhop (being greateſt of any Man with the Lord Chancellour) muſt obſtruct my Return to my ancient Flock. At laſt Sir Ralph Clare did freely tell me, that if I would conform to the Orders and Ceremonies of the Church, and preach Conformity to the People, and labour to ſet them right, there was no Man in England ſo fit to be there, for no Man could more effectually do it; but if I would not, there was no Man ſo unfit for the Place, for no Man could more hinder it.

Oh King Charles,

Our Deſire is, that thou mayeſt live for ever in the Fear of God, and thy Council: We beſeech thee and thy Council to read theſe following Lines, and in tender Bowels and Compaſſion to our Souls, and for your Good.

And this conſider, we are above four hundred impriſoned in and about this City, of Men and Women from their Families, in cloſe Holes and Priſons; beſides in the Country Gaols above ten hundred: And this we deſire, that our Meetings may not be broken up, but that all may come to a fair Tryal; that our Innocency may be cleared. —— Oh, that you ſhould make no more Diſtinction, and ſhould have no more Conſideration! For it is Sin and Wickedneſs, and Filthineſs that we have always declared againſt, that brings People to Riots and Plots, and tumultuous Meetings: Therefore, oh, that the Innocent ſhould be numbred amongſt ſuch, even we who ſeek the Peace of all People, and the Good of all Men: And the Lord God Almighty judge for us, betwixt us and them that we are numbred amongſt, and plead our Cauſe, &c. ——

The Second Humble Addreſs of thoſe who are called Anabaptiſts in the County of Lincoln, preſented to his Majeſty Charles the Second, King of England, Scotland, &c.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

Declaring their Innocency and Sorrow of Heart.

Once more to permit your diſtreſſed (yet faithful) Subjects to ſpread their Innocency and Sorrow of Heart before you. It ſeems it muſt needs be that Offences do or ſhall come, but the Woe is deſervedly their Portion only by whom the Offence cometh. —— When we read your Letter from Breda, and the Revival thereof in your Declaration for Eccleſiaſtical Affairs, and your princely Promiſes to us, when by your Clemency permitted to be preſent with yourſelf, O King; when we remember theſe Things we are ready to ſay (not, why was the King's Proclamation ſo haſty? but) why was the Extention thereof ſo large? Shall the Righteous ſuffer with the Wicked? God forbid! Muſt your peaceable Subjects be judged riotous; whilſt many unpeaceable ones (ſuch as Swearers and Drunkards) are freed from that Judgment? The Lord will not accompany ſuch Proceedings.

Our humble Requeſts from theſe Premiſes are, that there may be a righteous Diſtinction in the Adminiſtration of Government, leſt the Cries of the Innocent and their ruined Families come up before the Lord, whilſt your Priſons are filled with ſuch as whoſe Prayers have come up to the Throne of Grace on your Majeſty's Behalf, and can approve their Hearts to the Lord in reſpect of Loyalty and good Fidelity to your Majeſty and Civil Government of this Nation under your Hands, &c.

Proclamation for the Liberty of the Subject.

By the King. A Proclamation, commanding that no Perſon ſhall be ſeized, nor any Houſe ſearched, without ſpecial Warrant under the Hand and Seal of ſome one or more of the Privy-Council, or of the Lords Lieutenants, Deputy Lieutenants, or Juſtices of Peace in their reſpective Liberties; and that all Warrants ſhall be directed to the Conſtable, or to ſome other known legal Officer. Given at our Court at Whitehall the ſeventeenth Day of January in the twelfth Year of our Reign.

Arraignment of twenty of the late Rebels.

This Day twenty of the Priſoners taken in Arms were arraigned together at Juſtice-Hall in the Old Bailey; the reſt being dangerouſly wounded were put off by the Court for a future Tryal.

Theſe twenty arraigned were Thomas Venner, Roger Hodgſkin, Leonard Gowler, Jonas Allen, John Pym, William Oxman alias Orſingham, William Aſhton, Gyles Pritchard, Stephen Fall, John Smith, William Corbet, John Dod, John Elſton, Thomas

The wounded Men allow'd to sit in Chairs.

Thomas Harris, John Gardiner, Robert Bryerly, Richard Marten, John Patshall, Robert Hopkins, and John Wells: These were brought to the Bar together, the wounded Men had Chairs allowed them; and after the Indictment read for Murther and Treason, first Tryal of the Leader of them, Tho. Venner.

Enthuſiaſtick Way of Pleading by him and his Accomplices.

Thomas Venner was call'd, who when he had held up his Hand, being aſked whether he was Guilty or Not Guilty, began an extravagant and bottomleſs Diſcourſe, about the Fifth-Monarchy, and his having had a Teſtimony above twenty Years in New-England (the Nurſery and Receptacle of Sedition too long, and though Hugh Peters be dead, Gough and Whaley are there alive). He could not deny he was guilty of the late Riſing, but not forſooth of Treaſon, intending not to levy War againſt the King. Afterwards he confeſs'd, he was partly Guilty and partly Not; but being preſſed by the Court to give a poſitive Anſwer, whether he was Guilty in Manner and Form of the Indictment, he anſwered Not Guilty, and at laſt ſubmitted to a Tryal by God and his Country.

Among the others, ſome ſaid they would be try'd by the Laws of God; another by the Laws of God and Holy Men. Another would be try'd by the Lord of Hoſts; and with much Difficulty they agreed at laſt to be try'd by God and the Country.

The Evidence given againſt them,

In an Hiſtorical Account of them.

The Jury being ſworn, the Witneſſes were produced, who made it appear, that at the Meeting-Houſe in Swan Alley in Coleman-ſtreet, Venner, Tuffnay, and Cragge (which two latter were ſlain in this Rebellion) did ſeveral Times perſuade their Congregation to take up Arms for King Jeſus againſt the Powers of the Earth, that they were to kill all that oppoſed them; that they had been praying and preaching, but not acting for God. That divers armed themſelves at the Meeting-Houſe in Coleman-ſtreet, with Muſkets, Blunderbuſſes, Piſtols, Back, Breaſt, and Head-piece, with Powder and Bullet, and other warlike Weapons; that in the Streets they cry'd out againſt the King, and ſaid, they would fetch out the Lord-Mayor of London; that Venner and Pritchard were the Chief that led them in their Engagement. That on Sunday Jan. 6. they went to St. Paul's, where they broke open a Door, but not thinking it a Place of Safety they went thence. That they fled to St. John's Wood, where they reported that they had made an Uproar in London, and came thither for Safety. That thence they went to Cane Wood. That on Wedneſday January 9, Venner was at the Head of a Party in Wood-ſtreet, with an Halbert in his Hand, wherewith he ſtrook, and with the reſt of the Company kill'd three Men there. That Venner went with a Party to the Compter Gate, and demanded of them to turn out the Priſoners, or elſe they were all dead Men. That Corbet being apprehended confeſſed he was with them. That Elſon being taken by the Conſtable, had in his Pocket a Piſtol loaded with a Steel Slug, and confeſſed he had been in Wood-ſtreet. That Gardiner ſaid he had been at the Killing of three Men in Wood-ſtreet. That Venner, Hodgſkins, Gowler, Allen, Pym, Oxman, Aſhton, Pritchard, Hall, Smith, Corbet, Dod, Elſton, Harris, and Gardiner were all in Arms. That Bryerly went with them to Cane Wood, and was taken with ſeveral Bullets about him on Wedneſday Morning coming home. The Evidence againſt Martin, Hopkins, and Wells was not ſo full, and againſt Patſhall only one Witneſs, that he went with them in Arms from Coleman-ſtreet, but was taken without Arms.

The Evidence being heard, the Court aſked the Priſoners at the Bar, what they had to ſay for themſelves.

Defence made by Venner.

Venner confeſſed himſelf in the Inſurrection, but ſaid, he did not lead them, and when the Witneſſes poſitively ſwore it, he excuſed it, and ſaid, it was not he but Jeſus led them, that he could not deny but that moſt of the Things witneſſed againſt him were true, yet pleaded, that he could not commit Treaſon becauſe the King was not yet Crowned. But being told by the Court that every Engliſh Man knows the King never dies, and that that Opinion of his was firſt ſtarted by Watſon the Popiſh Prieſt, and long ſince condemned, he preſſed it no further.

Venner and fifteen of his Companions found Guilty.

Four acquitted.

After many frivolous Pretenſions of the reſt of the Priſoners, the Jury brought in their Verdict, whereby they found Venner and fifteen others Guilty of the Matters charged againſt them in the Indictment, and acquitted Richard Martin, John Patſhall, Robert Hopkins, and John Wells.

Pym ſaid, he was ſorry for what he had done. Smith deſired the Mercy of the Bench. Corbet ſaid, he knew not what he did, and begg'd for Mercy. And Bryerley pray'd, that God would put it into the King's Heart to pardon him.

Speech of Lord Chief Juſtice Foſter.

Sentence of Traytors.

But no Cauſe being ſhewn by the Priſoners, why Sentence ſhould not be given againſt them; the Lord Chief Juſtice Foſter made an excellent ſhort material Speech, to let them ſee their Condition, how highly they had offended God, their King, and Country: What a vaſt Meaſure of Pride for ſo few to attempt to deſtroy ſo many; and how ungrateful to ſo merciful a King that had granted them ſo much Liberty; particularly telling Venner, that he was not only an Actor in ſo wicked a Deſign, but a Seducer of thoſe ſilly Men whoſe Blood would be upon him. After which, and divers other ſeaſonable Paſſages, his Lordſhip pronounced Sentence upon as many as the Jury had brought in Guilty, to be drawn, hang'd, and quarter'd, &c.

Yet the King pardoned part of the Sentence to all but Venner and Hodgſkin.

Yet his Majeſty hath been graciouſly pleaſed to pardon Part of the Sentence, for only two were ordered to be quartered, which were Venner and Hodgſkin, who accordingly were executed before their Meeting-Houſe in Coleman-ſtreet, January 19. The reſt are to be hang'd only and beheaded, whereof two Oxman and Pritchard were ſo executed at Wood-ſtreet End the ſame Day. Others muſt ſuffer ſtables, ſome before the Old-Exchange, ſome in Red-Croſs and in White-Croſs Streets, and other Places in the City of London. Two (viz. Pym and Bryerley) were for ſome Time reprieved.

And granted a Reprieve to two of them.

Now were the Priſons every where fill'd with Friends, and others, in City and Country; and the Poſts were ſo laid for the ſearching of Letters, that none could paſs unſearched: Yet we heard of ſeveral thouſands of our Friends, that were caſt into Priſon in ſeveral Places throughout the Nation; and Margaret Fell carried an Account of them to the King and Council. The next Week we had an Account of ſeveral thouſands more that were caſt into Priſon, and ſhe went and laid them alſo before the King and his Council. They wondred how we could have ſuch Intelligence, ſeeing they had given ſuch ſtrict Charge for the intercepting of all Letters: But the Lord did ſo order it, that we had an Account notwithſtanding all their Stoppings. For in the deep Senſe I had of the grievous Sufferings Friends underwent, and of their Innocency towards God and Man, I was moved to ſend the following Epiſtle to them, as a Word of Conſolation, and to put them upon ſending up their Sufferings.

My dear Friends,

In the immortal Seed of God, which will plead its own Innocency, who be Inheriters of an everlaſting Kingdom that is Incorruptible, &c. (Concluding.) Friends, your Sufferings all that are or have been of late in Priſon, I would have you ſend up an Account of them, and how Things are amongſt you, that it may be delivered to the King and his Council for Things are pretty well here after the Storm.

London, by John Bill, 1661. in four Sheets.

By the King. A Proclamation for Reſtraint of Killing, Dreſſing, and Eating of Fleſh in Lent, or on Fiſh Days, appointed by the Law to be obſerved.

CHARLES R.

According to the Tenour of former Proclamations,

For the Encouragement of Fiſhermen, and the Saving of Fleſh.

Whereas divers good Laws and Statutes have heretofore with great Care and Providence been made and enacted for the due Obſervation of Lent, and other Days appointed for Fiſh Days, as well for the Sparing and Increaſe of Fleſh Victuals, as for the Maintenance of the Navy and Shipping of this Realm, by the Encouragement of Fiſhermen to go to the Seas for the taking of Fiſh, which Laws and politick Conſtitutions have heretofore been quickened by ſundry Proclamations. —— And taking Notice of a Proclamation heretofore publiſhed in the Time of our Royal Father of ever bleſſed Memory, for the Reſtraining of Killing, Dreſſing, and Eating of Fleſh in the Time of Lent, and other Days and Times prohibited by the Laws, to the End that the ſame may be now again revived and quickened for the Prevention of ſo great and growing a Miſchief and Inconvenience as may happen to our whole Kingdom, if ſo great a Liberty ſhould be permitted to kill, dreſs, and utter Fleſh in the Lent Seaſon, and on other Days and Times prohibited by Law, as of late Years there hath been.

We therefore much affecting the Reformation of ſo great and growing an Evil, which is ſo great an Enemy to the Plenty of this Kingdom, have thought fit thus timely to expreſs —— our Will and Pleaſure, —— that the Butchers ſhall kill no Fleſh —— nor Cooks dreſs nor ſuffer any Fleſh to be eaten in their Houſes in the Lent Time. —— And we do hereby ſtraightly prohibit and forbid all our Subjects of what Degree or Quality ſoever within this Realm, to eat any manner of Fleſh in the Time of Lent, or on other Days now uſually obſerved as Fiſh Days without a ſpecial Licenſe firſt obtained from the Biſhop of the Dioceſe, or ſuch other as by Law have Power to give Licenſe in that Behalf, according to our Laws in that Caſe provided, which we will and command ſhall be ſparingly granted, &c. —— Given at our Palace at Whitehall, the twenty ninth Day of January, in the twelfth Year of our Reign, 1660.

A Form of Common Prayer to be uſed upon the thirtieth of January, being the Anniverſary Day appointed by Act of Parliament for Faſting and Humiliation, to implore the Mercy of God, that neither the Guilt of that Sacred and Innocent Blood, nor thoſe other Sins by which God was provoked to deliver up both us and our King, into the Hands of cruel and unreaſonable Men, may at any Time hereafter be viſited upon us or our Poſterity. First Proper Collect.

Proper Collects.

O moſt mighty God, terrible in thy Judgments, and wonderful in thy Doings towards the Children of Men, who in thy heavy Diſpleaſure didſt ſuffer this Day that execrable Thing to be done among us, which we cannot mention without Horror, nor remember without Aſtoniſhment: We thy poor ſinful Creatures with dejected Looks and bleeding Hearts, humbly confeſs in the Behalf of all the People of this wretched Land, that our crying Sins have been the Cauſe, that the Crown thus fell from our Head, and an innocent King was given up to the Rage of cruel and bloody Men. But O gracious God, when thou makeſt Inquiſition for Blood, lay not the Guilt of this Blood (the ſhedding of which nothing but the Blood of thy Son can expiate) lay it not to the Charge of this ſinful Nation. Be merciful, be merciful unto thy People whom thou haſt redeemed, and be not angry with us for ever. Pardon, we beſeech thee, the Sins of us all, of thoſe who were conſenting to the ſhedding of that Blood, and of thoſe who were any Way wanting to their Duty in preſerving it; and mercifully grant it may never be required of us or our Poſterity! And that for by the precious Merits of thy dear Son our Bleſſed Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. Amen.

Collect before the Epiſtle.

Bleſſed Lord, in whoſe Sight the Death of thy Saints is moſt precious, we magnify thy Name for that abundant Meaſure of Grace beſtowed on our late martyred Sovereign, by which he was enabled to follow the Steps of his bleſſed Maſter and Saviour, in a conſtant meek Suffering of all barbarous Indignities, and at laſt reſiſting unto Blood, and even then according to the ſame Pattern praying for his Murderers. Let his Memory, O Lord, be ever bleſſed among us, and his Example powerful to work upon us, that we may follow him as he followed Chriſt. And we beſeech thee, let not his Blood outcry thoſe his Prayers, but as we are all in ſome Meaſure guilty of the one, ſo let us all obtain the Benefit of the other. And grant that our Land may be ſecured from the Vengeance of that Blood and thy Mercy glorified in the Forgiveneſs of ſo great a Sin. And all for Jeſus Chriſt his Sake. Amen.

Two Collects after the Prayer for the whole Eſtate of Chriſt's Church.

O Lord our heavenly Father, who doeſt not puniſh us as our Sins deſerve, but haſt in the Midſt of Judgment remembred Mercy; we acknowledge it thy ſpecial Favour, that though for our many and great Provocations thou didſt ſuffer our martyred King to be taken away, as upon this Day, by the wicked Hands of violent and blood thirſty Men, yet thou didſt not leave us as Sheep without a Shepherd, but didſt immediately inveſt our moſt Gracious Sovereign King Charles the Second with ſacred and royal Authority; and by thy gracious Providence didſt miraculouſly preſerve him from his bloody Enemies, hiding him under the Shadow of thy Wings, until their Tyranny was over-paſt; and in thy good Time bringing him back, and ſettling him in Peace upon the Throne of his Father, to exerciſe that Authority over us, which of thy ſpecial Grace thou haſt communicated unto him. For theſe thy great and unſpeakable Mercies, we render thee moſt humble Thanks from the Bottom of our Hearts, beſeeching thee ſtill to continue thy gracious Protection over him, and to grant him a long and happy Reign over us. So we that be thy People will give thee Thanks for ever, and will alway be ſhewing forth thy Praiſe from Generation to Generation, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

O Lord God, who out of thine infinite Mercy and Goodneſs, haſt brought back the Captivity of Sion, and in good Part reſtored this late afflicted Church, perfect, we beſeech thee, this thy great Deliverance. Hedge it about with thy continual Protection, with the Cuſtody of Angels, with the Patronage of Kings and Princes, with the Hearts and Hands of Nobles, with the Defence of the whole ſecular Arm, and with the Affections of all good People. Re-unite all our remaining Diviſions, reconcile our Differences, and change all our Spirits into a ſweet chriſtian Temper of Gentleneſs and Peace, that with one Heart and Voice we may ſerve and praiſe thee in thy holy Church, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

Evening Prayer. The two firſt Collects.

Evening Collects.

O Bleſſed Lord God, who by thy Wiſdom guideſt and ordereſt all Things moſt ſuitably to thy Juſtice, and performeſt thy Pleaſure always in ſuch Manner, that thou canſt alſo appeal to us, whether thy Ways be not equal: We thy poor wretched People fall down before thee, acknowledging the Juſtice of thy Proceedings with us, and that the amazing Judgment which this Day befell us (in permitting cruel Men, Sons of Belial, to execute the Fury of their Rebellion upon our late gracious Sovereign, and to imbrew their Hands in the Blood of the Lord's Anointed) was drawn down by the great and long Provocations of the Sins of this Nation againſt thee. For all which we ſinful Wretches, here met together, deſire to humble ourſelves before thee, imploring thy Mercy for the Pardon of them all, and that thou wouldeſt deliver this Nation from Blood Guiltineſs, that of this Day eſpecially; and turn from us and our Poſterity all thoſe Judgments which we have deſerved. This we beg for the all-ſufficient Merits of thy Son our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.

Second Collect for Evening Service.

Bleſſed God, juſt and powerful, that didſt as upon this Day give up thy dear Servant, and our late dread Sovereign to the violent Outrages of wicked Men, to be deſpitefully uſed, and at length murthered by them, which though we could not then behold without the greateſt Aſtoniſhment, nor this Day call to Mind without Horrour; yet do we moſt gratefully remember the Glories of thy Grace, which then ſhined forth in thine Anointed, and how thou waſt pleaſed to own him in the Midſt of his Enemies, and in the Hour of Death, and to endue him with ſuch eminent Patience, Meekneſs, and Charity, according to the Example of thine own Son expoſed to the Fury of his Enemies. And albeit thou didſt ſuffer thoſe wicked and cruel Men, to proceed to ſo high a Pitch of Violence againſt our late Sovereign, as to kill and take Poſſeſſion of his Throne, yet didſt thou in great Mercy preſerve his Son, whoſe Right it was, and whom at length in wonderful Providence, thou haſt brought back and ſet on his Father's Throne, for which we glorify thy Name, through Jeſus Chriſt our Bleſſed Saviour. Amen.

Apology of Dr. George Leyburn, Chaplain to the Queen Mother;

Representing her Majesty a great Friend to his Person and Function.

And yet never interposing for those Priests who had medled in State Affairs.

Dr. George Leyburn, who had been the first English Priest that was sworn of her Majesty's Chapel, [the Queen Mother] was now to represent her to the best Advantage of being zealous for the Roman Catholick Religion, and yet tender of the English Constitution. Accordingly, in his Apology against the Dean and Chapter of the Catholick Clergy in England, printed at Doway by L. Kellam, 1661, 4to. he tells her most excellent Majesty Henrietta Maria, your Majesty hath shewn Kindness for me far above any Desert of mine. I was committed Prisoner to Dover Castle upon Suspicion of being a Priest, and your Majesty, compassionating my unjust Sufferings, obtain'd my Deliverance. Again, being falsely accused to principal Ministers of our late King of most happy Memory, under the Support of your Majesty's Protection, as to my Religion, I voluntarily appear'd at the Council Table even in a Conjuncture of a violent Storm casually raised against Priests, and was dismissed with Honour, nothing of Evidence being produced, that could render me guilty of the least medling in order to Affairs of State, and indeed during your Majesty's Stay in England. You never protected Priest or Lay Catholick, otherwise than with this Proviso, If he has done nothing against the State. Your Majesty knew right well, that the supreme Providence had set Bounds to every Vocation, so that no Man ought to put Priests confined to the Things of God, and not to meddle with State Affairs.

He boasts of the Loyalty of the Catholicks.

put his Sickle on ſtrange Ground. The Office of a Prieſt is to conſider only what is his own and Chriſt's Buſineſs; and to leave to Cæſar, and the Miniſters of his Council, Affairs pertaining to the State. —— I have hazarded my Life, and ſpent, not of my Superfluity which I had not, but of my Poverty, what I had to ſerve our late Sovereign Lord your Majeſty's Husband of moſt happy Memory. The Church of God does not teach Catholicks to deſert their true and lawful Princes in their Sufferings, neither does their Adverſity leſſen the Power they had in their Proſperity to exact Obedience from their Subjects, but increaſe it. ——

Her Majeſty's Patience and Innocence.

I am certain of your Majeſty's unjuſt Sufferings, and more grievous (I dare averr) than ever Chriſtian Princeſs endured, your Majeſty having been baniſh'd wrongfully, the King your Huſband barbarouſly murder'd, the King your Son in continual Danger of his Father's Murderers, and in want of Requiſites neceſſary to his Majeſty's Condition: Neither can I doubt, but that your Majeſty hath both patiently and innocently endured them, becauſe your moſt religious Confeſſor himſelf told me, that he had heard your general Confeſſion twice; once in imminent Danger of Death upon the Sea going out of Holland, when the raging Waves threaten'd preſent Ruin, and profeſſed, that he could never accuſe your Majeſty of one mortal Sin, &c.

Her Confeſſor having reveal'd this Secret, that ſhe was never guilty of any mortal Sin.

SUNDAY Feb. 3.

Some proſecuted by Law for not reading the Common-Prayer.

Intereſt of Words in Prayer, 1661. 4to.

The Juſtices of Peace, Nobility and Gentry, had inſiſted, that the Laws returned with the King, that the Common-Prayer was by Law eſtabliſh'd, and that therefore thoſe Parochial Miniſters who would not uſe the Common-Prayer were liable to be proſecuted for offending againſt the Statutes made in that Behalf, to which a Preſbyterian Writer offers this Anſwer.

At which a Preſbyterian Writer is angry, and makes a double Queſtion: 1. Whether the Laws can oblige the Conſcience in Matters of divine Worſhip? 2. Whether the Common-Prayer Book be eſtabliſhed by Law?

If any ſay, that the Miniſters of England are bound by the Law of England to uſe the Common-Prayer-Book: Beſides that it is a great Queſtion, how far the Laws of a Nation can oblige the Conſcience in Matters of divine Worſhip. —— We make it a great Queſtion, whether the Common-Prayer-Book be eſtabliſh'd by Law or no, and believe the contrary; that the Common-Prayer-Book 5 and 6 Edw. VI. with ſome Alterations made 1 Eliz. was ſo eſtabliſhed we know, but what that Book was, or where it is, we cannot tell; it is apparent, that the Books ordinarily walking up and down are not ſo eſtabliſh'd.

And ſuppoſe it were by Law eſtabliſhed, yet the Uſe of it is againſt the Covenant, which is to be kept tho' contrary to Acts of Parliament. And no Power upon Earth can diſcharge them from that Covenant Oath.

So far from being ratified, that it was expreſly condemned by K. Charles I. tho' in Scotland thruſt down the Throat of Charles II.

Suppoſe it were, we do not think that this is pleadable in the Caſe againſt the Covenant agreed by Lords and Commons legally aſſembled in Parliament, and ſo far ratified by the King, as unqueſtionably in Conſcience would ſuffice to diſcharge any that ſhall keep it, though contrary to ſome former Act of Parliament.

Nor can it enter into our Thoughts, that the Parliament or any Power under Heaven, can by any future Act diſcharge us from the Obligation of an Oath, &c.

They would be grateful to his Majeſty for his Declaration.

P. 60. He urgeth it upon us from an ingenuous Argument, viz. Gratitude to his Majeſty for his Indulgence. To which we anſwer, that with all Humility we acknowledge his moſt excellent Majeſty's gracious Indulgence in it, and in Point of Gratitude are willing to ſerve his Majeſty with all that is dear to us (our Souls only excepted, which we know he deſireth not) in Token of Thankfulneſs to his Majeſty we are ready to part with any Part of our Livelihoods, and ſhall in that vie with thoſe who pretend moſt to his Majeſty's Service. Though many of us in ſeveral Places have no Benefit by his Majeſty's Declaration, while ſome eager Lawyers and Juſtices ſtill give the Statutes in charge againſt us, and cauſe us to be indicted and proſecuted, openly telling the People, that the King's Declaration is no Law.

But they have no Benefit by it, becauſe Juſtices and Lawyers tell the People it is no Law.

As to Diſorders and Confuſions upon Diſuſe of the Liturgy,
Theſe are to be imputed to Lay Preachers and young Scholars, got into Livings.

P. 62. For what he urgeth as to the Diſorders and Confuſions in our Church ſince the Diſuſe of the Liturgy which he much comments upon. —— There was indeed a Set of Lay Preachers, and raw young Students got into Livings, many of whom were alſo corrupted in their Judgments, and it is no great Wonder ſome of them ſhould be juſtly chargeable. The Queſtion is, what ſuch Confuſions there would have been, had none been admitted into Livings, but ſuch as were duly qualified?

If the Preſbyterians diſobey the Laws in not uſing the Common-Prayer: ſo do the Church-men in adding to it.

And the preſent Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge has without Law of the Land or Statute of the Univerſity, uſurped a Power of obliging the Commencers to ſubſcribe to the Lawfulneſs of the Common-Prayer.

P. 109. We conclude, that we judge our Brethren very uneven in their cenſuring of us for Diſobedience to Laws, in this Caſe of the Common Prayer, when they do the ſame Thing themſelves, for which they ſo charge us, ſinging Anthems and Songs, &c. and uſing Rites and Forms of Prayer in Cathedrals expreſly contrary to the Statute of 1 Eliz. cap. 2. and whilſt the preſent Vice-Chancellour of Cambridge, without any Law of England, or Statute of the Univerſity, or Canon, or any other Colour of Law, and expreſly contrary to his Majeſty's Declaration, and contrary to all Conſcience and Reaſon, could diſpenſe with his Conſcience, in uſurping an arbitrary Power, to the open Prejudice of ſo many of his Majeſty's Subjects, in their Children, to ſtop fifty Commencers from Commencing, becauſe at twenty four Hours Warning they could not find in their Conſciences to ſubſcribe to the Lawfulneſs of the Common Prayer, and the Book of Conſecration, and to the thirty nine Articles, which none can with a good Conſcience ſubſcribe, ſcribe, but he who hath diſtinctly read over the Book of Common Prayer, and both the Books of Homilies, and is well ſtudied in the Point of Ceremonies, and in the Controverſy of Church Government, yea and indeed in the whole Body of Divinity, which none can preſume of Boys of eighteen or nineteen Years of Age; nay, how many Batchelors and Doctors in Divinity never read them: Yet all theſe muſt the Queſtioniſts ſubſcribe and be forced to do it, by the arbitrary Power of the Vice-Chancellour, expreſly contrary to his Majeſty's Declaration. What Authority he hath ſince procured for the Future, and by what Acts we know not, but we are ſure when he did this, he had no ſuch.

For Lay-Conformity, not Miniſterial.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 288.

Mr. Zach. Crofton writing to prove the Obligation of the ſolemn national Vow and Covenant (not as binding any Man to Rebellion or to any Thing unlawful, but in his Place and Calling to endeavour Reformation, to be againſt Schiſm, Popery, Prelacy, and Profaneneſs, and defend the King) he was ſent Priſoner to the Tower; where when he had lain long at great Charges, he ſought to get an Habeas Corpus; but his Life being threatned he was glad to let that Motion fall, and at laſt to petition for his Liberty, which he obtained. But going into his own Country of Cheſhire, he was impriſoned there; and when he procured his Liberty he was fain to ſet up a Grocer's Shop to get a Maintenance for his Family. While he was in the Tower, he went to the Chapel Service and Sermon; his Judgment being againſt ſeparating from the Pariſh Churches, notwithſtanding their Conformity, ſo be it he were not put to uſe the Common Prayer as a Miniſter, or the Ceremonies. And this occaſioned ſome that thought his Courſe unlawful to write againſt it; to which he ſomewhat ſharply reply'd, and ſo divers Writings were publiſhed on both Sides, about ſuch Communion.

Petition of the London Fiſhmongers to his Majeſty againſt Recalling his Proclamation for the Keeping of Lent.

There being a Report, that his Majeſty's Proclamation for the Obſervation of Lent would e'er long be recalled, this Day February 7, the Company of Fiſhmongers in the Name of themſelves and the whole Fiſhery of this Nation, did petition his Majeſty, ſince they had laid out their Eſtates and engaged their Credit in providing Stores of good and [illegible] the ſame at reaſonable and eaſy Rates) which they did in Obedience to his Majeſty's expreſs Command, and muſt inevitably be ruined, in Caſe his Majeſty ſhould withdraw his Proclamation made in purſuance of ſo many good Laws, and upon ſo many great and weighty Reaſons of State; eſpecially at this preſent, when the Fiſhermen, who are the Stock and Breed of the Mariners, for the Safety and Welfare of this Nation, need ſo much Encouragement; that for theſe and ſundry other preſſing Reaſons, his Majeſty would not cauſe his Royal Proclamation to be ſet aſide, which his Royal Predeceſſors had refuſed to do, when there was much more Cauſe, than (Thanks be to God) there is at this preſent.

Which Petition being delivered, his Majeſty having adviſed with his moſt honourable Privy-Council, diſmiſſed the Petitioners with a moſt gracious Anſwer, there being a kind of Neceſſity, as the Affairs of England now ſtand, that the ſaid Laws and Proclamation for Lent ſhould receive due Obedience.

In his prime Viſitation (as I have heard one ſpeak that was by) before Bartholomew, he in his Chamber told ſome of his Clergy what he came about, and as though he would wipe his Hands ſaid, Ὀυκ ἐγὼ ἀλλὰ νόμος, Not I but the Law.

Addreſs of the General Court at Boſton in New-England to his Majeſty, expreſſing their Loyalty, and vindicating the Neceſſity of having put ſome of the Quakers to Death.

Printed 1661. 4^to.

The humble Petition and Addreſs of the General Court ſitting at Boſton in New-England unto the high and mighty Prince Charles the Second, and preſented unto his moſt gracious Majeſty February 11, 1660-61. acknowledging as Subjects their reſtored King, ſupplicating for the Continuance of their civil and religious given Liberties, anſwering a Complaint, and vindicating the Neceſſity of their having put ſome of the Quakers to Death; and finally declaring, that they left not their own, or continue in a ſtrange Land, out of Rebellion or Schiſm; and now concluding with their Prayers for a Bleſſing on the Head and Heart of that great King who was ſome Time an Exile as they are. Some Conſiderations preſented unto the King of England, &c. Being partly an Anſwer unto a Petition and Addreſs of the General Court of Boſton in New-England, preſented unto the King (as is ſaid) February laſt, the eleventh Day.

Oh King!

This my Occaſion to preſent thee with theſe Conſiderations, is very urgent and of great Neceſſity even in the Behalf of Innocent Blood; hoping that my Work will find ſuch Favour with thee, as to induce thee to the Reading, &c.

Mr. Baxter's Account of his good Offices done for the Brethren in New-England.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 291.

I ſhall inſert ſome Account of the Buſineſs which I had ſo often with the Lord Chancellour at this Time, becauſe it was moſt done in the Inter-ſpace between the Paſſing of the King's Declaration, and the Debates about the Liturgy.

By helping to promote the Converſion of the Indians.

In the Time of Cromwell's Government, Mr. John Elliot, with ſome Aſſiſtant in New-England, having learned the Natives Language, and converted many Souls among them (not to be baptized and forget their Names as well as Creed, as it is among the Spaniards Converts at Mexico, Peru, &c. but to ſerious Godlineſs) it was found that the great Hinderance of the Progreſs of that Work was the Poverty and Barbarouſneſs of the People, which made many to live diſperſed like wild Beaſts in Wilderneſſes, ſo that having neither Towns, nor Food, nor Entertainment fit for Engliſh Bodies, few of them could be got together to be ſpoken to, nor could the Engliſh go far, or ſtay long among them. Wherefore to build them Houſes, and draw them together, and maintain the Preachers that went among them, and to pay School-maſters to teach their Chidren, and keep their Children at School, &c. Cromwell cauſed a Collection to be made in England in every Pariſh, and People did contribute very largely: And with the Money (beſide ſome left in Stock) was bought ſeven or eight hundred Pounds per Annum of Lands, and a Corporation choſen to diſpoſe of the Rents for the furthering of the Work among the Indians. This Land was almoſt all bought for the worth of it of one Colonel Beddingfield, a Papiſt, an Officer in the King's Army: When the King came in, Beddingfield ſeizeth on the Lands again, and keepeth them, and refuſeth either to ſurrender them, or to repay the Money; becauſe all that was done in Cromwell's Time being now judged void, as being without Law; that Corporation was now null, and ſo could have no Right to Money or Lands: And he pretended, that he ſold it under the Worth, in Expectation of the Recovery of it upon the King's Return. The Preſident of the Corporation was the Lord Steel, a Judge, a worthy Man; the Treaſurer was Mr. Hen. Aſhurſt; and the Members were ſuch ſober godly Men, as were beſt affected to New-England's Work. Mr. Aſhhurſt (being the moſt exemplary Perſon for eminent Sobriety, Self-denial, Piety, and Charity that London could glory of, as far as publick Obſervation and Fame and his moſt intimate Friends could teſtify) did make this, and all other publick Good he could do, his Buſineſs: He called the old Corporation together, and deſired me to meet them; where we all agreed, that ſuch as had incurred the King's Diſpleaſure, by being Members of any Courts of Juſtice in Cromwell's Days ſhould quietly recede; and we ſhould try if we could get the Corporation reſtored, and the reſt continued, and more fit Men added, that the Land might be recovered: And becauſe of our other Buſineſs, I had ready Acceſs to the Lord Chancellour, they deſired me to ſolicite him about it; ſo Mr. Aſhurſt and I did follow the Buſineſs.

The good Work begun by Ol. Cromwell as a popular thing.

He eſtabliſhed a Corporation, who purchaſed Land of Col. Bedingfield, a popiſh Officer,

Who ſeized upon the Lands when the King came in as not lawfully convey'd away.

Judge Steel was Preſident, and Mr. Hen. Aſhurſt Treaſurer of this Corporation.

Mr. Aſhurſt calls together the moſt inoffenſive Members,

To get the Corporation reſtored.

Mr. Baxter ſolicites the Lord Chancellour,

The Lord Chancellour at the very firſt was ready to further us, approving of the Work, as that which could not be for any Faction or evil End, but honourable to the King and Land. And he told me, that Beddingfield could have no Right to that which he had ſold, and that the Right was in the King, who would readily grant it to the good Uſe intended; and that we ſhould have his beſt Aſſiſtance to recover it. And indeed I found him real to us in this Buſineſs from firſt to laſt. Yet did Beddingfield by the Friendſhip of the Attorney-General, and ſome others, ſo delay the Buſineſs, as bringing it to a Suit in Chancery; he kept Mr. Aſhurſt in a Twelve-month's Trouble before he could recover the Land: But when it came to Judgment, the Lord Chancellour ſpake very much againſt him, and granted a Decree for the new Corporation; and Mr. Aſhurſt and myſelf had the Naming of the Members. And we deſired Mr. Robert Boyle (a worthy Perſon of Learning and a publick Spirit, and Brother to the Earl of Cork) to be Preſident (now called Governour) and I got Mr. Aſhurſt to be Treaſurer again, and ſome of the old Members, and many other godly able Citizens made up the reſt: Only we left the Nomination of ſome Lords to his Majeſty, as not preſuming to nominate ſuch; and the Lord Chancellour and ſix or ſeven more were added. But it was Mr. Boyle and Mr. Aſhurſt with the Citizens that did the Work: But eſpecially the Care and Trouble of all was on Mr. Aſhurſt. And thus that Buſineſs was happily reſtored.

Who declared the Right of the Lands was not in Bedingfield, but in the King,

Who would grant them to the intended pious Uſes.

A Decree for the Lands, and for a new Corporation.

Mr Robert Boyle, Preſident.

Mr. Hen. Aſhurſt, Treaſurer;

With ſome Lords named by the King.

A great Inclination ariſing in New-England to Epiſcopal Government,

Ibid. Life of Mr. Baxter, p. 297.

There grew on a ſudden in New-England a great Inclination to Epiſcopal Government; for many of them ſaw the Inconveniencies of Separations, and how much their Way did tend to Diviſions, and they read my Books, and what I ſaid

Which Mr. Baxter believes would improve, and hinder Schiſms, if the Presbyterian Miniſters here had not been ſilenc'd and caſt out.

ſaid againſt both the Soldiers and Independents in England, and they thought that the Church Government here would have been ſuch as yet they [illegible] pleaſed with; ſo that thoſe and many other Miniſters under them began to think of a Conformity. 'Till at laſt Mr. Norton with one Mr. Bradſtreet a Magiſtrate, came over and ſaw how Things went, and thoſe in New-England heard at laſt how we were all ſilenced and caſt out: And then they began to remember again, that there is ſomething beſide Schiſm to be feared, and that there lyeth as perilous an Extreme on the other Side.

A civil and prudent Letter of the Chancellour to the University of Oxford;

Extracts from the Regiſter of Oxford.

The Univerſity of Oxford received a Letter from their Chancellour, directed to the reverend Dr. Paul Hood, Rector of Lincoln College, and Vice-Chancellour of the Univerſity of Oxford.

Good Mr. Vice-Chancellour,

Declaring for a ſtrict Obſervance of the Statutes:

And if he recommend any thing diſagreeable to the Statutes, he deſires they would ſuſpend the Execution of it.

I do aſſure you, I do not hold myſelf more obliged to do Juſtice in Chancery, than I do to obſerve the Statutes of the Univerſity myſelf, and to do the beſt I can, that others may do ſo too. And therefore I deſire you, if at any Time I recommend any thing to you that is not agreeable to the Statutes, and that appears to you and to the reſt of the Governours unfit to be done, though I have Power by the Statutes to recommend it, that you do ſuſpend the Execution of it, 'till you have advertiſed me of the Unfitneſs or Inconvenience, and that you do receive further Advice from me. And if I commit any Errour of this kind, I am the more excuſable by being without any ſuch Extract of your Statutes, as would eaſily keep me from committing thoſe Errours.

He had promiſed to be reſerv'd in commending Men to Degrees.

Yet Diſpenſations in ſome Caſes being reſerv'd to him as Chancellour; he cannot deny to recommend ſome Perſons;

And eſpecially theſe Gentlemen,

Who have loſt the Opportunity of taking their Degrees by the Diſorder of the Times,

John Tayleur, Edw. Rogers, John Richards, and John Sparks to be Batchelors in Divinity,

And Mr. Lluellin Jenkin to be Doctor of Law.

I have promiſed you in ſome former Letter to be very reſerv'd in commending Men to the taking Degrees, without having perform'd their Exerciſe, and comply'd with all other Circumſtances enjoyn'd by the Statutes, and I ſhall be very punctual in that Caution. Yet I am told, that thoſe Diſpenſations which were heretofore granted of courſe when reaſonably propoſed for taking Degrees, being now reſerv'd to the Chancellour, it would be injuſt in him to deny to recommend them to you, upon emergent Occaſions. And I am now deſired by ſome very eminent Perſons very well known and eſteem'd by the Univerſity, to recommend ſome Gentlemen to you, who either are ſuch as have been driven from the Univerſity theſe ill Times, and being now return'd thither, are to their great Prejudice without thoſe Degrees which they would have had, if they had been permitted to have ſtay'd in their Colleges; or at leaſt are ſuch, as had it not been for the Diſorder of the Times, might long ſince have taken the Degrees they now deſire, and which they cannot yet regularly obtain until the Regius Profeſſor be ſettled. I do therefore upon that Account recommend to you Mr. John Tayleur, and Mr. Edw. Rogers of Magdalen College, and Mr. John Richards of New College, and Mr. John Sparks of Lincoln College, that they may be preſented and admitted to the Degree of Batchelor in Divinity; and I do likewiſe recommend for a particular Reaſon, and in order to a publick Good, Mr. Lluellin Jenkin to be created Doctor of the Civil Law: In the Recommendation of all which I hope I do not ſwerve from that Truſt which the Univerſity has repoſed in me.

I ſhould before this Time have given you Thanks for the Favour you intend my two Sons, if I had not thought before this Time to have ſent them to ſee the Univerſity, and to receive the Honour from you themſelves, but ſome Affairs have obliged them to defer that Journey; and therefore I do recommend and leave them to your Favour, that they may receive the Promotion of Maſter of Arts.

His Lordſhip deſires an Opportunity to ſerve the Univerſity.

And now, Mr. Vice-Chancellour, give me Leave to tell you, I was not ſo ambitious to receive the great Honour the Univerſity hath done me in making me their Chancellour, which I do exceedingly eſteem, as I am ſolicitous to do ſome ſuch Service for the Univerſity as may not diſcredit your Election, and may retain ſome Memory that I ſerve you in that Place. I do therefore conjure you to offer me that Occaſion, and to advertiſe me of ſome Particular in which the Univerſity may receive a Benefit or Advantage by the little Credit and Intereſt I have; and you ſhall find I will take the Affair very much to Heart.

I know

He recommends the reviving the good old Diſcipline,

The long intermitted.

No diſſolute and debauch'd Perſons to live in Colleges.

I know I need not recommend to you the reviving and countenancing the good Diſcipline of the Univerſity which hath been for ſo many Years intermitted, and that the ſeveral Heads and Governours of Colleges and Halls will do the ſame; and that they will give that evident Diſcountenance to all diſſolute and debauch'd Perſons, that ſuch, who will not conform themſelves to the Sobriety and Manners of a collegiate Life, may not be ſuffer'd to live in Colleges for the Corruption of others. I have no more to add, but I am Collegiorum & Aularum Præfecti decreverunt Oratorem Publicum Literas nomine Univerſitatis ad Honoratiſſimum noſtrum Cancellarium ſcribere, quæ eadem Convocatione publicatæ & approbatæ fuerunt, quarum exemplar ſequitur, & eſt talis.

A Copy of it.

For the Right Honourable Edward Lord Hyde, Baron of Hendon, Lord High Chancellor of England, and Chancellor of the Univerſity of Oxford.

Honoratiſſime præſtantiſſimeque Cancellarie,

In hoc reſtaurati ſeculi curſu, & Aſtreæ cum Rege reditu, ex literis etiam tuis felix omen accepimus, tandem & Academiæ Statutorum a te repertum promiſſumque Archetypum, Auſpicium tua & fortuna & officio dignum, ut alibi jura dicas, alibi invenias; nec dubitat viciſſim Academia quas tu leges in Archetypo reſtituis, tua obſervantia Ectypas dare & obſequendo excribere. Et quidem Liber iſte non hoc ſolum nomine Theſaurus, quod tam diu reconditus, ſed quod Regio Chirographo animatus, ſimul Legis & Legiſlatoris vim obtinens, ab iſtâ Manu & pretium accipit & Imperium; exinde non inter Statuta tantum noſtra, ſed & Archiva æſtimandus. Sunt autem Statuta iſta haud dubie obſervatu digniſſima, quæ nuperis temporibus latere cogerentur, quanquam vel hac latendi conditione felicia, & hoc ſolum nomine aliis legibus tutiora. Interim ad hæc Vitam, Studia, & Mores componet Academia, ſeptemque ſuas Artes, ſeptemplicis inſtar Nili, ex hoc abdito hucuſque Fonte redundantiùs effundet. At repertis demum Statutis in ſpem erigimur, ut cohibitâ exinde effuſâ Graduum largitione, priorum fatemur temporum vitio neceſſaria, Statuta demum gradus diſponant. Ne Academia literarios hoſce in alios conferendo ſeu verius ſpargendo honores, ſuo videatur parum conſulere; aut nequid deterius dicamus, ne priora tempora imitemur: Cum Academiâ reformatiſſimè purgatâ, & legibus expurgatis, in Titulos noſtros paſſim & promiſcuè invaderent abortivi Miniſtelli non quas ſciebant, ſed quas ferebant, literis commendati, pro genio ſcilicet Temporum, Extemporanei protinus Doctores & Magiſtri; ut non tam ipſi ad gradus evehi, quam Gradus ad ipſos deſcendere viderentur. At vero nec quicquam hæc nunc timentur, nec eo conquerimur, quaſi noſtra incuſantes tempora, ſed plorantes præterita; ſimul in futurum caventes, ne ſuus huic Gradui honor per filios tuos demum reſtitutus, iterum vilitate nimia exciderit. Neutiquam igitur timemus, ne tu quandoque indignos ad nos miſeris, qui vel mittendo abunde dignos efficias, utpote qui ipſe Statuta noſtra jampridem obſequio didiceris, Academiæ Alumnus olim, ideoque peritior jam Patronus.

Thanking his Lordſhip for promiſing to ſend them a more authentick Copy of the Univerſity Statutes, confirm'd by Royal Authority.

Statutes ſuppreſs'd in the late Times,

The fitter to be now reinforced.

Degrees to be conferr'd in the ſtatutable Way.

Not as lately proſtituted to very unworthy Creatures.

Not inſtructed in Letters, but commended by them.

No Fear that his Lordſhip would ever recommend unworthy Perſons.

Having been a Member as well as a Patron of the Univerſity.

Cum autem in alteris tuis Literis Academiam optima a te ſperare & exigere ſponte invitas, & imperioſâ quadam humanitate diſtrictè jubes, quid potius a te imploret, qui amiſſa Academiæ jura repereris, quam ut reperta defendas? Enimvero per Annos proximè elapſos, licentia Belli ſub pacis larva graſſante, & ſub communi illa Mechanicorum in Literatos tyrannide, ita ſenſim in Academiam crevit oppidum, dum profligatâ Academiâ reſtaret tantum Oxonium, ita furtim imminuit, & ad ſe arripuit Academiæ jura, ut excuſſo jugo, proſtitutæ impudentiæ Homines nobis præſcribere jam palam auſint, & ſe alentibus imperare Ægre quidem id ferimus priora ab illis allegari tempora, præſentium pudorem, non Patrocinium, & pro Jure obtendendo conſuetudinem injuriæ, iis ſe tueri exemplis quibus ſola & optima in Veniâ Defenſio eſt. Ægrè, inquam, ferimus, & conquerimur, rebellium Annales cenſeri Oppidanorum jura; nec vero quicquam indignius videri debet, quam ut cum illi noſtris opibus, nos eorum legibus viveremus, & eorum nutu excubias & vigilias ageremus, contra quas potius vigilandum eſt. Eò enim Vecordiæ proceſſerunt inter illos nonnulli, ut diruta & ſolo æquata Collegia exoptarent, ignari interim noſtris ædificiis collapſuris, muribus iſtis nos & noſtra rodere conſuetis illico migrandum eſſe, & Athenas extincta ſemel Academia in Oppidum vile & Piſcatorium degeneraſſe. Verum cum tanti ipſis ſit ut nobis maledicant, ſibimet ruinam noſtram imprecari, ſiquidem ſalvâ Pietate & Rep. optari poſſet, votum illud non magis ulciſci poſſumus, quam ſi optemus expletum. Cæterum ne Oxonio Academiam, neve inverſo Victimarum ritu, Tauro Apollinem immolemus, ne denique Mechanicis Artibus ſuccumbant Liberales, a te (Heros Illuſtriſſime) qui eas & foves & exerces Artes, ſibi ſpondet ſperatque,

Since his Lordſhip is ſo deſirous to ſerve them.

They implore his Protection againſt the late Uſurpations of the Townſmen,

Who had been impudent and ungrateful.

And would govern thoſe they liv'd upon.

Tho' the Deſtruction of the Univerſity would be their own Ruin.

And they are Enemies to their own Intereſt, and their own Being.

This William Halls, A. M. was a reverend and worthy Perſon ſequeſtred from the Rectory of Glaſton Com. Rutl. and ſerved the Cure two Years after the Sequeſtration, for which the Men of the Times would not allow him one Farthing. At length he was forced to retire with his Wife and ſix Children. His Books and Houſhold Goods being ſeized upon by ſeveral Parties of Horſe, were again three Times bought by his Wife and Friends: The laſt Party of Horſe entred into their Inventory the Pot hanging over the Fire; upon which the good Gentlewoman aſk'd them, whether they intended to enter the Beef and Pudding boiling in it for the Childrens Dinner? They ſaid, No, for they intended to eat that when their Buſineſs was over. Then ſhe ſaid, Pray Gentlemen be pleaſed to enter my Children among the reſt of my Goods. No (ſay they) we intend to leave them to you in lieu of your Fifths. And they were as good as their Words; for tho' there were ſeveral ſucceſſive Intruders, none of them paid her the Fifths according to the Ordinance of Parliament, excepting Mr. Thomas Philips, who took great Care conſtantly to pay them, and wherever Providence diſpoſed of them, he would find them out: And upon the King's being proclaimed, and before his Return, he ſent to Mr. Halls, and invited him to come and take Poſſeſſion of his Living. I the rather mention the latter Part of this Relation, for the great Rarity of it, and ſhould gladly have told the Story if Mr. Philips had in reality been (what the Abridgment would make him) an ejected Miniſter, but from this Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, p. 61.

Account it is plain he was not ſo, and what is more he alſo died in the actual Service of a conſiderable Cure at Elton.

The perpetual Advowſon of the Church of Morecot was purchaſed by William Halls, Clerk, Rector of Glaiſton in this County of Rutland, who at his Death deviſed the ſaid Advowſon to his Son William Halls of London, Citizen and Merchant-Taylor, who convey'd the ſame to John Savage, Clerk, the next Incumbent, his Heirs and Aſſigns for ever, in which Family it now is 1726.

The Chancellor againſt the King's keeping any ſtanding Forces.

Life of Lord Clarendon, prefix'd to the 2d Vol. of his poſthumous Pieces, 8vo. p. xxx.

After the Inſurrection of Venner and the Fifth-Monarchy Men, it was propoſed, that a Number of ſtanding Forces ſhould be continued to preſerve the King's Perſon, and quell any ſudden Tumults: But the ill Effects of this being too apparent, the Chancellour influenc'd the King to lay aſide any ſuch Deſign.

The King ſo little ſuſpected of Popery, that the moſt eminent Divines did clear him in their publick Sermons.

Printed for Will. Leake, 1661. 4to.

The King was hitherto ſo little ſuſpected of profeſſing Popery, that for ſome Years after ſeveral of the moſt eminent and honeſt Divines took Occaſion in their publick Sermons, to celebrate his Stedfaſtneſs in the Proteſtant Religion. Particularly the ingenious Dr. Waſhbourne in his Sermon publiſhed on the 29th of May 1661. ſpoke thus:

See the Victory of Truth for the Peace of the Church, to the King of Great-Britain to invite him to embrace the Roman Catholick Faith. By Monſieur de la Militiere, Counſellor in Ordinary to the King of France. With an Anſwer thereunto written by the Right Reverend John Bramhall, D. D. and Lord Biſhop of Londonderry. Corrected according to his Lordſhip's own Directions. Printed at the Hague 1654. 12o.

His Majeſty lived long in the Courts and Territories of Foreign Princes of different Religion from his, yet with Job he held faſt his Integrity, ſtood like a Coloſſus or Rock immoveable againſt all Surges of Temptations, that were raiſed to ſhake his Faith, to alter his Religion; witneſs the ſharp Aſſaults (as we have heard) of Monſieur Militiere and others he met with beyond Sea. Like Ulyſſes he bound himſelf to the Maſt of a well grounded Reſolution, that no Romiſh Syren could draw him out of the Ship of the Church of England, in which he was baptized and educated, tho' that Ship were like the other wherein Chriſt and his Diſciples ſailed, in all Appearance ready to ſink; when he had no Power viſible to defend himſelf, he would ſtill be the Defender of the Faith once delivered to the Saints, therein following the great Example of the beſt of Kings, his Royal Father, who to his Death maintained the Religion of the Church of England, and died a Martyr for the ſame.

Suſpicion of the Chancellor's Daughter Mrs. Anne Hyde being married to the Duke of York.

Memoirs of the E. of Shaftſbury in Mr. Lock, 8vo.

Soon after the Reſtauration of King Charles the Second, the Earl of Southampton and Sir Anthony-Aſhley Cooper having din'd together at the Chancellor's, as they were returning home, Sir A. ſaid to my Lord Southampton, yonder Mrs. Anne Hyde is certainly married to one of the Brothers: The Earl who was a Friend to the Chancellour, treated this as a Chimæra, and aſk'd him how ſo wild a Fancy could get into his Head? Aſſure yourſelf (replied he) it is ſo: A concealed Reſpect (however ſuppreſs'd) ſhew'd itſelf ſo plainly in the Looks, Voice and Manner wherewith her Mother carried to her, or offer'd her of every Diſh, that it's impoſſible but it muſt be ſo. My Lord S. who thought it a groundleſs Conceit then, was not long after convinc'd, by the Duke of York's owning of her, that Lord Aſhley was no bad Gueſſer.

The Duke makes a Declaration of his Marriage in Council.

Council Book.

Whitehall, Council-Board Feb. 18. 1660. This Declaration was made and ſign'd in Council:

I James Duke of York do teſtify and declare, that after I had for many Months ſolicited Anne my now Wife in the Way of Marriage, I was contracted to her on the 24th of November 1659. at Breda in Brabant, and after that Time, and many Months before I came into England, I lived with her (though with all poſſible Secrecy) as my Wife. And after my coming into this Kingdom, and that we might obſerve all that is enjoyned by the Church of England, I married her on the third of September in the Night between eleven and two at Worceſter-Houſe, my Chaplain Dr. Crowther performing that Office according as is directed by the Book of Common-Prayer, the Lord Oſſory being then preſent and giving her in Marriage. Of the Truth of all which I do take this my Corporal Oath this 18th of February 1660.

JAMES.

The like Declarations made by Anne Ducheſs, Joſeph Crowther, D. D. Thomas Boteler Lord Oſſory, and Ellen Stroud.

Biſhop Burnet*'s Account of this Match.*

Biſhop Burnet*'s Hiſtory, p.* 168.

The Chancellor knew nothing of the Matter.

And the Duke himſelf had been willing to diſown it.

The Earl of Clarendon's Daughter being with Child, and near her Time, called upon the Duke of York to own his Marriage with her. She had been Maid of Honour to the Princeſs Royal: And the Duke who was even to his old Age of an amorous Diſpoſition, tried to gain her to comply with his Deſires, ſhe managed the Matter with ſo much Addreſs, that in Concluſion he married her. Her Father did very ſolemnly proteſt, that he knew nothing of the Matter, till now that it broke out. The Duke thought to have ſhaken her from claiming it, by great Promiſes and as great Threatnings. But ſhe was a Woman of great Spirit. She ſaid ſhe was his Wife, and would have it known that ſhe was ſo, let him uſe her afterwards as he pleaſed. Many Diſcourſes were ſet about upon this Occaſion. But the King ordered ſome Biſhops and Judges to peruſe the Proofs ſhe had to produce; and they reported, that according to the Doctrine of the Goſpel, and the Law of England, it was a good Marriage. So it was not poſſible to break it, but by trying how far the Matter could be carried againſt her, for marrying a Perſon ſo near the King without his Leave. The King would not break with the Earl of Clarendon, and ſo he told his Brother, he muſt drink as he brewed, and live with her whom he had made his Wife. All the Earl of Clarendon's Enemies rejoiced at this: For they reckoned how much ſoever it ſeemed to raiſe him at preſent, yet it would raiſe Envy ſo high againſt him, and make the King ſo jealous of him, as being more in his Brother's Intereſt than in his own, that they look'd on it as that which would end in his Ruin. And he himſelf thought ſo, as his Son told me: For as ſoon as he knew of it, and when he ſaw his Son lifted up with it, he proteſted to him that he knew nothing of the Matter till it broke out; but added, that he looked on it, as that, which muſt be all their Ruin ſooner or later.

The Lord Clarendon*'s Enemies rejoic'd at it.*

And he himſelf foreſaw he ſhould ſuffer by it.

The Account of it given by my Lord Chancellor's Son the Earl of Rocheſter.

Earl of Rocheſter*'s Preface to the firſt Volume of Lord* Clarendon*'s Hiſtory, Fol. p.* xvii.

Many perhaps may not unreaſonably believe, that the Marriage of the Duke with the Daughter of the Chancellour might have been one great Occaſion, if not the Foundation of his Fall; and tho' it muſt be undoubtedly true, that this very unequal Alliance was brought to paſs entirely without the Knowledge or Privity of the Chancellour, but ſo much the contrary, that when the King at that Time made him more than ordinary Expreſſions of his Grace to him, with Aſſurances that this Accident ſhould not leſſen the Eſteem and Favour his Majeſty had for him; yet his own good Judgment made him immediately ſenſible, and declare it too, to thoſe he was intimate with, that this muſt certainly be the Occaſion of the Diminution of his Credit.

The Suggeſtions of ill-minded Men upon it.

When the Duke of York had made this Marriage, it was not unnatural for thoſe ill minded Men to ſuggeſt, that for the Time to come, that Miniſter would be contriving Advantages for the good of his own Poſterity, to the Prejudice of his Sovereign and Maſter. What their Wickedneſs poſſibly would have allow'd them to practiſe, was Ground enough to them, for an Accuſation of his Innocency.

It was true, that the Duke of York was become the Chancellor's Son in Law; and therefore they hop'd to be believ'd, when they ſaid, that to ſatisfy his Ambition, he would forfeit his Integrity, which, God knows, was not true.

Dr. George Leyburn, Preſident of Doway College, was charged by the Dean and Chapter of the Catholick Clergy in England, with having endeavoured to fix a Calumny on them at Rome. To which in his encyclical Epiſtle, 1661. 4to. he anſwers thus; I proteſt ſincerely, that it is ſo falſe, that as God knows beſt, I never had intent to brand the Chapter with Schiſm, or to inform againſt it at Rome. About this Time I reſolved to go to the Biſhop of London to aſk him for his Licenſe to preach in his Dioceſe. Some Brethren blamed me for it, as being an owning of prelatical Uſurpation. I told them that the King had given him a Power to ſuffer or hinder me, and if he had no Power at all, I might lawfully deſire any Man not to hinder me in my Duty; much more having Power as the Church Magiſtrate or Officer of the King: And though I was under no Neceſſity, I would not refuſe a lawful Thing, when Authority required it. The Biſhop received me with very great Expreſſions of Reſpect; and offered me his Licenſe, and would let his Secretary take no Money of me; but he offered me the Book to ſubſcribe in: I told him, that he knew that the King's Declaration exempted us from Subſcription: He bid me write what I would; I told him, that what I reſolved do, and I thought meet for him to expect, I would do of choice, though I might forbear. And ſo in Latin I ſubſcribed my Promiſe not to preach againſt the Doctrine of the Church, or the Ceremonies eſtabliſhed by Law, in his Dioceſe, while I uſed his Licenſe.

And that all Men may see somewhat more than of an ordinary Providence in Raising up his Highness to uphold the same Cause; —— it is observable that at or about that Juncture of Time, when the Devil put it into the Heart of divers Conspirators to plot to have cut off his late Highness, and to have blown up the Chapel at Whitehall; that then before the same came to Light, or that the same Conspirators were discovered; the Lord was pleased to reveal himself to a Servant of his, and did constrain him to declare, that the Lord would defend the late Lord Protector, and bless him against all Conspirators that should be raised against him, and raise up his Seed to succeed him in the Government. —— This is fulfilled as we see this Day, &c.

The Quakers in Trouble upon the late Insurrection of Venner, &c.

Journal of George Fox, Vol. I. p. 560.

After the Insurrection of the Fifth-Monarchy Men, great Havock was made both in City and Country. —— Margaret Fell went to the King and told him, what sad Work there was in the City, and in the Nation, and shewed him, that we were an innocent peaceable People, and that we must keep our Meetings as we used to do, whatever we suffer'd; but that it concerned him to see that Peace was kept, that so no innocent Blood might be shed.

Margaret Fell solicites the King.

Now were the Prisons every where fill'd with Friends and others in the City and Country, —— in the deep Sense I had of the grievous Sufferings Friends underwent, and of their Innocency towards God and Man, I was moved to send the following Epistle to them, as a Word of Consolation, and to put them upon sending up their Sufferings.

And George Fox sends an Epistle to Friends.

My dear Friends,

In the immortal Seed of God, which will plead its own Innocency, who be Inheritors of an everlasting Kingdom that is incorruptible, and of a World and Riches that fade not away, &c. concluding, Friends, your Sufferings all that are or have been of late in Prison, I would have you send up an Account of them, and how Things are amongst you; that it may be delivered to the King and his Council; for Things are pretty well here after the Storm.

Biſhop Morley choſen to be ſpiritual Guide to the Ducheſs of York,

Having been her firſt Inſtructor in Religion.

She continued a zealous Proteſtant 'till after her Father's Baniſhment:

And very exemplary in publick and private Devotions.

And before the Sacrament made voluntary Confeſſions,

And received Abſolution.

Her great Charity to the Poor.

Biſhop Morley's Preface to his ſeveral Treatiſes publiſhed in 1682. 4to.

I was choſen by the Ducheſs of York, as ſoon as ſhe was owned to be ſo (ſaith Biſhop Morley) to be her ſpiritual Director and Guide, in thoſe Things that concerned her ſpiritual and everlaſting Condition; and the Reaſon why ſhe made Choice of me to be ſo, rather than any other of my Order was, becauſe ſhe knew me better, and becauſe I had been her firſt Inſtructor in Matters of Religion many Years before. In this Relation of mine to the Ducheſs I continued until after her Father's Baniſhment, and all that Time I muſt bear her Witneſs, that ſhe was not only a zealous Proteſtant herſelf, according as it is by Law eſtabliſhed in the Church of England, but zealous to make Proteſtants, as appears by what ſhe did for that counterfeit pretended Convert Macedo (whom the 'foreſaid Libeller Maimbourg magnifies ſo much, though he knows he proved himſelf to be an arrant Impoſtor and profligated Wretch) and in her own Deportment as devout and charitable as ever I knew any of her Age and Sex: Inſomuch, as that beſides her private Prayers Morning and Evening, which ſhe never omitted, ſhe daily and duly obſerved the Canonical Hours of the Publick Service of God in her Chapel with thoſe of her Family. Neither did ſhe ever (as long as I was with her) omit the Receiving of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper once every Month at leaſt, beſides that of ſolemn Feſtivals when ſhe always received with the King in the Chapel Royal: And always the Day before ſhe received, ſhe made a voluntary Confeſſion of what ſhe thought ſhe had offended God in, either by Omiſſion or by Commiſſion, profeſſing her Sorrow for it, and promiſing Amendment of it, and then kneeling down ſhe deſired and received Abſolution, in the Form and Words preſcribed by our Church. This for her Devotion: And as for Charity, ſhe did every Time ſhe received the Sacrament, beſides five Pounds in Gold ſhe gave at the Altar, ſhe gave me twenty Pounds to give to ſuch as I thought had moſt need of it, and did beſt deſerve it. This was her ordinary and conſtant Way of expreſſing her Charity. But that which ſhe did at other Times, and upon extraordinary Occaſions, I believe was very much more, eſpecially in the Time of the great Plague. To conclude, I remember ſhe told the late Archbiſhop of Canterbury [Sheldon] and me, when we were both together with her, that if ſhe did not as much in Point of Charity, as was fit for her to do, it ſhould be his Fault and mine, and not her's.

Dr. Leyburne's Anſwer to the Dean and Chapter of the Catholick Clergy in England.

Epiſt. Ded. To her moſt excellent Majeſty Henrietta Maria Queen of Great-Britain

Dr. Leyburne's Apology.

Madam;

—— After the Example of the moſt illuſtrious Prelate St. Athanaſius, I have thought it expedient to preſent to your ſacred Majeſty an Apology of the like Nature, that is my own Defence, in Anſwer to an Army of Affronts and Calumnies, which a wanton Scholar and his Adherents have caſt upon me. —— I was the firſt Engliſh Prieſt that was ſworn of your Majeſty's Chapel. —— If the Defence ſhall appear guilty of falſe Dealing, then I will ceaſe from playing the Apologer, and become an humble Petitioner, that my Name may be for ever blotted out of the Liſt of your Majeſty's Servants, and myſelf bear the infamous Brand to all Poſterity of Being, as my Adverſaries endeavour to make me a very Rogue. ——

He was the firſt Engliſh Prieſt that was ſworn of her Chapel.

The Romiſh Prieſts endeavoured to make him a very Rogue.

Edward Cotton, M. A. of Chriſt-Church, now Archdeacon of Cornwall in the Place of Dr. Robert Hall, was created Doctor of Divinity at Oxford, March 1. 1660. and on the ſame Day James Stermont, a Dutch Divine was diplomated by Virtue of the Chancellor's Letters running thus:

Ath. Oxon. Vol. II. and MS. Papers.

Mr. Vicechancellor and Gentlemen,

Whilſt his Majeſty was in the Parts beyond the Seas, he had good Evidence of the Affections of Mr. James Stermont, Miniſter at the Hague in Holland, who has a great Repute for Piety and Learning with thoſe among whom he lives; and by the Affections he has declar'd to the Church and Crown of England, deſerves the Acknowledgments of all who wiſh well to either. That he may not therefore want a particular Mark of Reſpect and Favour from us, I do recommend him to you, to be preſented and admitted to the Degree of Doctor in Divinity, and deſire you to ſend him a Diploma of his Creation, by which you will oblige,

Mr. Vicechancellor and Gentlemen,

Dean of Peterborough's Anſwer to the Petition of Alexander Blake, before the Commiſſioners for Sale of Church Lands.

Orig. Papers.

March 2. 1660. The Anſwer of Edward Rainbow, Dean of Peterborough to the Petition of Alexander Blake.

They are kept out of their Houſes, and ſo diſperſed that they cannot meet in Chapter.

Complaining that he is ſtill kept out of the Dean's Houſe by the Petitioner, and the Prebends out of their Houſes by other pretended Purchaſers, and thereby they are prevented from making their Reſidence at Peterborough, being ſo diſperſed in ſeveral Places that he, this Reſpondent, hath not yet had an Opportunity to ſummon them to meet in a Chapter to give their joint Anſwer to the ſeveral Allegations in the ſaid Petition.— He further ſaith, that the Petitioner hath not been reſident at the Dean's Houſe ſince September laſt, from whence having removed his Goods, and put in two or three old Almſwomen to keep Poſſeſſion thereof, the ſame is not only thereby expoſed to fall into Decay, but this Reſpondent is by that means prevented from the Diſcharge of his Duty in Reſidence there.—— Therefore humbly prayeth, that your Honours will be pleaſed either to order the Petitioner to give up to the Reſpondent the ſpeedy Poſſeſſion of the Dean's Houſe and Orchard, and to reſtrain him from committing any Waſte thereupon, or elſe that this Reſpondent may be left at Liberty to take his legal Courſe againſt him in that Behalf.

Anſwer of Dr. John Coſin, late Dean of Peterborough, now Biſhop of Durham.

The Anſwer of the Biſhop of Durham, late Dean of Peterborough, to the Petition of John Barker, exhibited to the Right Honourable the Lords and other his Majeſty's Commiſſioners authorized for the Examination of Sales.

Returning from a long Exile.

At Deſire of the Tenants, he had held a Chapter.

The Biſhop for as much as he is concerned in the ſaid Petition anſwereth and ſaith, that in the Beginning of June laſt upon his Return from a long Exile into this Kingdom, he was earneſtly invited and preſſed by ſeveral Tenants heretofore belonging to the Cathedral Church of Peterborough, (where he had then been Dean twenty Years) to repair unto that Church, and there to hold a Chapter for the renewing of their Leaſes which were then expired.

2. Whereupon he ſummoned a Chapter by the Advice whereof he might both reduce the diſturbed Condition of that Church into due Order, and ſatiſfy the ſaid Tenants in their Requeſt that they had ſo inſtantly made to him: And by the Officers of the Church, he cauſed competent Notice to be given unto divers other Tenants at their ſeveral Farms, that if they pleaſed they might repair unto the ſaid Chapter appointed to be kept towards the End of July next, and there take new Leaſes of their reſpective Tenements.

The Manor of Fiſkerton, &c.

The old Tenant being dead, and

3. Among others the Manor of Fiſkerton near Lincoln being then void, and in the Hands of the ſaid Dean and Chapter to Lett, by the Expiration of a long Leaſe for 121 Years thereof, formerly made unto one Peter Aſhton, who though he had many Ways in Times paſt oppoſed the Rights of the ſaid Dean and Chapter there, yet were they willing to continue him in their Tenant, and for that End ſent a Meſſenger of purpoſe to warn him or the Tenants that claim'd under him, to come unto the ſaid Chapter for the renewing of the ſaid Leaſe if he or they would be Suitors for it: An Anſwer was returned, that the ſaid Aſhton was dead, and that neither his Brother nor any Perſon elſe relating to him would come in to treat for that Leaſe, but left it free for the ſaid Dean and Chapter to diſpoſe of it, as they thought meet to any other Perſon.

Barker laying no Claim.

4. In the mean while the Petitioner Barker, who was not at all known to the Dean and Chapter, made no manner of Demand or Application to them either by himſelf or others.

Leaſed to Sir Gilbert Gerrard.

5. Thereupon the ſaid Dean and Chapter admitted Sir Gilbert Gerrard, Bart. (a Perſon who had given many Teſtimonies of his true Loyalty and Service to the King's Majeſty) to contract with them for a Leaſe of the ſaid Manor of Fiſkerton; and for a valuable Conſideration and Fine to them paid, and by them allotted and diſtributed (partly to the Reparation of the Cathedral and Pariſh Churches of Peterborough, partly to a numerous Company of poor Perſons there, and partly to the Members and Officers of their Church with a ſmall Dividend to themſelves) they did by Indenture of Leaſe under their Chapter and Common Seal, dated the firſt Day of Auguſt laſt, demiſe the ſaid Manor of Fiſkerton to John Crew, Eſq; John Delavall, Eſq; and Richard Forder, Gent. to hold the ſame under the ancient yearly Rent of 40*l.* (not 70*l.* as the Petitioner ſuggeſteth) for the Term of 21 Years in Truſt for the ſaid Sir Gilbert Gerrard, his Wife and their younger Children.

6. The

Barker only a pretended Purchaſer over the old Tenant's Head.

6. The ſaid Biſhop further anſwereth, that the Petitioner Barker was never known to him to have been in any Service or Trouble for his late Majeſty, nor that he did become Purchaſer of the Premiſſes upon any ſuch Reaſon as he alledgeth in his Petition, but purchaſed the ſame (as this Reſpondent and the ſaid Chapter hath Reaſon to conceive and believe) out of mere Deſign of Gain and Lucre, having never before any Intereſt therein but purchaſing over the old Tenant's Head, whoſe legal Poſſeſſion of the ſaid Manor he diſturbed, and violently ſeized and detained the ſame by the Space of a Year and a half, before the ſaid Leaſe expired.

7. That this Reſpondent knoweth not what the Petitioner paid for the Purchaſe of the Premiſſes, but believeth that he paid a great Part thereof in Bills which coſt little in ready Money; and which ready Money this Reſpondent conceiveth to be ſince fully repaid the Petitioner by the Rents and Profits which he hath received from the Premiſſes.

8. That there is a Leaſe of Lives yet in Being in the Wood Ground of Fiſkerton aforeſaid in the Petition mention'd, which is more than the Moiety of the Petitioner's pretended Purchaſe, or rather double as much; which ſaid Eſtate the Tenant thereof would have renewed whilſt this Reſpondent, now Biſhop of Dureſme, was Dean as aforeſaid, but he did not make any Grant thereof, reſolving to leave the ſame to his Succeſſor, which he hath accordingly done. And the ſaid Manor, and the Copyhold Tenements and Royalties thereunto belonging, are yet in the Hands of the Dean and Chapter unleaſed.

9. That ſince his Majeſty's happy Reſtauration, the ſaid Dean and Chapter by their Officers keeping Court in and for the ſaid Manor, the Petitioner in Oppoſition of their Right and Title thereunto, did forbid the under Tenants to appear at the ſame, and kept a pretended Court therein in his own Name.

Dr Leyburn's Encycl. Epiſt. 4to. 1661. p. 60.

Mr. Thomas White alias Blackloe, a Romiſh Prieſt, and great Supporter of the Dean and Chapter of the Catholick Clergy in England, was charg'd by one of his Brethren Dr. George Leyburne, Preſident of Doway College with a groſs Cheat and Embezzlement of publick Money in theſe Words:

In the Buſineſs of erecting a College or Community at Paris for controverſial Divinity.

As a Counterpart to Chelſea College, about the ſame Time erected near London for a Seminary of controverſial Writers and Diſputants againſt Popery.

Our laſt Biſhop about fifty five Years ago, prevail'd with an honourable Perſon his Friend, to beſtow a Sum of Money unto the erecting and maintaining of a little Community in the Town of Paris, which might conſiſt of ſuch Clergy-men as their Superior ſhould judge fit and proper for the End the Erection was intended, to wit, for the keeping a continual Succeſſion of able Scholars as to poſitive, ſcholaſtical and polemical Theology eſpecially, Knowledge in Controverſies being thought neceſſary unto reſiſting the Enemies of Catholick Religion. To the advancing of ſo good a Work, the moſt reverend and illuſtrious Abbot of

The State of it was the College of Arras.

The Fund of Money first delivered to Mr. Colleton, then to Mr. Hammon, and lastly to Mr. Blackloe, who never employ'd one Penny of it that Way,

But kept it to himself.

Of which Injustice Complaint has been made without Redress.

He only saith he will leave it to the Clergy;

And yet is intrusted with another Fund.

of Arras lent our Clergy a small College built in the said Town of Paris pertaining to his Monastery, and therefore called the College of Arras. The Money procured for the Entertainment of this Community was delivered into the Hands of Mr. John Colleton, to whom the Trust was committed; but he in regard of his Imprisonment thought fit to recommend the Trust and Management of the said Fund unto Mr. John Hammon, who about the Year 1640. entrusted Mr. Blackloe with it, who hath never employed one Penny of it for the End the Fund was erected. The Rents that maintained constantly afore a Community of some five prime Clergymen (and indeed two Bishops and two Deans were of Arras College Community) now entertain Mr. Blackloe in poor Cloathing. Of this Mr. Blackloe's unjust Dealing, at my last being at London, I complain'd to Mr. Curtis that receives the Rents, and told him plainly, that it was a mighty Shame to our Clergy to suffer or countenance such an unworthy, scandalous, and unjust Proceeding. To which Mr. Curtis replyed, saying, But how can we help it? Mr. Blackloe is entrusted with the Money; we cannot take it from him, but he says, that he will leave it to the Clergy. Besides saith Mr. Curtis, Mr. Blackloe hath given to Lisbon one hundred Pounds, and allows the Dean Dr. Ellis thirty Pounds yearly; and twenty Pounds yearly to Mr. Robert Worsley out of the Rents of another Fund left by Dr. Boswell, and wherewith Mr. Blackloe is also entrusted. What I have herein set down in relation to the Fund of Arras College, I protest sincerely I heard from Mr. Collington's own Mouth, from my Lord Bishop, from Dr Kellison, and Dr. Lovell. I myself with Mr. Fitton, Dr. Blundston, Mr. Ireland, and Dr. Reyners were entertained in Arras College, and maintained with the Rents thereof.

A Sermon preached before his Majesty at Whitehall, March 9. 1661. on 1 Pet. ii. 25. By Benjamin [Laney] Lord Bishop of Peterborough.

A farther Account of the Duchess of York given by Bishop Morley.

Bp. Morley's Preface to his several Treatises, 1683. 4to.

Account given of the Duchess of York by her Tutor Bishop Morley.

—— I confess myself to have been one and the chief of those of my Order and Profession, that had relation to her Highness; having long before she was exalted to that heighth of Dignity and Greatness bred her up from her very Childhood almost (whilst we were abroad) in the Fundamentals of the Christian Doctrine and Religion, as it is professed and by Law established in the Church of England.

Strictly bred a Protestant, according to the Church of England.

Dr. Morley officiating at Antwerp in all the Offices of our Religion.

For though we were then in Antwerp, where no Religion but that of Rome is either professed or tolerated; yet there I read the Divine Service of our Church twice a Day at the Canonical Hours, and celebrated the Sacrament of the Eucharist once a Month, admitting thereunto, as well as to our daily Prayers, as many of our Protestant Countrey-men, as were willing to communicate with us, as Sir John Shaw and his Family, and sometimes the Duke of Newcastle and his Family did also, besides divers others. I did there likewise bury the Dead, and baptize Children according to the Form prescribed in our Liturgy, as often as I was desired to do so, which was indeed but seldom, and when I did it, it was privately in the House where the Child to be baptized was born, and where the Party died that was to be buried. And thus I buried Mr. Mungo Murrey, a Gentleman of Quality, and one of the King's Servants, reading the Office of Burial prescribed by our Church, and using all the Formalities required by that Office; the Earl of Dysart, a Countryman and Kinsman of the Deceased, assisting amongst others at the Solemnity. After which being done in the House where he died, the Body was at Midnight conveyed to a poor Cloister, and there interred, as the Bodies of other Protestants that died there were also; which was a Favour easily and usually obtained for a little Money. But besides this, I did once a Week at least, catechise the whole Family wherein I lived, which was that of Sir Edward Hyde, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Ambassador in Spain, Father to the Duchess, whom together with her three Brethren (of whom the two eldest are yet living, and who can (I doubt not but will) attest what I say to be true; I did especially endeavour to instruct in the Principles of Christian Doctrine and Practice, as they are taught in our Church-Catechism, to the End that being well grounded in the Fundamentals of the Protestant Religion, as it is taught and professed in our Church, they might not easily be seduced, either to Popery, or to any other Heresy, whilst they were abroad; or to Presbytery, or to any other Schismatical Sect, when they came home, the Duchess, as she was the eldest, so was the forwardest, and most capable to receive Instruction; for God having given her an extraordinary good Understanding, for one one of her Sex and Years. So he had given her an extraordinary good Inclination likewiſe to the Exerciſes of Piety and Devotion: So that when ſhe was not (as I remember) above twelve Years of Age, I did think her to be every Way fit to be admitted to the receiving the holy Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper; which ſhe did then, and always afterwards, with very great Devotion, as long as ſhe and I ſtaid together in her Father's Houſe at Antwerp, which I think was about three or four Years, from whence, as ſhe went to wait upon the Princeſs Royal at the Hague, ſo did I to wait upon the Queen of Bohemia.

And ſhe admitted to the Holy Sacrament at 12 Years of Age, being then extraordinary for good Underſtanding and good Inclination.

To the Right Honourable the Lords and others of his Majeſty's Commiſſioners to examine the late Sale of Crown and Church Lands.

Anſwer of the Dean of Peterborough to a Petition of Alexander Blake, Purchaſer of the Dean's Houſe, &c.

The Humble Anſwer of Edward Rainbow Doctor of Divinity, the preſent Dean of the Cathedral Church of Peterborough, to the Petition of Alexander Blake Purchaſer of the Dean's Houſe of Peterborough, and two Cloſes of Paſture Ground belonging to the Prebends there, as alſo of a Wood called Caſtor-Hanglands, Parcell of the Poſſeſſion of the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough,

Who ſaith,

That he is ſtill kept out of Poſſeſſion —— &c. And ſheweth, That in Obedience to your ſaid Order of Saturday, Febr. 9, 1660. the ſaid Dean and Prebends have hitherto expected the Petitioner, Alexander Blake, to treat with him touching the Grounds of his Petition, but having not hitherto heard any thing of him more than the Delivery of a Copy of the ſaid Order, unatteſted by any other than himſelf, they do now as to the Matter and Fact certify as followeth:

Blake a great Enemy to the Royal Intereſt.

And firſt in general, touching the ſaid Mr. Blake, they do humbly refer it to the honourable Commiſſioners, whether the ſaid Mr. Blake be capable of his Majeſty's Grace intended to his good and loyal Subjects by the ſaid Commiſſion, in regard the ſaid Mr. Blake hath during the whole War, and eſpecially ſince the Death of the late King his Majeſty's Father of bleſſed Memory, purſued the late War with all imaginable Violence and Rancour, more particularly at the Battle of Worceſter, where the ſaid Mr. Blake did expreſs much particular Malice againſt his preſent Majeſty, and hath ſince that Time continued to expreſs his ſaid Violence upon all Occaſions: And particularly hath ſince that Time been a Decimator under Major-General Butler, impriſoning divers of his Majeſty's loyal Subjects; was a High-Court of Juſtice Man in the County of Norfolk; and at ſuch Time as the Inhabitants of the City of Peterburgh, with the neighbouring Parts, were aſſembled to make an Addreſs to his Excellency General Monk concerning a free Parliament, in order to the Re-calling of his ſacred Majeſty, he the ſaid Mr. Blake did oppoſe the Deſign, threatning and intimidating the People with Sequeſtration, ſaying, it was a Cavalier Deſign, that it had a King at the Bottom of it, and that he would fight to keep out the King as long as he could; beſides many other virulent Expreſſions of his Malice againſt his Majeſty, which they doubt not to prove, if it be required.

They had let Caſtor Hanglands to Mr. Chace, as in Juſtice bound.

And as to the Matters by him deſired in his Petition they further certify, that as to the Wood commonly called Caſtor Hanglands, the Dean and Chapter granted a Leaſe of the ſaid Wood to one Mr. Chace, then his Majeſty's Apothecary, Anno 1642. upon Conſideration of about eight hundred Pounds; and the ſaid Mr. Chace being outed by the Petitioner and other Purchaſers of the ſaid Wood, and not having hitherto (nor any claiming under him) received any Benefit of the ſaid Leaſe, theſe Certificants do acknowledge, that at a Chapter holden by the then Dean and Chapter in Auguſt laſt a new Leaſe was granted gratis (upon the ſaid Conſiderations) to the Son of the ſaid Mr. Chace, as the then Dean and Chapter conceived themſelves bound in Juſtice to do.

As touching the Dean's Houſe named in the Petition, they do further certify your Honours, that at the ſame Time when the ſaid Houſe was purchaſed by the Petitioner it was in good and ſufficient Repair, being ſo left by the then Dean Dr. Coſin, now Lord Biſhop of Durham, and his Children continued in Poſſeſſion thereof, together with Mr. Humphrey Auſtin, one of the Quire, who had the Charge of the ſaid Children, until they were turned out by the Petitioner.

The Purchaſer had built a Maulting,

And as touching the Charge of Building by the Petitioner alledg'd, they certify that it appears by the Petition to conſiſt in two Particulars; the one a Maulting, which in regard it is within the Cloſe, and not above forty Yards diſtant from the Cathedral Church, they conceive it to be an Annoyance to the Church and no way beneficial to the Dean, more than the Building which formerly ſtood in the ſame Place, and was demoliſhed by the Petitioner, the Materials thereof being employ'd in the ſaid Building. The other being the Fence Walls mentioned in the Petition, they ſay, that as touching the ſame, the ſame Walls encloſing the Orchard in the Petition mentioned on the Eaſt, Weſt, and North were anciently ſtanding Time out of Mind, and that Wall on the South only erected by the Petitioner, built ſo that in the Erecting thereof he encroach'd upon the Church-yard of the ſaid Cathedral Church ſo far, that in the laying of the Foundation of the ſaid Wall, the Bones of divers dead Bodies were digg'd up and expoſed.

And had encroached on the Church-yard.

And as touching the two Cloſes mentioned in the Petition, that the ſaid Cloſes are ſo far from any ſuch Improvement as the Petitioner pretends, that there is no Improvement at all, but that they were of as good yearly Value when they were first purchased by the Petitioner as they are now. And besides, that the ſaid two Cloſes are of abſolute Neceſſity for the Uſe of the ſaid Prebendaries, they having not the Conveniency of any other Grounds for the keeping of each his Horſe, or a Couple of Cows.

The Closes necessary for the Prebendaries.

All which is nevertheleſs humbly ſubmitted to your Honours further Conſideration.

The legal Incumbents ſequeſtred in the late Times had not the Fifths duly paid to them,

Some intruding Miniſters, obliged by Law to give Place to the legal Incumbents formerly ſequeſtred, did complain, that ſome of them while in Poſſeſſion had paid the Fifths to their Predeceſſors, and yet now had no Allowance made to them and their Families: Upon which a Writer thus argued;

Though they ſpent their All in ſoliciting and ſueing for them.

Author of the Friendly Debate.

Was there not a fifth Part allowed for the Maintenance of the Wife and Children of thoſe Miniſters that were formerly ejected? No truly, it was only voted, but ſeldom allowed. Biſhop Hall's Wife could not obtain it, and others alſo not only went without that Allowance, but had better been without the Vote too; which coſt them dear, and proved the greateſt Cruelty: For they ſpent what they had left for a feeble Support, in ſueing for that which they could never get; and ſometime even that which was lent by their Friends was thrown away by this Means after that which was taken from them. Hear the Hiſtory of the Engliſh and Scotch Preſbytery, written in French by a Divine of the Reformed Church, tranſlated 1659. There is indeed (ſaith he) an Ordinance of Parliament that the Wives and Children of ejected Miniſters ſhould have the fifth Part of the Revenues of their Benefices, but it is very ill obſerved. For the new Incumbents refuſe to obey the Ordinance, conſtraining them to appear before Judges their Adverſaries, who inſtead of ſpeedily relieving them, delay them with length of Time, and make them to conſume in Suits that which they borrowed to plead their Cauſe. By this Expence and Delays theſe poor deſolate Perſons are conſtrained to deſiſt their Proſecution; and many being ejected out of ſmall Benefices, dare not preſent their Petitions for the Fifths, becauſe the Expences will amount higher than the Principal.

And confeſſed by Mr. Fuller.

Church Hiſt. B. II. p. 228.

Look into the Hiſtorian, Mr. Fuller, who was none of the rigid Sons of the Church, and he will inform you more diſtinctly, that though the Parliament ordered in the Year 1644. that their Commiſſioners in the Country ſhould appoint Means (not exceeding a fifth Part) to the Wives and Children of ſequeſtred Perſons, yet Clergy-men not being expreſſed by Name, they that enjoy'd the Sequeſtrations refuſed to contribute to them. The Complaints of this begat a new Order of the Houſe of Commons, Die Jovis 11 Novemb. 1647. That the Wives and Children of Clergy-men ſhould be comprehended within the Ordinance that allowed the fifth Part for Wives and Children. But Covetouſneſs (as he obſerves) found many little Holes to wriggle out at: For if a Miniſter had a Wife without Children, or Children without a Wife, or but one Child, they denied them Payment. Six other Evaſions beſides theſe, he there relates, to which I refer the Reader, by which the Intention of the Parliament was eluded, and moſt of the poor Souls who were in Want, received no Benefit of that Ordinance, but rather a great deal of Miſchief, while they were ſhuffled off with litigious and crafty Tricks, and oppreſſed with Charges, when they came to demand that ſmall Alms which was granted them out of their Huſbands Eſtates.

How baſely they prevaricated and evaded the Payment of them.

The Lord Chancellour recommending Sir Heneage Finch to the Univerſity of Oxford.

MS. Oxon.

A Letter of the Lord Chancellour Clarendon to the Univerſity of Oxford, recommending Sir Heneage Finch Solicitor General to be elected one of their Burgeſſes in the enſuing Parliament.

Mr. Vice-Chancellour and Gentlemen,

If I do at any Time recommend any thing to you, which upon your Obſervation and Experience you conceive would be prejudicial to the Univerſity, I do conjure you to advertiſe me of thoſe your Apprehenſions, without endeavouring to execute what I deſire: And I do aſſure you, that as I hold it a very great Honour to be choſen by you to be your Chancellour, ſo I would not continue that Truſt an Hour, if I had not ſome reaſonable Hope of being able to do you Service, as well as the Conſcience of exceedingly deſiring to do it: And I hold it a Part of my Truſt to uſe all poſſible Endeavours to increaſe the Number of your Friends, and to leſſen the Power of thoſe, who by the Folly and Wickedneſs of the late ill Times have contracted a Prejudice to Learning and learned Men.

Accordingly on the firſt of April, 1661. the Election of Burgeſſes for the Univerſity of Oxon. fell on Lawrence Hyde, Eſq; Son of the Chancellour, and Heneage Finch, Eſq; Solicitor-General.

It having pleaſed his Majeſty to ſummon a Parliament to meet at Weſtminſter on the eighth of May next, it will concern the Univerſity to be well repreſented there, by Perſons of great and eminent Ability, as well as of great Affection and Zeal to ſerve you. And upon this Conſideration, I think I do but my Duty, when I do very heartily recommend my good Friend Sir Heneage Finch, Knight and Baronet, his Majeſty's Solicitor-General, to be choſen by you for one of your Burgeſſes, being a Perſon who hath had his Education among you, and hath ſince upon all Occaſions deſerv'd ſo well of the Common-wealth of Learning, and will without doubt diſcharge this Truſt, if you pleaſe to depute him to it, with great Fruit and Advantage to you. And I cannot be without a Confidence, that while I recommend nothing to you, but what is good for yourſelves, you will continue the ſame Kindneſs to me, which you have always practiſed to my Predeceſſors, and by which you will very much oblige,

Mr. Vice-Chancellour and Gentlemen,

King Charles would marry a Proteſtant Princeſs, and that if neither a Daughter of Saxony nor of Denmark would pleaſe him, he might have ——

The King's Match with Portugal imputed to the Management of Chancellour Hyde.

At this Time France had in a manner abandoned the Portugueze —— inſomuch that it ſeemed the moſt expedient Courſe for Portugal to enter into a ſtrict Alliance with England. The Portugueze in this Conjuncture rightly conſidered, that a baniſh'd King returning to take Poſſeſſion of his Dominions would have need of Money, to reward ſuch as had done him Service; with which if they would ſupply him, it would be very eaſy for him to aſſiſt them with Men and Ships. Wherefore the Marquis of Sandes propoſed to the King to marry the Infanta of Portugal, putting him in Hopes of ſome Millions of Money with her; and he ſo manag'd Matters, that by the Means of Chancellour Hyde he perſuaded the King in Spite of all the Oppoſition of the Spaniards. —— This Matter was debated in the King's Council, where it was agreed, that ſeeing the Spaniards would undoubtedly fail in their Promiſes touching the Marriage, it was moſt expedient to embrace the Propoſals of Portugal, who with the Infanta would give the Town of Tangier in Africk, and that of Bombay in the Eaſt-Indies, with three Millions of Livres, and Jewels to a great Value. —— Thoſe who with impartial Eyes look'd on theſe Intrigues could not but admire, that a Proteſtant Chancellour ſhould perſuade the King his Maſter to eſpouſe a Catholick Princeſs, when at the ſame Time a Catholick King propoſed to that King a Proteſtant Conſort.

Lord Rocheſter's Preface to Lord Clarend. Hiſt. Fol. Vol. I. p. 18.

The King was not bleſſed with any Children from his Marriage; an inevitable Crime laid upon the Chancellour. For becauſe it was true, that there were Children from one Marriage and not from the other, it was ſuggeſted that both Marriages had been ſo contrived by the Chancellour: Though the King knew very well, that his own Marriage had not been firſt projected or propoſed by the Chancellour; and that he had often told his Majeſty, what Suſpicions there were in the World, that that great and virtuous Princeſs might prove unfruitful.

Account of the Match from a MS. of Sir Robert Southwell.

Mr. Echard, Charles II. p. 81. Fol.

Cardinal Mazarin had outwitted the Marquis de Haro in the late Pyrenean Treaty,

By leaving Spain in War with Portugal, and promiſing to give no Aſſiſtance to Portugal;

Which Faith was ſoon broken.

Account given of the Steps and Progreſs in this Match from a Manuſcript of Sir Robert Southwell, an intimate Friend to the great Duke of Ormond, and from ſome other Intimations of unqueſtionable Veracity. The Occaſion and Root of this Marriage ſprung from the famous Pyrenean Treaty in 1659. concluded by the two great Miniſters of France and Spain, Cardinal Mazarin, and Don Lewis de Haro; in which the former gain'd ſo much the Advantage of the latter, as to bring it ſo about, that his Enemy ſhould leave him in Peace, and he his Enemy in War. This War was with Portugal, which Spain now hop'd to recover, after near twenty Years Revolt; ſince France promis'd not to meddle directly or indirectly in the Affairs of that Kingdom, or give the leaſt Aſſiſtance either by Sea or Land. Though this Agreement was very unfaithfully obſerv'd by the Cardinal, yet the very Name of it gave Terrour to the Portugueze, and his Eminence was willing to excite them to look out for other Help at preſent, that he might the more privately relieve them. This had its Effect, for Don Franciſco de Mello, afterward Marquis de Sandy, being their Ambaſſadour in England, ſo induſtriouſly apply'd himſelf to the Powers then uppermoſt, as that the Council of State did actually ſign with him a Treaty for the Poſture of Defence of Portugal, as appears in the Paper Office at Whitehall.

The Portugal Ambaſſadour had applied to England for Aſſiſtance;

Which was promiſed by the Council of State,

And encouraged by General Monk, &c.

To whom the Portugal Ambaſſadour firſt propoſed an Alliance and Marriage,

Upon great Terms for the King of England.

But General Monk coming in this Juncture to London, and superſeding all before him, the ſaid Ambaſſadour as diligently apply'd to him for his Aſſiſtance, and began with diſcovering a moſt uſeful Secret, "That the Spaniards had reſolv'd, if the King was call'd home, to detain him at Bruſſels, 'till he ſhould "deliver up Dunkirk and Jamaica;" this cauſing his Majeſty's ſudden Removal to Breda, where he was out of the Power of Spain. De Mello proceeded to other Matters with the General, and propoſed a new Alliance, a Marriage between the King and the Infanta of Portugal. He then inſiſted, "That this Match "would be the moſt advantagious to England of any in Chriſtendom, ſince be"ſides the greateſt Portion in Money that ever Queen had, the Infanta was to "bring with her Tangier, which would make the Engliſh Maſters of the Trade "in the Mediterranean; and Bombaim which would give them the like Advan"tage in the Eaſt-Indies; and over and above would ſerve to humble the proud "Spaniard; which the General, according to the Notions he imbibed in his "younger Days, thought to be the greateſt Advantage of all.

Theſe Propoſals agreeable to General Monk.

The Affair was negotiated between Mr. Morrice, ſoon after Secretary of State, and Mr. Ruſſel an Engliſh Roman Prieſt, afterward a Biſhop in Portugal.

Theſe ſpecious Propoſals were very acceptable to the General; who taking all theſe Things in their full Extent, and eſpecially conſidering, that nothing was at preſent deſired but Forces, and that hereby the moſt mutinous of thoſe Regiments bred up by Cromwell, might be ſent away, and the Peace of the Nation he had undertaken ſecured, he entirely clos'd with what was offer'd. This Affair was negotiated between Mr. Morrice, then in moſt Confidence with the General, and Mr. Ruſſel a Prieſt, then Engliſh Secretary and Interpreter to the ſaid Ambaſſadour. And no ſooner did his Majeſty land in England, but the General offer'd him this Marriage Propoſal, which coming from one now reverenc'd as his Reſtorer, it was immediately embrac'd and purſued.

Cardinal Mazarin encouraged the Match, when his own Niece had been refuſed by King Charles II.

When it was once well ſet on Foot, it was highly encourag'd by ſuch as were Enemies to Spain, and by ſome who really thought the Power of that Monarchy ſtill too exorbitant; but what was further remarkable, Cardinal Mazarine, always fertile in Expedients, was a particular Promoter and Actor in it; which cauſed him to ſend over the Queen Mother to countenance the Treaty in England land, if the Propoſal concerning his Niece ſhould be ineffectual, as it ſoon proved. In ſumme, the Portugal Intereſt was ſo puſh'd forward, that France engag'd to eaſe the Engliſh Tranſport Charge of the Forces that were deſir'd; and promiſed two hundred thouſand Crowns, as ſoon as the Treaty ſhould be ſign'd and ratified, and before thoſe Forces could be ready to embark; and though Mazarine died within this Month of March, yet was his Undertaking punctually obſerv'd by his Succeſſor Monſieur Colbert. Yet after all this Induſtry, this Marriage Treaty in its Progreſs met with ſuch Obſtacles, that it was not concluded and ſign'd 'till 23^d of June 1661.

The great Obſtacle was the Lord Chancellour Hyde, who oppos'd the Match, Biſhop Burnet.

One conſiderable Obſtacle was the Lord Chancellour Hyde, without whoſe Knowledge this Treaty was begun, and without his Approbation it was concluded; therefore he endeavoured to overthrow it, while it continued in any Balance. It is true, he did for ſome Time come in to the general Meaſures then on Foot, 'till he made ſome Diſcovery of the probable Conſequences of the Marriage. Therefore upon one Sunday he begg'd of his Majeſty to call a Secret or Cabinet-Council in the Red Chamber in Whitehall, to which the King immediately conſented. At this Council, by the Chancellour's Management, none were preſent but the King himſelf, the Chancellour, the Lord Treaſurer Southampton, and the Duke of Ormond. The Chancellour acquainting the King with the Occaſion of his having deſired this private Meeting, ſaid, That he had hitherto in Obedience to his Majeſty's Orders chearfully gone on with the Marriage Treaty, without regarding what the Spaniſh Ambaſſadour had to object againſt it, which he conſidered as coming from an Enemy: But that now he had certain Information, that this Match, if concluded, would bring ſuch a Calamity upon the Nation, as he was ſure his Majeſty would prevent, if it were poſſible; for he had now undoubted Proofs that the Infanta of Portugal was not capable of having Children. He then produc'd a Liſt of ſix Princeſſes all Proteſtants, out of which his Majeſty might chuſe a fit and proper Wife. But the King frowning and ſwelling, anſwered, That this was all a Lie of the Spaniſh Ambaſſadour; adding, My Lord, I command you to go on with this Treaty; and ſo the Meeting broke up. This Incapacity of having Children was publickly talk'd of among the Engliſh Merchants at Liſbon before this Princeſs left the Place, and they remonſtrated the ſame to the Earl of Sandwich, when he came to bring her to England. Of this Incapacity Sir Robert Southwell was fully aſſur'd afterwards by the Ducheſs of Guadiloupa at Madrid, a Lady who had been acquainted with her Infancy, and in her Nurſery. But this is not to be imputed to her Age, or to her Country, but to ſome peculiar Infirmities of Body; and it is manifeſt from the Teſtimony of ſome Ladies about her, that ſhe was in a Child-bearing Condition 'till after the King's Death, which was twenty two Years after her Marriage.

In a Cabinet Council;

Wherein he offer'd Proof, that the Infanta would have no Children:

And propoſed ſix Proteſtant Princeſſes to the King's Choice.

But the King commanded him to go on with the Treaty of Marriage with Portugal,

Though the Infanta's Incapacity of having Children was ſaid to be well known.

Mr. Daniel Brevint made Prebendary of Durham.

Mr. Daniel Brevint, a Native of Jerſey, who had been a voluntary Exile in France, Miniſter of a Proteſtant Church in Normandy, and Chaplain to the illuſtrious Prince of Turin, returning into England was inſtalled Prebendary of Durham March 15, 1660. afterward Dean of Lincoln, created Doctor of Divinity in 1661.

Athen. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 927. Edit. 1721.

Account of the Hardſhips of le Couteur, Brevint, and Durell driven out of the Iſle of Jerſey,

Mr. J. Durell of the Reformed Churches, 4to.

Let the World know, that a Prieſt and a true Son of the Church of England, though expelled by the pretended Reformers, is counted a true Miniſter of the Goſpel by the Reformed Churches abroad, and by them cheriſhed and invited to exerciſe his Miniſtry in the Midſt of them, though judged unworthy thereof by thoſe that would make poor ſilly People believe they are of the ſame Judgment with the ſaid Churches.

And forced to take Refuge in France,

It is known how great the Perſecution was againſt all Miniſters, who adhered to the King and Church of England during the late Troubles. Thoſe who were more gently dealt with, were only plundered, turned out of their Livings, or impriſoned. There were others, whom it was thought fitter to caſt out of the Land, or who at leaſt were compelled to withdraw of their own accord, as Things ſtood then, and to go into a voluntary Exile. Monſieur le Couteur now Dean of the Iſland of Jerſey, and Dr. Brevint now Prebendary of Dureſme, a Perſon whoſe Worth is very well known, and myſelf [Dr. John Durel] among the reſt were of this Number. We were all three one after another expelled out of the Iſland of Jerſey, our native Country. —— The Reformed Church of Caen invited me very kindly by an Expreſs ſent to me to St. Malo's, where I was, to come and be one of their Miniſters in the Abſence of Monſieur Bochart, who was then going into Sweden; —— and Monſieur Couteur being invited likewiſe at the ſame Time to the Reformed Church of Caen, and Dr. Brevint ſoon after to another Church in Normandy (whence he was preferred to be Chaplain to the moſt illuſtrious and renowned Prince of Turenne) we all three met together at the Synod of that Province, there to have the Aſſemblies Approbation: We exhibited to them our Letters of Ordination, and others ſhewing the Cauſe of our Baniſhment; after which they firſt expreſſed much Grief for the ſad Condition of our King and Church, and then deſiring us only to conform to their

SUNDAY Mar. 17.

The Propagation of Popery was advanc'd in the late Times by the turning out Epiſcopacy and Common Prayer.

They had been the greateſt Promoters of Popery, who now cried out moſt againſt it.

The Jeſuits had foreſeen, that they could not bring their Buſineſs about, 'till they had got the Biſhops removed and the Common Prayer Book put down.

Mr. Joſ. Bentham in his Diſſuaſive from Error, 4to. p. 39.

You cry out much againſt Popery, yet your Doings endeavour to bring it in and ſet it up: It is a Jeſuitical Plot to ſow Diviſion amongſt us, to make our Religion odious, and that they may fiſh in troubled Waters. From a good Author I will tell you a Story, which is this: Before our Troubles one Meredith an ancient and learned Jeſuit told one reconciled to the Church of Rome, that in England they (of his Order) had been long and induſtrious about the Work of Converſion, but it went on ſlowly, and ſo would do, until they took a wiſer Courſe. Two Things there were that muſt be done, before they ſhould bring their Buſineſs to a full Effect. They muſt firſt find a Way to remove the Biſhops and Miniſters, in whoſe Rooms they muſt bring it ſo about, that all ſhould have Liberty to preach. Then ſecondly, they muſt get down the Common Prayer Book, and ſuffer every Man to uſe what Prayer he liſt. And we cannot but remember how far they effected this in our ſad Troubles.

The Number of Sects and Parties dividing and ſubdividing in the late Times.

London, 1663. 4to.

The Number of Sects and Parties, and the Sequeſtrations and Subdiviſions among them were thus repreſented by the ſerious Author of The great Plot for Reſtoring Popery.

The ſeveral ſorts of thoſe called Hiders.
1. Vaniſts.
2. Behmeniſts.
3. Seekers.

And of them great Variety.
1. Seekers for a Church and Miniſtry.
2. Doubters whether there be any Church or Miniſtry.
3. Denyers of the being any Churh or Miniſtry on Earth.
4. Seekers for a Univerſal Church, and for a written Word of God.
5. Others above all Ordinances.
6. Others who think all Believers are out-grown the Need of Miniſtry or Scriptures.

Theſe ſeveral Sects have been ſpawned by the Jeſuits. The Hiders of ſeveral Sorts; 1. The Vaniſts, whoſe Game was firſt plaid openly in New-England, where God gave in his Teſtimony againſt them from Heaven upon their two Propheteſſes, Mrs. Hutchenſon and Mrs. Dyer. 2. The next ſort of Hiders are the Paracelſians, Weigelians, and Behmeniſts, who go the ſame Way in the main with the former, and are indeed the ſame Party, but think meet to take another Name, and fetch their Vizor from Jacob Behmen. 3. Another ſort of Hiders are thoſe called Seekers, among whom I have Reaſon to believe the Papiſts have not the leaſt of their Strength in England at this Day. Of theſe Seekers there are theſe Subdiviſions or Sects; 1. The moſt moderate do only profeſs themſelves to be Seekers for the true Church and Miniſtry, holding that ſuch a Church and Miniſtry there is, but they are at a Loſs to know which it is. 2. The ſecond ſort of Seekers are to ſeek whether there be any organiz'd Poſitical Church, or any Miniſtry, or any Ordinances proper to a Church at all, or not. 3. Another ſort of Seekers are thoſe that do not only doubt of but flatly deny any Miniſtry and Political Churches and Church Ordinances upon Earth. 4. Another ſort of Seekers do not only doubt of or deny theſe particular Churches and Ordinances, but alſo they are to ſeek for the Univerſal Church itſelf, and of the Holy Scriptures, many of them not only queſtioning them, but flatly maintaining that we have no Certainty of their Truth or Authority. 5. A fifth ſort of Seekers own the Church and Miniſtry, and Ordinances, yet ſuppoſe themſelves above them. 6. A ſixth ſort of Seekers think the whole Company of Believers ſhould now be over-grown the Scripture, Miniſtry, and Ordinances. All theſe ſorts of Seekers are bred or cheriſhed by the Jeſuits and Fryers. And the Truth is, when a Man is made a Seeker, he is half made a Papiſt.

4th Sort of Hiders are the Quakers, bred and fed by the Papiſts.

5. Other Enthuſiaſts who are for an infallible prophetick Spirit, which is an infallible living Judge.

4. Another ſort of Hiders are the Quakers, an impudent Generation, and open enough in pulling down, but as ſecret and reſerv'd as the reſt in aſſerting and building up. What intereſts the Papiſts in breeding and feeding this Sect among us, hath been publickly proved from the Oaths of Witneſſes and Confeſſions of Fryers. 5. A fifth ſort of Hiders are thoſe Enthuſiaſts that ſhun the affected bombaſtick Language of Behmen, and ſuch like, but yet give as much of the Body of Popery, headed by an infallible prophetick Spirit inſtead of the Pope. Such as the Authors of the Book againſt the Aſſemblies Confeſſion, owned by Parker, but ſaid to be written by a London Doctor. And many ſuch Doctors I know and hear of abroad in England: They take upon them to be Adverſaries to the Pope, but they are Friends to his Doctrines, and maintain the Neceſſity of having an infallible living Judge, and ſend us to Prophets for this infallible Judgment.

One Jeſuit to another confirms their Hopes of coming in upon the pulling down Epiſcopacy.

There is a Letter of Father Sibthorpe to Father Metcalfe wherein are theſe Words: And now they are pulling down (1641.) that Wall which at once adorned and defended their Way, I mean their Government, their Vineyard (as they uſed to preach) is laid waſt, and the wild Beaſt of the Foreſt (you know whom they mean) may enter in, &c.

In

Dr. Nic. Gibbon one of the late Enthuſiaſts had laid a notable Scheme for Socinian Popery, and was very buſy in recommending it to Mr. Baxter,

In Cromwell's Time, ſaith Mr. Baxter, while I lodged at the Lord Broghill's, a certain Perſon was importunate to ſpeak with me, Dr. Nicb. Gibbon, who ſhutting the Doors on us that there might be no Witneſſes, drew forth a Scheme of Theology, and told me how long a Journey he had once taken towards me, and engaged me patiently to hear him open to me his Scheme, which he ſaid was the very Thing that I had been ſo long groping after; and contained the only Terms and Method to reſolve all Doubts whatſoever in Divinity, and unite all Chriſtians through the World: And there was none of them printed but what he kept himſelf, and he communicated them only to ſuch as were prepared, which he thought I was, becauſe I was firſt ſearching; ſecondly, impartial; and thirdly, a Lover of Method. I thank'd him, and heard him above an Hour in Silence, and after two or three Days Talk with him, I found all his Frame (the Contrivance of a very ſtrong Head-piece) was ſecretly and cunningly fitted to uſher in a Socinian Popery, or a Mixture of Popery and half Socinianiſm. Biſhop Uſher had before occaſionally ſpoken of him in my Hearing as a Socinian, which cauſed me to hear him with Suſpicion; but I heard none ſuſpect him of Popery, though I find it was that which was the End of his Deſign. This Jugler hath theſe twenty Years and more gone up and down thus ſecretly, and alſo thruſt himſelf into Places of publick Debate (as when the Biſhops and Divines diſputed before the King at the Iſle of Wight, &c.) And when we were lately offering our Propoſals for Concord to the King, he thruſt in among us, 'till I was fain plainly to detect him before ſome of the Lords, which enraged him, and he denied the Words which he in ſecret had ſpoken to me. And many Men of Parts and Learning are perverted by him.

Who found out the Cheat, calls him a Juggler, detected him before ſome of the Lords, and is ſure he had perverted many Men of Parts and Learning.

The King's Commission prepared for a Conference at the Savoy.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 303.

To return to our Treaty with the Bishops: If you observe the King's Declaration, you will find, that though Matters of Government seemed to be determined, yet the Liturgy was to be reviewed and reformed, and new Forms drawn up in Scripture Phrase suited to the several Parts of Worship, that Men might use which of them they pleased, as already there were some such Variety of Forms in some Offices of that Book. This was yet to be done, and till this were done, we were uncertain of the Issue of all our Treaty: But if that were done, and all settled by Law, our Divisions were at an End. Therefore being often with the Lord Chancellor on the forementioned Occasions, I humbly intreated him to hasten the finishing of that Work, that we might rejoice in our desired Concord. At last Dr. Reynolds and Mr. Calamy were authorized to name the Persons on that Side to manage the Treaty; and a Commission was granted under the Bread Seal to the Persons nominated on both Sides. I intreated Mr. Calamy and Dr. Reynolds to leave me out, for though I much desired the Expedition of the Work, I found that the last Debates had made me unacceptable with my Superiours; and this would much more increase it, and other Men might be fitter who were less distasted. But I could not prevail with them, (unless I would have peremptorily refused it) to exclude me. So they named as Commissioners Dr. Tuckney, Dr. Conant, Dr. Spurstow, Dr. Manton, Dr. Wallis, Mr. Calamy and myself, Mr. Jackson, Mr. Case, Mr. Clark, and Mr. Newcomen, besides Dr. Reynolds then Bishop of Norwich. And for Assistants (being the other Party had Assistants) Dr. Horton, Dr. Jacomb, Dr. Bates, Mr. Rawlinson, Mr. Cooper, Dr. Lightfoot, Dr. Collins, Mr. Woodbridge and Dr. Drake. According to the King's Commission we were to meet and manage our Conference in order to the Ends therein expressed. —— Note, that Dr. Roger Drake's Name being miswritten William Drake, he therefore went not publickly with us. —— The chief Actors on our Part were Dr. Reynolds, Dr. Wallis, Mr. Calamy, Mr. Newcomen, Dr. Bates, Mr. Clarke, Dr. Jacomb. —— Dr. Horton never came among us at all, nor Dr. Tuckney (alledging his Backwardness to speak, though he had been the Doctor of the Chair in Cambridge) nor Dr. Lightfoot but once or twice; nor Mr. Woodbridge but twice or thrice, dwelling far off.

Hastned by Mr. Baxter.

Bishop Reynolds and Mr. Calamy had Leave to name the Members on the Presbyterian Side.

Mr. Baxter desired to be left out as a distasted Man,

But could not prevail.

D. Peter Gunning, D. D. John Pearson, D. D. Tho. Pierce, D. D. Anthony Sparrow, D. D. Herbert Thorndike, B. D. Thomas Horton, D. D. Thomas Jacomb, D. D. William Bate, John Rawlinson, William Cooper, Clerks, Dr. John Lightfoot, Dr. John Collins, Dr. Benjamin Woodbridge, and William Drake, Clerk, greeting. Whereas by our Declaration of the 25th of October last concerning Ecclesiastical Affairs, we did (amongst other Things) express our Esteem of the Liturgy of the Church of England, contain'd in the Book of Common-Prayer; and yet since we find Exceptions made against several Things therein, we did by our said Declaration declare we would appoint an equal Number of learned Divines, of both Perswasions, to review the same: We therefore in Accomplishment of our said Will and Intent, and of our continued and constant Care and Study for the Peace and Unity of the Churches within our Dominions, and for Removal of all Exceptions and Differences, and the Occasion of such Differences and Exceptions from among our good Subjects, for or concerning the said Book of Common-Prayer, or any

Archbishop and Bishops on the one side, and the most eminent Presbyterian Divines on the other.

With other Assistants of the fully conforming and less conforming Clergy.

In pursuance of his late Declaration concerning Ecclesiastical Affairs.

For Peace and Unity.

To remove Exceptions against the Common-Prayer.

By a Review of it.

To meet for the Space of four Months at the Master's (Biſhop of London*'s) Lodgings in the* Savoy.

And conſult upon the ſeveral Objections and Exceptions againſt the Liturgy.

And upon Occaſion to make reaſonable and neceſſary Alterations.

Avoiding all Things unneceſſary.

To preſent their Reſolutions to his Majeſty in Writing.

Dr. Earles to ſupply the Place of Archbiſhop or Biſhop that ſhall be abſent.

And Dr. Thomas Horton to ſupply the Place of any abſent on the other ſide.

Thing therein contain'd, do by theſe our Letters Patents require, authorize, conſtitute, and appoint you the ſaid, &c. to adviſe upon and review the ſaid Book of Common-Prayer, comparing the ſame with the moſt ancient Liturgies which have been uſed in the Church in the primitive and pureſt Times. And to that end to aſſemble and meet together from Time to Time, and at ſuch Time, within the Space of four Calendar Months now next enſuing in the Maſter's Lodging in the Savoy in the Strand, in the County of Middleſex, or in ſuch other Place or Places as to you ſhall be thought fit and convenient, to take into your ſerious and grave Conſiderations the ſeveral Directions and Rules, Forms of Prayer, and Things in the ſaid Book of Common-Prayer contain'd, and to adviſe, conſult upon and about the ſame, and the ſeveral Objections and Exceptions, which ſhall now be raiſed againſt the ſame; and (if occaſion be) to make ſuch reaſonable and neceſſary Alterations, Corrections and Amendments therein as by and between you the ſaid Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Doctors and Perſons hereby required and authorized to meet and adviſe as aforeſaid, ſhall be agreed upon to be needful and expedient for the giving Satisfaction to tender Conſciences, and the reſtoring and Continuance of Peace and Unity in the Churches under our Protection and Government, but avoiding (as much as may be) all unneceſſary Abbreviations of the Forms and Liturgy wherewith the People are altogether acquainted and have ſo long received in the Church of England. And our Will and Pleaſure is, that when you the ſaid Archbiſhop, Biſhops, Doctors and Perſons authorized and appointed by theſe our Letters Patents to meet, adviſe, and conſult upon and about the Premiſſes as aforeſaid, ſhall have drawn your Conſultations to any Reſolution and Determination which you ſhall agree upon as needful or expedient to be done for the altering, diminiſhing, or inlarging the ſaid Book of Common-Prayer, or any Part thereof, that then forthwith you certify and preſent to us in Writing under your ſeveral Hands the Matters and Things whereupon you ſhall ſo determine, for our Approbation, and to the End the ſame or ſo much thereof as ſhall be approved by us may be eſtabliſhed: And foraſmuch as the ſaid Archbiſhop and Biſhops have ſeveral great Charges to attend which we would not diſpenſe with, or that the ſame ſhould be neglected upon any great Occaſion whatſoever, and ſome of them being of great Age and Infirmities, may not be able conſtantly to attend the Execution of the Service and Authority hereby given and required by us, in the Meeting and Conſultation aforeſaid, we will therefore, and hereby require you the ſaid Dr. Earles, &c. to ſupply the Place and Places of ſuch of the Archbiſhop and Biſhops (other than the ſaid Edward Biſhop of Norwich) as ſhall by Age, Sickneſs, Infirmity, or other Occaſion, be hindred from attending the ſaid Meeting or Conſultation (that is to ſay) that one of you the ſaid Dr. Earles, &c. ſhall from Time to Time ſupply the Place of each one of them the ſaid Archbiſhop and Biſhops (other than the ſaid Edward Biſhop of Norwich) which ſhall happen to be hindred, or to be abſent from the ſaid Meetings or Conſultations, and ſhall and may adviſe, conſult and determine, and alſo certify and execute all and ſingular the Powers and Authorities before mentioned in and about the Premiſſes as fully and abſolutely as ſuch Archbiſhop and Biſhops which ſhall ſo happen to be abſent, ſhould or might do by Virtue of theſe our Letters Patents, or any Thing herein contain'd, in caſe he or they were perſonally preſent. And whereas in regard of the Diſtance of ſome, the Infirmity of others, the Multitude of conſtant Employment and other incidental Impediments, ſome of you the ſaid Edward Biſhop of Norwich, &c. may be hindred from the conſtant Attendance in the Execution of the Service aforeſaid: We therefore will, and do hereby require and authorize you the ſaid Thomas Horton, &c. to ſupply the Place or Places of ſuch the Commiſſioners laſt before mentioned, as ſhall by the Means aforeſaid or any other Occaſion be hindred from the ſaid Meeting and Conſultations, that one of you, the ſaid Thomas Horton, &c. ſhall from Time to Time ſupply the Places of each one of the ſaid Commiſſioners laſt mentioned, which ſhall happen to be hindred or abſent from the ſaid Meeting and Conſultations: And ſhall and may adviſe, conſult and determine, and alſo certify and execute all and ſingular the Powers and Authorities before mentioned, in and about the Premiſſes as fully and abſolutely as ſuch of the ſaid laſt mentioned Commiſſioners which ſhall ſo happen to be abſent, ſhould or might do by Virtue of theſe our Letters Patents or any Thing therein contain'd, in caſe he or they were perſonally preſent. In Witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs our ſelf at Weſtminſter the 25th Day of March, in the thirteenth Year of our Reign.

TUESDAY Mar. 26.
The Univerſity of Oxford's Petition to the King.

Againſt the City of Oxford,

Refuſing to take the Oath and to make the uſual Oblation.

To the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty.

The humble Petition of the Chancellor, Maſters and Scholars of the Univerſity of Oxon.

Sheweth,

That your Petitioners are (by divers Grants and Charters of your Majeſty's Royal Progenitors and Predeceſſors confirm'd by Act of Parliament and otherwiſe) inveſted with divers Rights and Priviledges, as particularly (amongſt others) that the Mayor, Aldermen and Bailiffs of the Town or City of Oxford, and others of the Burgeſſes thereof (to the Number of ſixty three in all) ſhould yearly take an Oath to preſerve the Liberties and Cuſtoms of the ſaid Univerſity, and that the ſame Perſons ſhould yearly make an Oblation of ſixty three Pence (in Memory of a great Slaughter of Scholars committed by their Predeceſſors) on St. Scholaſtica's Day: That the ſaid Chancellor, Maſters and Scholars ſhould enjoy the Clerkſhip of the Market, the Placing, Proclaiming, and the whole Government thereof, with Toll of Corn and other Incidents thereunto belonging; the Government of Victuals, the Aſſize and Aſſay of Bread, Beer and Wine, with the Coercion, Correction and Puniſhment of the ſame. The Licenſing, Reſtraint and Correction of Bakers, Brewers, Vintners, Alehouſe-keepers and other Victuallers; the Government of the Streets and the Pavement thereof; the Cuſtody of the Peace and the Night Watch; a Court Leet with all Fines, Amercements, and other Incidents thereunto belonging; all Deodands, Felons Goods, Treaſure Trove, and other the like Forfeitures, Exemption from Taxes and other publick Contributions impos'd on the City (ſuch Perſons only excepted of the Univerſity as do exerciſe any Trade of Merchandiſe in the City, and thoſe to be tax'd by the Vice-Chancellor only, not by the Mayor) that privileged Perſons may freely exerciſe any Trade within the Precincts of the Univerſity; and that the Members of the Univerſity are not to be impleaded or moleſted in the Mayor's Court, or before the Town Juſtices, but in the Chancellor's Court only.

That (notwithſtanding the Premiſſes) the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen, Bailiffs and Burgeſſes have of late Years (taking Advantage of the publick Diſtractions) many Ways infring'd the ſaid Rights and Privileges of the ſaid Univerſity: As particularly by refuſing to take the Oath for the Preſervation thereof, and to make the ſaid yearly Oblation on St. Scholaſtica's Day; by encroaching upon the Market and the Government thereof; diſturbing and moleſting thoſe who come either to ſell Cloth, Victuals, and other Commodities, and diſturbing the Clerks of the Market, in taking Toll and otherwiſe; by taking upon them to licence Taverns, Inns and Alehouſes, and that to an exceſſive Number; by exerciſing the Trades of Bakers, Brewers and Malſters without Licence obtained from the Univerſity, or the taking the reſpective Oaths heretofore us'd in the Admiſſion; by uſurping the Government of the Streets, and the Pavements thereof, and Nuſances therein, and Amercements concerning the ſame; by taking upon them to ſet the Night Watch; by ſeiſing upon Deodands and Felons Goods, by aſſeſſing Members of the Univerſity, contrary to the Privileges thereof; by impleading, indicting, and otherwiſe moleſting priviledged Perſons in the Mayor's Court and the Town Seſſions, and refuſing to diſmiſs the Cauſe upon the Vice-Chancellor's Claim; by diſturbing privileged Perſons in the Exerciſe of their Trades, and intruding upon thoſe Trades which belong to the Univerſity only: And by many other Encroachments on the Rights and Privileges of your Petitioners, to the great Injury, Diſhonour and Diſcouragement of the whole Univerſity.

May it therefore pleaſe your moſt excellent Majeſty, to grant to your Petitioners ſuch Examination and Redreſs of the Premiſſes, as to your Majeſty and your honourable Privy-Council ſhall ſeem moſt meet.

And your Petitioners ſhall pray, &c.

WEDNESDAY Mar. 27.
The Petition ordered to be ſent to the Mayor and Aldermen of Oxford.

At the Court at Whitehall, March 27. 1661.

His Majeſty having a particular Care of this Univerſity and of the Rights and Privileges thereof, doth appoint that this Petition, or a Copy thereof, be deliver'd to the Mayor and Aldermen of Oxford, to the End that they may be provided to anſwer the ſame on Saturday the 6th of April next, when it is his Majeſty's Pleaſure, that both Parties, or ſome authorized by them, ſhall appear before his Majeſty at nine of the Clock in the Morning in the Council-Chamber at Whitehall, where his Majeſty upon hearing what ſhall be alledg'd on either Side, will determine according to Juſtice.

From a Member of that Univerſity, who is a great Friend to that Way, and will be far from ſpeaking any Thing to the diſadvantage of that Party, take the Relation of it as followeth, being an Extract of a Letter under his own Hand to a Perſon of Quality near London, dated at Oxford, April 4. 1661. in hæc verba. On Sunday laſt the Biſhop of Oxford conferred Holy Orders at Chriſt-Church, whilſt they were about the Solemnity, two ſtrange and unuſual Accidents happened, which have already occaſioned Diſcourſes here, and I doubt not the Story will get with Advantage to London. The firſt was, that whilſt the Biſhop was confirming ſeveral Perſons, a great Ledge of Wainſcot fell down either upon or nigh the Communion Table, which it is thought, if the Biſhop had not been in the Body of the Chancel laying Hands on the Perſons to be confirmed, but in the Place where he read the Prayers, it would have done him a Miſchief. The other Accident was, that Dr. Barten Holiday, the Archdeacon of Oxford adminiſtring the Wine at the Sacrament, fell down and hit his Face againſt the Chalice, ſo as to wound himſelf ſo much, that he was forced to deſiſt, and Dr. Lamplugh of Queen's officiated for him.

Preface.——Concluding.——From theſe Premiſſes it plainly follows, that our dear Mother the Church of England in making theſe Canons and Articles, for determining the Controverſies in Matters of Belief, which you may ſee in the enſuing Collection, did no more than what was her Right and Duty to do, both for the Preſervation of her Peace, and the Guidance and Conduct of the Souls committed to her Charge. And what her Care hath been in the Exerciſe of this Power, for the good of her Members ever ſince the Reformation will evidently to her Honour appear by this following Collection, made up not without great Care and Induſtry of the Publiſher. By which he hath done this farther Right, that now whoſoever will may eaſily ſee the notorious Slander which ſome of the Roman Perſuaſion have endeavoured to caſt upon her, that her Reformation hath been altogether Lay and Parliamentary. For by the Canons and Articles following, which were formerly ſcattered and hard to be ſeen by every one, now gathered into a Body, it eaſily appears to any that will but open their Eyes, that the Reformation of this Church was orderly and ſynodical by the Guides and Governours of Souls, and confirmed by ſupreme Authority, and ſo in every particular as legal, as any Reformation is or ought to be.

Life of Dr. Manton, 8^vo^. p. 26.

Dr. Reynolds Biſhop of Norwich was the firſt who received the Commiſſion for Review of the Common-Prayer from the Biſhop of London, of which he immediately acquainted Dr. Manton. The Original Letter is now in my Hands, and expreſſes the Candour and Goodneſs of that excellent Perſon, and his great Reſpect for Dr. Manton. 'Tis in theſe Words:

S I R,

And he to Dr. Manton of the King's Commission for Review of the Common Prayer.

This Morning the Bishop of London sent me the Commission about Revising the Liturgy under the Great Seal, to take Notice of it, with Direction to give Notice to the Commissioners who are not Bishops. I went to Mr. Calamy, and it is desired, that we meet to morrow Morning at nine a Clock at his House, in regard of his Lameness, to advise together, and send a joint Letter to those who are out of this Town. He and I desire you not to fail, and withal to call upon Dr. Bates and Dr. Jacomb in your Way, to desire their Company. So with my best Respects I remain,

London, April 1,

TUESDAY April 2.
Address of the Militia of Horse in the City of London.

Mercur. Pub. 4to. No. 13.

This Day Sir Richard Brown, Lord-Mayor and Major-General of the City of London, went to Whitehall, accompany'd with all the Field Officers, Commission and inferior Officers of the ſeveral Regiments of Horſe, Trained-Bands, and Auxiliaries; where he preſented to his Majeſty, on Behalf of himſelf and the reſt of them, this following Addreſs:

Dread Sovereign,

Your moſt loyal and moſt devoted Subjects, your Major-General, Field Officers, and Captains, with all the inferior Officers of your two Regiments of Horſe of your City of London, whilſt ſome Mens Zeal through unrighteous Seducements ſeems a little cooled towards your Majeſty's Service, do with all humble Boldneſs remonſtrate the Conſtancy of theirs: And in a deep Senſe of their Duty and high Obligations to your Sacred Majeſty for your eſpecial Indulgences to this your native City, do dedicate their Lives and Eſtates to your Majeſty's Service, hereby adding to their Oath of Allegiance, that they will not only bear Faith and Obedience to your Majeſty, but upon all Occaſions joyfully employ and improve their utmoſt Power and Vigilancy with their Lives and Fortunes to deſtroy your Enemies in Defence of your Royal Perſon and Authority, and ſecuring all your juſt civil Intereſts, with the Intereſts of Religion as it is now eſtabliſhed by Law: For your Majeſty being eminently the moſt pious, gracious, and worthy Prince in the World, we cannot, without exceeding all other Subjects in Loyalty and Affection, deſerve the Title of,

Your Majeſty's true, humble, dutiful, and obedient Subjects and Servants.

Upon which Addreſs, graciouſly received by his Majeſty, they had ſoon after this Royal Letter ſent to them.

The King's Anſwer to their Addreſs.

To our Truſty and Well-beloved Sir Richard Brown, Knight and Baronet, Lord-Mayor and Major-General of our City of London, to be communicated to the Field Officers and Captains, with all the inferior Officers, &c.

CHARLES R.

Truſty and Well-beloved: We greet you well. We have received your Addreſs, wherein you do not only give us a full and acceptable Demonſtration of your Duty, Love, and Loyalty to us, (which we do graciouſly accept) but alſo ſhew forth an eminent Example thereof to all other our good Subjects within our Kingdoms and Dominions. You may be aſſured that as our Royal Progenitors have always had a particular and extraordinary Kindneſs for that our Capital City, ſo we ſhall not come behind any of them in our Princely Care, to make the ſame both flouriſhing and ſecure at Home, and glorious and renowned Abroad. And ſo we bid you farewel. Given at our Court at Whitehall this third Day of April, in the thirteenth Year of our Reign.

About the Demiſe of Caſtor to Dr. Allen.

—— In a Demiſe of Caſtor, if we comply with Dr. Allen, I fear we ſhall bring our annual Stipends to be augmented by his late Majeſty's Letter, to the old Medicum. My Lord, I am not vers'd in theſe Things, but I hope your Lordſhip's Care and Vigilancy will be ſuch, as to help the poor Church of Peterborough out of theſe Labyrinths. Yet (as it becomes us and myſelf in particular) we ſhall ſubmit to what his Majeſty by himſelf or Commiſſioners ſhall pleaſe to determine. ——

Account of Mr. Gabr. Sangar.

Dr. Calamy's Abridgment, Vol. II. p. 27.

The Parſon who by popular Appointment had intruded into the Church of St. Martin in the Fields, was Mr. Gabriel Sangar, M. A. Son of Mr. Thomas Sangar Miniſter of Sutton-Mandevil in Wiltſhire, where he was born in May 1608. Bred in Magdalen Hall, Oxon. ordained by Biſhop Davenant, ſucceeded his Father (who had bought the Advowſon) at Sutton; impriſoned at Saliſbury for refuſing to read the Book of Sports; he continued at Sutton 'till 1645, went to Havant in Hampſhire, but the Air of that Place not agreeing with the Health of his Family, he return'd back again into Wiltſhire about 1647, and ſettled at Chilmark, a Place not many Miles from Sutton. Here he met with a great deal of Trouble from ſome of his Pariſhioners that refuſ'd to pay their Tythes. When he had in vain tried all other Methods, he had Recourſe to the Law, which occaſioned his coming up to London. As ſoon as the Law Suit was at an End he returned to Chilmark, where he had not been many Weeks before he was ſurpriz'd with an Invitation from the People of St. Martin's in the Fields, to be their Miniſter, —— where he continued twelve Years. Soon after the Reſtauration of King Charles, the Lord Chancellour, who had been his School-Fellow at Gillingham School in Wiltſhire, ſent to Mr. Sangar, and profeſſing a peculiar Kindneſs to him on the Account of their being Countrey-men, and well known to one another in their younger Years, endeavoured to reconcile him to Conformity, but in vain, though he ſent for him ſeveral Times, and diſcourſed thoſe Matters with him, ſometimes with great Calmneſs, and at other Times with more Heat. At length he told Mr. Sangar plainly, that if he would not conform, he muſt leave St. Martin's, and remove further from the Court. When it was known he muſt leave St. Martin's, he had ſeveral Places offer'd him, but his Love to his natural Countrey made him accept of Steple-Aſhton, whither he removed with his Family in 1661. and whence he was ejected by the Act of Uniformity 1662. At the Entreaty of his Friends in St. Martin's, who deſired to have him nearer to them, he came to Brompton. —— The Oxford Act drove him to Eling, thence to Brentford, where he continued 'till the King's Declaration gave him Liberty to preach; then at the Entreaty of ſeveral of his old Hearers at St. Martin's, he return'd to that Pariſh, and preached to them as he had Opportunity. —— Aged 70. He died in May 1678.

A converted Jew baptized by Dr. Warmeſtry.

Mercur. Publ. 4to. No. 14.

On this Sunday a converted Jew was chriſten'd at the Savoy by Dr. Warmeſtry; the Name of the Jew before his Baptiſm was Iſaac Gomer of Smyrna, about twenty five Years old: His Chriſtian Name now is Paul: His two Godfathers were the right honourable Sir Charles Berkley, Comptroller of his Majeſty's Houſhold, and William Coventry, Eſq; Secretary to his Highneſs the Duke of York; and his Godmother was the Lady Carteret, Wife to Sir George Carteret, Vice-Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold. Before he was chriſten'd he made Confeſſion of his Faith, declar'd his Sorrow for his Sins, and the Iniquities of his Nation, eſpecially that of crucifying Chriſt; ſolemnly deſiring, that God would deal with him both here and hereafter, as he dealt ſincerely in this Affair.

To his most Excellent Majesty; The humble Petition of William Jackson.

MS. Oxon.

Humbly Sheweth,

The Petition of Will. Jackson to be M. D. in Oxford.

That your Petitioner's Father (being Doctor in Divinity) was sequestred in the late Rebellion from above three hundred Pounds per Annum, and your Petitioner by such Sequestration much impoverished, and by the Death of his said Father left destitute of all Hopes of Restitution. And that your Majesty's Petitioner having been in Service of your Majesty's Father of blessed Memory in Colchester, and since in your Majesty's Service, wherein his near Kinsman Colonel Robert Levinz suffered, and was executed by the bloody Rebels, since when your Petitioner hath been under constant Persecution, by which Means your Petitioner was hindred from Proceeding in your University of Oxford according to the usual Rules thereof, being constrained to leave it, or submit to that illegal Visitation 1648.

Wherefore your Majesty's Petitioner most humbly prays, that your Majesty would be graciously pleased to grant to your Petitioner your Majesty's Letter to the said University, for conferring the Degree of Doctor in Physick on your Petitioner (he having already the License of the College of Physicians of London for his Approbation) as a Means to redeem your Petitioner from the Obscurity the aforesaid Sufferings have precipitated him into.

Whilst your Petitioner prays for your long Life and Prosperity.

At the Court at Whitehall, April 13, 1661.

The King's gracious Answer to the said Petition.

His Majesty having perus'd this Petition, and of his own Princely Nature being desirous the Petitioner's Loyalty and Faithfulness to his Majesty's Interest in the late unhappy Times should be no Hindrance to his Preferment in the Course of his Studies; is graciously pleased to recommend the Petitioner to the said University of Oxford, for the said University to confer on him the Degree of a Doctor of Physick, as by the Petitioner is humbly desired.

Quibus per Procuratorem seniorem publicatis, supplicatur in hunc modum.

The Form of Supplicating for the said Degree.

Supplicat, &c. Egregius Vir Gulielmus Jackson e Coll. Universitatis, quatenus 12. Annos in Studio Medicinæ posuerit, consensum Regium, & Ædium Præfectorum Approbationem obtinuerit; ut bona vestra cum venia ad gradum Doctoris in Medicina promoveatur in hac Convocatione. Conceditur simpliciter.

MONDAY April 15. The opening of the Savoy Conference in Mr. Baxter's Account of it.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 305.

In purſuance of his Majeſty's Commiſſion, a Meeting was appointed, and the Savoy (the Biſhop of London's Lodgings) named by them for the Place. There met us Dr. Frewen Archbiſhop of York, Dr. Sheldon Biſhop of London, Dr. Morley Biſhop of Worceſter, Dr. Saunderſon Biſhop of Lincoln, Dr. Coſins Biſhop of Durham, Dr. Henchman Biſhop of Saliſbury, Dr. Walton Biſhop of Cheſter, Dr. Laney Biſhop of Peterborough, Dr. King Biſhop of Rocheſter [Chicheſter] Dr. Sterne Biſhop of Carliſle (but the conſtanteſt Man after was Dr. Gauden Biſhop of Exeter.) On the other Side there met Dr. Reynolds Biſhop of Norwich, Mr. Clarke, Dr. Spurſtow, Dr. Lightfoot, Dr. Wallis, Dr. Manton, Dr. Bates, Dr. Jacomb, Mr. Cooper, Mr. Rawlinſon, Mr. Caſe and myſelf. The Commiſſion being read, the Archbiſhop of York (a peaceable Man) ſpake firſt, and told us, that he knew nothing of the Buſineſs, but perhaps the Biſhop of London knew more of the King's Mind in it, and therefore was fitter to ſpeak in it than he. The Biſhop of London told us, that it was not they, but we that had been the Seekers of this Conference, and that deſired Alterations in the Liturgy, and therefore they had nothing to ſay or do, till we brought in all that we had to ſay againſt it in Writing, and all the additional Forms and Alterations which we deſired.

At this Conference in the Savoy, that reverend and great Man Biſhop Morley tells us, the generality of the nonconforming Divines ſhewed themſelves unwilling to enter upon Diſpute, and ſeem'd to like much better another Way tending to an amicable and fair Compliance, which was fruſtrated by a certain Perſon's furious Eagerneſs to engage in a Diſputation [meaning Mr. Baxter] the Proteſtant Peace-Maker by Biſhop Ruſt. 1682. 4^to^.

Our Brethren were very much againſt this Motion, and urged the King's Commiſſion, which requireth us to meet together, adviſe and conſult. They told him, that by Conference we might perceive as we went what each would yield to, and might more ſpeedily diſpatch, and probably attain our End; whereas Writing would be a tedious endleſs Buſineſs, and we ſhould not have that Familiarity and Acquaintance with each others Minds, which might facilitate our Concord. But the Biſhop of London reſolutely inſiſted on it, not to do any Thing, till we brought in all our Exceptions, Alterations, and Additions at once. In this I confeſs above all Things elſe, I was wholly of his Mind, and prevailed with my Brethren to conſent, &c. And upon theſe Reaſons I told the Biſhops, that we accepted of the Taſk which they impoſed on us, yet ſo as to bring all our Exceptions at one Time, and all our Additions at another Time, which they granted.

The Method agreed upon.

Mr. Baxter to draw up the Additions.

When we were withdrawn, it pleaſed our Brethren to divide the undertaken Work. The drawing up of Exceptions againſt the Common-Prayer they undertook themſelves, and were to meet from Day to Day to that End: The drawing up the Additions or new Forms they impoſed upon me alone, becauſe I had been guilty of that Deſign from the Beginning, and of engaging them in that Piece of Service; and ſome of them thought it would prove odious to the Independents and others, who are againſt a Liturgy as ſuch. Hereupon I departed from them, and came among them no more till I had finiſhed my Taſk, which was a Fortnight's Time.

Who finiſh'd his Taſk in a Fortnight's Time.

Duaci 1661. 8^vo^. Athen. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 487.

* Manuale Miſſionariorum Regularium præcipue Anglorum S. Franciſci, &c. —— Written by Chriſtopher Davenport alias de Sancta Clara, a Franciſcan Fryar at Doway, a Miſſionary in England in the Reign of King Charles I. and Chaplain to the Queen Henrietta Maria: And after the Marriage of King Charles II. with Catharine of Portugal, he became her Theologiſt, or one of the chief Chaplains about her, and was the third Time choſen provincial Miniſter of his Order for the Province of England.

Dr. Leyburn ſolicites the Queen-Mother to protect the College of Doway.

Dr. Leyburn's Encycl. Epiſtle printed at Doway 1661. 4^to^.

Dr. Leyburn, Governour of the Engliſh College of Prieſts of Doway, was ſoliciting the Favour and Help of the Queen-Mother of England in this Language. —— Mr. White and his Adherents menace the College of Doway, whereof the ſupreme Providence hath conſtituted me (though moſt unworthy of the Charge) principal Governour; which received the Seeds of the Catholicks, that had been carried away from England in the Captivity of Catholick Religion under the Reign of Queen Elizabeth. —— I intercede for a College of Paſtors, ſo called, inaſmuch as ſince it was founded by that moſt excellent Prelate (Dr. Allan who was the firſt Preſident, and afterwards Cardinal) and erected in Doway in the Year of our Lord 1568. it hath ſent above a thouſand Paſtors into England for the Miniſtry of that little Church. I intercede for a College of Martyrs, ſo named, becauſe about an hundred and forty of her paſtoral Prieſts have endured Impriſonments, Racks, Hurdles, and at laſt ſhed their innocent Blood in Defence of the Church, the See Apoſtolick, and Catholick Faith, a glorious Harveſt for ſo little Seed, as came out of the Relicks of Queen Mary's Days, that is of a few grave learned Prieſts under the Conduct of Dr. Allan, which under the Reign of Queen Elizabeth left their Goods and Preferments and came to Doway.

I intercede for the Mother-House, ſo commonly ſtyl'd, in regard as it was the firſt Seminary erected according to the Ordinance of the Council of Trent and many others; ſo it has been the Mother of all our Colleges in Rome, Spain, and St. Omers, which it furniſh'd for a great Time, (that is until St. Omers College was erected and ſome Time after) with Scholars and fit Subjects, and even the chiefeſt of our Engliſh Regulars were Children of this College: For Example, Father Campian, and ſundry other gallant Perſonages Prieſts of the Society; that great Scholar Father Rudicind Barlow; the firſt Preſident of our Engliſh Benedictines, and divers other worthy Men of that Congregation were Children of this College; and one of theſe ought not to be named by me without an ample Acknowledgment of Gratitude, for he being inform'd that his old Mother this College was reduc'd to great Neceſſity, piouſly interceded for her to Lay Catholicks, and procured a Relief of 200*l.* Sterling.

Laſtly, I intercede for a College, properly call'd the ſpiritual Mother of all our Engliſh Catholicks, foraſmuch as before any other Community of our Nation ſent Miſſionaries into England; ſhe had ſent about a hundred Prieſts, who with much Labour and Effuſion of their Blood, brake the firſt Ice, and made the Way for ſuch as came after.

I cannot doubt of your Majeſty's gracious Favour towards her, ſhe having had formerly (about twenty two Years ago) evidence enough of your Majeſty's extreme Tenderneſs and Compaſſion unto conſerving her, when ſhe was reduc'd unto great Neceſſity through War and Peſtilence; wherewith as ſoon as your Majeſty was acquainted by Father Philip, and the Right Honourable Perſonage, now your Majeſty's great Almoner my Lord Abbot Mountague (myſelf having mov'd them before to that good Work) you were pleas'd to order conſiderable Supplies for her Relief.

A Word in Seaſon againſt Popery.

London, for Honeſt Meanwell, 1661. 4to.

A Word in Seaſon: Or the great Plot for reſtoring Popery, by oppoſing all Settlement and Uniformity, foreſeen by the Orthodox, confeſſed by the Non-Conformiſts, and managed by the Jeſuits, as evidently appears by their own following Words: Collected 1. To remove all Jealouſies of the preſent Government and Religion. 2. To juſtify to all ſober and honeſt Catholicks, who are not herein concerned, the preſent great Care and Laws againſt Popery. 3. And to reclaim all godly Men from thoſe Courſes againſt Government, that they know and confeſs, have given and do give the greateſt Advantage to Popery. With ſerious Conſiderations to thoſe Multitudes inclin'd of late to Popery, and forty godly Remedies againſt it.

A Hymn for St. George's Feaſt at Windſor.

Aſhmole of the Garter, Fol. p. 566.

The Hymn of Thankſgiving to be ſung in the Proceſſion of St. George's Feaſt, compoſed by Dr. Brune Ryves at the Command of the Sovereign and Knights Companions of the moſt noble Order of the Garter in a Chapter held the 17th of April 1661.

SATURDAY Apr. 20.

New Peers created for the Honour of the Coronation.

Dugdale's Bar. Tom. II. p. 479.

His Majeſty for the greater Splendor of his Royal Coronation was pleaſed to advance many eminent Perſons unto higher Degrees and Titles of Honour.

Sir Arthur Anneſley Earl of Angleſey.

1. Sir Arthur Anneſley, Baronet, Lord Mount-Norris, and Viſcount Valencia in Ireland, Son of Sir Francis Anneſley, Baronet, Lord Mount-Norris and Viſcount Valencia, Vice-Treaſurer and Secretary in that Realm to King Charles I. paternally deſcended from the ancient and worſhipful Family of Anneſley in the County of Nottingham, and by the Mother from that of Philips of Piſton Caſtle in Pembrokeſhire. Which Sir Arthur in the late moſt perillous Times, having ſerved his Majeſty that now is to the no little Hazard of Life and Fortune, with great Integrity, was by Letters Patent bearing Date the 20th of April, Reg. 13. created a Baron of this Kingdom, by the Title of Lord Anneſley of Newport-Pagnell in Com. Buck. as alſo raiſed to the Dignity of an Engliſh Earl, by the Title of Earl of Angleſey, and to the Heirs Male of his Body.

Sir John Greenvill Earl of Bath.

Ibid. p. 480.

2. Sir John Greenvill, Son of Sir Bevill Greenvill, Knight, of ſuch exemplary Loyalty to King Charles I, following his Father's Steps in all loyal Adventures (though then but fifteen Years of Age) firſt headed his Father's own Regiment, and ſoon after became Commander in Chief of five others, in all the conſiderable Fights and Skirmiſhes of thoſe weſtern Parts, as alſo in the ſecond Battle of Newberry in Berkſhire, wherein he received many dangerous Wounds. And when thro' the Prevalency of the Rebels his Majeſty Charles II. was conſtrained to quit the Realm (having been conſtituted one of the Gentlemen of his Bed-Chamber) he chearfully attended him in his greateſt Diſtreſſes, ceaſing not to ſhare with him in foreign Parts, throughout all his unparallel'd Afflictions and diſconſolate Travels in France, Flanders, Holland, and into the Iſle of Jerſey. After which being made Governor of the Scilly Iſlands, he ſtoutly defended them againſt no leſs than fifty Engliſh Ships, under the Command of thoſe two notorious Rebels Blake and Aſkewe, Admirals to the then Uſurpers. And after all this ſeriouſly conſulting with General Monk his near Kinſman, in that great and difficult Work of the King's moſt joyful Reſtoration, acted vigorouſly therein, 'till it was happily conſummated.

Having therefore thus highly merited, he was by Letters Patent, bearing Date at Weſtminſter upon the 20th of April, in the thirteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, advanced to the Dignities and Titles of Lord Greenvill of Kilkhampton and Biddiford, Viſcount Greenvill of Lanſdown, and Earl of Bath, being at that Time chief Gentleman of his Majeſty's Royal Bedchamber, as alſo Warden of the Stanneries in Devonſhire and Cornwall.

Sir Frederick Cornwallis Lord Cornwallis of Eye.

Dugdale's Bar. Tom. II. p. 480.

3. Sir Frederick Cornwallis of Brome in Com. Suff. Knight and Baronet, a Perſon deſcended of a very ancient and worthy Family of that Name, which had for a long Time eminently flouriſh'd in the Counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, being in no wiſe ſhort of his Anceſtors Virtues; having from his Youth with great Fidelity, ſerved the late King Charles of bleſſed Memory, both in Court and Camp; for which he ſuffered the Loſs of his Eſtate, Impriſonment, and Exile; in Teſtimony of the high Eſteem which his Majeſty King Charles II. had of his Merits, (being at this Time Treaſurer of his Houſhold) was by Letters Patent bearing Date the 20th of April, in the thirteenth Year of his Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Cornwallis of Eye in the County of Suffolk, and to the Heirs Male of his Body.

Sir George Booth Lord de la Mere.

Ibid. p. 481.

4. Sir George Booth of Dunham in the County of Cheſter, Baronet, (paternally deſcended from a very ancient and knightly Family of that Name in thoſe Parts and in Lancaſhire, and by Heirs Female from the Maſſies, heretofore Barons of Dunham in that County Palatine, as alſo from the Montforts and Clintons, honourable Familſies of this Realm) being highly ſenſible of the barbarous Murder acted upon the late King, and the miſerable Calamities brought upon theſe Nations by his cruel Regicides; in order to the Redemption of his Countrey from the tyrannous Oppreſſions of theſe mercileſs Men, and the happy Reſtoration of King Charles II. to his rightful Throne, raiſed great Forces of Horſe and Foot: In which laudable Attempt, though he became unſucceſsful as to his chief Deſign, nevertheleſs it was ſufficiently obvious, that his Endeavours at that Time, did not a little conduce unto what he ſo worthily aimed at. In conſideration therefore of this well intended Service, he was, by Letters Patents bearing Date at Weſtminſter the 20th Day of April in the ſame thirteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord de la Mer of Dunham Maſſey, and to the Heirs Male of his Body.

Sir Horatio Townſhend Lord Townſhend of Lynn.

Mr. Gurnall in his Sermon preached at the Funeral of the Lady Mary Vere, Jan. 10. 1671. obſerves, that her worthy Son in Law in Norfolk, Sir Rog. Townſhend, for his Love to the Miniſtry got the Title of Deliciæ Cleri, the Miniſter's Delight.

Ibid. p. 481.

5. Sir Horace Townſhend of Raynham in the County of Norfolk, Baronet, paternally deſcended from an ancient Family of that Name, which had long flouriſh'd in thoſe Parts; and by Mary his Mother (Daughter and Coheir to Horace Lord Vere of Tilbury) from the moſt ancient and noble Family of the Veres Earls of Oxford, taking to Heart the woful Murther of the late King Charles of bleſſed Memory, with the Oppreſſion of his Countrey, as alſo the long and grievous Expulſion of our rightful Sovereign King Charles the Second, in order to his happy Reſtauration, moſt loyally put himſelf in Arms, fortified the Haven of King's-Lynn for his Reception, and prepared conſiderable Forces both by Sea and Land for the better ſecuring thereof. In Conſideration therefore of theſe his great and moſt acceptable Services, he was by Letters Patents bearing Date at Weſtminſter upon the 20th of April in the thirteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm by the Title of Lord Townſhend of King's-Lynn, and to the Heirs Male of his Body.

Sir Anthony-Aſhley Cooper, Lord Aſhley of Wimborne.

Ibid. p. 481.

6. Sir Anthony-Aſhley Cooper of Wimborne St. Giles in the County of Dorſet, Baronet, was now (being Son and Heir of Sir John Cooper of Rockburne in Com. Wilts, Knight, by Anne his Wife, Daughter and ſole Heir to Sir Anthony Aſhley of Wimborne St. Giles, Knight and Baronet, by Jane his Wife, Daughter and Heir to Philip Okeover of Okeover in Com. Staff. Eſquire) which Sir Anthony Aſhley Cooper (deducing his Deſcent by Heirs Female from the Hameleyns, Pleſſeys and Malemayns anciently of Wimborne St. Giles before ſpecified) having in ſundry Repects manifeſted his Loyalty to King Charles the Firſt of bleſſed Memory; as alſo his great Affection to his Countrey in the late moſt perilous and difficult Times, and likewiſe to his Majeſty King Charles II. by his prudent and ſeaſonable Advices and Conſultations with General Monk and others, in order to his peaceable and happy Reſtoration. In Conſideration of theſe his acceptable Services, he was, by Letters Patents bearing Date at Weſtminſter upon the 20th of April in the thirteenth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Aſhley of Wimborne St. Giles, and to the Heirs Male of his Body.

John Crew, Eſq; Baron Crew of Stene.

Ibid. p. 482.

7. John Crew of Stene in the County of Northampton, Eſquire, Son and Heir to Sir Thomas Crew, Knight, one of the Serjeants at Law to the late King Charles, being deſcended from the ancient Family of Crew in the County Palatine of Cheſter, by his great Prudence with no ſmall Hazard loyally contributing his beſt Endeavours, in order to his Majeſty's happy Reſtoration; in Teſtimony of his Majeſty's gracious Acceptance of this his laudable Service, was, by Letters Patents bearing Date at Weſtminſter the 20th Day of April in the thirteenth Year of his Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Crew of Stene, and to the Heirs Male of his Body.

Sir Charles Howard, Earl of Carliſle.

Ibid. p. 281.

8. Sir Charles Howard deſcended from the Dukes of Norfolk, having been highly inſtrumental in the happy Reſtoration of King Charles II. was for his loyal Services therein, by Letters Patents bearing Date at Weſtminſter upon the 20th of April in the thirteenth Year of this Reign, advanced to the Dignity of Lord Dacres of Gilleſland, Viſcount Howard of Morpeth and Earl of Carliſle.

Denzil Holles, Eſq; Lord Holles of Iſeld.

9. Denzil Holles, ſecond Son to John Earl of Clare, having been not a little inſtrumental in the happy Reſtoration, was now advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Hollis of Iſeild in Com. Surr.

And beſides theſe Creations of Peerage, ſome other noble Peers were advanced to higher Titles of Honour.

April 1661. | 13 Car. II.

Lord Hyde made Earl of Clarendon.

1. Edward Lord Hyde of Hindon, was advanced to the Dignity of Viscount Cornbury, Com. Oxon. and Earl of Clarendon.

The King's Passing from the Tower to Westminster in Order to his Coronation.

Ogilby's Relation of the King's Coronation.

His Majesty, according to the ancient Custom, made his Cavalcade from the Tower to Westminster, in such a glorious and splendid Manner, that it seemed to outvie whatever had been seen before of Gallantry and Riches, the Gorgeousness of Apparel, the Sparkling of Gems, the Lustre of Gold, in a continued Train so dazzling the Spectators Sight, as if both the Indies had been summon'd over to attend at that Day's Triumph: In Preparation to which, four very stately and magnificent Triumphal Arches had been erected by the City, (according as their Charter obligeth them upon such an Occasion) for his Majesty to pass thro' to his Coronation.

The first in Leadenhall-street, near Lime-street End, made after the Dorick Order, representing his Majesty's happy Arrival in England.

The second being a Naval Representation, was near the Exchange in Cornhill.

The third consisting of the Corinthian and Composite Order, and representing the Temple of Concord, was placed in Cheapside near Wood-street End.

The fourth consisting of the Dorick and Ionick Orders, and representing the Garden of Plenty, stood in Fleet-street near White-Fryars.

Proceedings on the Coronation Day.

The Proceedings on the Day of his Majeſty's Coronation.

Upon Tueſday the 23d of April, being St. George's Day, about half an Hour after ſeven in the Morning, the King entred into his rich Barge, took Water from the Privy-Stairs at Whitehall and landed at Parliament Stairs: From whence he proceeded up to the Room behind the Lords Houſe, called the Prince's Lodgings, where, after he had repoſed himſelf for a while, he was arrayed in his Royal Robes of Crimſon Velvet furr'd with Ermine: By which Time the Nobility being aſſembled, robed themſelves in the Lords Houſe and Painted Chamber.

The Judges alſo, with thoſe of the Long Robe, the Knights of the Bath, and Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber, met in the Court of Requeſts.

After ſome Space, the King's Heralds and Purſuivants began to ſet the Proceeding in Order, each of them taking his Share aſſign'd in Chapter, (held at the Heralds-Office the Evening before) and thence directed all the before-mentioned Degrees (except the Nobility) down into Weſtminſter-Hall, where the reſt of the Proceeding attended, and from whence the March began.

About half an Hour after nine, the Nobility (having been firſt called over in the Painted Chamber) proceeded each according to his Rank and Dignity, in their Robes, and Coronets, before the King, through the Court of Requeſts into Weſtminſter-Hall, aſcended up to the State, which was raiſed at the Weſt End, and placed themſelves upon each Side thereof.

His Majeſty being ſet in his Chair, under a rich Cloth of State: Firſt Sir Gilbert Talbot the Maſter of the Jewel-Houſe preſented the Sword of State, as alſo the Sword called Curtana, and two other Swords, to the Lord High Conſtable, who took and delivered them to the Lord High Chamberlain, and he (having drawn the laſt) laid them upon the Table before the King.

Then the ſaid Maſter of the Jewel-Houſe delivered likewiſe the Spurs to the Lord High Conſtable; and he again the ſame to the Lord High Chamberlain, who alſo placed them upon the Table.

Immediately after the Dean and Prebends of Weſtminſter, (by whom the Regalia had been brought in Proceſſion from the Abbey Church unto Weſtminſter-Hall) being veſted in rich Copes, proceeded from the lower End thereof in Manner following:

The Serjeant of the Veſtry, in a Scarlet Mantle.

The Children of the King's Chapel, being twelve in Number, in Scarlet Mantles.

The Quire of Weſtminſter in Surplices.

The Gentlemen of the King's Chapel, being thirty three in Number, in Scarlet Mantles.

Doctor Dowty the Spoon.

Doctor Buſby the Ampulla.

All ſtanding towards the lower End of the Hall, ready to proceed, they made their firſt Reverence together; then coming to the Middle of the ſaid Hall they there made a ſecond; and thence going a little further, both the Quires fell off, and ſtood on either Side, through which Lane the Purſuivants, Heralds, and Kings paſſing, fell likewiſe off on either Side, the Seniors ſtill placing themſelves uppermoſt towards the Throne; after whom, the Dean and Prebends proceeded, and arrived at the Foot of the Stone Steps, aſcending to the Throne where they made another Reverence.

This being done, the Dean and Prebends, with Garter, Principal King of Arms before them, (he having waited their coming together) aſcended the Steps, and approaching near to the Table before the King, made their laſt Reverence.

The Dean firſt preſented the Crown, which was by the Lord High Conſtable, and Lord Great Chamberlain, ſet upon the Table, who afterwards took from each of the Prebends that Part of the Regalia, which they carried, and laid them alſo by the Crown; which done, they retired.

Then the Lord Great Chamberlain preſenting the Regalia ſeverally to the King, his Majeſty thereupon diſpoſed of them unto the Noblemen hereafter named, to be carried by them in the Proceeding to the Abbey Church, viz.

St. Edward's Staff to the Earl of Sandwich.
The Spurs to the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery.
The Sceptre with the Croſs to the Earl of Bedford.

Odrer of the Ceremonies in Weſtminſter Abbey.

When the Proceeding had entred the Abbey Church, all paſſed through the Quire, and thence went up the Stairs toward the great Stage; and as they arrived at the Top thereof, were diſpoſed by the Heralds into two Galleries, built on either Side the upper End of the Quire.

That on the North Side, received the Aldermen of London, the Judges, and Gentlemen of the Long Robe, the Quire of Weſtminſter, the Gentlemen and Children of the King's Chapel (excepting twelve Gentlemen, four Children, and one Organiſt, who went into a Gallery, raiſed on the South Side of the upper Quire, peculiarly appointed for them:) And in the Gallery on the South Side, were ſeated the Knights of the Bath, and Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber. The King being entred the Weſt Door of the Abbey Church, was received with an Anthem begun by the Quire of Weſtminſter; who with the Dean and Prebends, had before fallen off from the Proceeding, a little on the left Hand of the Middle Iſle, and ſtay'd there to attend his coming, where alſo a Fald-ſtool and Cuſhions were laid ready for his Majeſty to kneel at.

The Anthem ſung was the firſt, fourth, fifth, and ſixth Verſes of Pſalm. cxxii.

I was glad when they ſaid unto me, We will go into the Houſe of the Lord, &c.

The King arriving at the Fald-ſtool, kneeled down, and uſed ſome private Ejaculations; which being finiſhed, he thence proceeded into and through the Quire, up to the great Theatre (erected cloſe to the four high Pillars, ſtanding between the Quire and the Altar) upon which the Throne of State was placed (being a Square raiſed on five Degrees) at the Entrance whereof were ſet a Chair, Footſtool, and Cuſhion, covered with Cloth of Gold, whereon he repoſed himſelf.

The Biſhop of London crowned the King.

Immediately after the Biſhop of London (who was appointed to officiate, in Part, that Day, for the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, whoſe Age and Weakneſs render'd him incapable of performing his whole Duty at the Coronation) having the Lord High Conſtable, the Earl Marſhal, the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Lord High Chancellour, and Lord Chamberlain of the Houſhold before him, went firſt to the South, next to the Weſt, and laſtly, to the North Side of the Theatre, and at every of the ſaid three Sides, acquainted the People, That he preſented to them King CHARLES, the rightful Inheritour of the Crown of this Realm; and aſked them, if they were willing to do their Homage, Service, and bounden Duty to him.

Consent and Acclamations of the People.

As this was doing, the King roſe up, and ſtood by the aforeſaid Chair; turning his Face ſtill to that Side of the Stage, where the ſaid Biſhop ſtood, when he ſpake to the People; who ſignified their Willingneſs, by loud Shouts and Acclamations.

The ſame Queſtion was likewiſe put by the ſaid Biſhop to all the Nobility preſent.

The Anthem.

Immediately after, this following Anthem was ſung by the Gentlemen of the King's Chapel:

Let thy Hand be ſtrengthened, and thy Right Hand be exalted. Let Juſtice and Judgment be the Preparation of thy Seat, and Mercy and Truth go before thy Face.

In which Time, a large Carpet was ſpread by a Groom and Page of the removing Wardrobe from the Altar, down below the half Paces thereof, and over that a Silk Carpet and Cuſhion, laid by the Gentleman-Uſher of the Black-Rod, and Mr. Kinnerſley: Whereupon the Biſhop of London went down from the Stage towards the Altar, and having made his Reverence, placed himſelf at the north Side thereof.

Then the King deſcended from his Throne, and proceeded towards the Altar; being ſupported by the Biſhops of Dureſme and Bath and Wells, with the four Swords, the Grand Officers, the Noblemen and Biſhops, that carried the Regalia before him, the Dean of Weſtminſter alſo attending. Being arrived at the Steps of the Altar, he kneeled down upon the Cuſhion there laid ready for him, having firſt offered the Pall, (which was of Cloth of Gold and born by the Earl of Sandwich) as alſo a Wedge of Gold of a Pound weight (preſented unto his Hands by the Lord Cornwallis, Treaſurer of his Houſhold) both which were received from the King by the Biſhop of London, who laid them reverently upon the Altar. Immediately after his Majeſty retired to a Chair of State, ſet on the ſouth Side of the Altar a little below the Traverſe, of Crimſon Taffety.

After this the Biſhops and Noblemen that carried the Regalia drew near to the Altar, and preſented every particular to the ſaid Biſhop of London, who placed them alſo upon the Altar; and having ſo done, they retired to their Seats. Whereupon the King kneeled at a Fald-ſtool (ſet on the Right Side of his Chair of State) whilſt the Biſhop of London ſaid this Prayer.

The Prayer.

O God which doſt viſit thoſe that are humble, and doſt comfort us by thy holy Spirit, ſend down thy Grace upon this thy Servant Charles, that by him we may feel thy Preſence among us, through Jeſus Chriſt. Amen.

Sermon by the Biſhop of Worceſter.

This Prayer ended, the Biſhop of Worceſter went up into the Pulpit, placed on the north Side of the Altar oppoſite to the King, and began his Sermon, the Text being taken out of the 28th Chapter of the Proverbs, and the ſecond Verſe.

From the Beginning of the aforeſaid Offering to this Time the King was bare, but now he put on his Cap made of Crimſon Velvet, turn'd up with Ermines; with which he ſate covered all the Sermon Time.

On the King's right Hand ſtood the Biſhop of Dureſme, and beyond him the Noblemen that carried the Swords, who held them naked and erect.

Order of Sitting.

The Duke of York ſate a little behind him on his left Hand; next to whom ſtood the Biſhop of Bath and Wells, together with the Lord Great Chamberlain.

The Lord High Chancellour and Lord High Treaſurer, ſate on a Form behind the Duke of York; and behind them, in a Gallery, ſate the Ducheſs of York.

In the ſame Gallery alſo were placed,

Baron Bateville, Ordinary Ambaſſador from Spain.

Prince Maurice of Naſſau, Extraordinary Ambaſſador from the Elector of Brandenburgh.

Monſieur Weyman, the Elector's Chancellor, who was joined in Commiſſion with him.

The Count Coningſmark, Envoy from Sweden.

Monſieur Frieſendorf, Reſident of Sweden.

Monſieur Petcom, Reſident of Denmark.

Monſieur Pleſſis Bellieure, Envoy from Monſieur the Duke of Orleans.

Signieur Giavarina, Reſident of Venice.

Signieur Bernardi, Reſident of Genoa.

Monſieur La Motte, and Monſieur Frays, Envoys from the Prince Elector.

Monſieur Gormers, Deputy Extraordinary from Hamburgh.

An Envoy from the Cardinal of Heſſe.

The Marquis de Montbrun, with ſeveral other Gentlemen Strangers.

But Don Franciſco de Mello, the Ambaſſador of Portugal, was placed in the Lord Chamberlain's Box.

On the north Side of the Altar ſate the Biſhop of London, directly oppoſite to the King in the Archbiſhop's Chair, covered with purple Velvet: The reſt of the Biſhops were placed on Forms behind him.

And higher towards St. Edward's Chapel ſtood Garter Principal King at Arms, with the Officers of the ſtanding and moving Wardrobe, viz. Mr. Rumbal and Mr. Towneſend and Mr. Kinnerſley, in Scarlet Gowns, having a Crown embroidered with Gold on their left Sleeves; the Groom and Page of the Wardrobe having Scarlet Gowns alſo, but not the Badge of the Crown; the Serjeant of the Veſtry with his gilt Verge and other Vergers: With them alſo ſtood Mr. Aſhburnham, Mr. Seymour, Mr. Elliot, Mr. Progers, and Mr. Chiffinch, with ſome other of the King's Servants, who attended to do Service.

Oppoſite to them on the ſouth Side of the Altar, ſtood the Dean and Prebends of Weſtminſter.

St. Edward's ancient Chair (covered all over with Cloth of Gold) was placed upon the north Side of the Altar, a little lower than that belonging to the Archbiſhop, but ſomething nearer the Middle of the Iſle, and between the King's Chair of State and the Pulpit.

Near the Pulpit ſtood the Maſter of the Jewel-Houſe and the Lord-Mayor of London.

The Nobility not formerly named (who were ſeated upon Forms round about the Inſide of the Stage) when Sermon began, drew near to that Side thereof, which faced the high Altar and ſtood there.

On the Corners of the Stage near the high Altar, adjoining to the two uppermoſt Pillars were Places railed in for the provincial Kings, Heralds and Purſuivants.

The Serjeants at Arms, being ſixteen in Number, ſtood with their Maces on their Shoulders within the Rails, on either Side the Entrance of the Stage from the Quire.

Over the Door, and at the weſt End of the Quire, ſtood the Drums and Trumpets.

After Sermon.

The Coronation Oath.

Sermon being ended, the King uncovered his Head, and immediately the Biſhop of London aroſe from his Seat, and drew near to the King's Chair of State, and aſked him his Willingneſs to take the uſual Oath to confirm the Laws to the People, and namely the Franchiſes granted to the Clergy by St. Edward the Confeſſor, to maintain the Goſpel eſtabliſhed in the Kingdom, to keep Peace, execute Juſtice, and grant the Commons the rightful Cuſtoms; unto every of which Queſtions his Majeſty made particular Anſwers that he would.

Petition of the Biſhops.

Then the Biſhop of Rocheſter read the Biſhops Petition to the King; the Prayer whereof was, that he would preſerve unto them, and the Churches committed to their Charge, all Canonical Privileges, due Law and Juſtice, and protect, and defend them and the Churches under their Government: Which his Majeſty moſt graciouſly by a large Anſwer (which repeated the Words of the Petition) granted, and promiſed to perform. Afterwards the King, aſſiſted by the Biſhops of Dureſme and Bath and Wells, was led from his Chair up to the Altar (the Sword of State being born before him, and the Lord Great Chamberlain attending) where he took an Oath to perform and keep what he had promiſed; which Oath taken, the King was led in like Manner back to his Chair of State, and immediately the Biſhop of London begun the Hymn, Come Holy Ghoſt, eternal God, &c. the Quires ſinging the reſt of it.

The Hymn.

And a little before the ending thereof, the Fald-Stool was ſet again at the King's Right Hand, whereat (as ſoon as the Hymn was finiſhed) he kneeled, the Biſhop of London ſtanding before him, and ſaying the following Prayer.

A Prayer.

We beſeech thee, O Lord, holy Father, Almighty and everlaſting God, for this thy Servant Charles, &c.

The Prayer ended, the Biſhop of London went to the north Side of the Altar, the King ſtill kneeling, and forthwith the Biſhops of Peterborough and Glouceſter went and kneeled on the upper Hault-Pace of the Altar, where they began the Litany, the Quires ſinging the Reſponſes; the Dean of Weſtminſter kneeling all the while at the King's Left Hand.

The Litany.

After the Litany followed three Prayers, ſaid by the Biſhop of London at the north Side of the Altar: And a little before the laſt of them was ended, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury came out at the north Door of St. Edward's Chapel, veſted in a rich ancient Cope.

The Archbiſhop appears.

At the ending of the third Prayer, the ſaid Archbiſhop ſtanding before the Altar, began the Verſicle.

Verſicles.

Lift up your Hearts.

Reſp. We lift them up to the Lord.

Archbiſhop. Let us give Thanks unto the Lord our God.

Reſp. It is meet and right ſo to do.

Archbiſhop. It is very meet and right, and our bounden Duty, that we ſhould at all Times, and in all Places, give Thanks unto thee, O Lord, Holy Father, &c.

The King diſrobed.

This Preface being finiſhed, the King aroſe from before the Fald-Stool, and went to the Altar, ſupported by the aforeſaid Biſhops of Dureſme and Bath and Wells; where he was diſrobed by the Lord Great Chamberlain of his Royal Robes, which were immediately carried thence into the Traverſe erected in St. Edward's Chapel.

The Anointing.

Whilſt this was in doing, the Chair that was before placed at the Entrance of the Stage, was removed and ſet on the north Side of the Altar, betwixt it and St. Edward's Chair whereunto the King came, ſate down, and was anointed by the ſaid Archbiſhop, (while the Dean of Weſtminſter held the Ampulla, and poured the Oyl out into the Spoon) firſt in the Palms of both his Hands, in manner of a Croſs, the Archbiſhop as he anointed him, pronouncing theſe Words.

Prayer of Unction.

Let theſe Hands be anointed with holy Oyl, as Kings and Prophets have been anointed, and as Samuel did anoint David to be King; that thou mayſt be bleſſed, and eſtabliſhed King in this Kingdom, and this People, whom the Lord thy God hath given thee to rule over: Which he vouchſafe to grant, who with the Father, and the Holy Ghoſt, three in Perſon, and one in Unity, be bleſſed and praiſed, now, and for evermore. Amen.

After which the Quire ſung this Anthem:

Anthem.

Sadoc the Prieſt, and Nathan the Prophet anointed Solomon King; and all the People rejoiced and ſaid, God ſave the King.

Prayer.

At the End of which Anthem, the Archbiſhop ſaid this Prayer:

Look down Almighty God, with thy favourable Countenance upon this glorious King, &c.

And then proceeded with his anointing the King's Breaſt, between his Shoulders, on both his Shoulders, the two Bowings of his Arms, and on the Crown of his Head, in manner aforeſaid.

Which being done, the Anointing was dried up with fine Linen, and the Loops of his Shirt cloſed up by the Dean of Weſtminſter, and then the Archbiſhop ſaid theſe two Prayers:

Other Prayers.

God, the Son of God, Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, who is anointed of his Father with the Oyl of Gladneſs above his Fellows, &c. God, which art the Glory of the Righteous, and the Mercy of Sinners, &c.

During the Time of Unction, a rich Pall of Cloth of Gold (brought from the great Wardrobe by Mr. Rumball) was held over the King's Head by the Dukes of Buckingham and Albemarle, the Earls of Berks and Sandwich, as Knights of the moſt noble Order of the Garter.

After theſe Prayers, the Lord Great Chamberlain delivered the Coif to the Archbiſhop, who put it on the King's Head, and immediately after the Dean of Weſtminſter put the Coif, with the Colobium Sindonis, or Surplice upon the King: Whereupon the Archbiſhop ſaid this ſhort Prayer:

Prayer upon putting on the Coif.

O God the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, by whom Kings do reign, and Lawgivers do make good Laws, vouchſafe, we beſeech thee in thy Favour, to bleſs this kingly Ornament, and grant, that thy Servant Charles, our King, who ſhall wear it, may ſhine in thy Sight with the Ornament of a good Life, and holy Actions; and after this Life ended, he may for ever enjoy that Life and Glory which hath no end, through Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

This ſaid, the Dean of Weſtminſter having likewiſe fetched the Tiſſue-Hoſe and Sandals from the Altar, he arrayed the King therewith; as alſo with the Super-Tunica, or Cloſe Pall of Cloth of Gold, and girded the ſame about him.

But the Taffety and Shirt was not made uſe of at all.

After all this, the ſaid Dean took the Spurs from off the Altar, and delivered them to the Lord Great Chamberlain, who touched the King's Heels therewith, and forthwith ſent them back to the Altar.

Then the Archbiſhop received the Sword of State in the Scabbard from the Lord Chamberlain of the Houſhold, and laid it upon the Altar, ſaying this Prayer:

Prayer upon laying the Sword on the Altar.

Hear our Prayers, we beſeech thee O Lord, and vouchſafe by thy Right Hand of Majeſty, to bleſs and ſanctify this Sword, wherewith thy Servant Charles deſireth to be girt, that it may be a Defence and Protection of Churches, Widows and Orphans, and all the Servants of God againſt the ſavage Cruelty of Pagans, and Infidels; and that it may be a Fear and Terror to all thoſe that lie in wait to do Miſchief, through Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

This Prayer finiſhed, the Archbiſhop and Biſhops aſſiſting, delivered the Sword back to the King, ſaying, Accipe Gladium per Manus Epiſcoporum.

Whereupon the Lord Great Chamberlain girt it about the King, and the Archbiſhop ſaid, Receive this kingly Sword, which is hallowed for the Defence of the holy Church, and delivered unto thee by the Hands of the Biſhops, though unworthy, yet conſecrated by the Authority of the holy Apoſtles, &c.

After this the Dean of Weſtminſter took the Armill made of Cloth of Tiſſue (brought thither by Mr. Rumball, on the Behalf of the Earl of Sandwich, Maſter of the great Wardrobe) and put it about the King's Neck, and tyed it to the Bowings of his Arms, the Archbiſhop ſtanding before the King, with the Biſhop of London on his Right Hand, and ſaying, Prayer upon giving the Armill.

Receive the Armill of Sincerity and Wiſdom, as a Token of God's embracing, whereby all thy Works may be defended againſt thine Enemies both bodily and ghoſtly, through Chriſt our Lord.

Next the Mantle or open Pall being made of Cloth of Gold, and lined with red Taffety, was put upon him by the ſaid Dean; the Archbiſhop likewiſe uſing the Words of Signification, viz.

Delivery of the Pall.

Receive this Pall, which is formed with four Corners, to let thee underſtand, that the four Corners of the World are ſubject to the Power of God; and that no Man can happily reign upon the Earth, who hath not received his Authority from Heaven.

Bleſſing of St. Edward's Crown.

In the next Place, the Archbiſhop took St. Edward's Crown and bleſſed it, ſaying,

God the Crown of the Faithful, &c. bleſs and ſanctify this Crown, that as the ſame is adorned with divers precious Stones, ſo this thy Servant, that weareth it, may be fill'd with thy manifold Graces of all precious Virtues, through the King eternal, thy Son our Lord. Amen.

In the mean Time, St. Edward's Chair was removed into the Middle of the Iſle, and ſet right over againſt the Altar, whither the King went and ſate down in it, and then the Archbiſhop brought St. Edward's Crown from the Altar, and put it upon his Head:

Put upon the King's Head.

Whereupon all the People, with loud and repeated Shouts, cryed, God ſave the King; and by a Signal then given, the great Ordinance from the Tower were alſo ſhot off.

At the ceaſing of theſe Acclamations, the Archbiſhop went on, ſaying, Prayer at putting on the Crown.

God crown thee with a Crown of Glory and Righteouſneſs, with the Honour and Work of Fortitude, that thou by thy Miniſtry, having a right Faith and manifold Fruit of good Works, mayſt obtain the Crown of an everlaſting Kingdom, by the Gift of him, whoſe Kingdom endureth for ever. Amen.

Adding thereunto this Prayer,

 At which Words the King bowed his Head.*

O God of Eternity, &c. *bleſs this thy Servant who * boweth his Head unto thy Majeſty,* &c.

After the Prayer, the Archbiſhop read the Confortare,

The Confortare.

Be ſtrong, and of a good Courage, and obſerve the Commandments of the Lord, to walk in his Ways, &c.

In the mean while, the Quires ſung this Anthem,

The Anthem.

The King ſhall rejoice in thy Strength, O Lord: Exceeding glad ſhall he be of thy Salvation, &c.

Upon this, the Dukes, Marqueſſes, Earls, and Viſcounts put on their Coronets; the Barons their Caps; and divers of them came and ſtood about the King, who ſtill ſate in St. Edward's Chair.

Mr. Garter and the Provincial Kings put on their Crowns alſo.

Then the Maſter of the Jewel-Houſe delivered to the Archbiſhop the Ring, who conſecrated it after this Manner, ſaying, Conſecration of the Ring.

Bleſs, O Lord, and ſanctify this Ring, that thy Servant wearing it, may be ſealed with the Ring of Faith, and by the Power of the higheſt be preſerved from Sin; and let all the Bleſſings, which are found in Holy Scripture, plentifully deſcend upon him, that whatſoever he ſhall ſanctify may be holy, and whatſoever he bleſſeth may be bleſſed. Amen.

After which, he put it upon the fourth Finger of the King's Right Hand, and ſaid, Receive this Ring of kingly Dignity, and by it the Seal of Catholick Faith, that as this Day thou art adorned the Head and Prince of this Kingdom and People, ſo thou mayſt preſerve as the Author and Eſtabliſher of Chriſtianity, the Chriſtian Faith; that being rich in Faith, and happy in Works, thou mayſt reign with him, that is King of Kings; to whom be Honour and Glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

And then began this Prayer,

O God, to whom belongeth all Power and Dignity, give unto thy Servant Charles the Fruit of his Dignity, wherein grant he may long continue, and fear thee always, and always labour to pleaſe thee through Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

When this Prayer was finiſhed, the linen Gloves were delivered to the King by the Lord Great Chamberlain, who going to the Altar, ungirt his Sword, and offered it at the Altar in the Scabbard; which being redeemed by the Lord Chamberlain of the Houſhold, was drawn out of the Scabbard, and carried naked by him all the following Part of the Solemnity.

Then the Archbiſhop took the Scepter with the Croſs, from off the Altar, and delivered it into the King's Right-Hand, ſaying,

The Scepter delivered to the King.

Receive this Scepter, the Sign of kingly Power, the Rod of Kingdoms, the Rod of Virtue, that thou govern thyſelf aright, and defend the Holy Church, and Chriſtian People committed by God unto thy Charge, puniſh the Wicked, and protect the Juſt, and lead them in the Ways of Righteouſneſs, and that from this temporal Kingdom thou mayſt be advanced to an eternal Kingdom, by his Goodneſs whoſe Kingdom is everlaſting. Amen.

The Glove delivered by Mr. Henry Howard as a Claim for the Manor of Workſop.

Whilſt this was pronounced by the Archbiſhop, Mr. Henry Howard delivered to the King a rich Glove, which he put on his Right-Hand, and then received the Scepter. And after that the Archbiſhop ſaid this Prayer,

O Lord, the Fountain of all good Things, &c. Grant, we beſeech thee, to this thy Servant Charles, that he may order aright the Dignity, which he hath obtained, &c.

During which Time, the ſaid Mr. Howard performed the Service of ſupporting the King's right Arm, according as it was adjudged him by the Court of Claims, by Virtue of holding the Manor of Workſop in the County of Nottingham.

Scepter with the Dove.

Next of all, the Archbiſhop took the Sceptre with the Dove, and gave it into the King's Hand alſo, ſaying, Receive the Rod of Virtue and Equity, learn to make much of the Godly, and to terrify the Wicked, ſhew the Way to thoſe that go aſtray, offer thy Hand to thoſe that fall, repreſs the Proud, lift up the lowly, that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt may open to thee the Doors, who ſaith of himſelf, I am the Door, by me if any Man enter he ſhall be ſafe. And let him be thy Help, who is the Key of David, and the Sceptre of the Houſe of Iſrael, who openeth, and no Man ſhutteth, who ſhutteth, and no Man openeth; who bringeth the Captive out of Priſon where he ſate in Darkneſs and in the Shadow of Death. That in all Things thou mayeſt follow him, of whom the Prophet David ſaith, The Scepter of thy Kingdom is a right Sceptre, thou haſt loved Righteouſneſs, and hated Iniquity; wherefore God, even thy God hath anointed thee with the Oyl of Gladneſs above thy Fellows, even Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

After which the King kneeled, holding both the Sceptres in his Hands, whilſt the Archbiſhop thus bleſſed him;

The Lord bleſs thee and keep thee, and as he hath made thee King over his People, ſo he ſtill proſper thee in this World, and make thee Partaker of his eternal Felicity in the World to come. Amen.

The King in St. Edward's Chair kiſſed by the Archbiſhop and Biſhops kneeling.

Then the King aroſe, and ſet himſelf again in St. Edward's Chair, whilſt the Archbiſhop and Biſhops preſent, one after another kneeled before him, and were kiſſed by him.

In the mean Time the King's Chair of State wherein he was anointed, was ſet above the upper Steps at the Entrance upon the Theatre, whither the King went, as ſoon as he had perform'd the Ceremony of Kiſſing the Biſhops, having now four Swords born naked before him, the Archbiſhops, Biſhops, and great Officers attending: At his Arrival there the Archbiſhop ſaid this Prayer, the King kneeling;

Grant, O Lord, that the Clergy and People gathered together by thine Ordinance for this Service of the King, may by the moſt gracious Aſſiſtance of thy Goodneſs, and the vigilant Care of thy Servant our King, be continually governed and preſerved in all Happineſs.

Te Deum ſung.

Then the King aroſe, and repoſed himſelf in the ſaid Chair, whilſt both the Quires ſung Te Deum.

When Te Deum was ended the King aſcended his Throne placed in the Middle of the Theatre, the Swords, and great Officers ſtanding on either Side; as alſo the Biſhops, ſome in Copes, others in Rochets, the Archbiſhop then ſaying, Stand and hold faſt from henceforth that Place whereof hitherto you have been Heir by the Succeſſion of your Fore-fathers, &c.

Homage done by the Archbiſhop and Biſhops.

After this the Biſhops and Nobility did their Homage to the King in manner following:

And firſt the Archbiſhop of Canterbury kneeled down before the King's Knees, and ſaid,

I William Archbiſhop of Canterbury, ſhall be faithful and true, and Faith and Truth bear unto You, our Sovereign Lord, and your Heirs, Kings of England, and ſhall do and truly acknowledge the Service of the Land, which I claim to hold of you, in the Right of the Church: So help me God.

Which ſaid, he kiſſed the King's left Cheek.

The like did all the other Biſhops that were preſent.

Homage paid by the Nobles.

Then came up the Duke of York, with Garter Principal King of Arms, before him, and his Train born by two Gentlemen, who being arrived at the Throne, kneeled down before the King, put off his Coronet, and did his Homage: At which the Drums beat, Trumpets ſounded, and all the People ſhouted.

The like did the Dukes of Buckingham and Albemarle, for themſelves, and the reſt of the Dukes.

So alſo did the Marqueſſes of Worceſter and Dorcheſter.

Next the Earl of Oxford did Homage after the ſame manner for himſelf, and all the reſt of the Earls, who attended upon him, to ſignify their Conſents.

After him Viſcount Hereford did the like for himſelf, and the reſt of the Viſcounts, and then the Drums beat, and Trumpets ſounded again, and the People ſhouted.

Laſtly, Baron Audley in like manner did Homage for himſelf, and all the Baronage, who alſo accompanied him to the Throne, in Teſtification of their Conſents; which being finiſhed, Drums, Trumpets, and Shouts followed.

Note, That the Words of Homage were ſaid by every one of the Nobility that kneeled down, viz.

I N. N. do become your liege Man of Life, and Limb, and of earthly Worſhip; and Faith and Truth I ſhall bear unto you, to live and die, againſt all manner of Folks: So God help me.

Touching the King's Crown to ſupport it.

Afterwards the Duke of York and all the Nobility ſingly aſcended the Throne, and touched the King's Crown, promiſing by that Ceremony to be ever ready to ſupport it with all their Power.

Proclamation of the King's General Pardon.

During the Performing of this ſolemn Ceremony, the Lord High Chancellour went to the South, Weſt, and North Sides of the Stage, and proclaimed to the People the King's General Pardon, being attended by Mr. Garter to the South Side, and by a Gentleman-Uſher and two Heralds to the other two Sides.

And at theſe three Sides, at the ſame Time, did the Lord Cornwallis, Treaſurer of his Majeſty's Houſhold, fling abroad the Medals, both of Gold and Silver, prepared for the Coronation, as a princely Donation, or Largeſs, among the People.

Anthem.

The King being thus enthronized, the Gentlemen of his Chapel began this following Anthem;

Behold, O Lord, our Defender, and look upon the Face of thine Anointed:

The Violins, and other inſtrumental Muſick, (who were robed in ſcarlet Mantles, and placed in a Gallery erected over-againſt them, on the North Side of the Altar) anſwering alternately: At the Ending of which Anthem, the Trumpets ſounded, and Drums beat again. In which Time the King took off his Crown, and delivered it to the Lord High Chamberlain to hold; the Sceptre with the Croſs to Mr. Henry Howard, and that with the Dove to the Duke of Albemarle.

The Epiſtle,

The Epiſtle (taken out of the firſt Epiſtle of St. Peter, the ſecond Chapter, and beginning at the eleventh Verſe) and read by the Biſhop of Chicheſter.

And Goſpel.

The Goſpel (being Part of the twenty ſecond Chapter of St. Matthew, beginning at the fifteenth Verſe) by the Biſhop of Ely.

Nicene Creed.

After which the Nicene Creed was begun by the Biſhop of London, and ſung by the Gentlemen of the Chapel, with Verſe and Chorus; (that and the reſt of ſpecial Muſick for the Solemnity, being ſet by Captain Cook, Maſter of the Children of his Majeſty's ſaid Chapel) the Violins, and other inſtrumental Muſick placed in the Gallery over-againſt them, alternately playing.

All which Time the King ſtood by his Throne.

But towards the End of the Creed, he took again his Crown from the Lord Great Chamberlain, and put it on his Head; as alſo the Sceptre with the Croſs from Mr. Howard, and that with the Dove from the Duke of Albemarle, and prepared for his Deſcent from his Throne towards the Altar, to receive the Communion.

The King deſcends from his Throne to go toward the Altar.

And as ſoon as the Singing of the Creed was fully ended, the King deſcended with the Crown on his Head, and Sceptres in both Hands, (the Biſhops of Dureſm, and Bath and Wells ſupported him) with the four Swords naked before, and all the great Officers attending.

In the Time of this Proceeding the Quire ſung.

Let my Prayer come up into thy Preſence as the Incenſe, and the lifting up of my Hand be as an Evening Sacrifice.

The Archbiſhop of Canterbury retired, and left the Remainder of the Office to the Biſhop of London.

Here the Archbiſhop of Canterbury retired from the Ceremonies into St. Edward's Chapel, and thence went home, leaving the Remainder of his Duty to be performed by the Biſhop of London.

Bread and Wine offered by the King at the Altar.

At the King's Approach to the Altar, the Biſhop of Ely delivered unto him Bread and Wine, which he there offered, and then returned to the Fald-ſtool, on the South Side of the Altar, near his Chair of State, before which he kneeled down, and laid his Crown upon the Cuſhion before him, towards his right Hand; and the Sceptre with the Dove on his left; and gave again to Mr. Howard the Sceptre with the Croſs, who held it kneeling on the King's right Hand: The Grand Officers, and the Noblemen, with the four Swords naked, and erect, ſtanding about him.

Then the Biſhop of London ſaid this Prayer:

Prayer by the Biſhop of London.

Bleſs, O Lord we beſeech thee, theſe thy Gifts, and ſanctify them unto this holy Uſe, &c.

At the End of which, the Lord Cornwallis, Treaſurer of the Houſhold, preſented the King with another Wedge of Gold; which goeth under the Name of the Mark of Gold. This the King offered into the Baſon, kneeling ſtill at his Fald-ſtool, whilſt the Biſhop of London ſaid the following Prayer:

The King's Offering of Gold.

Prayer,

Almighty God give thee the Dew of Heaven, and the Fatneſs of the Earth, and abundance of Corn and Wine, &c.

And next pronounced this Bleſſing;

And Bleſſing.

Bleſs, O Lord, the virtuous Carriage of this King, and accept the Work of his Hands: Repleniſh the Realm with the Bleſſings of Heaven, of the Dew, of the Water, and of the Deeps.

Conſecration of the Sacrament.

Then the Biſhop proceeded to the Conſecration of the Sacrament: Which being finiſhed, he firſt of all receiv'd; next the Dean of Weſtminſter; then the Biſhop of Bath and Wells; and laſtly, the Biſhop of Dureſme.

Theſe four Prelates having communicated, Preparation was made for the King's Receiving, who kneeled all this while before his Fald-ſtool.

The Towel was brought thither by Mr. Rumbal, on the Behalf of the Maſter of the Wardrobe, and preſented to the Biſhops of Hereford and Carliſle, who held it before the King, while he received.

The King received.

The Biſhop of London gave the King the Bread, and the Dean of Weſtminſter the Cup.

As ſoon as the King had received, this Anthem was begun by the upper Quire,

Anthem.

O hearken unto the Voice of my Calling, my King and my God, &c.

The King returns to his Throne.

See April 23, 1662.

In the mean while, the King returned to his Throne upon the Theatre, with the Crown on his Head, and bearing the Sceptres in his Hands.

When he came thither, he put off his Crown and delivered it to the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Sceptre with the Croſs to Mr. Howard, and that other with the Dove to the Duke of Albemarle.

And then the Biſhop of London went on with the Communion, which being finiſhed, the King (attended as before) deſcended from his Throne crowned, with both the Sceptres in his Hand.

The King proceeds to St. Edward's Chapel.

The reſt of the Regalia (which lay all this while on the Altar, being delivered to the Noblemen, that brought them in the Proceeding to the Church) were carried before him, and thence the King proceeded into St. Edward's Chapel, the Organs playing all the while.

The Regalia delivered back.

Where being arrived, he took off St. Edward's Crown, and delivered it to the Biſhop of London, who immediately laid it upon St. Edward's Altar; all the reſt of the Regalia were given into the Hands of the Dean of Weſtminſter, and laid there alſo.

After-

The King diſrobed.

Afterwards the King entred into the Traverſe erected in the Middle of the Wall, on the Back-Side of the High Altar, and there retired, whilſt he was diſrobed of St. Edward's Robes by Mr. Seymor, and Mr. Aſhburnham, Grooms of the Bed-Chamber, on the Behalf of the Lord High Chamberlain, Mr. Elliot, Mr. Progers, Colonel Philips and Mr. Chiffinch aſſiſting.

Theſe Robes were laid on St. Edward's Altar by the Biſhop of Dureſme; and afterwards delivered to the Dean of Weſtminſter to lay up with the Regalia.

The Imperial Crown ſet upon the King's Head.

Proceſſion to Weſtminſter Hall.

After this, the King was arrayed in his purple Robes, and then came near to St. Edward's Altar, where the Biſhop of London ſtood ready with the Imperial Crown in his Hands, and ſet that upon the King's Head; thereupon the King took the Sceptre with the Croſs in his right Hand, with the Globe in his left; and immediately the Proceeding (ordered alſo by the Heralds) began thence into Weſtminſter Hall, the ſame Way that he came, and attended after the ſame Manner, ſaving that the Noblemen and Biſhops which brought the Regalia to the Abby-Church, went not now immediately before the King, as they did then, but were ranked in Places according to their Degrees and Conſecrations: All the Noblemen, with their Coronets and Caps on their Heads. The Kings of Arms marched likewiſe with their Crowns on.

The Tables in the Hall.

The Proceeding being entred into Weſtminſter Hall, the Nobility, and others, who had Tables aſſigned them, went and placed themſelves thereat; but the King (attended with the great Officers) withdrew into the Inner Court of Wards, for half an Hour.

In the mean Time all the Tables in the Hall were ſerved, viz. before the King's Service came up; and were placed in this Manner:

On the King's right Hand the Biſhops.

Below them the Judges.

On the right Hand of the King's Throne below in the Hall, were ſet two Tables, one beneath the other: At the upper End of the firſt next the State, (which had two Side Tables to ſerve it) ſate the Biſhops, and below them the Judges, with the reſt of the Long Robe.

Maſters of the Chancery and Six Clerks.

At the ſecond Table, (which had two Side-Board Tables likewiſe to ſerve it) ſate the Maſters of the Chancery, and the Six Clerks.

Barons of the Cinque-Ports.

And here at this Table were the Barons of the Cinque-Ports neceſſitated to ſit, although the upper End of the firſt Table was appointed for them.

The Canopy ſeized by the King's Footmen.

Defended and obtained by the Barons of the Cinque-Ports.

The Footmen impriſoned and diſmiſſed the King's Service,

The Occaſion this: No ſooner had the aforeſaid Barons brought up the King to the Foot of the Stairs in Weſtminſter Hall, aſcending to his Throne, and turned on the left Hand (towards their own Table) out of the Way, but the King's Footmen moſt inſolently and violently ſeized upon the Canopy, which the Barons endeavouring to keep, and defend, were by their Number and Strength dragg'd down to the lower End of the Hall, nevertheleſs ſtill keeping their Hold: And, had not Mr. Owen, York-Herald, been accidentally near the Hall Door and ſeeing the Conteſt, cauſed the ſame to be ſhut, the Foot-men had certainly carried it away by Force. But in the interim alſo, (ſpeedy Notice hereof having been given the King) one of the Querries were ſent from him, with Command to impriſon the Foot-men, and diſmiſs them out of his Service, which put an End to the preſent Diſturbance.

And made their Submiſſion to the Court of Claims.

Theſe Foot-men were alſo commanded to make their Submiſſion to the Court of Claims, which was accordingly done by them the thirtieth of April following, and the Canopy then deliver'd back to the ſaid Barons.

Whilſt this Diſturbance happen'd, the upper End of the aforeſaid Table was taken up by the Biſhops, Judges, &c. and hereupon it came to paſs, that the Barons of the Cinque-Ports loſt their Places, and were neceſſitated to ſit down at the ſaid ſecond Table, with the Maſters of Chancery, &c. where there was Room left by ſome of the Long Robe that ſate at the upper Table.

Table for the Nobility:

Upon the left Hand of the King's Throne, below on the other Side of the Hall, was placed likewiſe a long Table, which reached down near to the Common-Pleas Court, whereat the Nobility dined; and this Table had four Side-Board Tables to ſerve it.

For the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of London:

And behind this, cloſe to the Wall, at a ſhorter Table, ſate the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder, and twelve chief Citizens of London, who had alſo two Side Tables to ſerve them.

For the Officers at Arms.

Laſtly, within the Court of Commons-Pleas was a Table with one Side Table to ſerve it, ſet for the Officers of Arms, whereat they alſo dined. Each Table was furniſhed with three Courſes anſwerable to that of the King's, beſides the Banquet.

The King ſits down to Dinner.

The King's Chair at Table.

A little before the King returned to Dinner, two Eſquires of the Body, viz. Ferdinando Marſham, and Henry Norwood, took their Seats upon two little Footſtools, on either Side of the Foot of the King's Chair, (placed in the Middle of the Table) and there ſate until the King came in to Dinner; when riſing and performing their Duty in placing the King's Robes for his better Conveniency of Sitting, they ſate down again at the King's Feet a good Part of Dinner Time, and until the King gave them Leave to riſe; he accepting that Time of Seſſion in full Performance of their Service.

Gallery for King's of Arms, Heralds, &c.

On the right Side of the Throne was erected a Gallery, for the Kings of Arms, Heralds, and Purſuivants; and oppoſite to that on the other Side, another for the Muſick: And below on the old Scaffolds, next the Court of Common-Pleas, ſtood the King's Trumpeters.

The

The King comes to Table.

Grace before Meat by the Biſhop of London.

Dinner being ſet upon the Table, the King came forth from the Inner Court of Wards, in his Royal Robes, with the Crown on his Head and Sceptre in his Hand, having the three Swords born naked before him, and went directly to his Chair at the Table, wherein he ſate down to Dinner, the Biſhop of London ſaying Grace. The Baſon and Ewer were brought up and preſented by the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, aſſiſted by the Lord Paget, and the Serjeant of the Ewery.

The Duke of York at a Table on the King's left Hand.

On the King's right Hand, the Noblemen, that carried the three Swords, ſtood holding them naked and erected, all the Dinner while; at his left Hand ſtood the Lord High Chamberlain, to whom the King had given the Sceptre to hold. And at the Table's End, on the King's left Hand ſate the Duke of York in his Robes and Coronet.

Lord Allington Cup-bearer.

Soon after Dinner was begun, the Lord Allington carried to the King his firſt Draught of Drink in a Silver Gilt Cup, being aſſiſted by the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, Viſcount Montague, and the Lord Paget his Aſſiſtants.

In Right of the Manour of Wymmundeley.

The Office of Cup-bearer, as alſo the Fee, having been by the Court of Claims adjudged to him, as being ſeized of the Manour of Wymmundeley in the County of Hertford; and when the King had drank, the ſaid Lord Allington received the Cup for his Fee.

Mr. Tho. Leigh brought the Dillegrout, in Right of the Manour of Addington.

Next, Thomas Leigh, Eſq; was brought up to the Table with a Meſs of Pottage, called Dillegrout, this Service being adjudged unto him by the aforeſaid Court of Claims in right of the Manour of Addington, in the County of Surrey; wheupon the Lord High Chamberlain preſented him to the King, who accepted the Service, but did not eat thereof.

Sir Edw. Dymock Champion in Right of the Manour of Scrivelſby.

His Manner of Riding into the Hall, &c.

Afterwards, a little before the ſecond Courſe was ready, Sir Edward Dymock (to whom the Court of Claims had adjudged the Office of the King's Champion, as being ſeized of the Manour of Scrivelſby in the County of Lincoln) entred the Hall on a goodly white Courſer, and armed at all Points in rich Armour, having a Plume of blew Feathers in his Helm, he there made a Stand for ſome Time, and then advanced in Manner following, Way being made for him by the Knight Marſhal.

First, two Trumpets.
The Serjeant Trumpeter.
The Serjeant at Arms.
An Eſquire carrying a Target, having the Champion's own Arms depicted thereon.
An Eſquire carrying the Champion's Lance upright.
Mr. Owen, York-Herald.
The Earl Marſhal on his left Hand.
The Champion.
The Lord High Conſtable on his right Hand. Both likewiſe on Horſe-back.

At the lower End of the Hall, York-Herald proclaimed the Challenge in theſe Words following:

The Form of Challenge made by him three ſeveral Times.

If any Perſon of what Degree ſoever, high or low, ſhall deny or gainſay our Sovereign Lord King Charles the Second, King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, Son and next Heir to our Sovereign Lord Charles the First, the laſt King deceaſed, to be right Heir to the imperial Crown of this Realm of England, or that he ought not to enjoy the ſame: Here is his Champion, who ſaith, that he lyeth, and is a falſe Traitor, being ready in Perſon to combate with him, and in this Quarrel will adventure his Life againſt him, on what Day ſoever he ſhall be appointed.

Thereupon the Champion threw down his Gantlet, which lying ſome ſmall Time, and no Body taking it up, it was delivered unto him again by York-Herald. Then all advanced forward untill the Champion came to the Middle of the Hall, where York-Herald made the like Proclamation, and the Gantlet was again thrown down, taken up, and returned to the Champion; who advanced to the Foot of the aſcending Steps to the State, and at the Top of the ſaid Steps, the ſaid Herald proclaimed the ſaid Challenge the third Time, whereupon the Champion threw down his Gantlet again, which no Body taking up, it was delivered unto him.

The King drinks to the Champion and gives him the Cup.

This being done, the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery (aſſiſted as before) preſented on the Knee to the King a gilt Cup with a Cover, full of Wine, who drank to his Champion, and by the ſaid Earl ſent him the Cup; and he after three Reverences drank it all off, went a little backward, and ſo departed out of the Hall; taking the ſaid Cup for his Fee, according as had been adjudged him by the ſaid Court of Claims.

The Reverence paid by the Heralds.

Garter King of Arms proclaim'd the King's Style.

When this Solemnity was finiſhed, the King's Heralds and Purſuivants deſcended from their Gallery, and went into the Hall to the lower End of the Noblemens Table, and there all together made their Reverence; thence they proceeded a little further, and there made a ſecond Reverence; and the like Reverence at the Steps aſcending to the State. Where all ſtanding ſtill, Garter, Principal King of Arms, cryed Largeſs thrice, and proclaimed the King's Style in Latin, French and Engliſh, making Reverence betwixt every Style. At the finiſhing of which they all retired backward into the midſt of the Hall, and there after crying Largeſs again thrice, he proclaimed the King's Style as before. Laſtly, they went yet backwards to the End of the ſaid Noblemens Table, and did the ſame again; and from thence into the Common-Pleas Court to Dinner.

Immediately after this, the ſecond Courſe was brought up by the Gentlemen Penſioners, with the former Solemnity.

Three maple Cups preſented for the Manor of Nether-Bilſington.

And the laſt Diſh being carried by Eraſmus Smith, Eſq; he having delivered the ſame to the Table, preſented the King with three Maple Cups, on the Behalf of Robert Bernham, Eſq; who was ſeized of the Manor of Nether Bilſington in the County of Kent.

A golden Cup to the Lord Mayor.

Laſtly, the Lord-Mayor of London preſented the King with Wine in a Golden Cup having a Cover, of which the King having drank, the ſaid Lord-Mayor received it for his Fee.

The King retired and returned to Whitehall.

By this Time the Day being far ſpent, the King (having Water brought him by the Earl of Pembroke, and his Aſſiſtants) waſhed, and roſe from Dinner before the third Courſe was brought in; and retiring into the Inner-Court of Wards, he there diſrobed himſelf: And from thence he went privately to his Barge, which waited for him at the Parliament Stairs, and ſo to the Privy Stairs at Whitehall, where he landed.

Thunder and Lightning at Dinner Time.

It is a Thing very memorable, that towards the End of Dinner-Time, (although all the former Part of the Day, and alſo the preceding Day, in which the King made his Cavalcade through London, were the only fair Days, that we enjoyed of many both before, and after) it began to Thunder and Lighten very ſmartly; which however ſome Sort of People were apt to interpret as ominous and ill-boding, yet it will be no difficult Matter to evidence from Antiquity, that Accidents of this Nature, though haply they might aſtoniſh and amaze the common Drove of Men, were, by the moſt prudent and ſagacious, look'd upon as a proſperous and happy Preſage: And of this Virgil gives a very pertinent Example, &c.

Obſervation of Mr. Baxter upon this Incident.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 303.

On April 23. was his Majeſty's Coronation Day, the Day being very ſerene and fair, till ſuddenly in the Afternoon, as they were returning from Weſtminſter-hall, there was very terrible Thunders when none expected it, which made me remember his Father's Coronation, on which, being a Boy at School, and having leave to play for the Solemnity; an Earthquake about two a Clock in the Afternoon did affright the Boys, and all the Neighbourhood. I intend no Commentary on theſe, but only to relate the Matter of Fact.

God's Goodneſs in crowning the King, declared in a Sermon in the Church of Kingſton upon Hull, on the happy Day of the Coronation of his ſacred Majeſty Charles Charles the Second, April 23. 1661. By Edward Boteler, some Time Fellow of St. Mary Magdalen College in Cambridge, and now Rector of Wintringham in the County of Lincoln.

Epiſt. Ded. To the Right Honourable John Lord Bellaſyſe, Baron of Worlaby, Lord Lieutenant of the Eaſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, and Governour of his Majeſty's Gariſon and Forts of Kingſton upon Hull.

These Notes were taken in your Lordſhip's Gariſon. ——I humbly beg your Lordſhip's Paſs, that they may go abroad under your honorable Name, &c.

A ſecond Epiſt. Ded. To the Right Worſhipful Chriſtopher Richardſon, Eſquire, Mayor of the Town of Kingſton ſuper Hull, and to the Aldermen, &c.

——This Sermon is made publick at your Command.——Some of the Malecontented Faction have been as unhandſome as they durſt in their Diſcourſes of it——you were pleaſed to treat it more ingenuouſly, and have got this Requital, that in your candid Reception of it, you have ſpoken your own Loyalty——and ſecured your Credit with the Ages to come, and ſweetned the Name of your Town, which before was ill-ſcented all the Nation over.

Text, Pſalm xxi. 3. For thou preventeſt him, &c.

We ſeem this Day to be in a Condition, much like that of the Diſciples, at the ſame Time poſed with and poſſeſſed of that incredible kind of Truth of the Reſurrection, of whom it is ſaid, that they believed not for Joy and wondered; we have lived to ſee a Day would have puzzled an active Faith to look for, and conſidered in all its Circumſtances; we do not yet without ſome pleaſing kind of Difficulty believe it, though we ſee it. A matchleſs Day! &c.

Propoſals to his Majeſty by the Preſbyterian Miniſters.

Two Papers of Propoſals concerning the Diſcipline and Ceremonies of the Church of England: Humbly preſented to his Majeſty by the reverend Miniſters of the Preſbyterian Perſuaſion.

The firſt PAPER.

May it pleaſe your moſt excellent Majeſty,

We your Majeſty's loyal Subjects cannot but acknowledge it as a very great Mercy of God, that immediately after your wonderful and peaceable Reſtauration tion unto your Throne and Government (for which we bleſs his Name) he hath ſtirred up your Royal Heart, as to a zealous Declaration againſt all Prophaneneſs in the People, ſo to endeavour an happy compoſing of the Differences, and healing of the ſad Breaches which are in the Church. —— In an humble Conformity to this your Majeſty's chriſtian Deſign, we taking it for granted, that there is a firm Agreement between our Brethren and us in doctrinal Truths of the reformed Religion, and in the ſubſtantial Parts of divine Worſhip; and that the Differences are only in ſome various Conceptions about the ancient Form of Church Government and ſome Particulars about Liturgy and Ceremonies, do in all humble Obedience to your Majeſty repreſent, &c.

The Conformiſts Plea for the Nonconformiſts ſaith, p. 28. that Dr. Allen of Huntingdonſhire, and Clerk in the Convocation did earneſtly labour with the then Biſhop of London (afterward Archbiſhop) that they might ſo refine the Liturgy, that no ſober Man might make Exception. He was wiſhed to forbear, for what ſhould be was concluded on or reſolved.

Bp. Ruſt complain'd, that Mr. Baxter accuſes the Clergy at the Savoy, that is, thoſe Biſhops, Doctors, and divers the learnedeſt Men in the three Kingdoms, (perhaps in Europe) with whom he there treated, of having ſpoiled the Work at that Seaſon, for want of Skill. And again, alas, that England muſt ſuffer ſo much, while the Biſhops are learning ro rule, and do their Office: Yea learning what weaker Perſons eaſily perceive, &c. I ſhall give you Reaſons that will make you know it, if you have but the Underſtanding of ordinary Men. This as to the Ignorance and Settiſhneſs, yea even of thoſe of our Party who are ableſt, ſuch I ſay as were thoſe at the Savoy, poor Dr. Sanderſon, Dr. Morley, Dr Gunning, Dr. Pearſon, &c. that had not the Underſtanding of Ordinary Men. The Proteſtant Peace-Maker, by Edward Lord Biſhop of Roſs, 1682. 4^to.

The ſecond PAPER.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

So great was the Comfort created in our Minds by your Majeſty's oft expreſſed Reſolution, to become the effectual Moderator in our Differences, and yourſelf to bring us together, by procuring ſuch mutual Condeſcenſions as are neceſſary thereto; as alſo by your gracious Acceptance of our Propoſals, which your Majeſty heard and received, not only without Blame, but with Acknowledgment of their Moderation, and as ſuch would infer a Reconciliation between the differing Parties; that we muſt needs ſay, that the leaſt Abatement of our Hopes is much the more unwelcome and grievous to us, in finding ſo much of the propoſed neceſſary Means for our Agreement (eſpecially in the Point of Government) here paſſed by in your Majeſty's Declaration, as if it were denied us, &c.

Mirabilis Annus, 1662. 4^to. p. 62.

A Relation of ſtrange and unuſual Accidents, together with ſome remarkable Judgments befalling divers Perſons in this Nation from June 1660. to the 23^d of April 1661.

I. One Mr. White, Miniſter of Ruſham in Suffolk, a Man of Parts, and one that did pretend very much Zeal for the Reformation of Religion in the Preſbyterian Way, upon the late Change did write in Vindication of Epiſcopacy, &c. or gave ſome ſuch like Teſtimony of his receding from his former Principle, and was one of the firſt Miniſters in thoſe Parts that attempted to read the Service Book: But it pleaſed the Lord to give him a very ſharp Rebuke, for upon his firſt Attempt he was ſmitten and fainted away while he was in the Reading-Place, but coming preſently to himſelf again he proceeded to read on, and was ſmitten in like Manner the ſecond Time, and ſo carried out of the Church for dead, &c.

This inſolent and ſeditious Practice of coining and vending new Prodigies and terrible Events gave Occaſion to a very ſober and learned Diſcourſe concerning Prodigies, wherein the Vanity of Preſages by them is reprehended, and their true and proper Ends aſſerted and vindicated. By John Spencer, B. D. Fellow of Corpus Chriſti College in Cambridge. Of which the ſecond Edition corrected and enlarged, with a ſhort Treatiſe concerning vulgar Prophecies, was printed 1665. 8^vo. In the Preface whereof the Author ſpeaks thus of the Seaſonableneſs of his Diſcourſe: We have been of late perſuaded by three or four ſeveral Impreſſions of Books, (more than were ever vented in any Ethnick or Chriſtian Commonwealth) that England is grown Africa, and preſents us every Year ſince the Return of his Majeſty, with a new Scene of monſtrous and ſtrange Sights, and all held forth to the People, like black Clouds before a Storm, the Harbingers of ſome ſtrange and unuſual Plagues approaching in the State, &c.

Mr. Baxter's Account of his reformed Liturgy.

Mr. Baxter's Narrative of his Life, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 306.

The drawing up of the Additions or new Forms of Prayer, was by the other Commiſſioners impoſed upon me alone. —— And at the Fortnight's End I brought it to the other Commiſſioners. And here for the better underſtanding this Work, I muſt give the Reader theſe few Advertiſements.

I. That one of my chief Reaſons for the doing of this Work was, that if really the Declaration were in Force and executed, our Brethren that ſcrupled the Uſe of the Common-Prayer, might have the Liberty of uſing ſuch Forms taken out of the Word of God, which they need not ſcruple.

II. And another was, that the Nation might ſee that in our Deſires of reforming the Liturgy, we were not for none, or for a worſe.

III. That it might be a ſtanding Witneſs to Poſterity, both againſt the Sectarians, who would have all Reformers run into Extreams; and againſt our Slanderers who would make the World believe that we do run into Extreams, and are againſt all Liturgies, and a Record that once ſuch a Thing was propoſed which we could ourſelves agree in.

IV. I made it an entire Liturgy, but might not call it ſo; becauſe our Commiſſion requir'd us to call it Additions to or Alterations of the Book of Common-Prayer.

V. I put in the directive Part call'd Rubricks, that the reſt might not be unintelligible, and the whole defective.

Mr. Baxter in his Apology for the Non-Conformity Miniſtry, applies to us more than once, as I remember, that Paſſage of the Apoſtle touching the unbelieving Jews, 1 Theſſ. xi 15. That we pleaſe not God, and are contrary to all Men. The Proteſtant Peace-Maker, &c. p. 68.

VI. I put in the Form and Order of Diſcipline, partly, becauſe elſe we ſhould never have had Opportunity therein to expreſs our Minds; and partly, becauſe indeed it belongeth to the Integrity of the Work, and to ſhew the Difference between their kind of Diſcipline in Chancellor's Courts, and ours by Paſtors in Chriſtian Congregations.

VII. Note, that the Method of the Litany and general Prayers is according to the Direction of the Lord's Prayer, of which and the ten Commandments it is a Commentary.——When I brought my Draught to the Brethren, I found them but entring on their Work of Exceptions againſt the Common-Prayer, and ſo I was fain to lay by mine above a Fortnight longer till their Work was done.

Complaints againſt Dr Leyburne and his Anſwers to them.

Dr. Leyburn's Encyclical Epiſt. 1661. 4to. p. 94.

Whereas (ſaith Dr. Leyburne, Preſident of Doway College) I was informed that Dr. Ellis, Mr. Curtis, &c. Dean and Chapter of the Catholick Clergy in England report, that they have writ ſundry Letters grievouſly accuſing me unto the Nuncio's reſiding at Paris, and the Internuncio's reſiding at Bruſſels, as likewiſe to the Court of Rome, whence they have received an Anſwer in theſe Words: Ingratiſſimum fuiſſe ſuæ Sanctitati viri factum, & ſi Clerus ipſum Regis Miniſtris tanquam Pacis Perturbatorem tradidiſſent, tantum abſuturam Curiam Romanam ab ipſius protectione, ut ultro ſupplicium ipſius fuiſſet promotura. Where is obſervable that having received the foreſaid Information, I writ unto the Internuncio's reſiding at Bruſſels, to whoſe Juriſdiction I am ſubject, humbly beſeeching his Lordſhip to acquaint me in particular with the Aſperſions my Adverſaries had caſt upon me: Whereby his Lordſhip imagining that I had ſuſpected him, by his not acquainting me with what had been writ unto him, in order to accuſing of me) anſwered me in theſe Words:

SATURDAY Apr. 27.

At Worceſter-Houſe the 27th Day of April 1661.

PRESENT,

The KING's Majeſty. Mr. Secretary Nicholas.
His Highneſs the Duke of York. The Earl of Berks.
The Lord Chancellor. The Lord Chamberlain.

Order of Council upon the Petition of the Univerſity of Oxford.

His Majeſty, upon reading the Petition of the Chancellor, Maſters and Scholars of the Univerſity of Oxon. complaining of divers Encroachments made on their Rights and Privileges by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Bailiffs, and Burgeſſes of the City of Oxford: And upon reading the Anſwer of the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen, Bailiffs and Burgeſſes in Writing under their Common Seal: And upon hearing Counſel on both Sides concerning divers Particulars in the ſaid Petition concern'd, viz. concerning the Oath yearly to be taken by the ſaid Mayor, Bailiffs and ſuch other Burgeſſes of the ſaid City, concerning an Oblation of ſixty three Pence to be made by the ſame Perſons every Year on St. Scholaſtica's Day, and concerning the Night-Watch and other Particulars: And his Majeſty being ſatisfied of the Juſtice of the Univerſity's Claim therein, finding that the Right of the Univerſity in theſe Particulars to have been often ſettled heretofore, partly by Order of the Council-Board in the Reigns of ſeveral of our Royal Progenitors and Predeceſſors, and ſometimes by Judgment in the Courts at Weſtminſter. And the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and other Burgeſſes of the ſaid City that attended at that Hearing, confeſſing and acknowledging, that until of late Years, they have taken the ſaid Oath, and made the ſaid Oblation, and not denying but that the Night-Watch was always claim'd by the ſaid Univerſity, and ſometimes had been adjudged for them, tho' the ſaid City did alſo pretend to a concurrent or co-ordinate Juriſdiction therein: And his Majeſty conceiving that the Right of the ſaid Univerſity, as to the other Particulars mention'd in the ſaid Petition was ſuch for which they had Relief at Law, and therefore might be referr'd thither: But that the ſaid Oath, Oblation, and Night-Watch, were Things conducing to the Government of the ſaid Univerſity, of which his Majeſty hath a very tender and peculiar Care and Regard; and of which his Majeſty will expect and require a particular Account: His Majeſty's Will and Pleaſure is, and it is hereby ordered, that the preſent Mayor, Bailiffs, Aldermen and Burgeſſes, to the Number of ſixty three in all, do forthwith take the ſaid Oath to obſerve and keep the lawful Liberties, Privileges and Cuſtoms of the ſaid Univerſity; and that the ſaid Mayor, Bailiffs, and the ſame Perſons, or the ſame Number of Burgeſſes ſhall make their Oblation of ſixty three Pence with the Arrearages thereof in Manner and Form as heretofore hath been accuſtom'd;

His Majeſty ſatisfied in the Juſtice of the Univerſity's Claim.

Concerning the yearly Oath to be taken by the Mayor and Burgeſſes.

Their annual Oblation of ſixty three Pence.

And the Night-Watch to be under the Juriſdiction of the Univerſity.

Order for confirming theſe Privileges.

Notwithstanding that St. Scholastica's Day, when this Oblation ought to have been made, be already paſs'd, and that they do continue to take the ſaid Oath, and make the ſaid Oblation from Year to Year for the Time to come, and at the Times and Places accuſtom'd: And that they do not for the Time to come intermeddle in the Night-Watch. And his Majeſty doth hereby further charge and command the ſaid Mayor, Aldermen, Bailiffs and Burgeſſes, that they do not at any Time hereafter moleſt or hinder the ſaid Univerſity in the Enjoyment of theſe herein before mention'd, or of any other their Rights heretofore claim'd us'd and accuſtom'd, and whereof the ſaid Univerſity was in Poſſeſſion in the Year one thouſand ſix hundred and forty, or at any Time before.

Mr. Goodman's Character of Cromwell in a Sermon at Cambridge.

Printed 1660. 4to.

A late Preacher at Cambridge (Mr. Will. Goodman of Kings College, in a Sermon before the Univerſity May 24, 1660.) had given this Laſh to Oliver Cromwell. —— I confeſs that the late Tyrant in one or two Inſtances ſeem'd to be ſomewhat modeſt; but I attribute that rather to the over-ruling Hand of Providence than to any Goodneſs of his. He ſtyled himſelf Protector of England, Scotland, and Ireland: This was a notorious Untruth, for he was the Ruiner and Deſtroyer of theſe flouriſhing Kingdoms. But here his Impudence fail'd him; that he durſt not adventure to write himſelf By the Grace of God. Again, you know Time was, when he would and would not be King; when he refuſed and yet hoped, that his Refuſal would gain him that Honour. But in Concluſion he miſs'd of that which he had ſought with ſo much Ambition. This again I aſcribe to divine Providence, whoſe admirable Contrivance it was, that the Crown, the ſacred Emblem of divine Power and Majeſty ſhould never touch that villanous and polluted Head.

Term. Paſch. 13 Car. II. in Scaccario, Dr. Thomas Parker [Paſke] Plaintiff, verſus John Seabrook & alios Defend.

A Suit for Procurations due to the Archdeacon of London.

Hardres, Rep.

The Plaintiff as Archdeacon of London exhibited his Bill againſt the Defendants as Parſons and Vicars in London, for certain Sums of Money due for their Proxies by Preſcription, and for which there is now no Remedy by the Eccleſiaſtical Law; to which the Defendants demurred, alledging the Thing in demand to be merely of Eccleſiaſtical Cognizance, and determinable in the Spiritual Court, & non alibi: And if the Title by Preſcription alters the Caſe, then the Plaintiff ought to have his Remedy at Law, and not in Equity. But of this the Court doubted. Et adjornatur.

A Suit in the Exchequer for Collections made to the new Corporation for Propagating the Goſpel erected by Cromwell;

Though the Corporation was diſſolved, yet the Charity Money to be paid in, as due to the King.

Hardres, ibid.

Chillenden being committed by this Court for Non-performance of a Decree, by which he was decreed to pay 32 l. 12 s. to a new Corporation made by the Protector, for the Propagation of the Goſpel in New-England, which Corporation had Power to make Collections for it; and having collected ſuch Sums of Money now in the Cuſtody of ſuch Perſons, they now come here by Habeas Corpus, and pray to be diſcharged, becauſe the Corporation is diſſolved, and they know not to whom to pay the Money; and becauſe by the General Act of Pardon all Contempts, &c. are pardoned. But the Court held, that this Collection being for a publick Uſe, the Money belonged to the King, and that the King is now entitled to it, as well as to the Money collected for buying of Impropriations as was lately adjudged. And they doubted whether a Perſon committed for not obeying a Decree was pardoned; for the Commitment of the Party is the Execution of the Decree, and there is no other Way of it. Et adjornatur.

For Loyalty and Episcopacy.

To his Grace his Majesty's High Commissioner and the High Court of Parliament,
The humble Address of the Synod at Aberdeen.

—— To reflect seriously upon the publick Transactions of this Church and Nation, especially upon the Department thereof to the King and the Royal Authority; to give Glory to God in an humble and ingenuous Confession, as of the national Guiltiness of Scotland, so of our own Iniquity, so far as we have been any Way accessary to those sinful and rebellious Affronts and Wrongs which have been put upon Royal Authority, —— the Rising in Arms against the King, the Preaching up the Lawfulness of defensive Arms by Subjects against the supreme Magistrate, &c. for which Sins done against Royal Authority God in his Justice and Wisdom brought and keeped us long under a sad Captivity and Bondage. —— Concluding with an earnest Petition, that his Sacred Majesty will allow us to be still under his Majesty's Protection, and that he may be pleased in his Wisdom and Goodness to settle the Government of this rent Church, according to the Word of God, the Practice of the antient primitive Church, in such Way as may be most consistent with Royal Authority, may conduce most for Godliness, for Unity, Peace, and Order, for a learned, godly, peaceable, loyal Ministry, and most apt to preserve the Peace of the three Nations, &c. At the King's College at Aberdeen the eighteenth of April, 1661. The Royal Prerogative vindicated in the converted Recusant convicted by Scripture Reasons, Fathers, and Councils, that the Oath of Abjuration [of the Pope's Supremacy] containeth nothing but what may be lawfully taken by every pious Christian and loyal Subject. And that the known Doctrine and Discipline of the Church of England, in Opposition to Popery on the one Hand, and all Sects and Schisms on the other, is the safest Way to Peace and Loyalty here, and Salvation hereafter.

P. 30. I suffered the Loss of four Loads of Goods, of above seventy Sheep, twelve Swine, and six Kine driven away at one Time, July 15, 1643. and August the fourth following, the Loss of my Living, the Gift of it to another bearing Date that Day, although the Place was supplied by my Care, until the uncivil and unchristian Carriage of some of you forced Forbearance. I lost my Reputation so far, as Credit would be given to malicious and false Reports, and Accusations of being a Malignant, an Enemy to the Cause of God, yea, such a one that all the Godly in Broughton refused to hear my Preaching, and went to Northampton. ——— One of your Articles against me being thus, He hath preached so unprofitably that three or four Score of his Parishioners have been forced to go into the Countrey to hear others. And he hath forced some to remove their Habitations, because they could not profit by him. —— And when a Committee-man told some of you, that I was esteemed by the Countrey a painful Preacher, he was answered, Ay, to little Purpose.

A further Account given by Dr. Walker upon good Information.

He was sequestred from the Rectory of Broughton, July 13, 1643. for no other Crimes than Loyalty and Conformity, being a Man of such unblameable Life and Conversation, that even those Times could not charge him with any thing of Immorality. On the contrary, the Committee, to their great Shame, were forced to tell him, That by his Example he did more Harm to God's Cause than twenty other Men, and therefore he should fare the worse for it. Although he was an infirm Man, he was forc'd to lye abroad in Haycocks, to avoid the much worse Accommodation of a Dungeon, in which several of his good Neighbours then lay. His Wife and five Children were also turned out of Doors, with this peculiar Circumstance of Barbarity, that she was not permitted to take so much as one Peck of Corn out of her own Barn to make Bread for her Children; nor could she ever recover any Fifths, though she several Times petitioned the Committee for them. Mr. Bentham, after his Sequestration, lived at Nether Winchendon in Bucks, where he had a little School, and by some Means or other was

Mr. Baxter's Account of the Election of Proctors to ſerve in Convocation for the Clergy of London at Chriſt Church, on the ſecond Day of May, 1661. —— With Obſervations made on it by the Author of the Conformiſts Plea for the Nonconformiſts, Part I.

Printed 1681.

Carried for Epiſcopal Members.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. P. II. p. 333.

At this Time was the Convocation choſen, for 'till now it was deferred: Had it been called when the King came in the inferiour Clergy would have been againſt the Dioceſan and Impoſing Way: But afterwards many hundreds were turned out, that all the old ſequeſtred Miniſters might come in. And the Opinion of Re-ordination being ſet a foot, all thoſe Miniſters that for twenty Years together, while Biſhops were laid aſide, had been ordained without Dioceſans, were in many Countries denied any Voices in the Election of Clerks for the Convocation: By all which Means, and by the Scruples of abundance of Miniſters, who thought it unlawful to have any thing to do in the chuſing of ſuch a kind of Aſſembly, the Dioceſan Party wholly carried it in the Choice.

They who wanted Epiſcopal Ordination were denied to vote in many Countries:

Yet in London the Election was carried for Mr. Calamy and Mr. Baxter.

In London the Election was appointed to be in Chriſt's Church, on the ſecond Day of May, 1661. The London Miniſters that were not yet ejected, proved the major Vote againſt the Dioceſan Party, and when I went to have joyned with them, they ſent to me not to come, as they did alſo to Mr. Calamy, and (without my Knowledge) they choſe Mr. Calamy and me for London. But they carried it againſt the other Party but by three Voices: And the Biſhop of London having the Power of chuſing two out of four (or four out of ſix) that are choſen by the Miniſters in a certain Circuit, did give us the great Uſe of being both left out, and ſo we were excuſed, and the City of London had no Clerk in the Convocation. How ſhould I have been there baited, and what a vexatious Place ſhould I have had in ſuch a Convocation?

But the Biſhop had the Privilege of returning two others choſen for other Parts of the Dioceſe.

The Spaniſh Ambaſſador oppoſes the Match with Portugal.

He repeated Manifeſto's againſt it.

Fanſhaw's Letters, 8vo, p. 67.

The Copy of a Paper preſented to the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty by the Spaniſh Embaſſadour the third of May, 1661. Printed and diſperſed in London.

S I R,

Offering other Matches with Proteſtant Princeſſes.

The twenty eighth of March the Spaniſh Embaſſadour delivered unto your Majeſty a Writing repreſenting the dangerous Conſequence of the Portugueze Marriage propoſed to your Majeſty; as alſo the ſolid Advantages which your Majeſty might obtain from Spain in this preſent Conjuncture with Peace, Tranquillity and Commerce, &c. The Ambaſſador finds himſelf obliged — to demonſtrate to your Majeſty, according to the laſt Order he hath received from the King his Maſter, that over and above the Offers which he hath already made for the Princeſs of Denmark, and for the Princeſs of Saxony, or any other Princeſs that may ſeem pleaſing to your Majeſty, he doth now propoſe the Princeſs of Orange, whom his Catholick Majeſty will adopt, and endow with the ſame Advantages, which have been propoſed with the Princeſs of Denmark and Saxony; in caſe that ſhe may be more pleaſing to your Majeſty, and with thoſe very ſame Advantages and Conditions which your Majeſty deſired with the Princeſs of Parma, when your Majeſty thought that Marriage would be convenient for you, &c.

Biſhop Burnet's Account, that the King reſolved not to marry a Proteſtant:

Bp. Burnet's Hiſtory of his own Times, Fol. p. 166.

And could find no popiſh Match but in Portugal.

The Motion was made by a Jew to General Monk, who encourag'd the Propoſal of it.

Vaſt Offers made, as the only means of ſaving Portugal deſerted by France.

It was natural for the King upon his Reſtoration to look out for a proper Marriage: And it was ſoon obſerved that he was reſolved not to marry a Proteſtant. He pretended a Contempt of the Germans and of the Northern Crowns. France had no Siſter. Spain had only two Infantas; and as the Eldeſt was married to the King of France, the ſecond was to go to Vienna. So the Houſe of Portugal only remained, to furniſh him a Wife among the crowned Heads. Monk began to hearken to a Motion made him for this by a Jew that managed the Concerns of Portugal, which were now given for loſt, ſince they were abandoned by France by the Treaty of the Pyrenees. ——The Portugueze being thus, as they thought, caſt off by France, were very apprehenſive of falling under the Caſtillians, who how weak ſoever they were in Oppoſition to France, yet were like to be too hard for them, when they had nothing elſe on their Hands: So vaſt Offers were made, if the King would marry their Infanta, and take them under his Protection. Monk was the more encouraged to entertain the Propoſition, becauſe ſome pretended, that in the Beginning of the War of Portugal, King Charles had entred into a Negotiation for a Marriage between his Son and this Infanta; And the Veneration paid his Memory was then ſo high, that every Thing he had projected ſeemed ſacred. Monk promiſed to ſerve the Intereſts of Portugal; and that was, as Sir Robert Southwell told me, the firſt Step made in that Matter. Soon after the King came into England, an Embaſſy of Congratulation came from thence with Orders to negotiate that Buſineſs. The Spaniſh Ambaſſador, who had a Pretenſion of Merit from the King in behalf of that Crown, ſince they had received and entertained him at Bruſſels, when France had thrown him off, ſet himſelf much againſt this Match; and among other Things affirmed, that the Infanta was incapable of having Children. —— But little Regard was had to all that he ſaid to break it.

At the King's firſt coming in, the Portugueze Ambaſſador negotiated this Buſineſs.

The Spaniſh Ambaſſador tried all Ways poſſible to break it off:

And affirmed the Infanta was incapable of having Children.

The French Ambaſſador ſolicited the Match with Portugal in Oppoſition to Spain.

And would have brib'd the Lord Clarendon to eſpouſe it.

At this Time Monſieur Fouquet was gaining an Aſcendant in the Counſels of France, Cardinal Mazarine falling then into a languiſhing, of which he died a Year after. He ſent one over to the King, with a Project of an Alliance between France and England. He was addreſſed firſt to the Earl of Clarendon, to whom he enlarged on all the Heads of the Scheme he had brought, of which the Match with Portugal was a main Article. And to make all go down the better, Fouquet deſir'd to enter into a particular Friendſhip with the Earl of Clarendon, and ſent him the Offer of 10000*l.* and aſſured him of renewing the ſame Preſent every Year. The Lord Clarendon told him, he would lay all that related to the King faithfully before him, —— but he rejected the Offer with great Indignation.

SATURDAY May 4.

Exceptions againſt the Common Prayer drawn up by the Preſbyterian Commiſſioners in the Savoy Conference.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol.

In the Work of the Commiſſioners drawing up Exceptions againſt the Common-Prayer, divers of them took their Parts, the chief Actors in that Part were Dr. Reynolds, Dr. Wallis, Mr. Calamy, Mr. Newcomen, Dr. Bates, Mr. Clarke, Dr. Jacombe, &c. Dr. Horton never came among us at all, nor Dr. Tuckney (alledging his Backwardneſs to ſpeak, tho' he had been Doctor of the Chair at Cambridge) nor Dr. Lightfoot but once or twice, nor Mr. Woodbridge but twice or thrice (dwelling far off.) Mr. Clarke brought in that large Enumeration of Corruptions in the Liturgy recited in the Abridgment of the Lincolnſhire Miniſters, but it was refuſed, becauſe we would be as little querulous as poſſible, leſt it ſhould offend and hinder our deſired Accommodation: And what Paſſages ſoever ſeemed to make the Common-Prayer odious, or ſavour of Spleen and Paſſion, they did reject whoever offered them. My principal Buſineſs was to keep out ſuch Accuſations as would not bear weight, and to repreſs the Opinions of one of the Brethren (who came from far, and ſo came not till late among us) who was abſolutely againſt all Parts of the Common-Prayer, becauſe they had been uſed by Papiſts to Idolatry. And I drew up ſuch Faults, as in peruſing the Common-Prayer Book itſelf, occurr'd to me, and which were they which I moſt diſliked in the Forms, being not ſo much offended with ſome other Things as ſome others were. But the Brethren reduced it to a few brief Exceptions in general, and would not by ſo particular an Enumeration of Faults provoke thoſe we had to

Mr. Baxter in a Letter to Dr. Hill had theſe Words — I have been in the Heat of my Zeal ſo forward to Changes and Ways of Blood, that I fear God will not let me have a Hand in the peaceable Building of his Church.

He had likewiſe thus expreſs'd himſelf in Print — I differ from many in ſeveral Things of conſiderable Moment; yet if I ſhould zealouſly preſs my Judgment on others ſo as to diſturb the Peace of the Church, and ſeparate from my Brethren, I ſhould fear leſt I ſhould prove a Firebrand brand in Hell, for being a Firebrand in the Church.

Yet he was not for charging the Common-Prayer with falſe Doctrine or falſe Worſhip;

And thought it lawful to join in it, if they could have no better.

Nay uncharitable to think it unlawful.

And in this Opinion he thinks all of their Side agreed, ſave one.

Old Mr. Aſh remembred this to have been the Mind of the old Nonconformiſts.

And he had heard ſome of their weaker Brethren ſo diſorderly in their Ways of praying, that he wiſh'd they would have rather uſed the Common-Prayer.

to do with, which I miſliked not. But from the Beginning I told them, that I was not of their Mind, who charged the Common-Prayer with falſe Doctrine or Idolatry or falſe Worſhip in the Matter or Subſtance; nor that took it to be a Worſhip which a Chriſtian might not lawfully join in, when he had not Liberty or Ability for better. And that I always took the Faults of the Common-Prayer to be chiefly Diſorder and Defectiveneſs; and ſo that it was a true Worſhip, though imperfect; and Imperfection was the Charge that we had againſt it, (conſidered as diſtinct from the Ceremonies and Diſcipline.) I looked at it as the Prayers of many a weak Chriſtian that I have heard, who prayed with Diſorder and Repetitions and unfit Expreſſions: I would not prefer ſuch a weak Chriſtian in Prayer before a better; but yet if I ſeparated from ſuch an one, or thought it unlawful to join with him, I ſhould be ſinfully curious and uncharitable. And I think this was the Mind of all our Brethren, ſave one, as well as mine: And old Mr. Aſh hath often told us, that this was the Mind of the old Non-Conformiſts, and that he hath often heard ſome weak Miniſters ſo diſorderly in Prayer, eſpecially in Baptiſm and the Lord's Supper, that he could have wiſh'd they would rather uſe the Common-Prayer.

They were only for a Reformation of the Liturgy, and that chiefly becauſe the People were ſet againſt it.

Yet when we deſired the Reformation of it, eſpecially at a Time when the Peoples Hearts were ſo much ſet againſt it, I thought it beſt to open the true Diſorders, that they might be reformed. The Paper which I offered, and we laid by, leſt it ſhould offend them.

Mr. Baxter's Paper of Exceptions,

Defectiveneſs, Diſorder, and vain Repetitions.

The Exceptions which I offered againſt the Common-Prayer to the Brethren when they were drawing up theirs.

The Common-Prayer Book is guilty of great Defectiveneſs, Diſorder, and vain Repetitions; and therefore unfit to be the common impoſed Frame of Worſhip to the God of Order, without Amendment, when we may do it.

1. No beginning with a Prayer for God's Aſſiſtance.

I. Order requireth that we begin with reverent Prayer to God for his Aſſiſtance and Acceptance, which is not done.

2. Creed and Decalogue ſhould go before Confeſſion.

II. That the Creed and Decalogue, containing the Faith which we profeſs to aſſemble for God's Worſhip, and the Law which we have broken by our Sins ſhould go before the Confeſſion and Abſolution, or at leaſt before the Praiſes of the Church, which they do not.

3. No Confeſſion of original Sin, &c.

III. The Confeſſion omitteth not only original Sin, but all actual Sin as ſpecified by the particular Commandments violated, &c.

This Paper laid by.

The Exceptions actually offered to the Biſhops.

But thoſe Exceptions which we actually offered to the Biſhops were as follows:

The Exceptions againſt the Book of Common-Prayer.

Beginning with Thanks for his Majeſty's Indulgence and Moderation.

And not doubting but all would be tender of the Churches Peace.

And find Expedients for healing and uniting.

They profeſs an high Eſteem for the firſt Compilers of the Liturgy.

And look on it as an excellent Work for that early Time.

Yet as it hath had already ſeveral Emendations:

Acknowledging with all Humility and Thankfulneſs, his Majeſty's moſt princely Condeſcenſion and Indulgence to very many of his loyal Subjects, as well in his Majeſty's moſt gracious Declaration, as particularly in this preſent Commiſſion, iſſued forth in purſuance thereof; we doubt not but the right reverend Biſhops, and all the reſt of his Majeſty's Commiſſioners intruſted in this Work, will, in Imitation of his Majeſty's moſt prudent and chriſtian Moderation and Clemency, judge it their Duty (what we find to be the Apoſtles own Practice) in a ſpecial Manner to be tender of the Churches Peace, to bear with the Infirmities of the Weak, and not to pleaſe themſelves nor to meaſure the Conſciences of other Men by the Light and Latitude of their own, but ſeriouſly and readily to conſider and adviſe of ſuch Expedients, as may moſt conduce to the healing of our Breaches, and uniting thoſe that differ. And albeit we have an high and honourable Eſteem of thoſe godly and learned Biſhops and others, who were the firſt Compilers of the publick Liturgy, and do look upon it as an excellent and worthy Work, for that Time when the Church of England made her firſt Step out of ſuch a Miſt of popiſh Ignorance and Superſtition, wherein it formerly was involved: Yet conſidering that all humane Works do gradually arrive at their Maturity and Perfection, and this in particular being a Work of that Nature hath already admitted of ſeveral Emendations ſince the firſt compiling thereof.

So farther Emendations might be made to ſatiſfy the Scruples of a Multitude.

It cannot be thought any Diſparagement or Derogation either to the Work itſelf, or to the Compilers of it, or to thoſe who have hitherto uſed it, if after more than an hundred Years, ſince its firſt Compoſure, ſuch farther Emendations be now made therein, as may be judged neceſſary for ſatiſfying the Scruples of a Multitude of ſober Perſons, &c.

After the Exceptions to the old Liturgy, Mr. Baxter offers a new or reformed Liturgy.

Ibid. Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. p. 333.

When the Exceptions againſt the Liturgy were finiſhed, the Brethren oft read over the reformed Liturgy which I offered them. At firſt they would have had no Rubrick or Directory, but bare Prayers, becauſe they thought our Commiſſion allowed it not; but at laſt they yielded to the Reaſons which I gave them, and reſolved to take them in; but firſt to offer the Biſhops their Exceptions. And ſo the fourth Day of May we had a Meeting with the Biſhops, where we gave in our Paper of Exceptions to them, which they received.

SUNDAY May 5.

Many of the Miniſters had tied themſelves down to Nonconformity, by refuſing to read any one Part of the Common-Prayer; tho' at the earneſt Deſire of the King to read ſo much as they had no Exception againſt.

Modern Pleas for Comprehenſion, Toleration, &c. 12°.

As to the Behaviour of our diſſenting Brethren, I ſhall deſire their Admirers to remember this one Thing, that his Majeſty, not long after his happy Reſtauration, did put forth a Declaration concerning Eccleſiaſtical Affairs, wherein he did very graciouſly indulge much to the diſſatisfied Part of the Clergy, in hopes thereby to win upon them: And in that Declaration he did propoſe this unto them, as a Way whereby they might ſhew their Gratitude for ſo great a Condeſcenſion; that they would read ſo much of the Liturgy as they themſelves had no Exception againſt.

But with many of them he could not prevail for ſo much as one Syllable, not one Collect, no nor ſo much as one Chapter according to the Rubrick, ſo much doth yielding work upon that good natur'd Generation. And whether this Refractorineſs, as to the whole Book, and every Part and Parcel of it, could poſſibly proceed ſolely and altogether from Conſcience, and not very much, if not altogether, from Deſign or Humour, let their beſt Friends ſpeak.

The Biſhop o Worceſter's Letter touching Mr. Baxter, 1662. 4to.

The Atteſtation of Dr. Gunning and Dr. Pearſon, concerning a Command of lawful Superiors, what was ſufficient to its being a lawful Command.

This Propoſition being brought by us, viz. That Command which commands an Act in itſelf lawful, and no other Act or Circumſtance unlawful, is not ſinful.

Mr. Baxter denied it for two Reaſons, which he gave in with his own Hand in Writing thus: One is, becauſe that may be a Sin per accidens, which is not ſo by itſelf, and may be unlawfully commanded though that Accident be not in the Command. The other is, That it may be commanded under an unjuſt Penalty.

Again this Propoſition being brought by us; That Command which commandeth an Act in itſelf lawful, and no other Act whereby an unjuſt Penalty is enjoined, nor any Circumſtance whence per accidens any Sin is conſequent, which the Commander ought to provide againſt, is not ſinful.

Mr. Baxter denied it for this Reaſon given in with his own Hand in Writing thus: Becauſe the firſt Act commanded may be per accidens unlawful, and be commanded by an unjuſt Penalty, though no other Act or Circumſtance commanded be ſuch.

Again this Propoſition being brought by us; That Command which commandeth an Act in itſelf lawful, and no other Act whereby any unjuſt Penalty is enjoined, nor any Circumſtance whence directly or per accidens any Sin is conſequent, which the Commander ought to provide againſt, hath in it all Things requiſite to the Lawfulneſs of a Command, and particularly cannot be guilty of commanding an Act per accidens unlawful, nor of commanding an Act under an unjuſt Penalty.

Mr. Baxter denied it upon the ſame Reaſons.

PETER GUNNING.
JOHN PEARSON.

Biſhop Morley's Account of Mr. Baxter's Behaviour on his own perſonal Knowledge.

I found Mr. Baxter at the Savoy engaged in a Diſpute, and I perceived that to keep himſelf off from that Part of the Argument which would preſs near to the Merits of the Cauſe, he had often affirmed in his Anſwers, that the Command of a moſt lawful Act was ſinful, if that Act commanded might prove to any one a Sin per accidens. This Aſſertion I did then and there preſently and openly lay to his Charge, and when he denied it (as it was moſt frequent with him immediately to deny what he had before affirmed) the Anſwers which he had delivered with his own Hand were produced, and upon the reading of them, the Juſtice of my Charge was moſt apparent. Whereupon I urged him farther, that this Aſſertion of his was not only falſe, but deſtructive of all Authority humane and divine, as not only denying all Power to the Church of making Canons Eccleſiaſtical for the better ordering and governing of the Church, but alſo taking away all Legiſlative Power from the King and Parliament, and even from God himſelf. I delivered at the ſame Time my Reaſon for what I ſaid, which was briefly this, becauſe there can be no Act in itſelf, but may prove per Accidens or by Accident a Sin: And therefore if to command an Act which may prove per Accidens a Sin, be a Sin, then every Command muſt be a Sin, then certainly God can command nothing, becauſe God cannot Sin; and by the ſame Reaſon Kings, Parliaments and Churches ought not to command any Thing, becauſe they ought not to Sin.

He would frequently deny what he had before affirm'd.

The Biſhop's Charge againſt him.

To which he gave no Satisfaction.

Thus far I then charged Mr. Baxter, and to this Charge he gave them no Satisfaction. —— As for his concurring with learned reverend Brethren (which he would pretend to be part of his Crime) and his invidious Inſinuation, that they are not forbidden to preach for it, though he be, the Reaſon is clear, he had often delivered this Aſſertion before the Company, his Brethren had not, the Words of the Anſwer were written with his Hand, not with his Brethrens. His Brethren had ſeveral Times declared themſelves not to be of his Opinion, and one of them particularly affirmed, that a Man might live without any actual Sin. And therefore we were ſo juſt, as not to charge them with this Aſſertion; eſpecially conſidering they did ſhew themſelves unwilling to enter upon this Diſpute, and ſeemed to like much better another Way tending to an amicable and fair Compliance, which was wholly fruſtrated by Mr. Baxter's furious Eagerneſs to engage in a Diſputation.

On this Wedneſday, May 8. Gilbert Lord Biſhop of London, with other Biſhops, Deans, Archdeacons and Miniſters, as alſo the Dean of the Arches, Advocates and Proctors, met at Dr. Barwick's Houſe in St. Paul's Church-yard, and went thence with the Vergers and Sacriſt with his Mace before them, thro' the little ſouth Gate into St. Paul's Cathedral, where the Dean, Reſidentiaries, and the reſt of the Canons of that Church in their ſeveral Habits received them, and conducted them into the Choir, where the Biſhops ſeated themſelves in their reſpective Stalls. All along after they entred the Church, till they were all ſeated, did the Choir ſing the Te Deum in Engliſh; and then the other Prayers and Service being ended, the ſecond Leſſon with the reſt of the Service for that Day, was read by the Sub-Dean: After which the Anthem of O Lord make thy Servant Charles, &c. was ſung, and then Doctor Thomas Pearce preached a very learned Sermon in Latin; which ended, another Anthem was ſung, and then the Lord Biſhop of London, Preſident of this Convocation, with the other Biſhops, Deans, and Clergy went into the Chapter-Houſe (that which now ſtands for the Chapter-Houſe, the goodly old Houſe being by the Impiety of Oliver Cromwell's Horſe Guard rendred unfit for Uſe) where his Majeſty's Writ directed to the moſt reverend William Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, for the calling of this Convocation, as alſo his Grace's Commiſſion to the Lord Biſhop of London and other Biſhops, was preſented to his Lordſhip by Dr. Chaworth his Grace's Vicar-General, and after read by Mr. William Fiſher, Clerk of the Houſe; after which the Lord Biſhop of London ſpake (in excellent Latin) to the lower Houſe of Convocation, deſiring them to go together, and chuſe their Prolocutor, whom they ſhould preſent the Thurſday following, May 16. in King Henry the Seventh's Chapel. Not long after, the reverend Dean of St. Paul's, Dr. Matthew Nicholas, with Dr. Thomas Turner Dean of Canterbury, and Dr. Richard Baylie Dean of Sarum, came up and ſignified to their Lordſhips, that they had elected Dr. Henry Fearne Dean of Ely for their Prolocutor, and Dr. John Pearſon Archdeacon of Surrey to preſent him. Which accordingly was done on Thurſday May 16. in King Henry the Seventh's Chapel, where three elegant Latin Speeches were made, one by the Preſenter, another by the Prolocutor, and a third by his Lordſhip the Biſhop of London in Approbation of their Election.

Opening of the Parliament.

For opening the new Parliament, the King to revive and eſtabliſh the ancient Grandeur of the Crown, rode in State from his Palace to Weſtminſter-Abbey, attended with the whole Body of the Nobility in their Robes, and all his Great Officers in Order, with Drums, Trumpets, and other Muſick. After ſuch a ſolemn and pompous Manner, as was little inferior to the Glories of a Coronation. After this Ceremonial was over, and a learned Sermon preach'd before him by Dr. Ironſide Biſhop of Briſtol, his Majeſty went into the Houſe of Peers.

The King's Speech.

His Majeſty's gracious Speech to the Lords and Commons, at the opening of the Parliament on the 8th Day of May 1661.

My Lords, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

His Majeſty values himſelf upon keeping his Word.

They could not well meet ſooner.

This an happy Day, an Anniverſary of the Peoples Love.

He knows many of the Members, and has heard well of the reſt.

I will not ſpend the Time in telling you, why I called you hither; I am ſure I am very glad to ſee you here: I do value myſelf much upon keeping my Word, upon making good whatſoever I promiſe to my Subjects: And I well remember when I was laſt in this Place, I promiſed that I would call a Parliament as ſoon as could be reaſonably expected or deſired; and truly conſidering the Seaſon of the Year, and all that hath been done ſince we parted, you could not reaſonably expect to meet ſooner than now we do: If it might have been a Week ſooner, you will confeſs there was ſome Reaſon to defer it to this Day; for this Day, we may without Superſtition love one Day, prefer one Day before another, for the Memory of ſome Bleſſing that befel us that Day, and then you will not wonder that the Memory of the great Affection the whole Kingdom ſhewed to me this Day twelve Month, made me deſirous to meet you again this Day, when I dare ſwear you are full of the ſame Spirit, and that it will be laſting in you: I think there are not many of you who are not particularly known to me; there are very few of whom I have not heard ſo much good, that I am as ſure as I can be of any Thing that is to come, that you will all concur with me, and that I ſhall concur with you in all Things which may advance the Peace, Plenty, and Proſperity of the Nation, I ſhall be exceedingly deceived elſe.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

He has prepared two Bills for them.

To confirm what was done at the laſt Meeting.

You will find what Method I think beſt for your Proceeding, by two Bills which I have cauſed to be prepared for you, which are for Confirmation of all that Eſpecially the Act of Indemnity and Oblivion.

that was enacted at our laſt Meeting: And above all, I muſt repeat what I ſaid when I was laſt here:

That, next to the miraculous Bleſſing of God Almighty, and indeed as an immediate Effect of that Bleſſing, I do impute the good Diſpoſition and Security we are all in, to the happy Act of Indemnity and Oblivion, that is the principal Corner-Stone, which ſupports this excellent Building, that creates Kindneſs in us to each other, and Confidence is our joint and common Security.

The Foundation of our publick Peace,

Not to be infringed in the leaſt Degree.

I am ſure I am ſtill of the ſame Opinion, and more, if it be poſſible, of that Opinion than I was, by the Experience I have of the Benefit of it, and from the Unreaſonableneſs of what ſome Men ſay againſt it; though I aſſure you not in my Hearing. In God's Name provide full Remedies for any future Miſchiefs, be as ſevere as you will againſt new Offenders, eſpecially if they be ſo upon old Principles, and pull up thoſe Principles by the Roots: But I ſhall never think him a wiſe Man who would endeavour to undermine or ſhake that Foundation of our publick Peace, by infringing that Act in the leaſt Degree; or that he can be my Friend, or wiſh me well, who would perſuade me ever to conſent to the Breach of a Promiſe I ſo ſolemnly made when I was abroad, and performed with that Solemnity; becauſe, and after I promiſed it, I cannot ſuſpect any Attempts of that kind by any Men of Merit and Virtue.

He tells them ſome News.

That he reſolves to marry;

And the Perſon.

The Daughter of Portugal.

By Advice of his Privy-Council,

Who agreed in it without one diſſenting Voice.

So all is concluded, and the Treaty ſigned.

I will not conclude without telling you ſome News; News, that I think will be very acceptable to you; and therefore I ſhould think myſelf unkind, and ill-natur'd, if I ſhould not impart it to you. I have been often put in Mind by my Friends, that it was high Time to marry; and I have thought ſo myſelf ever ſince I came into England: But there appeared Difficulties enough in the Choice, though many Overtures have been made to me; and if I ſhould never marry 'till I could make ſuch a Choice, againſt which there could be no Foreſight of any Inconvenience that may enſue, you would live to ſee me an old Batchelor, which I think you do not deſire to do. I can now tell you, not only that I am reſolved to marry, but whom I reſolve to marry, if God pleaſe: And towards my Reſolution, I have uſed that Deliberation, and taken that Advice as I ought to do in an Affair of that Importance: And truſt me, with a full Conſideration of the Good of my Subjects in general, as of myſelf; it is with the Daughter of Portugal. When I had, as well as I could, weighed all that occurred to me, the firſt Reſolution I took, was to ſtate the whole Overtures which had been made to me, and in Truth, all that had been ſaid againſt it to my Privy-Council; without hearing whoſe Advice I never did, nor ever will reſolve any thing of publick Importance: And I tell you with great Satiſfaction and Comfort to myſelf (that after many Hours Debate in a full Council) for I think there was not above one abſent; and truly I believe, upon weighing all that can be ſaid upon that Subject for or againſt it, my Lords, without one diſſenting Voice, yet there were very few ſate ſilent, adviſed me with all imaginable Chearfulneſs to this Marriage, which I looked upon as very wonderful, and even as ſome Inſtance of the Approbation of God himſelf; and ſo took my own Reſolution, and concluded all with the Embaſſadour of Portugal, who is departing with a whole Treaty ſigned, which you will find to contain many great Advantages to the Kingdom, and I make all the Haſte I can, to fetch you a Queen hither, who I doubt not will bring great Bleſſings with her to me and you. I will add no more, but refer the reſt to the Chancellour.

(After his Majeſty had finiſhed, the Lord Chancellour ſpake as followeth:)

Speech of the Lord Chancellour.

My Lords, and you the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes of the Houſe of Commons,

They were called by Writ, the only lawful Way of Meeting.

Interrupted in the late Confuſions.

The infant Commonwealth.

And the abſolute Tyranny of Cromwell.

We live to ſee the greater Bleſſings.

The King hath called you hither by his Writ; to aſſiſt him with your Information and Advice in the greateſt and weightieſt Affairs of the Kingdom: By his Writ, which is the only good and lawful Way to the Meeting of a Parliament, and the purſuing that Writ, the remembring how and why they came together, is the only Way to bring a happy End to Parliaments, there was no ſuch Writ as this, no ſuch Preſence as this, in the Year 1649. when this unhappy Kingdom was diſhonoured and expoſed to the Mirth and Reproach of their Neighbours in the Government of a Commonwealth; there was no ſuch Writ as this, no ſuch Preſence as this, in December 1653. when that Infant Commonwealth, when the three Kingdoms of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging were delivered up into the bloody and mercileſs Hands of a devouring Protector, and ſacrificed to his Luſt and Appetite; there was no ſuch Writ as this, no ſuch Preſence as this, in the Year 1656. when that Protector was more ſolemnly inveſted and inſtalled, and the Liberty of the three Nations ſubmitted to his abſolute Tyranny by the humble Petition and Advice. When People came together by ſuch exorbitant Means, it is no Wonder that their Conſultations and Concluſions were ſo diſproportioned from any Rules of Juſtice or Sobriety; God be thanked that he hath reſerved us to this Day, a Day that many good Men have dyed praying for, that after all thoſe Prodigies in Church and State, we have lived to ſee the King at the Opening of the Parliament. That we have lived to ſee our King anointed and crowned by the Hands of an Archbiſhop, as his Predeceſſors have been; and that we are come hither this Day in Obedience to his Writ.

The laſt Parliament not called by the King's Writ, yet ſeems to have been called by God himſelf:

The King tells you, he hath cauſed a Bill or two to be prepared for the Confirmation of all that was enacted in the laſt Parliament, and commends the

Yet the Acts of that Parliament may need a Confirmation by this.

They ought to be remembred with Honour.

Especially when this Parliament is owing to that.

The King's Promiſes to be depended on.

His great Goodneſs in preparing an Act for confirming that of Oblivion and Indemnity.

A bleſſed Change in reſtoring the King to his People, and his People to the King.

We may ſubmit to the King's Advice, and follow the King's Example.

The King deſires nothing but what is as good for us as for himſelf.

Diſpatch of thoſe to you, with ſome Earneſtneſs. The Truth is, it is a great Part of the Buſineſs of this Parliament to celebrate the Memory of the laſt, by confirming or re-enacting all that was done by that Parliament, which tho' it was not called by the King's Writ, may be reaſonably thought to have been called by God himſelf, upon the Supplication and Prayer of the King, and the whole Nation, as the only Means to reſtore the Nation to its Happineſs, to its ſelf, to its Honour, and even to its Innocence. How glad the King was of it, appears by what he writ to them from Breda, when he referr'd more to them than ever was referr'd to Parliament. He referred in Truth (upon the Matter) all that concern'd himſelf, all that concern'd Religion, all that concern'd the Peace and Happineſs of the Kingdom to them: And to their Honour be it ſpoken, and to their Honour be it ever remembred, that the King, Religion, and the Kingdom have no Reaſon to be ſorry that ſo much was entruſted to them; nor they to be aſhamed of the Diſcharge of their Truſt. It would have been a very unſeaſonable Scruple in any Man, who ſhould have refuſed to bear his Part in the excellent Tranſactions of that Parliament, becauſe he was not called thither by the King's Writ; and it would be a more unreaſonable Scruple now, in any Man, after we have all received the Fruit and Benefit of their Counſels and Concluſions, when in Truth we owe our orderly and regular Meeting at this Time to their extraordinary Meeting then, to their Wiſdom in laying hold upon the King's Promiſes, and to the King's Juſtice in performing all he promiſed, and to the Kingdom's Submiſſion, and Acquieſcence in thoſe Promiſes. I ſay it would be very unſeaſonable, and unreaſonable now to endeavour to ſhake that Foundation, which if you will take the King's Judgment, ſupports the whole Fabrick of our Peace and Security. He tells you what he ſhall think of any who goes about to undermine that Foundation, which is a Zeal no Prince could be tranſported with but himſelf; it might have ſeemed enough for a King who had received ſo many Injuries, ſo hardly to be forgotten, undergone ſo many Loſſes ſo impoſſible to be repaired, to have been willing to confirm, and to re-enact the Act of Oblivion and Indempnity, when you ſhould preſent it to him; but to prepare ſuch an Act for you, to conjure you by all that is precious, by your Friendſhip to him, to diſpatch thoſe Acts with Expedition; is ſuch a Piece of fatherly Tenderneſs and Piety, as could proceed from no Heart, but ſuch a one, in which God hath treaſur'd up a Stock of Mercy, and Juſtice, and Wiſdom, to redeem a Nation. And truly, my Lords and Gentlemen, for ourſelves, if we'll conſider how much we owe to thoſe, who with all the Faculties of their Soul contributed to, and contrived the bleſſed Change, the Reſtoring the King to his People, and his People to the King; and then how much we owe to thoſe who gave no Oppoſition to the virtuous Activity of the other (and God knows, a little Oppoſition might have done much Harm) whether we look upon the publick, or upon our own private Provocations, there will remain ſo few, who do not deſerve to be forgiven by us, that we may very well ſubmit to the King's Advice, and his Example; of whom we may very juſtly ſay, as a very good Hiſtorian ſaid of a very great Emperour; and I am ſure, it could never be ſo truly ſaid of any Emperour as of ours, Facere recte Cives ſuos, Princeps optimus faciendo docet; cumque ſit Imperio maximus, exemplo major eſt. Nor indeed hath he yet given us, or have we yet felt any other Inſtances of his Greatneſs, and Power, and Superiority, and Dominion over us, Niſi (as he ſaid) aut levatione periculi, aut acceſſione dignitatis, by giving us Peace, Honour, and Security, which we could not have without him, by deſiring nothing for himſelf, but what is as good for us, as for himſelf; and therefore I hope we ſhall make no Scruple of obeying him in this particular.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The laſt Parliament laid the Foundation, this to finiſh the Structure.

The King commends to them the poor Seamen,

For Juſtice to be done them in their Arrears of Pay.

Though the laſt Parliament did great and wonderful Things indeed, as much as in that Time they could, yet they have left very great Things for you to do. You are to finiſh the Structure, of which they but laid the Foundation; indeed they left ſome Things undone, which it may be they thought they had finiſhed. You will find the Revenue they intended to raiſe for the King, very much ſhort of what they promiſed: You will find the publick Debts for the Diſcharge of the Army and the Navy, which they thought they had provided for ſufficiently, to be ſtill in Arrear and unpaid. And here I am, by the King's ſpecial Command, to commend the poor Seamen to you, who, by the Rules which were preſcribed for their Payment, are in a much worſe Condition than, without Queſtion, was foreſeen they would be; for by appointing them to be paid but from 1658. (which was a ſafe Rule to the Army) very many are ſtill in Arrear for two, three, or four Years Service; and ſo his Majeſty's Promiſe to them from Breda remains unperformed, ſome other Loſſes which reſulted from other Rules given for their Payment have been ſupplied to them by the King's own Bounty: They are a People very worthy of your particular Care and Cheriſhing, upon whoſe Courage and Fidelity very much of the Happineſs, and Honour, and Security of the Nation depends; and therefore his Majeſty doubts not you will ſee Juſtice done towards them with Favour.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The two Houſes are the great Phyſicians of the Kingdom.

You are now the great Phyſicians of the Kingdom, and God knows you have many wayward, and froward, and diſtemper'd Patients; Patients who are in Truth

And ſhould take Care of the whole Body.

Not too ſevere and rough.

Rather ſomewhat indulgent.

Yet not ſuch an Indulgence as to give them a Liberty of Conſcience ſo as to be abſolved from the Obligations of Law and Conſcience.

Truth very ſick, and Patients who think themſelves ſicker than they are; and ſome who think themſelves in Health, and are moſt ſick of all. You muſt therefore uſe all the Diligence, and Patience, and Compaſſion, which good Phyſicians have for their Patients; all the Chearfulneſs, and Complacency, and Indulgence, their ſeveral Habits and Conſtitutions, and Diſtempers of Body and Mind may require: Be not too melancholick with your Patients, nor ſuffer them to be too melancholick, by believing that every little Diſtemper will preſently turn to a violent Fever, and that Fever will preſently turn to the Plague; that every little Treſpaſs, every little ſwerving from the known Rule, muſt inſenſibly grow to a Neglect of the Law, and that Neglect as inſenſibly introduce an abſolute Confuſion; that every little Difference, in Opinion or Practice, in Conſcience or Religion, muſt preſently deſtroy Conſcience and Religion: Be not too ſevere and rough towards your Patients in preſcribing Remedies, how well compounded ſoever too nauſeous and offenſive to their Stomachs and Appetite, or to their very Fancy; allay and correct thoſe Humours which corrupt their Stomachs and their Appetites: If the good, old, known, tryed Laws be for the preſent too heavy for their Necks, which have been ſo many Years without any Yoke at all, make a temporary Proviſion of an eaſier and a lighter Yoke, 'till by living in a wholſomer Air, by the Benefit of a ſoberer Converſation, by keeping a better Dyet, by the Experience of a good and juſt Government they recover Strength enough to bear, and Diſcretion enough to diſcern the Benefit and the Eaſe of thoſe Laws they diſliked. If the preſent Oaths have any Terms or Expreſſions in them, that a tender Conſcience honeſtly makes Scruple of ſubmitting to, in God's Name, let other Oaths be formed in their Places, as comprehenſive of all thoſe Obligations which the Policy of Government muſt exact; but ſtill let there be a Yoke, let there be an Oath, let there be ſome Law that may be the Rule to that Indulgence, that under Pretence of Liberty of Conſcience Men may not be abſolved from all the Obligations of Law and Conſcience.

The Diſtempers of twenty Years not to be rectified in twelve Months.

There are a ſort of Patients who do not own you for Phyſicians.

The ſeditious Preachers, who teach the very Doctrines they ſet on Foot in 1640.

I have beſought your good Nature and Indulgence towards ſome of your weak Patients, if by it they can be brought to follow and ſubmit to your Preſcriptions for their Health; nor is it reaſonable to imagine, that the Diſtempers of twenty Years can be rectified and ſubdued in twelve Months, there muſt be a natural Time, and natural Applications allowed for it: But there are a ſort of your Patients that I muſt recommend to your utmoſt Vigilance, utmoſt Severity, and to nō Part of your Lenity or Indulgence; ſuch who are ſo far from valuing your Preſcriptions, that they look not upon you as their Phyſicians, but their Patients; ſuch who inſtead of repenting any thing that they have done amiſs, repeat every Day the ſame Crimes, for the Indemnity whereof the Act of Oblivion was provided. Theſe are the ſeditious Preachers who cannot be contented to be diſpenſed with for their full Obedience to ſome Laws eſtabliſhed, without reproaching or inveighing againſt thoſe Laws how eſtabliſhed ſoever; who tell their Auditories, that the Apoſtle meant when he bid them to ſtand to their Liberties, that they ſhould ſtand to their Arms, and who by repeating the very Expreſſions, and teaching the very Doctrine they ſet on Foot in the Year 1640. ſufficiently declare, that they have no Mind that twenty Years ſhould put an End to the Miſeries we have undergone.

Such Miniſters of the Goſpel not to be thought of without Horrour; who inſtead of the being Meſſengers of Peace are the Trumpets of War, and Incendiaries of Rebellion.

The very heathen Prieſts and Nuns were to pray and to bleſs, not to curſe and ban.

Treaſon in the Pulpit worſe than in the Market.

A Miniſter of Chriſt turning Rebel is an Apoſtate and Blaſphemer.

They muſt provide to quench theſe Firebrands; or the whole Kingdom will be one general Flame.

What good Chriſtian can think without Horrour of theſe Miniſters of the Goſpel, who by their Function ſhould be Meſſengers of Peace, and are in their Practice the only Trumpets of War, and Incendiaries towards Rebellion? How much more Chriſtian was that Athenian Nun in Plutarch, and how ſhall ſhe riſe up in Judgment againſt theſe Men, who when Alcibiades was condemned by the publick Juſtice of the State, and a Decree made, that the Religious, the Prieſts and the Nuns ſhould revile and curſe him, ſtoutly refuſed to perform that Office, ſaying, that ſhe was profeſſed religious, to pray and to bleſs, not to curſe and ban. And if the Perſon and Place can improve and aggravate the Offence, as no doubt it doth, both before God and Man, methinks the preaching Rebellion and Treaſon out of the Pulpit, ſhould be as much worſe than the advancing it in the Market, as poiſoning a Man at the Communion would be worſe than killing him at a Tavern; and it may be in the Catalogue of thoſe Sins which the Zeal of ſome Men declares to be againſt the Holy Ghoſt, there may not be any one more reaſonably thought to be ſuch, than a Miniſter of Chriſt's turning Rebel againſt his Prince, which is a moſt notorious Apoſtacy from his Order, and his preaching Rebellion to the People as the Doctrine of Chriſt, adding Blaſphemy and Pertinacy to his Apoſtacy, hath all the Marks by which good Men are taught to know and avoid that Sin againſt the Holy Ghoſt: If you do not provide for the thorough quenching theſe Firebrands, King, Lords, and Commons ſhall be their meaneſt Subjects, and the whole Kingdom kindled into one general Flame.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The King to receive Thanks for what he has done ſince the Diſſolution of the laſt Parliament.

When the King ſpake laſt in this Place before this Day, he ſaid, when he ſhould call the next Parliament he ſhould receive their Thanks for what he had done ſince he had diſſolved the laſt; for he ſaid, He ſhould not more propoſe any one Rule to himſelf in his Actions or his Councils, than this: What is a Parliament like to think of this Action, or of that Counſel? And that it ſhould be want of Underſtanding in him, if it would not bear that Teſt. He told you but now that he values

Eſpecially for declaring this to be a Rule of his Counſels and Actions, what will a Parliament think of them?

Of the deſperate and prodigious Rebellion of Venner and his Crew.

The Combination reached further.

Prevented by the Induſtry and Courage of the Lord-Mayor,

Otherwiſe the City had been burned to Aſhes.

The King's Mercy as obſtinate as their Malice and Wickedneſs.

Sparing many of the Guilty.

And leaving the greateſt Offenders to the Judges of the Law in the ordinary Courſe of Juſtice.

lues himſelf much upon keeping his Word, upon performing all that he promiſes to his People; and he hath the worſt Luck in the World, if he hath not complied with this Promiſe, and if his Underſtanding hath failed him in it. It was in a very little Time after the Diſſolution of that Parliament, his Majeſty giving himſelf a few Days to accompany his Royal Mother to the Sea Side, (the only Time he hath ſlept out of this Town near this Twelvemonth) that the moſt deſperate and prodigious Rebellion brake out in this City, that hath been heard of in any Age, which continued two or three Nights together, with the Murther of ſeveral honeſt Citizens; let no Man undervalue the Treaſon becauſe of the Contemptibleneſs of the Number engaged in it; no Man knows the Number, but by the Multitude of intercepted Letters from and to all the Counties of England, in which the Time was ſet down wherein the Work of the Lord was to be done, by the deſperate Carriage of the Traytors themſelves, and their bragging of their Friends, we may conclude the Combination reached far; and in Truth we may reaſonably believe, that if the undaunted Courage, and indefacigable Induſtry of the Lord-Mayor of London, who deſerves to be mention'd before King, Lords, and Commons, and to be eſteemed by them, had not prevented it: I ſay it is probable this Fury would not have been extinguiſhed, before this famous City, or a great Part of it had been burned to Aſhes. If you enquire what the King did upon this unheard-of Provocation, what Vengeance he took upon thoſe whoſe profeſſed and avowed Principle was, not to diſtinguiſh between him and another Man, nay, to kill him ſooner than any other Man, you will find, as was ſaid of Cæſar, that Libentius Vitam Victor jam daret, quam victi acciperent, that his Mercy hath been no leſs obſtinate, than their Malice and Wickedneſs, that few Perſons have ſuffer'd, and that he hath reſtrained the Law from being ſevere to many, who at the ſame Time continue their Guilt, and undervalue his Compaſſion; that there hath not been a Week ſince that Time, in which there hath not been Combinations and Conſpiracies formed againſt his Perſon, and againſt the Peace of the Kingdom, which before this Time would have taken Effect, if God had not put it into the Hearts of ſome who were truſted in the Councils, to diſcover the Deſigns Time enough for Prevention, and upon all theſe Alarms, and the Interception of ſuch Letters, as would in all other Countries have produced the Rack for further Diſcoveries, and under the late Government in this, would have erected high Courts of Juſtice for their Puniſhment; he hath left the Offenders to his Judges of the Law, and thoſe Judges to the preciſe Forms, and ordinary Rules of the Law.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

If the Laws are deficient, new Remedies muſt be provided for new Diſeaſes.

The King will do nothing extraordinary, though for his own Preſervation.

If the new Licenſe and Corruption of this Time hath exceeded the Wickedneſs of former Ages, that the old Laws have not enough provided for the Puniſhment of Wickedneſs, they could not foreſee or imagine, it will become your Wiſdoms to provide new Remedies for new Diſeaſes, and to ſecure the precious Perſon of our dear Sovereign, from the firſt Approaches of Villany, and the Peace of the Kingdom from the firſt Overtures of Sedition: If you will not provide Laws to do it, the King will not do any thing extraordinary even towards his own Preſervation.

The King has acquainted the two Houſes with his Reſolution to marry, and whom to marry.

The moſt grateful News,

For the Good and Felicity of the People.

A Treaty with Portugal the moſt advantageous for this Nation,

In the Advancement of Trade, the Good of Religion, and the Honour of the Crown.

One Article inſiſted on, to ſupply Portugal with an Army,

That it might not be ſwallowed up by Spain.

Of which the King would conſider, and ſo delay'd the Treaty.

You ſee the Rule by which he hath walked, and as he hath made good his Promiſe to you, ſo I doubt not you will make good his Prophecy, and that he ſhall receive Thanks for what he hath done ſince he was laſt here. He hath told you now what he hath done, that he is reſolved to marry, and reſolved whom to marry; which I believe is the moſt grateful News that the whole Kingdom hath longed for, or could receive from the firſt Day of his landing here; and when they ſhall know the great Deliberation he hath uſed before that Reſolution, and the Circumſtances in reſolving it, they will ſurely have Cauſe to confeſs, that never King in the Diſpoſal of himſelf in Marriage, took ſo great Care for the Good and Felicity of his People. Within a very ſhort Time after his landing in this Kingdom, he was moved by the Embaſſadour of Portugal to renew a Treaty, lately made between that Crown and the Uſurper; a Treaty in very many Reſpects the moſt advantageous to this Nation, that ever was entred into with any Prince or People; a Treaty by which at this Time, that Crown is paying the Penalty (which the Uſurper exacted from it) for the moſt heroick and noble Act of Honour and Friendſhip performed by that King to our Maſter, that ever was performed by any Prince towards another Prince in Diſtreſs; and yet the King was nothing forward to ratify this Treaty, though it is very true, every Article in it, but one, was entirely for the Benefit of this Nation, for the extraordinary Advancement of Trade, for the Good of Religion, and for the Honour of the Crown; yet there was one, one ſingle Article that muſt oblige the King, as it did oblige the Uſurper, to ſupply Portugal with an Army for his Aſſiſtance when he ſhould require it, that is, that Portugal ſhould have Power to make Levies of ten thouſand Men for their Service: This the King foreſaw might produce a War with Spain, which he was very unwilling to undergo that Engagement; and yet his Council repreſented unto him how heart-breaking a Thing it would be to his People to loſe the Poſſeſſion of ſo great a Trade, and thoſe other immenſe Advantages they had by that Treaty; and that would be judged an irrecoverable Errour in Policy, if Portugal ſhould be ſuffered again to be ſwallowed up by Spain. However, the King was reſolved not precipitately to engage himſelf in ſuch a Treaty as might be attended with ſuch an Inconvenience, convenience, but to take Time fully to conſider of it; and this Delay the Portugueze could not be pleaſed with, and ſo the Embaſſadour returned home to his Maſter.

The Houſe of Commons had ſent up a Bill to unite Dunkirk and Jamaica to the Crown.
Which ſeem'd to have an univerſal Conſent.
The King was leſs warm in it,
And the Spaniſh Ambaſſador did his utmoſt to obſtruct this, and the Match with Portugal.
And offered higher Terms for a Match with Spain.
Which his Majeſty could not but approve and incline to.
Upon which he had call'd a full Council,
For their Advice in this great Affair,
And ſtated the whole Matter to them.
The Benefit and Advantage on the one Side, the Hazard and Inconvenience on the other.
Telling what the Spaniſh Ambaſſador had offered.
With Threats of War on the one Side, and Advantage of Dowry on the other.
Nay he had offered ſeveral Proteſtant Princeſſes with as great a Portion.
His Majeſty had commanded the Council to give their free Advice in it.
The Lords of the Council did accordingly adviſe his Majeſty not to be at the Diſpoſal of any other Prince, but to chuſe for himſelf.
The Spaniſh Ambaſſador had preſs'd for the delivering up Dunkirk and Jamaica.
Which muſt have been the Recompence for a Portion given by Spain.
The unanimous Advice of the Council was for the Match with Portugal.
Upon which the King had declared his Reſolution to the Portugal Ambaſſador.
And is preparing a Fleet to fetch home our Queen.
Which he now communicates to the whole Kingdom.

About this Time the Houſe of Commons ſent up a Bill to the Lords for the annexing Dunkirk and Jamaica to the Crown of England, which ſeemed to have the moſt univerſal Conſent and Approbation from the whole Nation, that ever any Bill could be attended with; yet the ſame Conſideration which retarded the Treaty with Portugal, made the King leſs warm towards the advancing of that Bill: And the Spaniſh Ambaſſador was as ſolicitous to obſtruct it, as he hath been ſince to obſtruct the Match with Portugal. This being the Caſe, and the Portugal Ambaſſador returning with ſuch particular Overtures to the King for a Marriage with the Daughter of that Crown, that both in reſpect of Portion, and many other tranſcendent Advantages for the Advancement of the Trade and Empire of this Kingdom, the like hath not been offered in this Age: And his Majeſty having received as full Information and Satisfaction in the Beauty and Excellency of that renowned Princeſs, as can be had without a perſonal Interview, (a Circumſtance very rarely admitted to Princes) it was not in his Majeſty's Power to be without ſome Approbation and Inclination to this Alliance: Yet even then he would not truſt himſelf in this great Affair, which ſo nearly and ſo dearly concerns himſelf, and himſelf above all others; though the Benefit and Advantage could but appear the ſame upon further Conſultation, yet there might poſſibly be ſome Miſchiefs, or ſome Inconveniences diſcern'd which he had not foreſeen: He reſolves therefore to call his Council, tells them ſome Days before, that he had an Affair of great Importance to impart to them, and to receive their Advice in; and therefore appointed an extraordinary Day, that they might all appear, (and truly I think there was but one Lord abſent, who was then indiſpos'd in his Health:) In this Council he ſtated the whole Matter, all that was offered of Benefit and Advantage, all that occurr'd of Hazard or Inconvenience, without the leaſt Diſcovery of his own Inclinations further than that you would have believed he had ſeen the Picture of his Miſtriſs, it having been a Speech he hath often accuſtomed himſelf to, that he would not marry a Woman he had not ſome Reaſon to believe he could love, though ſhe could bring him the Empire of the World. He did not conceal from my Lords what the Spaniſh Ambaſſador had offered againſt this Marriage, (who is not over reſerved in giving Counſel, nor in communicating the Counſel he gives) what Profers he had made of others, what Threats of War in one Caſe, what Advantage of Dowry in another; that he is ſo ſolicitous for the Advancement of the Proteſtant Religion, that he had offered ſeveral Proteſtant Princeſſes to whom his Maſter ſhall give a Portion, as with the Infanta of Spain: And truly leſs than the univerſal Monarch could not diſpoſe of ſo many Princeſſes, without the leaſt Conſent or Privity of their own. His Majeſty commanded all my Lords to deliver their Counſel and Advice freely, upon a full Proſpect of what might appear good and happy for his People, as well as for himſelf: Aſſuring them, as he hath done you now this Day, that as he never did, ſo he never will do any Thing of great Importance without conſulting with them. You will believe that my Lords of the Council are ſolicitous enough for the Advancement of the Proteſtant Religion, upon which the Welfare of the Kingdom ſo much depends: But they were very Apprehenſive that the firſt Proteſtant Daughter that ever any King of Spain had, would not probably bring ſo great Advantages to it, as was pretended: They have no Mind to encourage the King to a War, we have had War enough; but they do not think he ſhould ſo much fear a War, as out of the Dread of it to be at the Diſpoſal of any other Prince, and that when he hath freed his own Subjects from Wardſhips, and from Liveries, that he ſhould himſelf become a Ward to the King of Spain, and not marry without his Approbation and Conſent: They obſerved, that in the ſame Memorials (I do not mean that which he laſt printed, but a former) in which the Spaniſh Ambaſſador threatens War, if the King marries with Portugal; he preſſeth very earneſtly the delivering up of Dunkirk and Jamaica; and it is plain enough he would have that Recompence for the Portion he would give; and in Truth who ever is againſt the Match with Portugal, is for the Delivery of Dunkirk and Jamaica, a War being as ſure to follow from the latter, as from the former, and from neither, till the King of Spain finds it convenient for himſelf, which I hope he will not yet do. I will not enlarge upon the many Reaſons, the King hath told you the Concluſion: There was never a more unanimous Advice from any Council, not one diſſenting Voice in the beſeeching his Majeſty to make this Marriage, and to finiſh it with all the Expedition imaginable. Upon this he ſent for the Portugal Ambaſſador, declared his Reſolution to him, hath writ himſelf to Portugal, and is preparing his Fleet to fetch home our Queen. And I hope now he hath deſerved all your Thanks, both for the Matter and the Manner, and that not only our ſelves but the Ages that are to ſucceed us, ſhall have cauſe to bleſs God and his Majeſty for this Reſolution that he hath taken, and that he hath declared to us this Day, and hath reſerved for this Day, having obliged his Council to Secrecy, that he might himſelf communicate it to his whole Kingdom at once.

Directs them to chuſe a Speaker.

There are ſome other Particulars of Weight, but he will not mingle them with this great important one, which muſt ſo much fill your Hearts and your Heads, but will reſerve them till he ſees you again, after you have choſen your

Speaker, which he now leaves you to do, and to repair to your House for that Purpose, that you may present your Speaker unto him at four of the Clock upon Friday.

Biſhop Taylor*'s Sermon at the opening of the Parliament in* Ireland.

London, for R. Royſton, 1661, 4to.

A Sermon preached at the opening of the Parliament in Ireland, May 8. 1661. Before the Right Honourable the Lords Juſtices, and the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons, on 1 Sam. xv. 22, 23. By Jeremy Lord Biſhop of Down and Connor.

Epiſt. Ded. to the Lords and Commons.

Epiſt. Ded. To the Lords and Commons.

—— My Eyes are almoſt grown old with ſeeing the horrid Miſchiefs which came from Rebellion and Diſobedience; and I would willingly now be bleſſed with Obſervation of Peace and Righteouſneſs, Plenty and Religion, which do already and I hope ſhall for ever attend upon Obedience to the beſt King and the beſt Church in the World. —— I pray God continue to direct your Counſel, ſo that you in all Things may pleaſe him, and in all Things be bleſſed by him, that all Generations may call you bleſſed Inſtruments of a laſting Peace, the Reſtorers of the old Paths, the Patrons of the Church, Friends of Religion, and Subjects fitted for your Prince, who is Juſt up to the greateſt Example, and Merciful beyond all Examples, a Prince who hath been nouriſhed and preſerved and reſtored and bleſſed by Miracles; a Prince whoſe Virtues and Fortunes are equally the greateſt, &c.

The Ceremonies in opening the Parliament of Ireland.

Publick Intelligence, 4to. No. 19.

This Day May 8, the Lords Juſtices. the two Houſes of Parliament being met together, rode in great State to St. Patrick's Church. Before the Lords Juſtices were born the Robe Royal by the Earl of Kildare, the Cap of Maintenance by the Viſcount Montgomery, and the Sword by the Lord Baltingglas. The People were not a little joyed to ſee themſelves now fully repreſented by ſo many worthy Patriots legally called together by his Majeſty's Writ: But that which made this Proceeding moſt accompliſhed was to behold the moſt reverend Archbiſhops and Biſhops of this Kingdom, by whoſe pious and prudent Management of Affairs, the Church hath recovered much of her ancient Reverence, ſeveral of her grand Oppoſers being perſuaded to an high Reſpect for her. Being come to St. Patrick's, they heard an excellent Sermon preached by the right reverend Jeremy Lord Biſhop of Down and Connor, after which the Peers went to the Lords Houſe, and the Commons to theirs. —— The Commons nominated Sir Audley Marvin for their Speaker. —— The Speaker of the Houſe of Peers is that moſt reverend and moſt learned John Lord Archbiſhop of Armagh, Primate of all Ireland.

The preſent State of the Church of Ireland.

Life of Archbiſhop Bramhall, prefix'd to his Works, Fol. 1677. written by John Biſhop of Limerick.

His Majeſty deſigned to oblige the Church of Ireland, by ſending the Biſhop of Derry (Dr. John Bramhall) to the Government of it, as one that beſt knew her Conſtitution and Diſtempers: And accordingly he was made Archbiſhop of Armagh, Primate and Metropolitan of all Ireland. —— All Mens Expectations were fixed on him, and many of the Prime Nobility and Clergy in England, whoſe Names much more their Letters would tire the Reader, congratulated the Church's Happineſs in his Promotion, which the Queen of Bohemia in her Letter to his Grace, prays him to be confident, that none of his Friends is more glad of, or wiſhes him more Happineſs, than his ever moſt affectionate Friend Queen Elizabeth.

Ibid. p. 46.

The King proceeded by his Letters Patents in Right of his Power of Inveſtiture to appoint the Biſhops in the ſeveral vacant Sees, and iſſue his Royal Mandate to the Archbiſhop of Armagh for their Conſecration, by Virtue whereof his Grace in one Day, with the Aſſiſtance of thoſe few that had outliv'd the Perſecution laid his Hands on two Archbiſhops, viz. on Dean Margetſon then made Archbiſhop of Dublin, and Dr. Pullen of Tuam; and on ten Biſhops, viz. Dean Boyle Lord Biſhop of Cork, Dean Parker of Elphin, Dr. Taylor of Down, Syng of Limerick, Price of Leighlin, Baker of Waterford, Wild of Derry, Leſley of Drommore, Worth of Killalow, and Hall of Killala. Thus were ſeveral Paſtors ſet over the Flocks: Kildare only was yet without a Shepherd, as affording little Wool or Milk to him that ſhould feed it. But it was not long ſo, Dr. Thomas Price found the loſt Sheep, and took Care of it; and becauſe he was contented and faithful in a very little, he was afterwards tranſlated to the Archbiſhoprick of Caſhel, and ſo made Ruler of many Cities.

This ſo ſolemn and rare an Action (conſidering their Number) was performed in the Cathedral Church of St. Patrick's, Dublin: The Sermon being preached by the pious, eloquent and learned Biſhop of Down, the Lords Juſtices and Council attending the Ceremony, all Parts whereof were ſo gravely and ritely performed that it gave much Pleaſure to that great and noble Audience.

Reordination.

The Biſhop of Limerick in his Life of Archbiſhop Bramhall. —— I ſhall give but one Inſtance (but a memorable one) of his Grace's Prudence in turning the Edge of the moſt popular Objection of that Time: When the Benefices were called at his Viſitation, ſeveral appeared and exhibited only ſuch Titles as they had received from the late Powers; he told them they were no legal Titles, but in regard he heard well of them he was willing to make ſuch to them by Inſtitution and Induction, which they humbly acknowledged and intreated his Lordſhip ſo to do: But deſiring to ſee their Letters of Orders, ſome had no other, but their Certificates of Ordination, by ſome Preſbyterian Claſſes, which he told them did not qualify them for any Preferment in the Church. Whereupon the Queſtion immediately aroſe, Are we not Miniſters of the Goſpel? To which his Grace anſwered, that that was not the Queſtion, at leaſt he deſired for Peace Sake, of which he hopes they were Miniſters too, that that might not be the Queſtion for this Time. I diſpute not (ſaid he) the Validity of your Ordination nor thoſe Acts you have exerciſed by virtue of it, what you are, or might do here, when there was no Law, or in other Churches abroad, but we are now to conſider ourſelves as a national Church limited by Law, which among other Things takes chief Care to preſcribe about Ordination; and I do not know how you could recover the Means of the Church, if any ſhould refuſe to pay you your Tythes, if you are not ordain'd as the Law of this Church requireth, and I am deſirous that ſhe may have your Labours, and you ſuch Portions of her Revenue, as ſhall be allotted to you in a legal and aſſured Way. By this means he gained ſuch as were learned and ſober, and for the reſt it was not much matter. Juſt as I was about to cloſe up this particular, I received full Aſſurance of all I offer'd in it, the very Words which his Grace cauſed to be inſerted into the Letters of one Mr. Edward Parkinſon, whom he ordained at that Time, and from whom I had them by my reverend Brother and Neighbour the Lord Biſhop of Killalow. —— Non annihilantes priores ordines (ſi quos habuit) nec validitatem aut invaliditatem eorundem determinantes, multo minus omnes Ordines ſacros Eccleſiarum Forinſecarum condemnantes, quos proprio Judici relinquimus; ſed ſolummodo ſupplentes quicquid prius defuit per canones Eccleſiæ Anglicanæ requiſitum, & providentes paci Eccleſiæ, ut Schiſmatis tollatur occaſio, & conſcientiis Fidelium ſatisfiat, nec ullomodo dubitent de ejus Ordinatione, aut actus ſuos Preſbyterales tanquam invalidos averſentur. In cujus rei Teſtimonium, &c.

By this Prudence and Moderation he greatly ſoftned the Spirit of Oppoſition, and got effectually doubled the Point he aimed at.

The Government of the Kingdom was adminiſtred by Sir Maurice Euſtace the Lord Chancellor, and the Earls of Orrery and Montrath as Lords Juſtices, and a Parliament ſummoned and convened, with a Convocation May 8, 1661. of this the Primate was Preſident by his Place, and of the Lords Houſe in the other made Speaker by his Merit; that Office and the Character which the Lord Chancellour then bore being inconſiſtent, the Lords Juſtices thought none fitter for it than his Grace, though ſome Endeavours were uſed for another whoſe only Unhappineſs it was to be overmatch'd in his Competitions.

Some now boaſted that the Defence of the King's Perſon was one Branch of the Covenant, I ſhall ſay nothing to this but what Cromwell ſaid to ſome Preſbyterians in Scotland, when they charged him and the Rump with the Breach of their Oath in putting the King to Death, he told them it was done in purſuance and by virtue of the Covenant, which did but conditionally oblige them to defend the King in the Maintenance of the true Religion, which he was the greateſt Oppugner of, but it abſolutely engaged them to bring all Malignants to condign Puniſhment, and that conſequently the King being the Head of them, their right Hand was a right Hand of Iniquity that oppoſed the cutting of it off. By which Anſwer they ſaw themſelves intangled in their own Snare, and impartial Men by a fair Conſtruction of the Words of the Covenant, are ready to do him this Juſtice, that he conquer'd that Nation as well by his Argument as his Sword.

Proclamation againſt the Reſort of Beggars to London and Weſtminſter.

For the King's Printers, 1661.

By the King a Proclamation for the due Obſervation of certain Statutes made for the ſuppreſſing of Rogues, Vagabonds, Beggars and other idle diſorderly Perſons. —— Taking Notice of their unuſual Reſort from all Parts of the Nation to the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and the Suburbs of the ſame, where they get their Living by Begging, Stealing and other lewd Practices; and that there are excellent Laws for redreſs of ſuch Enormities, which through Negligence of the Officers, and the Preſumption of Offenders do rather grow than abate. Wherefore his Majeſty declareth his Royal Pleaſure, that ſuch neceſſary Laws as have been formerly made for reforming thoſe Abuſes be duly executed and obſerved, and the Statutes concerning Tipling and Drunkenneſs, — till his Majeſty by Advice of Parliament take a further Courſe, which he determines to do, that no Poor be permitted to beg, and the Impotent provided for, ſo as to live comfortably, and yet be kept from profeſs'd Idleneſs, and ſuch as are able may have means provided to ſet them on Work.

This Afternoon at two of the Clock, his Majeſty and the Peers being met in the upper Houſe, the Commons came and preſented their Speaker, Sir Edward Turner Attorney to his Highneſs the Duke of York, who excuſed himſelf ſo well, that the Lord Chancellor told him, that his Majeſty thereby (were there nothing elſe) conceived him very fit to continue Speaker, adding that Sir Edward was no Stranger to his Majeſty. Whereupon Sir Edward made a full and elegant Speech of all the late and preſent Proceedings, concluding with the uſual Requeſt for the Commons wonted Privileges of Freedom and Liberty of Speech within the Houſe, Protection from Arreſts for themſelves and Servants, and free Acceſs to his Majeſty upon emergent Occaſions. All which the Lord Chancellor in his Majeſty's Name aſſured them was freely granted: His Lordſhip further declaring his Majeſty's Reſolution for a Progreſs in July next, to viſit the City of Worceſter and many other Places, (even Stables and Hay-Lofts) where God ſo mercifully had preſerved his Majeſty's Perſon, during which Time his Majeſty would leave both Houſes (by a Receſs) to expedite their private and particular Affairs at home, and to meet him again at Winter, where he doubted not they ſhould find him with the Queen in his Arms, minding them from his Majeſty to provide againſt that exceſſive Drinking in Counties and Boroughs, before they chuſe their Knights and Burgeſſes, as alſo for the draining of the Fens, with many other conſiderable Particulars. After which they were chearfully diſmiſſed.

His firſt Speech to the King.

London, printed for John Williams, 1661, Fol.

The ſeveral Speeches of Sir Edward Turner, Knt. Speaker of the honourable Houſe of Commons, to the King's moſt excellent Majeſty, delivered on Friday the tenth Day of May 1661.

May it pleaſe your moſt excellent Majeſty,

The Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of the Commons Houſe of Parliament being there aſſembled by virtue of your Majeſty's moſt gracious Writ, have been pleaſed (I dare not ſay to chuſe, but) to name me their Speaker, &c.

His ſecond Speech when approved by his Majeſty.

The ſecond Speech after the Lord Chancellour had declar'd the King's Approbation of the Choice of the Houſe of Commons.

He that knows his Maſter's Will and doth it not is worthy to be beaten with many Stripes: I ſhall therefore humbly and chearfully, to the beſt of my poor Skill and Knowledge, apply myſelf to the Performance of my Duty; not doubting therein to obtain your Majeſty's gracious Pardon for all involuntary Tranſgreſſions; for 'tis a Rule in Law, and in Conſcience too: Actus non facit reum, niſi Mens ſit rea.

Tranſported with the Preſence of this Glory, and the Glory of this Preſence.

The Glory of the Nation.

And ſince I have found this Favour in the Sight of my Lord the King, pray let me beg your Majeſty's Patience for a while to make a Stand, and from this Place to look about me: Sir, a weak Head is ſoon giddy, but the ſtrongeſt Brain may here be turned; the Preſence of this Glory, and the Glory of this Preſence, do tranſport me: Whilſt I contemplate the incomparable Beauty of this Body Politick, and the goodly Order of this High Court of Parliament, where at once I behold all the Glory of this Nation, I am almoſt in the Condition of St. Paul, when he was taken up into the third Heaven, all he could ſay upon his Return, was, He ſaw Things unutterable.

Government is of God.

Monarchy the beſt Government.

God that made all Things for the Uſe of Man, and made him Governour over all his Works, thought it not fit to leave him to himſelf; nor to live without a Law and Government. The Forms and Species of Governments are various, Monarchical, Ariſtocratical, and Democratical; but the firſt is certainly the beſt, as being neareſt to Divinity itſelf. Ariſtocracy is ſubject to degenerate and run into Faction; but Democracy naturally runs into Confuſion: Then every Man becomes a Tyrant over his Neighbour, Homo Homini Lupus: Homo Homini Dæmon.

This always obtain'd in this Iſland;

This famous Iſland, Hiſtorians tell us, was firſt inhabited by the Britains, then by the Romans, then by the Saxons, then by the Danes, then by the Normans; and during all theſe Succeſſions of Ages and Variety of Changes, though there was ſometimes Diviſum Imperium, yet every Diviſion was happy under a Monarchical Government.

Eſpecially in the Norman Race.

Since the Inſtance of the Norman Race twenty five Kings and Queens famous in their Generations, from whom your Sacred Majeſty is lineally deſcended, have ſwayed the Royal Sceptre of this Nation.

A murmuring and unthankful Spirit.

The Children of Iſrael, when they were in the Wilderneſs, though they were fed with God's own Hand, and eat the Food of Angels, yet they ſurfeited, and murmured, and rebelled againſt Moſes.

The ſame unthankful Spirit dwelt in this Nation for divers Years laſt paſt; the Men of that Age were weary of the Government, though it was refined to the Wonder and Envy of all other Nations: They quarrelled with our Moſes, becauſe he was the Lord's Anointed; Nolumus hunc regnare, was their firſt Quarrel; but levelling Parity and Confuſion followed, then Tyranny and Uſurpation was the Concluſion.

An Emperor deſtroy'd by too many Phyſicians:

We read of the Emperour Adrian, when he lay a dying, he complained that many Phyſicians had deſtroyed him; meaning, that their contrary Conceits and different Directions for his Recovery had haſtened his Death.

So this Nation by too many State Empiricks

So it was with us, we were ſick of Reformation; our Reformers were of all Ages, Sexes, and Degrees, of all Profeſſions and Trades: The very Cobler went beyond his Laſt: Theſe new Stateſmen took upon them to regulate and govern our Governours: This was the Sickneſs and Plague of the Nation: Their new Laws were all written in bloody Letters, the Cruelty of their Tribunals made the Judgment Seat little differ from a Slaughter Houſe: The rich Man was made an Offender for a Word, poor Men were ſold for Slaves, as the Turks ſell Heads, twenty for an Aſper: Yet for all this Villany there was at length found out a Protector.

Was deſtroy'd Root and Branch.

Sad Deſtruction in thoſe Times.

No Amendment at length would ſerve theſe Reformers turns; no Conceſſions, tho' the moſt gracious that could be imagined, would ſatisfy theſe Uſurpers; but Root and Branch all muſt go, our late ſovereign Lord of Bleſſed Memory, muſt be offered up a Sacrifice to their Luſts: Your Sacred Perſon (Great Sir) proſcribed, and all the Royal Family exiled: Monarchy itſelf was voted burthenſome, and therefore they muſt try a Commonwealth, and the better to digeſt it, the People were intoxicated with a Belief that they ſhould all like themſelves be Princes in their Turns.

The Perſians in a ſhort lawleſs State did long again for their old Government.

Amongſt the Perſians, after the Death of their Governour, there was uſed to be ἀνομία πέντε ἡμερῶν, a five Days Lawleſneſs, in which Time every Man might do what he liſted: During thoſe five Days there was ſuch killing and robbing and deſtroying one another, that before they were ended, the People longed again for their old Government.

We had a Licentiouſneſs of many Years.

Infinite Miſchief, while no King in our Iſrael.

After the Death of your Majeſty's moſt Royal Father, here was the like Licentiouſneſs; but, alas it continued more than twice five Years: Liberty they called it, but it was Libertas quidlibet audendi. Your loyal Subjects were a Prey to Wolves and Tygers, and to the moſt cruel of all Beaſts, unreaſonable Men: every Man did what ſeemed good in his own Eyes, for in thoſe Days there was no King in our Iſrael.

Till his ſacred Majeſty was brought back in Peace and Joy.

But as the former Spirit of Reformation at firſt brought us into this Miſery; ſo the Spirit of Giddineſs which God ſent amongſt our Reformers, at length cured us. The brazen Serpent was the beſt Cure for thoſe that were bitten by the fiery Serpent: The Diviſions and Subdiviſions of thoſe that exerciſed Dominion over us, weakened their own Power, and ſtirred up the Hearts, and ſtrengthened the Hands of your loyal Subjects, to reſtore our ancient Government and to bring your ſacred Majeſty back to your Royal Throne in Peace, as to the Joy of all our Hearts we ſee it is this Day.

The Work of God admirable in our Eyes.

This was the Work of God alone, and it is admirable in our Eyes. And as we have cauſe at all Times to bleſs God that he hath thus brought your Majeſty to your People; ſo we have juſt Cauſe at this Time to return our hearty Thanks unto your Majeſty, that you have thus brought your People to your ſelf.

Our Obedience is return'd with Plenty, Peace, and Protection.

The Sun exhales the Vapours from the Earth, and then ſends them down again in Showers of Plenty: So we to our great Joy, do find that our Obedience and Affection to your Majeſty are returned upon our Heads in Plenty, Peace and Protection.

The laſt Parliament was happy, healing and bleſſed.

The laſt Meeting here in Parliament was happy in healing the bleeding Wounds of this Nation; they were bleſſed alſo, even for their Works ſake; your ſacred Majeſty did bleſs them, and therefore they ſhall be bleſſed to all Poſterity.

Yet that was a Parliament by Adoption only, this by Birthright.

But Sir, we hope you have a Bleſſing left for us too: That was your Parliament by Adoption, but this is yours by Birth-right, this Parliament is free-born: I hope this Honour will beget in us Emulation to exceed the Actions of our Predeceſſors, and not only to meet your Majeſty as our Sovereign, with the Duty of Subjects, but with the Love of Sons to a moſt indulgent Father.

The Houſe of Peers a Firmament of Stars.

Next to the Glory of your Majeſty's Royal Throne, I cannot but obſerve the Brightneſs of this ſecond Orb, this Firmament is richly deck'd with Stars of ſeveral Magnitudes, each Star appears like the Morning Star, and yet each Star differs from another in Glory.

Noble Barons fit to ſerve in War and Counſel.

You cannot want Commanders, either by Sea or Land, to manage your Deſigns, whilſt all theſe Sons of Mars ſtand Candidate to ſerve you in the Wars.

You cannot want Counſellors to adviſe you in the great Affairs of the Nation, whilſt all theſe Senators each fit to be a Conſul, contend who ſhall moſt eaſe you in the thorny Cares of the Government.

The Judges, learned Sages of the Law.

Amidſt theſe noble Engliſh Barons, and at your Majeſty's Feet are placed the reverend Judges of the Land, the Sages of the Law, Men ſo learned and expert in the Cuſtoms, and Statutes of this Land, that if Wat Tyler, or Jack Cade, or the new Phanaticks of this latter Age had burned our Books, they were able to reſtore our Laws in Purity and Perfection.

In a lower Orb the Commons.

And next to theſe, though in a lower Orb, appear the worthy Knights, the prudent Citizens and Burgeſſes of the Houſe of Commons, being the third Eſtate of Parliament.

As the Queen of Sheba came to Solomon, your Subjects long to ſee their King.

When the Fame of Solomon's Wiſdom had filled the neighbour Nations, the Queen of Sheba could not contain herſelf at home, but with many Camels laded with Spices, with Gold and precious Stones in abundance, ſhe comes to Solomon to commune with him of all that was in her Heart. Great Sir, whilſt this your native Countrey was unworthy of you, foreign Nations were made happy in the Knowledge of your Perſon, your Piety and your Wiſdom: And now the Lord your God hath brought you home, and ſet you on your Throne, your Subjects long to ſee you.

What Crouds at your firſt Landing and at your Coronation.

What ſtriving and rejoicing was there at your firſt Landing to ſee our riſing Sun?

What ſtriving was there at your Coronation to ſee the Imperial Crown ſet upon your Royal Head?

What ſtriving in the late Elections to be ſent up to hear your Wiſdom?

What ſtriving hath here lately been, in all the Counties, Cities and Boroughs of this Nation, who ſhould be ſent up to hear your Wiſdom, and confer with you in Parliament?

Theſe Meſſengers come heavy laden.

Royal Sir, theſe choſen worthy Meſſengers are not come empty handed, they are laden, they are ſent up to you heavy laden, from their ſeveral Counties, Cities and Boroughs.

They bring up all that can make you the greateſt Monarch in the World.

If the Affections of all Engliſhmen can make you happy; if the Riches of this Nation can make you great; if the Strength of this warlike People can make you conſiderable at home and abroad, be aſſured you are the greateſt Monarch in the World. Give me leave, I beſeech you, to double my Words and ſay it again, I wiſh my Voice could reach to Spain and to the Indies too, you are the greateſt Monarch in the World.

Concluding with the accuſtomed Petitions of the Commons.

I fear your Royal Patience may be tired, I will therefore no more ſpeak my own Words, but in the Name of the Commons of England, humbly preſent unto your Majeſty their accuſtomed Petitions, when firſt they are aſſembled in Parliament, and ſo conclude.

Freedom in their Perſons and Eſtates.

I. Firſt, I do beſeech your Majeſty, that for our better Attendance on the important Service of the Houſe, our ſelves, and our neceſſary Servants may be free in our Perſons and Eſtates, from all Arreſts and Troubles.

Liberty of Speech.

II. That Debate and Diſputes being neceſſary to the Diſquiſition of many Matters in the Houſe, your Majeſty will be pleaſed to vouchſafe us Liberty and Freedom of Speech; which I doubt not, we ſhall uſe with Loyalty and Sobriety.

Acceſs to your Royal Perſon.

III. That if the great Affairs require it, your Majeſty upon our humble Suit, will vouchſafe us acceſs to your Royal Perſon.

A benign Interpretation of their Proceedings.

IV. That the Proceedings of the Houſe may receive a benign Interpretation, and be free at all Times from Miſconſtructions.

The Lord Chancellor's Anſwer.

The Commons of England never better repreſented.

By the greateſt and wiſeſt Men.

Upon the finiſhing of this, the Lord Chancellor made a ſecond Speech, by way of Supplement to the former; in which he told the Speaker and the Commons, That the King had done his Part by publiſhing the very Day he intended the Parliament ſhould meet, a good Time before the Writs were ſeal'd, that the Country might not be ſurpriz'd in their Elections, but that they might ſend up ſuch a Repreſentative to him as he might make a clear View and Proſpect of the Affections and Deſires of his People: And he is perſuaded that the Commons of England were never more exactly repreſented, than they were in the preſent Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes. After that he took Notice of the great Privilege of the common People of England, to be repreſented by the greateſt and and learnedeſt, and wealthieſt and wiſeſt Perſons that could be choſen out of the Nation: But aded he, the confounding the Commons of England, that noble Repreſentative, with the common People of England, was the firſt Ingredient of that accurſed Doſe which intoxicated the Brains of Men with that Imagination of a Common-wealth, a Government as impoſſible for the Spirit and Genius of the Engliſh Nation to ſubmit to, as it is to perſuade them to give their Cattle and their Corn to other Men, and to live themſelves upon Herbs and Roots. He told them, there was not a Common-wealth in Europe, where every Man that was worth one thouſand Pounds, did not pay more to the Government, than a Man of a thouſand Pounds a Year ever did to the Crown here before the late Troubles: And he was perſuaded that that Monſter Commonwealth coſt this Nation more in the few Years ſhe was begot, born, and bred up, and in her Funeral, than the Monarchy had done theſe ſix hundred Years. Then he proceeded to other Heads, and particularly urg'd them to provide againſt the exceſſive Drinking and Expences that prov'd inconvenient in Elections; and recommended to them the great Improvements to be made by draining of Fens and the like. Laſtly he deſired them, that they would uſe ſuch Expedition in their Counſels of moſt Importance, that the reſt may be left to a Receſs in the Winter, after an Adjournment, that his Majeſty might have Time to beſtow himſelf upon his Subjects in a Progreſs, which he would be glad to begin before the End of July. That his Majeſty deſired to ſee again his good City of Worceſter, and to thank God for his Deliverance there; and to thank God even in thoſe Colleges and Barns and Hay-Lofts, wherein he was ſheltred and feaſted and preſerv'd: And in the Cloſe of that Progreſs he hopes he ſhall find the Queen in his Arms, and ſo return to meet them there in the Beginning of Winter.

SATURDAY May 11.
Reſolution of the Commons to wait on his Majeſty upon his intended Marriage.

Reſolved by the Commons, that ſince his Majeſty had been graciouſly pleaſed to acquaint them with his Reſolutions concerning his Marriage and other Matters of Importance (which manifeſted his extraordinary Value and Affection for that Houſe) they would attend his Majeſty to pay him their moſt humble and hearty Thanks, as to the beſt and wiſeſt Prince in the World; for which purpoſe they further ordered, that ſuch Members of the Houſe, as were of his Majeſty's moſt honourable Privy-Council, be deſired to go to his Majeſty to know his Pleaſure concerning the Time, when they ſhould attend him.

A Proclamation in favour of the impriſon'd Quakers.

London, by the King's Printers, one Sheet, 1661.

By the King. A Proclamation of Grace for the Enlargement of Priſoners called Quakers.

CHARLES R.

George Fox in his Journal ſaith, that the King being continually importuned thereunto, iſſued forth a Declaration, that Friends ſhould be ſet at Liberty without paying Fees. But great Labour and Travail, Care and Pains was taken in it before this was obtained; for Thomas Moor and Margaret Fell went often to the King about it.

Whereas divers of his Majeſty's Subjects commonly called Quakers are now Priſoners in ſeveral Goals within his Majeſty's Dominions, for Offences by them committed againſt the Form of a Statute in the third of King James. —— His Majeſty being now graciouſly pleaſed, that his ſaid Subjects called Quakers, now in Priſon as aforeſaid, ſhould at this Time and on ſo happy and bleſſed an Opportunity and Seaſon of his Majeſty's Royal Coronation, participate of his Majeſty's Mercy and Clemency, and be forthwith diſcharged from their Impriſonment, without being put to the Trouble and Charges of ſuing out particular Pardons — doth will and command all Sheriffs, Mayors, &c. that they do ſet at Liberty, enlarge and diſcharge all and every Perſon and Perſons called Quakers now in Cuſtody in any of his Goals or Priſons, for any Offence or Offences, for not taking the Oaths, or for any Meetings contrary to the late Proclamation, or for any Matter referring to their Opinions or Scruples of Conſcience, or for not finding Securities, — without demanding or taking any other Fees or Duties of them than for Lodging, Diet and other Neceſſaries, — expecting for the future their Conformity and Obedience to the Laws of the Kingdom: — And his Majeſty doth further declare, that he ſhall expect Returns of Loyalty and all due Obedience from all ſuch Perſons whoſe Liberty is obtained hereby, his Majeſty not intending them Impunity, if they ſhall offend in the future. —— Given at our Court at Whitehall the eleventh Day of May, in the thirteenth Year of our Reign 1661.

Funeral Rites for the Body of the immortal Montroſe.

Accordingly Jan. 7. all the Remains of his Body were gathered from the Places where they were placed in May 1650. his Corps was raiſed from the Burrow-Muir, put in a fine Coffin, and carried up under a rich Canopy to the Tolbooth, where (all being ready before) his Head was taken down and put into the Coffin, with Colours flying, Cannons ſhooting, and Trumpets ſounding, and carried down to Holy-Rood Houſe, and depoſitate in the Iſle, till afterwards what of his Members had been at Glaſgow, Stirling, Perth and Aberdeen, had been taken down and brought to Edinburgh beforehand. And May 11. the Solemnity of the Funeral was performed in a vaſt deal of State, and the Coffin was brought up to St. Giles's

When we met with the Biſhops to deliver in theſe Papers, I was required to deliver them; and if it were poſſible to get Audience for the Petition before all the Company. I told them, that tho' we were Equals in the preſent Work, and our appointed Buſineſs was to treat, yet we were conſcious of our Place and Duty, and had drawn up a Petition, which tho' ſomewhat long, I humbly craved their Conſent that I might read it to them. Some were againſt it, and ſo they would have been generally, if they had known what was in it, but at laſt they yielded to it, but their Patience was never ſo put to it by us, as in hearing ſo long and ungrateful a Petition. When I had read it, Dr. Gunning beginneth a long and vehement Speech againſt it; to which, when he came to an End, I replyed: But I was interrupted in the midſt of my Reply; and was fain to bear it, becauſe they had been patient with much ado ſo long before.

I delivered them the Petition, when I had read it, and with it a fair Copy of our Reformed Liturgy, called Additional Forms and Alterations of them. And they received both, and ſo we departed. Our ſaid Writings are too long to be here inſerted.

Moſt Reverend Fathers and Reverend Brethren,

The ſpecial Providence of God, and his Majeſty's tender Regard of the Peace and Conſciences of his Subjects, and his Deſire of their Concord in the Things of God, hath put into our Hands this Opportunity of ſpeaking to you, as humble Petitioners, as well as Commiſſioners, on the Behalf of theſe yet troubled and unhealed Churches, and of many thouſand Souls that are dear to Chriſt, on whoſe behalf we are preſſed in Spirit, in the Senſe of our Duty, moſt earneſtly to beſeech you, as you tender the Peace and Proſperity of theſe Churches, the Comfort of his Majeſty in the Union of his Subjects, and the Peace of your Souls in the great Day of your Accompts, that laying by all former and preſent exaſperating and alienating Differences, you will not now deny us your Conſent and Aſſiſtance to thoſe Means that ſhall be proved honeſt, and cheap, and needful, to thoſe great deſirable Ends, for which we all profeſs to have our Offices and our Lives, &c.

Uncharitable Reflections ſince made by the Diſſenters on the Deſign of the Savoy Conference.

Mr. Robinſon's Anſwer to Mr. Bennet of Liturgies, 8vo. 1720. p. 382.

It was then moſt notoriouſly evident, that their [the Epiſcopal Party's] Buſineſs was not to conſult the Intereſt of Religion, but at once to cover and ſerve a political Deſign, that was too bad to appear bareſac'd at firſt: Nor did they mean to heal the Church's Wounds, ſo much as to revenge their own. Hence it was that all the Uſe they made of the Savoy Conference, was only to learn what the Presbyterians (then ſo call'd) did moſt ſcruple; not that they might eaſe them of it, but know what to bind the more ſtrongly upon 'em. They made no Secret of this, ſome ſaying, Now they knew their Minds they would have Matters ſo fix'd, as that not one of that Sort ſhould be able to keep his Living. Dr. Bates himſelf (a Perſon of utmoſt Candour, as well as undoubted Integrity) aſſures us, that when the Lord Chamberlain Mancheſter told the King, he was afraid the Terms of Conformity were ſo rigid, that many of the Miniſters would not comply; Dr. Sheldon (then Biſhop of London, and the great Leader of the ruling Clergy at that Time) reply'd, I am afraid they will. Their Compliance was then what the domineering Clergy did not deſire but fear; and their Nonconformity, againſt which there have been ſuch dreadful Outcries ever ſince made, was what they were reſolv'd to force them to.

The Affection of Foreign Reformed Churches to the Church of England.

Durell of the Reformed Churches, 4to. 1662. p. 70.

Accounting the Diſſenters from it to be ſcandalous and ſchiſmatical Perſons.

As to the Affection which the Foreign Reformed Churches bear to the Church of England; there is not one Word ſpoken againſt her in any of their publick Records; they join with her in the publick Worſhip ſhe renders unto God, when they are here among us; they frequent the Lords Ambaſſador's Chapels beyond the Seas; they paſs their Cenſures upon ſuch of their Members as dare to let go in any of their printed Books any hard Expreſſion againſt the Reformation of our Church, and that in the Time of her loweſt Condition. And beſides all theſe Teſtifications of their good liking of our Common-Prayer, Rites, and other Cuſtoms uſed in publick Worſhip; they expreſs their high Diſlike of ſuch as are ſo peeviſh and weak as to refuſe to join with us in Church Duties, when Occaſion is offered, and account them for no leſs than ſcandalous and ſchiſmatical Perſons. This may be ſeen by the following Letter of the reverend Divine Monſieur de l'Angle, one of the Miniſters of the Reformed Church of Roan, a Perſon of great Worth and Fame and known Integrity, who hath been often Delegate to the national Aſſemblies of the Reformed Churches of France, in the laſt of which he was one of the Moderators, and who hath been likewiſe ſeveral Times their Delegate, to make their Addreſſes unto the French King in their Behalf. The Letter was written to me in May laſt, ſoon after the French Congregation (now of the Savoy) had ſubmitted to the Government of the Church of England, and uſed the Book of Common-Prayer, upon ſome Rumours that were among thoſe of the Walloon's Church of London, as if the Reverend Miniſters of Roan had been diſpleaſed at it.

Monſieur & tres honoré Frere.

Je croy vous avoir teſmoigné par mes derniers, que je m'eſtois fort rejoüis de l'eſtabliſſement que le Roy voſtre Maiſtre a fait de l'Egliſe Anglico-Gallicane, &c.

Sir, my honoured Brother,

I think I have told you by my former Letters, that I rejoiced very much at the Eſtabliſhment of the Anglico-Gallicane Church, that the King your Sovereign hath made, wherein his Majeſty hath ordered you to be his Miniſter. And I rejoiced ſpecially at the Deſign of that Settlement, viz. to make known to the whole World that Communion which is betwixt us; and that the Reformed Churches of France have not that Averſion againſt the Diſcipline of the Church of England, which ſome Men report they have. I am certain that my Colleagues were of the ſame Mind when I imparted unto them the News of your latoly eſtabliſh'd Church, and we are ſtill of the ſame Judgment. And I marvel that any one dare tell you that I have changed my Opinion, and that I do approve of what ſome give out concerning thoſe of the French Church of London (and which to ſay the Truth I cannot believe) that they make Difficulty to hold Communion with you, when any Occaſion is offered. I take them to be wiſer, and better inclin'd to Peace than ſo.

They know that the illuſtrious Monſieur du Moulin the Father preached before King James, and that he received the Lord's Supper at the ſame Time that his Majeſty did receive, as alſo ſome of the Biſhops, to ſhew the Communion which is betwixt the Church of England and our Churches; and that the Things we differ in are but as the many Colours of Joſeph's Coat, our Doctrine being altogether the ſame. They know alſo, that Dr. Primeroſe their late Paſtor was at the ſame Time one of his Majeſty's Chaplains. But if thoſe of that [Walloon] Church were now of another Mind, the Reformed Churches of France are very far from approving of ſuch ſcandalous Proceedings.

And Mr. Primeroſe, Grandchild to the aforenamed Dr. Primeroſe, who is at preſent one of the Miniſters of the Walloon Church of London, is a Perſon of ſo much Worth and Honeſty, that I am ſure he will not deny that he hath heard Monſieur del Angle ſay, That if any did refuſe Communion with our Congregation, which is now a Member of the Church of England, he holds ſuch for no other than Schiſmaticks.

The Queen of Bohemia arrives in England.

Sandford's geneal. Hiſt. Fol. p. 565.

Elizabeth the Queen of Bohemia, Daughter of King James, from the Death of her Royal Husband, Frederick the Fifth, Count Palatine of the Rhine, elected King of Bohemia, who died at Mentz, Nov. 29, 1632, had continued at the Hague in Holland till the Reſtauration of her Nephew King Charles the Second to his Monarchy of Great-Britain; who thereupon ſent for her into England, where ſhe arrived at London, May 17, 1661, and continuing till the Third of February at the Houſe of the Earl of Craven, in Drury-Lane, (a Nobleman very aſſiſtant to her in the Time of her greateſt Afflictions) and afterwards at Leiceſter-Houſe in the Pariſh of St. Martin in the Fields, (there comtemplating the great Mercy of God, in bringing her Nephew to his Righful Throne, which ſhe declared was the only Deſire of her Heart) there departed this Mortal Life, upon Thurſday, Feb. 13, in the ſame Year 1661.

Account and Character of the Queen of Bohemia given by

That good Queen having been long a deſolate Widow, driven out not only of Bohemia, her Husband's Kingdom by Election; but out of the Palatinate alſo, his Patrimonial Inheritance; and having lived long an Exile in Holland, but without any Charge to the States, and yet plentifully at leaſt ſufficiently to ſupport her and her Family by the Penſions left her by King James her Father, and as I think increaſed and well paid by King Charles her Brother, was after his Death reduced to extream Neceſſity; all her Penſions from England being withdrawn from her, ſo that ſhe had not ſo much as wherewithal to entertain a Chaplain, as ſhe had done formerly; and as according to her generous and truly Royal and gracious Diſpoſition, ſhe had a Mind to do, and being then without any Chaplain at all, I offered her my Service, if ſhe pleaſed to accept of it, without expecting any Salary at all for it. For though I brought but 130 l. (which was all I was then worth) out of England along with me, yet ſuch was the Kindneſs of my Friends in England to me, whilſt I was abroad, that although I ſpent, and lent, and gave away yearly as much, and ſometimes more than I brought at firſt with me, I did after between eleven or twelve Years being abroad, bring home more than I carried out, without putting the King my Maſter, or the Queen of Bohemia my Miſtreſs, to any Charge but that of Diet in her Houſe for my ſelf and one Servant only. The Queen willingly accepted my Offer, and I went to her, and was very graciouſly received and uſed by her all the Time I was with her, which was two Years and an half; during which Time I read the Service of our Church daily to her and her Family, and catechiz'd ſuch of her Servants of both Sexes as would come unto me; I preached likewiſe ſometimes to her Majeſty at the Engliſh Church at the Hague, and ſometimes to her Majeſty and Princeſs-Royal at the French Church there alſo; but never had any Thing to do with the Claſſis, nor they with me) either there, or any where elſe, all the while I was in the Preſbyterian; nor ever was ſo much as once preſent at a Maſs, nor kneeled at the Expoſition or Meeting of the Hoſt, whilſt I was in the Popiſh Countries; though I was many Times threatned to be complain'd of to the Biſhop of Antwerp by the Engliſh Papiſts that were there, and eſpecially thoſe that were Apoſtates from our Church.

by her Chaplain Dr. George Morley when Biſhop of Winton, and near his Death in 1682.

Reduced to great Neceſſity.

Unable to keep a Chaplain.

Till Dr. Morley ſerv'd her without a Salary.

Only with Diet and one Servant.

Tho' threatned by the Engliſh Papiſts, and eſpecially the Apoſtates from our Church.

Via Intelligentia, 4to. 1662.

Biſhop Taylor, in a Sermon preach'd at Dublin, thus expreſs'd himſelf upon the Reſtitution of Epiſcopacy in that Kingdom. —— Epiſcopal Government hath been of ſo laſting an Abode, of ſo long a Bleſſing, hath its Firmament by the Principles of Chriſtianity, hath been bleſſed by the Iſſues of that Stabiliment; it hath for ſixteen hundred Years combined with Monarchy, and hath been taught by the Spirit, which hath ſo long dwelt in God's Church, and hath now (according to the Promiſe of Jeſus, that ſaith, the Gates of Hell ſhall never prevail againſt the Church) been reſtored amongſt us by a Heap of Miracles, and as it went away, ſo now it is returned again in the Hand of Monarchy, and in the Boſoms of our fundamental Laws. Now that Doctrine muſt needs be ſuſpected of Error and an intolerable Lye, that ſpeaks againſt this Truth, which hath had ſo long a Teſtimony from God, and from the Wiſdom and Experience of ſo many Ages of all our Anceſtors, and all our Laws.

The Cruelty of the Covenanters towards the King's good Subjects.

Eſpecially the loyal Clergy.

There was lately publiſh'd a ſecond Edition 1660. of the Hiſtory of the Engliſh and Scotch Preſbytery; wherein the 25th Chapter is of the Cruelty of the Covenanters towards the good Subjects of the King. —— In the ninety ſeven Pariſhes within the Walls of London, there were found upon Account, that there were fourſcore and five Miniſters driven by Violence from their Churches and Houſes: And within the Suburbs and Pariſhes adjoining to London, the Number of the Miniſters turned out were a hundred and fifteen, without compriſing thoſe of St. Paul's and Weſtminſter, where the Deans and Prebends ran the ſame Fortune. Of this Number twenty were impriſoned, and of thoſe who are dead by Diſtreſs and Anguiſh in divers Priſons, in the Holds of Ships, and in Baniſhment they reckoned in five Years [ſince 1645.] twenty two, but this Number is almoſt doubled ſince, and the others diſperſed and fled into ſtrange Countries, or otherwiſe oppreſſed and ruined. In the other Parts of the Kingdom, many faithful Miniſters to the King had the like Uſage, eſpecially thoſe that poſſeſſed the fatteſt and beſt Benefices, for this was an unpardonable Crime, and ſome of them were maſſacred by the furious Anabaptiſts as a Sacrifice well pleaſing to God.

Marquis of Argyle's Speech upon the Scaffold, May 27, 1661.

Woodrow's Hiſtory of the Church of Scotland, Vol. I. Append. No. 19.

Gentlemen,

Many will expect that I will ſpeak many Things; and according to their ſeveral Opinions and Diſpoſitions, ſo will their Expectations be from me, and Conſtructions of me: But I reſolve to diſappoint many; for I came not either to juſtify myſelf, but the Lord who is holy in all his Ways, and righteous in all his Works, holy and bleſſed is his Name, &c.

Concluding.] I deſire you, Gentlemen, and all that hear me, again to take Notice and remember, that now when I am entring on Eternity, and am to appear before my Judge, and as I deſire Salvation, and expect eternal Happineſs from him. I am free from any Acceſſion by Knowledge, Contriving, Counſel, or any

The Act of the Commons for erecting an High Court of Juſtice burnt in Weſtminſter-Hall.

This Day the Bailiff of Weſtminſter having according to Order cauſed all Things to be in Readineſs, the Serjeant to the Houſe of Commons brought that curſed traiterous Writing in Parchment falſely entitled, An Act of the Commons aſſembled in Parliament for Erecting an High Court of Juſtice, for trying and judging Charles Stuart, which being delivered into the Hand of the common Hangman, was by him burned about nine in the Morning in the Midſt of Weſtminſter-Hall, whilſt his Majeſty's Courts were ſitting.

Publick Intelligence by Authority, 4to. No. 21.

The ſame Day at full Exchange Time, between the Hours of twelve and one, by Command of the Sheriffs of London, in the Sight of the Serjeant at Arms, the common Hangman burned two other treaſonable Writings, the one called, An Act for ſubſcribing the Engagement. The other falſly called, An Act declaring and conſtituting the People of England to be a Commonwealth and Free State.

Proper Collects.

Collects for the Day.

O Lord God, thou haſt dealt exceeding graciouſly with this ſinful Land, who by thy miraculous Providence haſt delivered us out of our late miſerable Confuſions, by reſtoring to us our dread Sovereign Lord thy Servant King Charles. Thou alone haſt wrought this great Thing for us: And we are now here gathered together before Heaven and before thee, to make a thankful Commemoration of the Time and of the Day, wherein this thy unſpeakable Goodneſs was poured out upon us, and to offer up our Vows and Sacrifices of Thankſgivings and Praiſe unto thy glorious Name, humbly beſeeching thee to accept the unfeigned though unworthy Oblation of ourſelves, vowing all holy Obedience in Thought, Word, and Work, unto thy Divine Majeſty, and promiſing in thee and for thee all loyal and faithful Allegiance to thine anointed Servant, and to his Heirs and Succeſſors after him in all Generations, whom we beſeech thee to bleſs with all Increaſe of Grace, Honour, and Happineſs in this World, and to Crown with Immortality and Glory in the World to come, for Jeſus Chriſt his ſake our only Lord and Saviour. Amen.

O God who didſt this Day firſt bring into the World, and ſince that didſt alſo this Day reſtore to us, and to his own juſt and undoubted Rights, our moſt Gracious Sovereign Lord thy Servant King Charles, ſtabliſh him in them we beſeech thee: Be unto him an Helmet of Salvation againſt the Face of his Enemies, and a ſtrong Tower of Defence in the Time of Trouble: Let his Reign be proſperous, and his Days many: Let Peace, and Love, and Holineſs, let Juſtice, Truth, and all Chriſtian Virtues flouriſh in his Time: Let his People ſerve him with Honour and Obedience, and let him ſo duly ſerve thee here on Earth, that he may hereafter everlaſtingly reign with thee in Heaven, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

Collect at the End of the Litany.

O Lord God moſt merciful Father, who of thine eſpecial Grace and Favour, didſt as upon this Day bring home unto us, thy Servant King Charles our Sovereign, and place him in the Throne of this Kingdom, thereby reſtoring to us the open and publick Profeſſion of thy true Religion and Worſhip, to the great Joy and Comfort of our Hearts: We thine unworthy Servants here aſſembled together, with all Thankfulneſs in Memory of this thy Mercy, moſt humbly beſeech thy Fatherly Goodneſs to grant unto us Grace, that we may in Word, Deed, and Heart ſhew ourſelves yet more and more thankful to thee for the ſame: And that his Majeſty through thy Grace may in all Honour, Virtue, and Godlineſs continue his glorious Reign over us many and many Years yet to come; and that we may dutifully obey him as faithful and loyal Subjects: That ſo we may long enjoy him with the Continuance of thy great Bleſſings, which by him thou haſt vouchſafed unto us, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, Amen.

Collect in the Communion Service.

O most gracious God and merciful Father, who haſt by thine infinite Power and Goodneſs, ſafely and quietly, after ſo many great Troubles and Adverſities, ſettled thy Servant our Sovereign Lord King Charles in the Throne of his Fathers (notwithſtanding all the Power and Malice of his Enemies) reſtoring unto us by him and with him the true Profeſſion of thy ſacred Truth and Goſpel, together with our former Peace and Proſperity: We beſeech thee to grant unto him the Defence of thy Salvation, and ſo ſhew forth thy holy Kindneſs and Mercy both to his Majeſty thine Anointed, and Mary the Queen Mother, the illuſtrious James Duke of York, with the reſt of the Royal Seed for evermore, and to ſtir up continually in our Hearts a dutiful and loyal Obedience to the King, and a religious and holy Thankfulneſs unto thee for theſe thy great Mercies through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

Second Collect in the Communion Service.

Grant, we beſeech thee Almighty God, that our Sovereign Lord the King, whom thou this Day didſt both happily bring into the World, and as happily ſince that reſtore to us, may be a mighty Protector of his People, a religious Defender of thy ſacred Faith, and of thy Holy Church among us, a glorious Conquerour over all his Enemies, a gracious Governour unto all his Subjects, and a happy Father of many Children, to rule this Nation by Succeſſion in all Ages, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

Collect after the Prayer for Chriſt's Church.

O Lord our God who upholdeſt and governeſt all Things in Heaven and Earth; receive our humble Prayers with our Thankſgivings for our Sovereign Lord King Charles, ſet over us by thy Grace and Providence to be our King, and ſo together with his Majeſty bleſs the whole Royal Family with the Dew of thy heavenly Spirit, that they ever truſting in thy Goodneſs, protected by thy Power, and crowned with thy gracious and endleſs Favour, may continue before thee in Health, Peace, Joy, and Honour, a long and happy Life upon Earth, and after Death obtain everlaſting Life and Glory in the Kingdom of Heaven, by the Merits and Mediation of Chriſt Jeſus our Saviour, who with the Father and the Holy Spirit liveth and reigneth ever one God World without End. Amen.

Text, Psalm xxi. 1.

P. 23. God hath restored unto us our religious King, and therefore let us be exceeding glad. A King constant in the Profession of the Truth, in which he is the deeper rooted, the more he hath been shaken. Colius, the Arminian, he often changed his air (the greater is their Sin that would neither give him nor sell him a Liberty to breath in their Climate) but never his Heart. He was not e Salice (as that Politician said he was, being asked why he changed his Religion so often) but quercu Ortus, not made of Willows that will bend every Way, but of Heart of Oak, that will not bow to the boisterous Winds.

He had been a Sufferer in the late Times.

He affirms the King's Constancy in the Truth.

May 29 was observed in the City of York, as the King's Birth Day with great Solemnity, and the Effigies of the late Usurper and Tyrant Oliver Cromwell, cloathed in a Pink Sattin Suit; together with the Picture of that base Miscreant and unjust Judge John Bradshaw, cloathed in a Judge's Habit; as likewise the hellish Scotch Covenant, and the late States Arms which stood in the Common Hall, were on the same Day hung upon a Gallows set up for that Purpose on the Pavement; and at last put into three Tar Barrels, and burnt together with the Gallows, in the Presence of at least a thousand Citizens in Arms, and a Multitude of other Spectators.

Observation of this Day in the City of York, where the Effigies of Cromwell and Bradshaw were burned, &c.

Some of the devoutest Churchmen and best Subjects had Leisure to reflect on the Restauration and acknowledge a Miracle in it. And therefore when Mr. Cressy the Benedictine Monk had afterwards insulted the Church of England for not so much as pretending to one Miracle, not so much as the Curing of a Tertian Ague, to testify that our Reformation was pleasing to God. That great Master the Lord Clarendon reply'd; We have not many Miracles to boast of, and very good Catholicks think they boast of too many; and would be glad to be without the Mention of most of them: And I do believe that very many pious Men of his Church do believe, that the Restauration of the Church of England from that Dust and Ruins, to which the barbarous Impiety and Sacrilege of the late Rebellion had exposed it, and in which the Roman-Catholicks, his Majesty's own Subjects, more delighted and triumphed to see it almost buried, than any other Catholicks did, is a greater Miracle of God's Mercy and Power; and if we make ourselves worthy of it, even a Testimony of his being pleased with it, than all those of which they brag so much are an Evidence that he is pleased with what they do.

The Restauration truly represented as a Miracle.

Lord Clarendon's Answer to Mr. Cressy, 8vo.

Mr. Sancroft, now Chaplain to Bishop Cosin, and afterward Archbishop of Canterbury, had in a late Sermon drawn a beautiful Scene of the Restauration of the Church in these Words: —— Blessed be this Day, let God regard it from above, and a more than common Light shine upon it, in which we see the Phœnix arising from her Funeral Pile, and taking Wing again; our Holy Mother the Church standing up from the Dust and Ruins in which she sate so long, taking Beauty again for Ashes, and the Garments of Praise for the Spirit of Heaviness, remounting the Episcopal Throne, bearing the Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven with her, her Hands spread abroad to bless, and to ordain, to confirm the Weak, and to reconcile the Penitent, her Breasts flowing with the sincere Milk of the Word, and girt with a golden Girdle under her Paps, tying up all by a meet Limitation and Restriction to Primitive Patterns and Prescripts Apostolical. A Sight so venerable and august, that methinks it should at once strike Love and Fear into every Beholder, and an awful Veneration.

A beautiful Representation of this Mercy drawn by Mr. Sancroft, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury.

This Wednesday, May 29, two treasonable Parchment Writings were burnt in Westminster-Hall by the Hands of the Common Hangman, the one falsly called, An Act for the Security of his Highness the Lord Protector his Person, and Continuance of the Nation in Peace and Safety. The other falsly called, An Act for renouncing and disannulling the pretended Title of Charles Stuart, &c.

The Burning of two treasonable Acts of the late Powers.

Publick Intelligence, by Authority, 4to. No. 23.

Advised from Edinburgh, that the great and happy Day of his Majesty's Birth and Restauration was most solemnly observed in that City; the Morning being spent in all Churches there, and indeed all over the Kingdom, in Devotion; the Sermon in the Parliament House before his Grace the Lord Commissioner, and all the Members of Parliament, was preached by that learned and faithful Divine Mr. Robert Lowrie. Sir Robert Murray, Lord Provost, with the other Magistrates and Common-Council, conducted the Lord Commissioner and the rest of the Parliament to the great Hall of King James his College, where the Principal of the Place received him at his Entrance with a Latin Speech, &c.

Observation of this Day in Scotland.

The Presbyterians were angry at it, and one of them tells us, That at Edinburgh the Sermons suitable to the Occasion were preached by time-serving Ministers, and the Day kept in Riot, Revelling, and Madness. —— while the true Children of this Reformed Church refused this Imposition, – a most melancholy Day to Scotland —— which made an eminent Minister in the West chuse that Text to preach upon this Day, it being his stated Week-Day for Sermon, Esther iii. 15. — And the King and Haman sat down to drink, but the City Shushan was perplexed. Mr. Woodrow's Hist. of the Church of Scotland, *Fol. The Marquis of Newcaſtle retired from the Court to his Country-Seat at Wellbeck.

The noble Marquis of Newcaſtle, after all his eminent Actions and Sufferings for the Crown, retired from the Court though well received in it, and was content to live quietly at his remote Seat of Wellbeck; which wiſe Retreat from Pomp and Noiſe had been lately thus modeſtly commended by his Chaplain Mr. Clement Ellis, a very worthy Divine, in an Epiſtle to his Excellency prefix'd to a Sermon preached May 29, 1661.

Printed at Oxford 1661, 4to.

With much Pleaſure I have hearkened to you diſcourſing of that Satisfaction you reaped from that ſweet Privacy and Retiremen his Majeſty is pleaſed to grant your Lordſhip here in the Countrey, where you live free from the Noiſe and Cumbrance of Court and City. Indeed the greateſt Reward his Majeſty can poſſibly Recompence your Services withal, is thus to beſtow yourſelf upon yourſelf, and I know you think it greater Happineſs to enjoy my Lord Marquis of Newcaſtle at Wellbeck, than all the Offices and Honours which your exemplary Loyalty has merited. And there's all the Reaſon in the World for it, that he who hath ſo nobly ſacrificed the faireſt of his Years and the ampleſt of his Revenues to the Service of his King and Countrey, ſhould now have Leave to conſecrate the Remainder to his Health and Quiet.

My Lord, before he began his Journey into the Countrey, went to his gracious Sovereign, and begg'd Leave that he might retire into the Countrey, to reduce and ſettle, if poſſible, his confuſed, entangled, and almoſt ruined Eſtate. Sir, ſaid he to his Majeſty, I am not ignorant, that many believe I am diſcontented; and 'tis probable, they'll ſay, I retire through Diſcontent: But I take God to witneſs, that I am in no kind or ways diſpleaſed; for I am ſo joyed at your Majeſty's happy Reſtauration, that I cannot be ſad or troubled for any Concern to my own particular; but whatſoever your Majeſty is pleaſed to command me, were it to ſacrifice my Life, I ſhall moſt obediently perform it; for I have no other Will but your Majeſty's Pleaſure. Thus he kiſſed his Majeſty's Hand, and went the next Day into Nottinghamſhire, to his Manor Houſe called Wellbeck.

Report from the Lords Committees of the Quakers Petition.

Die Veneris 31 Maii, 1661. The Earl of Pembroke reported from the Lords Committees that were appointed to conſider of the Quakers Petition, that the Committee after long Debate were of Opinion:

Their Yea and Nay rejected.

I. That the ſecond Propoſition in the Paper put in by the Quakers concerning Yea and Nay to be taken in lieu of Oaths ſhould be rejected.

A promiſſary Oath to be tendred to them.

II. That the Committee having rejected it, thought fit to offer it as their Opinions, that a promiſſary Oath ſhould be tendred to the Quakers, ſuch a one as no good Subject can or ought to refuſe.

Their denying Reſpect and pulling off Hats rejected.

III. That the ſaid Propoſition concerning Reſpects, and putting off of Hats, &c. ſhould be rejected.

Their not coming to the publick Worſhip, and holding private Meetings referred to the Houſe.

IV. That the fourth Clauſe concerning their not coming to the publick Worſhip, and the firſt being dependent on it (as to their private Meetings) being too weighty for the Determination of the Committee, they thought fit to be reported to this Houſe, to be debated by this Houſe.

Their not paying of Tythes rejected.

V. The Committee alſo is of Opinion, that the fifth Clauſe concerning the not paying of Tythes, be rejected.

Their not obſerving Days and Meats referr'd to the Houſe.

VI. That the ſixth Clauſe concerning their not obſerving Days and Meats, &c. having Dependence on the fourth concerning publick Worſhip is fit alſo to be debated by the whole Houſe.

A Remedy of their Diſtempers to be conſider'd of.

Laſtly, That the Committee will conſider of the ſecond Part of the Order for a Remedy of the Diſtempers of this People, when they have received the Reſolution of this Houſe concerning the three Clauſes offered to their Reſolution by the Committee.

The Commons move for a Day of Humiliation for the immoderate and continued Rain.

A Meſſage was brought from the Houſe of Commons by Mr. Lowther to let their Lordſhip's know, that the Commons taking Notice of the great Inconvenience and Danger that is threatned to the whole Nation, by the immoderate and continued Rain, they deſire, that his Majeſty may be moved, that he would pleaſe to iſſue out a Proclamation for the Obſerving of a publick Day of Humiliation throughout England and Wales, and the Town of Berwick upon Tweed, in reſpect of the immoderate Rain and Waters, and to beſeech God to divert his Judgments threatned thereby. ——— Order to move the King accordingly.

A Phœnix Edition of the Solemn League and Covenant after the publick Burning of it.

Mr. R. L'Eſtrange Truth and Loyalty, 4to. 1662.

Since the Burning of the Covenant was publiſhed a Book entitled, The Phœnix, or the Solemn League and Covenant. Pretended to be printed at Edinburgh, and dated in the Year of Covenant Breaking. The Drift of the whole is to juſtify the late War, to diſaffect the People to his Majeſty, now in being, and to enforce the Obligation of the Covenant out of an old Sermon of Mr. Edm. Calamy's, called, The great Danger of Covenant Refuſing, and Covenant Breaking. This Book being brought to my Hand, I procur'd a Warrant to ſearch for it, and retriev'd about 120 Copies, which I ſeized together with the Printer, Diſperſer, and one Stationer (of the three that were Partners in the Impreſſion) I brought theſe People to his Majeſty's principal Secretary of State, Sir Edward Nicholas, by whoſe Order the Printer and Stationer were committed, and the Diſperſer being Poor to Extremity was upon certain Conditions left at Liberty, &c.

Addreſs of the Army in Ireland.

To the King's moſt excellent Majeſty. The humble Addreſs of the Officers and Soldiers of the Army in Ireland.

Publick Intelligence, No.20.

Moſt ſacred and dread Sovereign,

Although by the Bands of Nature, and Oath of Allegiance, we are fully convinc'd of the Duty that we your Majeſty's devoted and moſt loyal Subjects, the Officers and Souldiers of your Army in Ireland, are to pay as a juſt Debt to all your Royal Commands: Yet ſince the publick Manifeſtation of our Reſolutions may abate the Deſigns and Practices of ſome unhappily yet remaining Perſons of debauched Principles (towards the Nation and fundamental Government we enjoy in your Majeſty's juſt Reſtitution to your Crown) who might promiſe ſome Succeſs to themſelves from the imaginary Diviſions among your good Subjects: In all Humility we crave leave to declare, that we are reſolved by the Bleſſing of Almighty God to ſacrifice our Lives, Eſtates, and whatſoever is neareſt and deareſt unto us in the Defence of your Majeſty's ſacred Perſon, of your lawful Succeſſion to your Crown and Dignity, and the maintaining of all your Civil Intereſts, together with the Intereſt of Religion as it is now happily reſtored by your Majeſty, &c.

Addreſs of the Regiment of Colonel Bampfield.

His Majeſty had declared to the London Miniſters at the Hague, againſt the prophane drinking Party.

The Drinking of Healths was too much the Teſt of Loyalty. Upon which a printed Sermon of Joy for the King's Return by Mr. Anth. Walker: "I confeſs I want a Name bad enough for this Cuſtom, and oh that I could fairly "perſuade Men out of it, as a moſt abſurd and ſcandalous Practice!" —— I "ſhall conclude with one Intimation, that the King will not take this ſo kindly "as you vainly think he will; for amongſt many other gracious Words which "fell from his gracious Lips, when he received the London Miniſters which "went to him at the Hague, he had theſe memorable and rare Expreſſions:" That he would make it his Buſineſs to bring Virtue and Sobriety into Faſhion and Repute into England, and though there were a profane drinking Party which would be eſteemed his beſt and only Friends, he would make the more haſt into England, to let ſuch Men know, that he was their worſt Enemy, for they were the Devil's Party, and none of his. Theſe were his Words, and which is the true Honour of them, they were free, not drawn from him, or ſuggeſted to him.

The State of the French Churches in London.

Mr. John Durell of the Government and Worſhip of the Reformed Churches, 1662, 4to. p. 72.

I ſhall here impart to the Reader what hath paſſed betwixt the two French Congregations that are within the two Cities of London and Weſtminſter: Not to renew their ancient Quarrels one with another, which are now compoſed, nor to blame either of them; but only that it may be known on what Occaſion and upon what Ground one of them hath ſubmitted to the paſtoral Care of the Right Reverend Biſhop of London, and taken up the Uſe of the Book of Common-Prayer. ——

Firſt Church of the Walloons in Threadneedle-Street.

Duke of Soubize had a ſort of French Chapel.

After his Death a French Church in the Strand.

About twenty Years ſince, the Duke of Soubize, living near the Court, and finding it troubleſome, and ſometimes impoſſible for him, by Reaſon of his Infirmities, to go to Church as far as Threadneedle-Street, where the Walloons had their Church, he had commonly a French Sermon preached before him in his own Houſe every Sunday. Thither the French who lived in thoſe Parts did uſually reſort, to ſave themſelves the Labour and Toil of going up ſo great a Way into the City. This they found ſo commodious, that after the Duke was dead, they reſolved to ſet up a French Church about the Strand, and wholly to leave going to that of the City; except ſuch Men as continued to pay their uſual Stipend (as ſome there were that did) towards the Maintenance of their Miniſters, and others ſometimes upon occaſion.

Thoſe of London very angry at it.

And attempt the Diſſolution of it.

But this notwithſtanding, thoſe of London ſo highly reſented the erecting of this new French Church, that ever ſince they endeavoured by all Means poſſible to pull it down. Their laſt Aſſault againſt the ſame was ſince the moſt happy Reſtauration of this Church and Kingdom. For no ſooner almoſt was the King returned, but they made their Addreſſes to his Majeſty, to have the French Congregation of Weſtminſter (for ſo it was called, as being within the Liberties thereof) broken and forbidden ever to aſſemble any more thenceforth; giving for Reaſon of this their humble Petition and earneſt Deſire, that the ſaid Congregation was not eſtabliſhed by any lawful Authority, and that by their Privilege, all thoſe of the French Language whereſoever they lived, in either of the Cities of London or Weſtminſter, have but one only Place, where they are permitted to aſſemble for the publick Worſhip of God in their own Tongue. They of Weſtminſter to keep up their Congregation preſented their humble Suit to his Majeſty, that he would be graciouſly pleaſed to conſider what Trouble and Toil it would be for them, eſpecially ſuch as had great Families and young Children, to go every Sunday to Church at ſuch a Diſtance.

The King granted both their Requeſts, by breaking up the Congregation at Weſtminſter and ſetting up a new French Church in the Savoy under the Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of London, with the Uſe of our Liturgy.

The King, all Things conſidered, out of his wonted Goodneſs, found out a Way in his Wiſdom, to grant them both their Requeſts: By breaking the French Congregation of Weſtminſter according to the Deſire of thoſe of the Walloon's Congregation of London, as being indeed eſtabliſhed without any lawful Authority; and by ſetting up a new Church under the immediate Juriſdiction of the Right Reverend Father in God the Biſhop of London, wherein divine Service ſhould be performed in French, according to the Book of Common-Prayer by Law eſtabliſhed in this Realm; his Majeſty being graciouſly pleaſed to provide for the Maintenance of a Miniſter, to be therein a conſtant Preacher; and leaving it to every ones Liberty to joyn with thoſe of the old Walloon's Congregation of London, or to become Members of the new French Church of Weſtminſter, which is likewiſe permitted to add to that Miniſter (for whom his Majeſty is to provide) as many others as by them ſhall be thought convenient for the Advancement of God's Glory and their own Edification; provided the ſaid Miniſters be preſented to the Biſhop of London for the Time being, to be by him inſtituted.

This created a new Queſtion whether the French could with a good Conſcience leave their own Liturgy, and conform to that of the Church of England.

His Majeſty's Pleaſure being thus to them ſignified, the Miniſters and Elders, and the Heads of Families of the ſaid Congregation met to adviſe together what was to be done. Two or three (for I think there were no more) utterly refuſed to ſubmit; and indeed their Carriage had been ſuch during the Troubles, that no other Thing was to be expected from them. Of the others, ſome few were of a Mind, that the Miniſters and ſome of the Elders in the Name of the whole Congregation ſhould write beyond the Seas, to aſk the Judgment of the Divines of the Reformed Churches of France and Geneva, to know whether they might with a good Conſcience leave that Liturgy they had uſed hitherto, and take that of the Church of England, ſubjecting themſelves to the Biſhop of London's Juriſdiction. But they were but few of this Mind, and their Number became leſs, when they had heard Monſieur Hieroſme the eldeſt of their two Miniſters, now my reverend and dear Colleague, a Man of an excellent Judgment, who was the Moderator in that Aſſembly, and who being too well acquainted with the Opinion of the Reformed Churches in France, and all other Reformed Churches beyond the Seas as well as the Church of England, to aſk ſuch a Queſtion, and to doubt of ſuch a Thing. Nay he ſhewed them further, that ſuch an Opportunity being offered to clear the Reformed Churches of France of that Aſperſion, which was put upon them by ſome Men, as if they condemned the Church of England, it would be taken very ill among all wiſe Men among them, if they ſhould not wipe it off, by entring themſelves freely without any more ado into the Communion of the Church of England, by that fair Door which was opened to them by the Royal Hand of his Majeſty: So that he, together with the other Miniſters and Elders, as alſo the moſt Part of the Heads of Families, unanimouſly agreed to ſubmit to the Church of England, thinking it in every reſpect a great Happineſs to become Members of ſo ſound a Body, from which they never accounted themſelves Strangers; though they differed in ſome outward Things, in which the Eſſence of Religion doth not conſiſt. It was alſo reſolved at the ſame Time, that a good Number of the Elders with the Miniſters, in the Name of all, ſhould render their moſt humble Thanks to the King's moſt excellent Majeſty for his Goodneſs, and declare that they moſt willingly ſubmitted. The ſame were ordered likewiſe to go in the Name of the reſt of their Brethren, to the Right Reverend Father in God the Lord Biſhop of London, to acknowledge him for their Paſtor, all which was performed accordingly.

No Force upon any, but they were left free to adviſe.

And they ſent a Queſtion to the Miniſters in France and Geneva.

Now becauſe no manner of Force was laid upon any, it was left free for ſuch as were not fully ſatisfied in their Judgment, to adviſe thereupon with whom they pleaſed, either here or beyond the Seas; who therefore writ to the Conſiſtory of the Reformed Church of Paris, and to that of Geneva, as alſo to the Miniſters and Elders of Bourdeaux in Aquitane. The Query they put to them was this, Whether they might with a good Conſcience become Members of the French Church newly erected by the King's Majeſty, wherein Divine Service was to be performed according to the Liturgy of the Church of England?

The Conſiſtory at Paris declined an Anſwer for prudential Reaſons.

The Conſiſtory of Paris made no Anſwer, partly for the ſame Reaſon for which Mr. Hieroſme would not have had that Query put to them, in the Name of the whole Congregation, viz. that there is no Queſtion to be made of ſuch a Thing, all the World knowing that the French Reformed Churches ever ſince the Reformation, have been very careful to entertain Communion and good Correſpondence with the Church of England; partly becauſe if ſuch a Queſtion were to be debated and decided anew, it would have been accounted a great Preſumption for the Miniſters of one ſingle Church, be it never ſo conſiderable, and be they never ſo many, and ſo learned, to take upon themſelves a Buſineſs of ſo high Concernment.

Satisfaction given by ſome private Miniſters.

But that theſe Men might be brought out of that Uncertainty and Doubt wherein they ſeemed to be, ſuch of the Miniſters as were acquainted with them returned this Anſwer for their Satisfaction, That they ought not to make any Scruple to ſubmit to the Order of our Church. This Information I have from Monſieur Drelincourt, one of the ſaid Miniſters, who addeth further in his Letter, That he praiſeth God that notwithſtanding the Endeavours of the Walloons Church of London, to pull down the French Church of Weſtminſter, ſhe doth ſtill ſubſiſt by the Goodneſs and Liberality of the King.

Approbation of Monſieur Gaches.

Monſieur Gaches, another of the Miniſters, having received of Mr. Hieroſme an Account of what paſſed in this new Eſtabliſhment, and of the Reaſons for which he ſo freely ſubmitted to the Church of England, without taking any Counſel of any beyond the Seas, he doth approve of this Action of his, and ſaith, that he is much edify'd by them, Vos Sentimens de charité & de paix m'édifient beaucoup, ſaith he, This charitable and pacifick Mind of yours is much edifying to me. And he is ſo far from adviſing any to forbear going to this our new eſtabliſhed Church, becauſe of the Form of publick Worſhip which is uſed therein, different from what was uſed in it before, that he would have them of the Walloons Church that keep their former Way, to come ſometimes and be preſent at our Service, and receive the Lord's Supper with us, to ſhew that they are not contrary to our Way, though they uſe another.

The Judgment of the Princeſs of Turenne.

But I conceive that I cannot better let the World know how the ſetting up of this French Church after the Way of the Church of England, was taken by all thoſe of the Reformed Church of Paris, as well Miniſters as others, than by inſerting here the following Letter from a Perſon of the other Sex, the moſt illuſtrious Princeſs of Turenne, a Perſon ſo well known for thoſe eminent Endowments of all moral and intellectual Virtues, true Godlineſs, and fervent Zeal to the Proteſtant Religion wherewith God hath adorned her, that when I have named her Highneſs, I have ſaid all.

Letter printed in French with the Engliſh Tranſlation made by Mr. Durell.

The Duke and Ducheſs de la Force, to whom M. Durell was lately domeſtick Chaplain.

I have received almoſt at the ſame Time both your Letters, by which I am informed of the ſetting up of your new French Church, whereof I heard nothing before. I was very ſorry that I could not ſteal a Moment to congratulate you thereupon on Saturday laſt, as I did moſt earneſtly deſire to do. And though I have ſcarce any Time to ſpare this Morning, I think it better to ſcribble in haſte theſe few Lines, than to keep any longer to myſelf the Joy that I have for it; yet you know it is a Joy tempered with Regret, and that I take enough to Heart my Father's and my Mother's Intereſt, to be ſenſibly affected with the Loſs of that their Family will ſuſtain, by being deprived of a Paſtor ſo dearly beloved and ſo much honoured of them. But becauſe the publick Intereſt muſt carry it before that which is particular, and that the Intereſt of the Houſe of God muſt go before that of our private Houſes, I confeſs my Sorrow doth ceaſe, when I conſider the Advantages of this Eſtabliſhment, and that it is not only a multiplying of the Churches of our Language amongſt you; but likewiſe an Evidence, that if the Diſciplines of theſe two Kingdoms differ in ſome Things, it is by Reaſon of the Difference of our Conditions, and not of our Perſuaſions, and that we all agree in this, that for Things external, whereof our Lord hath left the Diſpoſal to his Church, ſhe may vary them as Times and Places do require; and according to the Wiſdom of thoſe to whom God hath entruſted the Government thereof. And that in ſuch Things private Perſons have nothing to do, but to ſubmit and ſubject themſelves with great Docibleneſs and Humility to the Order of their Superiours, and to ſuch Cuſtoms as are received and eſtabliſhed in the Orthodox Congregations of the Countries where they live.

She has longed to ſee London, and now the more ſo, to join in the Liturgy of the Church of England in her own Tongue.

Newly printed in French.

All the Miniſters in France well ſatiſfied with it.

I ever longed to ſee London, and to be an Eye-witneſs of the Wonders that God hath wrought in it of late, for which we have praiſed his Name here. But I muſt confeſs, I do wiſh it more than ever I did now that I may ſay Amen in my own Language to your Thankſgivings, and to the holy Prayers of your excellent Liturgy, and anſwer in your Congregation to your Litany, which I do ſay often by myſelf in my Cloſet, there being here no publick Congregation where I may ſay it. I do extremely rejoice that you take Care to have that good Book newly printed in French: I aſſure you that the fifty Copies you promiſe me will not lie long by me. There is not one left of the old Edition in our Bookſellers Shops, and every body ſeeks after them. I have promiſed ſome to ſeveral Perſons. I gave the laſt I had to Monſieur Drelincourt. I doubt not but he will write to you to cerifty his Joy of this new French Church, and of the Choice your King hath made of your Perſon to be a Miniſter therein. There is not one of our Miniſters, that I have ſeen ſince I received your Letters about it, but ſhewed himſelf well ſatiſfied therewith; as alſo the Deputy General of our Churches. And I am perſuaded, that all Men that underſtand theſe Matters never ſo little will praiſe God for it.

The greater Aſtoniſhment that any in England ſhould oppoſe the Uſe of it.

I cannot wonder enough, and I am almoſt aſtoniſhed, when I hear of thoſe in your Provinces, who ſo much oppoſe the Uſe of the Book of Common Prayer. I beſeech God to ſend you all the Spirit of Unity and Peace; the Spirit of Humility, and the Fear of his Name, the Spirit of Holineſs, of Obedience, and of good Order; and to pour his Bleſſing upon the Pains you take in your new Employment.

The Hopes and Fears of having Epiſcopacy reſtored with Monarchy, made the Preſbyterians ready to appeal to the foreign Reformed Churches, and eſpecially thoſe in France, and made our Epiſcopal Men content to hear their Judgment.

M. John Durel of the Government and Worſhip of the Reformed Church, 4to. p. 122.

That moſt eloquent and famous Preacher of the Reformed Church of Caen, Monſieur du Boſe, in a Letter of his to Dr. Brevint, written June 14, An. 1660. whereof I have the Original, where he writes as followeth: The French is his Word for Word; the Tranſlation is Dr. Peter du Moulin, Prebendary of Canterbury, who made it long ſince, intending to publiſh it with divers others written of late to the ſame Purpoſe.

Upon which, the moſt eminent of the Proteſtant Miniſters in France declar'd their good Opinion of the Government of the Church of England by Biſhops.

And confeſs that their own Preſbyterian Diſcipline was not owing to their Choice, but to their Neceſſity.

We acknowledge that this Order hath ſingular Advantages; and I think not that any of my Brethren will contradict me, if I ſay, that well ordered Epiſcopacy hath moſt important and conſiderable Utilities which cannot be found in the Preſbyterian Diſcipline. If we have followed the laſt in our Churches, it is not for any Averſion that we have againſt the former: It is not becauſe we hold Epiſcopacy to be contrary to the Nature of the Goſpel, or becauſe we think it leſs convenient for the Good of the Church, or leſs worthy of the Condition of the true Flocks of the Lord; but it is becauſe Neceſſity hath obliged us to it. Becauſe Reformation having been begun in this Kingdom by the People, and by inferiour Churchmen, the Places of Biſhops remained filled up with Men of a contrary Religion, ſo that we were conſtrained to content ourſelves with Miniſters and Elders as well as we could, for fear of ſetting Biſhop againſt Biſhop in the ſame Town, which would have cauſed furious Troubles and implacable Wars, and put a great Stop to the Progreſs of the Goſpel.

If Biſhops had been Reformers in France, they would have ſubmitted to them; as they did to the Biſhop of Troyes when he became a Proteſtant.

Of whom Mr. Durell gives this further Account.

Joannes Antonius of the illuſtrious Family of the Coracioli, Son of the moſt renowned Prince of Melſi, and a Man of good Learning being Biſhop of Troyes in the Province of Champaigne, was convinced of the Truth of the Doctrine of the Reformed Churches, and they acknowledged him for their Biſhop and Paſtor.

If Biſhops had embraced the Reformation at the firſt, I make no doubt but that their Order had been maintained in the Eccleſiaſtical Policy. And I find a convincing Proof of that in an Epiſtle of Martyr, it is the 57th inſcribed to Theodorus Beza, where he ſpeaks to him of the Biſhop of Troyes in Champaigne, where God had gathered a great and numerous Church. He ſaith, that the Prelate of that Town having acknowledged the Truth, begun to preach it publickly, and being a Man of great Parts, advanced the Kingdom of Chriſt mightily; but that a great Scruple being come into his Mind about his Calling he aſſembled the Elders of the Reformed Church, to know of them whether they would acknowledge him for their Biſhop, and he deſired them maturely to deliberate of it among themſelves, which when they had done with all the Prudence and Wiſdom requiſite, they declared unto him unanimouſly, that they acknowledged and received him for their true and lawful Biſhop. Can any doubt, but that if the other Biſhops of the Kingdom had followed his Example, and given Glory to God as he did, they had continued in their Station, and preſerved their Dignity? For Martyr in that Epiſtle approveth both the Biſhop's Action and the Reſolution of the Elders. He writes of this to Beza, as of a Thing for which he praiſeth God, and for which he knew that Beza, that great Servant of God, would rejoice with him.

Practice of the Churches in France no Preſident for England.

Wherefore the Practice of the Churches of France ought to be no Precedent for the Church of England. For in the Church of England, Reformation having been begun by the Biſhops, there would be Reaſon to think it ſtrange, if Epiſcopacy had not been preſerved therein. And if there be any in England at this Time ſo rigidly partial for Preſbyterian Parity, as to joſtle againſt that ancient Order of Epiſcopacy, and ſeek to root it quite out, to the Prejudice both of Church and State, they cannot but be very much blamed for it.

Monſieur Gaches to Dr. Brevint,

In Defence of the Order of Biſhops.

Monſieur Gaches, one of the Miniſters of Charenton, in one of his Letters to the ſame Dr. Brevint, writes thus:

The Name of Biſhop cannot be ſtrange to any Man that is acquainted with Scripture, ſince it is found in Scripture. The Office which that Name doth intimate is lawful, ſince it was acknowledged from the Beginning of the Chriſtian Church. Yea, I am of this Opinion, that though Biſhops had very much exceeded the Authority which they had in the two firſt Ages, and were not ſo religious as St. Cyprian, who would do nothing without his Preſbytery, yet that Difference in Government ought not to cauſe a Diviſion in the Church. The beſt Men in our Churches have honoured the Prelates of England. And he that was ſent to the Synod of Dort was reſpected according to his Place. The Name of Schiſm may do more Harm to the Church in one Year, than all the Exceſs of Epiſcopal Authority can do in an Age.

And again in another Letter to the ſame Perſon.

The French would ſubmit to Biſhops of their own Religion.

Would to God we had no other Differences with the Biſhops of France but their Dignity. How chearfully ſhould I ſubmit myſelf unto them? Although you know, that their Yoke is heavy, far heavier than that of the Biſhops of England. How comes it to paſs then, that thoſe of your Preſbyterians, that are great, underſtanding, and wiſe Men, have ſuch an Averſion againſt moderate Epiſcopacy? And why do they refuſe to have Communion with Ignatius, Polycarpus, Cyprian, Chryſoſtom, and all that holy Company of the pureſt Antiquity? I am of that Opinion, that if all Miniſters could be wiſe at all Times, and keep themſelves in good Order, they would have no need of Overſeers; as there would have been no need of Kings and Judges, if Men had kept their primitive Innocency. But Sin hath brought in the Neceſſity of Government, and the Failings of Miniſters make the Order of Biſhops neceſſary.

Monſieur le Moyne to Dr. Brevint; for the Epiſcopal Dignity, without which no Peace or Order.

In a Letter to Dr. Brevint.

Here followeth the Teſtimony upon this Matter of another Miniſter of great Worth and Fame in the Reformed Churches of France, who amongſt other good Parts is known to be very well verſed in the Oriental Tongues, and a great Lover of Antiquity: It is Monſieur le Moyne, one of the ordinary Preachers to the Reformed Congregation at Roan. He gives his Judgment concerning Epiſcopacy and Preſbytery in a Letter he writ to Dr. Brevint, preſently after his Majeſty's moſt happy Return into his Kingdoms.

Sir, my much honoured Brother,

Joy at the King's Entry to London.

How great was your Joy to ſee the King's Entry into London! And how loud did you ſhout Io triumphe! I cannot believe, that in all your Life you have ſeen a more glorious Day. Sure you deſire no more to ſee one of the Roman Triumphs. Or if ever you were tempted with that Deſire, as that Father of the Church was once, you are now weaned from it, and only wiſh as he did, to hear the Apoſtle St. Paul. Truly, could that great Man who was once from the Earth rapt into the third Heaven come down again at preſent upon Earth, to tell us how the Church of God ought to be ordered, and how the Differences about Church Government might be happily compoſed; it would be a happy Advantage to the Anglican Church in her preſent Condition.

No Peace or Order without the Epiſcopal Dignity.

Truly, I believe not that it is poſſible to keep either Peace or Order in your Church, without preſerving the Epiſcopal Dignity. And I confeſs that I conceive not by what Spirit they are led that oppoſe that Government, and cry it down with ſuch Violence. For I defy any Man whoſoever he be to ſhew me if he can any other Order more ſuitable with Reaſon, yea, or better agreeing with holy Scripture, and of which God hath made more Uſe for the Eſtabliſhment of Such Inequality of Officers in the Jewiſh Church.

The Apoſtolical Church had not the Preſbyterian Parity.

Firſt Apoſtles, and then thoſe who had their immediate Call from them; of his Truth and the Amplification of his Kingdom. I ſay it is ſuitable with Reaſon; for who can deny that Reaſon requires that in all ſorts of Things there be ſome Order and Superiority; and that Equality very often is the Mother of Confuſion? Of that we have but too many Experiences. For that Reaſon under the Old Teſtament God would have his People to be ruled by Prieſts who were above the Levites, and by Chief Prieſts, and High Prieſts; which certainly he would not have done, had he judged a downright Equality the moſt reaſonable Government of the World. And as for the Church in the Apoſtles Time, was it not always conducted by a Government far different from the Equality of the Preſbyterians? Indeed Paſtors were eſtabliſhed in ſeveral Churches, yet thoſe Paſtors yielded Obedience unto the Apoſtles, looking upon them ſtill as placed in a higher Degree. Which ſheweth that Subordination and Superiority are not incompatible with the Government of the Church: Neither did that Dignity of Apoſtle only give Authority. But alſo I make no doubt, but that they that had received their Calling immediately from the Apoſtles had Superiority above thoſe that had not the ſame Advantage.

As Titus and Timothy.

By Impoſition of Hands above the common Paſtors.

For Example, I make no doubt, but that Titus and Timothy who had that Advantage, were more honoured for it of the People, yea, and were made more venerable thereby to their fellow Labourers. For as the immediate Calling of the Evangeliſts and Apoſtles by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt did raiſe them above others; ſo likewiſe the Calling conferr'd by the Hands of the holy Apoſtles made them upon whom they conferr'd it more conſiderable in the Church of God: This Impoſition of Hands being far more honourable than that which was conferred by mere and common Paſtors, and ordinarily more accompanied with the Effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt. Which alſo was one of the Things that gave Primacy in the primitive Church. For it is certain that in that Church God made a plentiful Diſtribution of his Spirit, yea, that he ſpake very loud by the Miracles of his Servants to draw many Perſons to his holy Knowledge. Now who can doubt but that ſuch as poſſeſſed a great Meaſure of the Spirit of the Lord, and ſhined with more Miracles were above others? And that the Churches would chuſe them to be their Leaders, and yield Honour unto them, as to thoſe whom God had choſen for the chief Objects of his Liberalities, and his chief Inſtruments for the Eſtabliſhment of his Glory.

A continual Subordination in that firſt Age of the Church.

And this, Sir, laſted all the Time of the firſt Age, during almoſt all which Time the Apoſtle St. John was ſtill alive, who certainly did moderate all the Churches of Aſia. Which ſheweth, that in the firſt Age there was always ſome Subordination in the Church, and that in the Time of her Innocency ſhe was always conducted by a Government equivalent to the Epiſcopal. And after ſhe had no more Apoſtles nor Perſons that had received their Eſtabliſhment from theſe holy Perſons, and that the Gift of Prophecy and Miracles was a little abated, the Church looking to her own Conduct, and making Uſe of her own Election to fill the vacant Places of thoſe whom Providence had immediately raiſed in the Midſt of God's Churches, did preſently chuſe Biſhops: And ſeeing that God did then hardly put any Inequality between her Paſtors by the Difference of his miraculous Gifts, ſhe reſolved to put ſome Difference between them by the Plurality of her Votes; God having not taken from her the Liberty of ſo doing, but rather given her Reaſon, by Examples, to hope that it would be an uſeful Practice, and not diſpleaſing unto him.

In the ſecond Age, the Church choſe Biſhops.

And God bleſſed them with wonderful Succeſs.

The more inſufferable that any ſhould now call them Antichriſtian.

Such Ingratitude greater in the Engliſh, becauſe they owe their Reformation to Biſhops;

And even their Chriſtianity.

In effect, in the ſecond Age the Church choſe Biſhops for herſelf, and beginning juſt at the Time when the Providence of God left her to her own Conduct, and when ſhe found herſelf in Caſe to go alone, ſhe choſe Superiours, and ſuch as might be above the ordinary Degree of Paſtors, as God himſelf in the firſt Age had inſtituted ſuch an Order, and would have his Church ruled in that golden Time by an Hierarchical Government. Neither did God ſhew that he diſapproved that his Church ſhould ſo do, and conform herſelf to the Pattern which God ſhewed her upon Zion, whence the Doctrine is derived to us. Rather he hath bleſſed that Deſign, and made it proſper in the moſt miraculous manner in the World. For never did any work more Miracles, or caſt down more Monſters than the ancient Biſhops and Prelates. If then God hath ſo bleſſed them, are not thoſe Men beſides themſelves in an horrible manner that undertake to curſe them? If the ancient Church did ſet them forth as her Glory, have they any Reaſon to conſider them as the Shame and Diſhonour of Iſrael? If that Government hath made the Glory of Chriſt to triumph, is it ſufferable that any ſhould maintain them to be the Pillar and Ground of Untruth, and the Baſis upon which alone the Tyranny of Antichriſt is ſettled? Certainly to make ſuch an Aſſertion is a very raſh Part; and in my Opinion it goes beyond all Examples of Ingratitude, ſo to reward the Obligation we have to ſo many Biſhops of great Note, who with ſo many illuſtrious Examples of Conſtancy and Fidelity in God's Service, have delivered down his Truth unto us, repurged from thoſe Errors wherewith a Swarm of Hereticks had laboured to poiſon it. But if ever any in this particular made their Ungratefulneſs notorious, certainly they are the Engliſh Oppoſers of Epiſcopacy, who will not conſider that they owe their Reformation to the Care and Zeal of their Biſhops, who did ſo wonderfully well repurge the Church of England a hundred Years ago, and ſo happily ſet up the holy Truth again in its genuine Luſtre. But this is not all they owe unto them: They owe them alſo their whole Chriſtianity. For whether it was brought over to England by Joſeph of Arimathea, or by Simon Canneus, or by St. Paul, St. Paul, or by St. Peter, or by Luke Diſciple of Philip, or by Phaganus and Peruſianus in the Time of King Lucius, it is conſtant, that it was done by the Miniſtry of Biſhops; and that they are indebted to their Charity, Zeal, and Abilities for the holy Knowledge they now enjoy. Why then ſhould any be paſſionate againſt that Government? And what want of Brains is it to believe that they can advantage themſelves by ſhaking off a Government which hath continued in their Church for ſo many Ages? Can any Man reſolve upon ſuch Extremities but a Lover of Confuſion, and a Man that hath little Experience, and one that knows not that Changes are of dangerous Conſequence?

The Kingdom of England cannot be without Biſhops, and competent Revenues to them.

But, Sir, (to omit that it cannot enter into a rational Man's Imagination, that a great Kingdom ſhould come by Cuſtom to be content to ſee its Biſhops no more, having honoured and reverenced them for the Space of fourteen hundred Years) what ſhall be done with all the Church Revenues? To what Uſe ſhall they be applied? Muſt ſo many Things which Devotion hath brought together be torn in Pieces and diſmembred? And might not this Queſtion trouble the Kingdom once more, Whether thoſe Lands and Revenues which were appointed only for pious Uſes, may lawfully be poſſeſſed by ſecular Perſons? So much I know, that it is a Point which greatly troubleth the City of Utrecht, and may there bring forth ſtrange Revolutions. Is it not then more reaſonable to leave Things as they are, and not to hinder deſerving Perſons from poſſeſſing thoſe Advantages, without which their Merit would ſeldom riſe high enough, nor would they find themſelves in Condition to exerciſe all the Virtues which the Apoſtle requireth in a Biſhop? Beſides, Sir, ought we not to learn Wiſdom by our Experience? I pray what good have theſe Troublers of Iſrael, that are ſo contrary to Biſhops, done for well nigh theſe twenty Years that they have ruled? How far have they advanced their Work? Hath the Church enjoyed more Reſt by their Anarchy? Nay, on the contrary, have not all Things grown ſtill worſe and worſe? Have not Hereſies grown bold, and lift up their Head? And did ever Satan work more Miſchief than he did ſince the Time that theſe Men became Maſters? This indeed in Point of Conſcience ought to make them tremble with Horrour, and after ſuch a viſible Curſe upon all their Enterprizes they ſhould now at once give them over. They ought to give Glory unto God, and acknowledge that certainly their Work is not the Work of God, and that it is a far wiſer Courſe for them to let thoſe rule, whoſe Government is famous by a thouſand Bleſſings wherewith God hath often crowned it.

Sad Experience in the want of them.

No Nation in the World have more Need of Biſhops than the English,

But, Sir, I muſt here add this Conſideration, that I believe not that any Nation in the World hath more Need of Biſhops than the Engliſh. For they have a natural Fierceneſs, and withal a natural Inclination to Superſtition. Both which are apt to ſet them upon great Enterprizes, and to caſt them upon ſtrange Extremities, unleſs they be repreſſed by ſome Power ſomewhat deſpotical. And as there is no Nation leſs fit to be governed by a popular Adminiſtration, becauſe all the Engliſh have too much Courage for that, are too unquiet and jealous, and all think themſelves born to reign; all which Things, as you know, have need of an extreme Power to be kept in. So likewiſe in the Church, an ordinary Government could not keep it in Order, but it would go beyond all Bounds, were not Epiſcopal Authority (which is the moſt ſovereign that the Church can ſubmit to) eſtabliſhed to take Care of it and to prevent Diſorders. In effect, Sir, there is no other Power but the Epiſcopal can remedy an Infinity of Evils that may ariſe in the Church. For I beſeech you, let us not flatter ourſelves, in France where we have a Preſbyterian Government, are we not ſubject unto many Diviſions, which the Equality of Paſtors is not able to compoſe? And which a Synod conſiſting of equal Perſons, and of Elders and Deacons (who many Times have little Skill in Eccleſiaſtical Government) is not able to ſtop, becauſe the Authors of the Evil hold themſelves to be of equal Power with thoſe that are of prime Note, and deſpiſe moſt of them that are ordinarily employed to heal thoſe Diſtempers? Who knows not that in the Low Countries all the Univerſities have ſome Differences which the Authority of Biſhops might have ended long ago, and which would break out with more Violence, did not the ſecular Authority keep the Evil from growing further? Are not our Adverſaries very happy in that Point? For were it not for their Epiſcopal Government they would be torn into a thouſand Factions; and that great Body of the Roman Church would in a ſhort Time be diſmembred. But having Superiours, who watch over a whole Dioceſe, or over a whole Province, the Evil is ſpeedily prevented, and the Factions are conſtrained to yield. They have always ſome Deference and ſome Reſpect for the Superiours, and the Union being howſoever always preſerved, the Evil is not ſo ſcandalous and of ſuch dangerous Conſequence. It is that which upholds the Lutheran Churches. For in Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Germany they are very quiet under the Epiſcopal Diſcipline, and ſeldom are they ſeen to ſlander and tear one another. Whereas our Governments have much adoe to avoid that. Why then ſhould we be ſo unreaſonable as to refuſe to make Profit of that, and apply to ourſelves that which we ſee practiſed with ſuch advantageous Succeſs in the Eyes of all the World?

To keep them within Bounds and in due Order.

The Preſbyterian Government in France had ſubjected the Proteſtants to many Diviſions.

As likewiſe in the Low Countries.

Even our Adverſaries are happy in that Point.

The Lutheran Churches quiet under Epiſcopal Diſcipline.

I muſt not forget to ſay, that it is merely out of want of Prudence and Charity if any ſeek the Ruin of Biſhops with a violent Zeal. For who knows not that this is one of the Things which makes the Romaniſt moſt averſe from the Communion of our Churches, even the Nakedneſs of our Government? And that when they see that we have no Conformity with the whole ancient Church in Ecclesiastical Discipline, they cannot persuade themselves that we are in the right Way, our Way appearing to them so remote from that of the primitive Church?

The Papiſts more averſe to the Proteſtant Religion in France for want of that Government of the primitive Church.

The Reformation in France would have made a better Progress if they had kept Episcopacy.

For my Part, I praise God for our Reformation in France. But I fear not to say, that if we had kept Bishops, and as many Ceremonies as would serve to fix the Attention of the People without Superstition, we should have seen for certain, far greater Progresses of Reformation, and the Resistance of a great many Persons overcome who are frighted from our Communion by the Irregularity of our Government and the Barrenness of our Service.

And without it, no reconciling the Lutherans and Calvinists.

Which ought to quiet the English Dissenters.

But though our End were not to win the Romanists, what will those of the Confession of Ausburg say, whom we endeavour by all good Ways to engage in our Party? Would not Reconcilers have great Reason to despair of the Success of their Enterprize if when we present unto them the Hand of Fellowship, we draw it back presently, and go far from them by the Ruin of the Episcopal Government? Truly that only Circumstance ought to appease your English Dissenters, and bring them if they have any Charity, to consent to the Re-establishment of that Government, though there were something in it which they could not altogether approve of. But I am a little afraid that such is their Disposition, that they take little Care for ought we see of others, and are ready to say to God, Hast thou made us our Brethrens Keepers, that we should engage ourselves so far from them, and trouble ourselves so much about them? But their Inclination will not hinder so many godly Englishmens Practice to the contrary. And I trust that the King whom God hath so miraculously preserved and settled again upon his Throne, will be sure to re-establish the Authority of the Anglican Church, and after he hath restored unto the Church her former Dignity, use his Power for a perfect Re-union of all the Reformed Churches. Which that he may effect, his Majesty must preserve his Bishops. And though he had none in his Kingdom, his own Wisdom would suggest unto him, that it were necessary to set up some.

The King will not fail to restore the Episcopal Church of England;

And if possible to re-unite all the Reformed Churches.

A Letter of Monsieur L'Angle, to the same Purpose.

Dr. Durel, View of the Church of England, 4to, p. 141.

An Epistle written about the same Time with the former by the reverend Monsieur del'Angle, directed to Dr. Brevint, and translated from the Latin by Dr. Peter du Moulin.

S I R,

All pious Persons rejoice in the King's Restauration.

Wonderful like the Temple of Solomon.

God undertook the Cause of his Anointed, when most desperate.

It is with great Reason indeed that all pious Persons adore the good Hand of God in the Restauration of your King unto the Throne of his Ancestors, of which he was deprived by an abominable Rabble of Traytors; and that he hath done that great Work alone without any second Cause intervening. We stand all amazed at this so gracious and so unexpected a Turn of all Things to the best in England, which represents in some sort the Face of that famous Temple of Solomon, that was in a manner brought forth by itself, and for the cementing of whose Stones there was no Use of the Hammer, nor no Noise heard. This is the Day which the Lord hath made. I will praise the Lord as long as I live, because he that is mighty hath done for us great Things. He hath put down the Mighty from their Seat, and his Servant whom he had brought low, he hath lift up on high, and hath made it manifest unto all, that there is a God in Heaven that judgeth the Transactions and the Doings of Men, who disposeth of them according to his Pleasure, and when they grow licentious, and break out of the Path of Righteousness and Humanity, he keeps them within the Channel of Reverence and Duty. But especially he taketh in Hand the Cause of his Anointed, when it seemed unto all to be most abandoned, and so desperate, that it seemed incapable of any Remedy, unless it were ministred by God himself; adorning the Royal Head of your King with so many Rays of Grace, and giving him such an amiable Authority, that the Alienation of his Subjects from him, which hitherto hath raised so many Storms, is now turned into Love. From that horrible Ruin which had miserably defaced him, he now riseth glorious and lovely; and that Furnace of Afflictions into which God whose Ways are unsearchable, had cast him, makes him appear a Son of God, and an Angel of Light. The Affections of his People have not passed indeed, but have equalled the Swiftness of our Prayers, and the Torrent of Blessings wherewith God overfloweth his Royal Throne is risen far above his very Hopes. Come then, dear Sir, let us say of his most excellent Majesty that which the Psalmist saith of his King, His Glory is great in thy Salvation, O Lord, Honour and Majesty hast thou laid upon him. We trust that his Piety and Gratefulness towards God will enable us to apply to him likewise the Words that follow a little after, For the King trusteth in the Lord, and through the Mercy of the most High he shall not be moved.

The King to take a contrary Course to the Tyrant Cromwell:

And to begin at the House of God.

Now, Sir, I make no Question but that your King to settle the Affairs of his Church and Kingdom, will take a clean contrary Course to that of the Tyrant, who hath for so many Years usurped and defiled his Throne: For the Prudence of Cromwell, which was all earthly and devilish, took Care of nothing else but his Profit, and the settling of his insolent Fortune, without any Regard of the Kingdom of Christ trodden under in England. Neither did he ever repress the Impiety of ungracious Men, who had as many Gods as Houses; which indeed was a great Shame to our Religion. But the King's most excellent Majesty following the Example of Solomon, and embracing holy Counsels, will begin at God's House before he think of his own, and will seek before all Things the Kingdom of God, and the Righteouſneſs thereof. My Heart did leap for Joy when I was told that your Liturgy and ancient Diſcipline ſhould be reſtored again, and that already it did appear like a joyful Morning at the Riſing of the King your Sun, promiſing a fair and bright Day. I cannot but have good Hope of that Diſcipline by the Uſe whereof the Chuch of England was enriched with ſo many Bleſſings for ſo many Years. And I cannot tell what thoſe Haters of the Peace of the Church mean, that prattle up and down, and talk as if the French Churches were great Adverſaries to the Epiſcopal Order; and as if we held it quite contrary unto Chriſt's Kingdom, and affirmed it to be a foul Relick of Antichriſtianiſm. God forbid, Sir, that we ſhould have ſuch a perverſe and raſh Opinion, I am ſure that neither Monſieur Daillé, nor Monſieur Amirant, nor Monſieur Bochart, nor any of my Colleagues of Rouen ever approved of it; I that am the leaſt of my Brethren am as far from it as any. Truly an Epiſcopacy diſtracted and carried about within and without the Walls of our Jeruſalem to ſeveral Abuſes; an Epiſcopacy altogether independent and lawleſs, making of a Man's Will his Law, doing all the Functions of ſuch an important Miniſtry with its particular and deſpotical Pleaſure, is an unlucky and horrible Thing in the Houſe of God, drawing near to Antichriſtianity if it be not rather a Part of it. But an Epiſcopacy well tempered and well poiſed, an Epiſcopacy framed after the Model which was exerciſed with ſo much Succeſs by thoſe Prelates of the Apoſtolick Churches, which Chriſt calls Angels, ſuch as Clemens, Policarpus, Irenæus, Cyprianus, Athanaſius, Chryſoſtom, and Auſtin, and many others of the like kind, who have been in the Church the ſweet Savour of Chriſt; it is a moſt ſacred and moſt ancient Order, and if the Apoſtles themſelves were not the Authors of it, certainly it was inſtituted by Apoſtolick Men, who might ſay of their Ordinances of this Nature, the ſame that the Apoſtle ſaid ſometimes after he had gravely reſolved ſome Queſtions, about which he had no expreſs Command from God, I think alſo that I have the Spirit of God.

They are Haters of the Peace of the Church of England, who would repreſent the French Churches as Adverſaries to the Epiſcopal Order.

When againſt Epiſcopacy, they mean Tyranny.

A Teſtimony given of the King's Stedfaſtneſs in the Proteſtant Religion.

Of the King's Firmneſs in the Proteſtant Religion, Mr. Walwyn in a Thankſgiving Sermon had ſpoke thus: Witneſs his Zeal and Conſtancy in adhering to his Principles, in his Profeſſion of the true Proteſtant Religion, notwithſtanding all Tamperings with him, and Arguments uſed to enforce or perſuade him, to turn an Apoſtate from his dear Mother the Church of England, commended to his tender Tuition by his dying Father. Witneſs, I ſay, his conſtant Adherency to that Church, to the infamous Shame, both of thoſe Clergy and Lay-men, who in theſe Times of our Diſtractions have ſo often turned their Coats. Surely, had not his Sacred Majeſty been as immoveable as a Rock, he was batter'd with Arguments enough to have made him make Shipwreck of his Faith, &c.

SATURDAY June 8. The French Churches had a Reſpect for the Church of England in her late Time of Perſecution.

Mr. John Dure l of the Reformed Churches, 4to. 1662. p. 68.

In the late Times of Confuſion, very few Members of the Reformed Churches abroad, dared to ſpeak any Thing againſt the Epiſcopal Church of England. And when their Synods had Notice given them of any ſuch ſenſeleſs brainſick Fellows, a Cenſure forthwith was paſſed upon them for their ſcandalous Raſhneſs. I bring one Inſtance to the purpoſe: One Mr. Coignart of the Town of Roan, firſt a Phyſician, next a Lawyer, then a Divine, writ a Book of Controverſy againſt the Church of Rome, and becauſe the Book had many good Things in it, and that the Man was not rich, he had a Sum of Money allow'd him towards printing the ſame, as the Cuſtom is in like Caſes. When the Work was out in Print, he preſented his Petition to the Synod of the Province, that he might receive the Sum of Money appointed for him. Whereupon Complaint being made of ſome ſcandalous Expreſſions of his Book, againſt the Reformation of the Church of England, thoſe whoſe Office it was to examine Books before they were licenſed for the Preſs, were call'd in queſtion: One of them being preſent, by Name Monſieur de l'Angle, Preſident of the Aſſembly, proteſted that he adviſed Coignart to take out of his ſaid Book thoſe ſcandalous Expreſſions againſt the Church of England, and that he gave him Licenſe to put forth his Book, upon Condition he ſhould ſo do; which having failed to do, his Opinion was, that Coignart inſtead of receiving the Sum which formerly was promis'd him, ſhould be cenſured by the Synod, which was done accordingly, every one of the Aſſembly approving and following the Motion made by the Moderator thereof. This happen'd in the Year 1657. when the Church of England lay as it were dead and buried: The Synod was held at Caen in Normandy in the Houſe of Monſieur Bochart; I was preſent at it, &c.

His Majeſty no ſooner ſaw him, but inſtantly conferred upon him the Honour of Knighthood, as a Perſon who abroad had much honoured his Country, for firſt being Conſul for the Engliſh at Padua, he after by all the Italians and Greeks (though himſelf much oppoſed it) was preferred to be Syndick of that whole Univerſity. Conforming and Reforming is now the Talk of every Man in this Kingdom. Some are very zealous for one without the other; our Doctor is for both conjointly; but yet in due Order. He would have us firſt obey the Laws of Chriſt (our great Law-maker) and then the Canons of the Church. And not without Reaſon: For if the Church be the Body of Chriſt, I would fain learn from our Non-Conformiſts, why we may not give as much Reverence and Obedience to the Laws of the Church, as we muſt to the Laws of each paltry Corporation. The contrary Poſition hath occaſioned the great Increaſe of Fanaticks in this Realm, as I have proved in my Diſcourſe of the Riſe and Growth of Quakeriſm, which will ſhortly be printed. The Faſt: As it was delivered in a Sermon at St. Margaret's in Weſtminſter, before the Honourable Houſe of Commons, upon Wedneſday the 12th of June 1661. being the Day appointed by his Majeſty and the Parliament, for a ſolemn Humiliation upon the late Abundance of Rain, and the Danger of Famine and Peſtilence likely to enſue thereby. By Tho. Greenfield, A. M. Preacher to the honourable Society of Lincoln's-Inn.

London, printed for Hen. Brome, 1661. 4to.

Text, Iſai. lxviii. 5, 6, 7. Is it ſuch a Faſt that I have choſen? &c.

P. 17. There have been divers Interpretations paſs'd on this late Abundance of Rain: The Star-gazer charges it upon ſome notable Configuration in the Heavens; but yet (as our late Aſtrologers confeſs'd) they could not read our late Revolution, and Bleſſed Return of the King in any Conjunction of the Planets, but gave it clearly up to be a Miracle, ſo if you now examine their Almanacks, you ſhall not find a Word foretelling all this foul Weather; which makes me think it is more than a natural, it is a judicial Effect.

And therefore others (that are no good Friends to our preſent Welfare) will adventure to make a malicious Gloſs upon the preſent Judgment, and whiſper it, at leaſt in Corners, that it is for the King's coming in, for our importunate Deſires of his Return, and for our great Rejoicings at his Preſence. And they obſerve (with ſome Pleaſure to themſelves) the great Rain that fell at the firſt Treatment of his Majeſty in the City, the great Rain and Thunder upon the Day of his Coronation, and the great Rains that have continued ever ſince. And they make bold with Scripture to prove this to be the Cauſe of the Judgment from 1 Sam. xii. 17.——

It is, no doubt, for our Sins. — 1. The Sin of Sabbath-breaking, a Sin now more frequent, impudent, and unpuniſhed, than in thoſe late black Days, in which greater Sins were counted none at all. — 2. The Sin of Swearing. Never did Bullets fly thicker in the hotteſt Battel, than Oaths now in this wicked City. —— 3. The Sin of Adultery. —— 4. Intemperance and Luxury. —— 5. And laſtly, the Want of Juſtice and Charity. And indeed to tell you the Truth, I choſe this Text, and have ſpoken all this while upon it, only to introduce what follows, and give me leave to be very plain and home with you.

There is a Party yet alive in England (if they be alive, and indeed 'tis as much as they are) that have been, and do ſtill own the Name of true Engliſhmen (for the reſt live only by an Amneſty, and are Engliſhmen but of one Year old:) But theſe I am ſpeaking of are true old Engliſhmen, and great Sufferers in being ſo, and are let paſs, not only without Reward, but Reſtitution, not only without Reſpect of others, but without Recovery of their own. Aſtrologers have amuſed the World of late with Reports of ſtrange and wonderful Conjunctions; never were there ſuch ſtrange and monſtrous Couples as are now ſeen marching togethen in England, Loyalty and Rags, Loyalty and Lice, Loyalty and Hunger, Loyalty and a Priſon, poor Loyalty! I could tell you from a very good Hand, of a ſtout Royaliſt, that (like Lazarus) came into our Hall, and carefully gathered up the Parings of Bread, which not only the Men, but the Mice and the Dogs had left. —— This endangers a Famine and provokes it. —— Let me give you my juſt Fear, that as the preſent Unkindneſs (if not Injuſtice) to this ſort of Men is very great, ſo I do believe you will never thrive, neither in Creatures, nor in Councils, nor in any Undertakings, till this be amended. —— Let not England hope to proſper till there be Acts iii. 21. a Reſtitution of all Things. ——

To the honourable the Houſe of Commons now in Parliament aſſembled. [A large Epiſtle carrying on the ſame Complaint of a loyal People as yet but badly requited: —— Concluding.] If theſe and the following Lines may have the Happineſs to move you to put the Queſtion for our Mordecais, Eſth. vi. 2. What hath been done for them? And upon finding, that as yet nothing is done for them, to put it further to the Queſtion, What ſhall be done for them? God ſhall have his Will, I my End, they the Comfort, and you the Honour, of ſo juſt and brave an Action.

THURSDAY June 13. Joy in Portugal for the Match with England.

Memoirs of S. D'Ablancourt, 12°. p. 37.

The Portugueze Troops teſtified their Joy upon receiving the glad Tidings of the Marriage concluded and ſigned the 23d of June 1661, between the Infanta of Portugal and the King of England. Amongſt other Conditions of this Treaty, his Britannick Majeſty had oblig'd himſelf immediately to ſend into Portugal 3000 Foot and 1000 Horſe, and alſo eight Frigats to cruiſe upon their Coaſts all the Summer; with Orders to aſſiſt the Portugueze in their Occaſions. The Count of Schomberg had more Reaſon than others to rejoice in that Marriage, as being a Buſineſs wherein he had been very inſtrumental. When he came over into England from Holland in order to embark for Portugal, he had ſeveral Conferences with Chancellor Hyde and afterward with the King himſelf, to whom he propos'd this Match. And when he arriv'd at Portugal this was one of the firſt Matters he communicated to the Queen, which ſhe alſo greatly approved.

The Labour of the Clergy to reduce the Sectaries.

The great Multitude of them.

Hereſio Graphy, London, 1654, 4to.

The great Labour of the Church Clergy in their Sermons and Conferences was to bring the deluded People from out of the Multitude of Sects that had moſtly ſprung up in the late Times of Confuſion. Thoſe Diviſions and Subdiviſions of Sectaries and Schiſmaticks were thus numbred by good old Ephraim Pagitt. 1. Anabaptiſts. 2. Browniſts. 3. Semi-Separatiſts. 4. Independents. 5. Familiſts. 6. The Submiſſion of the French Church in the Savoy to the Liturgy and Rites of the Church of England approved by the moſt eminent Proteſtant Miniſters in France.

Monſieur Chabret to Dr. Colladon.

Printed in French and Engliſh.

I believe the Reader is deſirous to know, how the ſubmitting of the French Congregation [in the Savoy] to the Government and publick Worſhip of the Church of England, was taken at Geneva. And that he will learn beſt from the reverend Monſieur Chabret, one of the eldeſt and graveſt Miniſters of that Church, who writes as followeth in a Letter to Dr. Colladon upon this Matter; the Copy whereof I have by me written with Dr. Colladon his own Hand.

S I R,

Beſides that which Judge Colladon imparted to me out of his Letters concerning the Buſineſs of the Liturgy, I received your laſt a fourth Night ago, by which I was informed more at large, ſeeing therein the Tranſlation of your Congregation into another Place, the King's Orders for the Common Prayer, and Subjection to the Biſhop of London, the Eſtabliſhing of a Miniſter, &c. whereunto the moſt Part of your Congregation were ready to acquieſce, there being but very few that ſcrupled at it, deſiring thereupon to be adviſed from other Parts, and likewiſe from this Place, as private Perſons.

Mr. John Durel of the Government and Worſhip of the Reformed Churches, 1662. 4to. p. 81.

Not much acquainted with the Engliſh Liturgy.

The Reaſons for which we delay'd a little to deliberate upon it in our Company, and give our Anſwer, were chiefly to avoid the Imputation of being inclined to preſcribe Laws to thoſe of other Countries; and alſo that we would gladly know, if that Liturgy be the ſame with that of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, or of King James's, yea, or of the late King, or a new one compiled by Archbiſhop Laud, of which it is reported, that it hath been Occaſion of much Clamour, and Ground of Fears and Jealouſies, through which ſo many were led to embroil themſelves in the late Commotions.

Mr. Durel hath made this Reflection. I muſt mind my Reader to reflect a little upon what he ſeeth, that Mr. Chabret ſaith of a new Liturgy ſuppoſed to be compiled by the late Archbiſhop, and that ſo differing from the Liturgies of Queen Elizabeth and King James, yea, and of King Charles I. as if it had a Smack of Idolatry or Superſtition, or both in it. All England will marvel to ſee a grave Divine make ſuch Exceptions againſt a thing that never was; and all judicious Men obſerving that he ſpeaks ſo upon Miſinformation, will eaſily gueſs from what Hands he was ſo well informed of the Archbiſhop's Doings. It is juſt ſuch another Tale as that of Dr. Coſin, now the reverend Lord Biſhop of Durham buying of a Knife of one thouſand Pound Price to cut the Communion Bread, which was given out for true in France, and was maintained for ſuch to his own Face, by one who did not know the Tale had been made of him.

Yet that Reflection might have been ſpared, if Mr. Durel had conſidered that Mr. Chabret meant the Liturgy compiled for the Church of Scotland, with ſome Alterations from the Engliſh by Archbiſhop Laud, in purſuance of an Order by K. Charles I.

For if the Queſtion be only about Common Prayer, Morning and Evening, which doth not at all thwart the Form of Service uſed in France and in this Place, there being an Uniformity of Doctrine, you know very well that thoſe ſmall Differences were not ſtuck at, and that thoſe of our Way may communicate with the Church of England; ſo the Engliſh Nobility and others of the ſame Nation, who have paſſed this Way, have communicated with us in France and in this Church, to teſtify this perfect Union. Seeing, that if we ſhould ſtick at ſuch Things, there is no particular Church in Switzerland and Germany, nay, nor in the Low Countries, which hath not its proper Ceremonies, at which no Offence is taken, there being nothing in them which ſavours of Idolatry or Superſtition: As we ſee nothing reſembling either (viz. Idolatry or Superſtition) in the ſaid Engliſh Liturgy brought in at the Reformation. And ſince the King by the Letter, whereof a Copy hath been ſent to us, enjoins only, that the ſaid Liturgy of Common Prayers, Goſpels, Epiſtles, Collects, &c. be uſed in your Congregation, without ſpecifying any other Thing; and that which is yet moſt advantageous, that his Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to provide for the Subſiſtence of a Miniſter, giving them Leave to call in others to his Aſſiſtance, under ſuch Conditions as are therein contained: And that to expreſs the Height of his Favour, he leaves the Walloons Church in her preſent Condition, without diminiſhing her Privileges, ſuch a manner of Proceeding cannot but be well taken.

The ſame Perſon in another Letter directed to the ſame Dr. Colladon hath theſe Words:

I ſee by your laſt that your Congregation having begun to uſe the Form of Liturgy obſerved in the Iſland of Jerſey, the Miniſters of Paris have by their Anſwer approved it. We may do the like, ſince we do not hold the ſaid Churches for ſchiſmatical or ſuperſtitious, no more than all the Engliſh and Iriſh Churches, with whom we are perfectly united in Doctrinals, and partake with each other in the ſame Sacraments, when we meet together without any Scruple of Conſcience.

As for thoſe of Bourdeaux they did not anſwer at all to this Queſtion in their Return to our doubting Brethren; but ſuppoſing upon Miſinformation or Miſapprehenſion, that if they ſhould joyn the new eſtabliſhed Church at Weſtminſter, the old one of London would be deſtroyed, they adviſed them to become Members bers of the ſame to uphold it. When this Anſwer was received by them, ſome there were that made a loud Noiſe of it, whereupon having written to one of the Elders of the Reformed Church of Bourdeaux, two of the Miniſters returned this Anſwer in the following Letters directed to myſelf. The firſt is of Monſieur Goyen, one of the graveſt and learnedeſt Divines of all the Province of Aquitain.

Letter of Monſieur Goyen Miniſter of Bourdeaux.

Sir, my honoured Brother,

I was told by Monſieur de la Vic, that the Letter of our Conſiſtory written to ſome private Perſons of the French Church of London, was the Cauſe of ſome Troubles among them who are deſirous to embrace a good Agreement in the Profeſſion of Religion. It is true, that thoſe Gentlemen having aſked our Judgment, whether they might with a good Conſcience ſubmit to that French Congregation which was to be ſet up in Weſtminſter, under the Government of the Biſhop of London, and with the Uſe of the Engliſh Liturgy, our Company did not anſwer directly to the Queſtion. Not that we think the Conſcience wounded to live under that Government: No Man can be of that Judgment unleſs he has loſt his Underſtanding, or is ignorant of the Rules of true Piety. But it was becauſe they were perſuaded, that the ſetting up of that New Church would be the utter Ruin of the Walloons Church, which had always ſubſiſted to this Day. ——

Since that our Letter is the Occaſion of Troubles among you, I promiſe you ſhall have an authentick Explanation of the ſame as ſoon as our Conſiſtory ſhall meet again. In the mean while I may aſſure you, that there is never a one of the Paſtors of this Church, nor of the whole Province, who thinketh, that the Conſcience is wounded by living under the Engliſh Liturgy. Thoſe are in a Dream and dote that have ſuch an Opinion; and thoſe Gentlemen among you do wrong us very much, when they quote us to foment their Schiſm, which cannot but be extremely ſcandalous.

Letter of Monſieur Rondelet another Miniſter of Bourdeaux.

The other Letter is of Monſieur Rondelet, a learned and eloquent Preacher to the ſame Reformed Congregation of Bourdeaux.

Concerning your Church we have been told, that the Anſwer our Conſiſtory made to ſome private Perſons of that Congregation, who conſulted it about ſome Scruple made of ſubmitting to the Engliſh Liturgy, hath produced ſome ill Effects; and that ſuch as affect not the Order of the Church of England, did draw the ſame to their Advantage, as if it favoured their Opinions. I know not upon what thoſe Men ground their Judgment in this particular: For I do not ſee that they can give any Senſe of that Letter of our Company that is favourable unto them: And if it be read carefully, there will be found never a Word in it that thwarts the Engliſh Liturgy, or that may Occaſion the leaſt Scruple of ſubmitting to the ſame.

There paſſed nothing, there was nothing ſaid in our Company againſt the Honour and Authority of the Diſcipline of the Church of England, or againſt the manner of her Government, to which we bear a ſingular Reverence; the eſtabliſhing whereof, that I may alſo give my own Judgment thereon, I eſteem very holy and moſt lawful; and which is more, the fitteſt of all to keep Men in good Order and due Reſpect, to ſuppreſs Scandals, and to extirpate Hereſies. Thus much (Sir, my good Brother) I thought myſelf obliged to write to you, to make in a manner our Apology, and to clear our Judgment to ſuch as might have a Mind to miſinterpret the ſame.

I cannot forbear to add two Teſtimonies more of two of the choiceſt Men for Learning, Eloquence, and true Piety, that ever the French Reformed Churches had 'till this Time. Thoſe are Monſieur du Boſe Miniſter of Caen, and Monſieur de l'Angle, the worthy Son of a moſt worthy Father, whoſe Colleague he is in the Reformed Church of Roan. They write but few Words, but thoſe very comprehenſive, and to the Purpoſe. Thoſe of Monſieur du Boſe are as followeth:

Letter of Monſieur du Boſe.

You ſhall be as dear to me under the Surplice of England as under the Robe of France, and I will embrace you with as good a Heart in the Chapel of the Savoy, as I have ever done in the Temple of Bourg l'Abbè.

Letter of Monſieur de l'Angle's.

Thoſe that follow are Monſieur de l'Angle's.

I know not who it is that hath told you I did not approve of your Eſtabliſhment. But whoſoever he be, I aſſure you that he is very ill informed of my Mind. I rather look upon that Buſineſs (viz. the ſubmitting of a whole French Reformed Congregation to the Government and publick Worſhip of the Church of England) as upon a Means the Providence of God intends to make Uſe of, to knit yet cloſer together that Bond which ought ever to be betwixt the Church of England and the Reformed Churches of France.

All the foreign Divines who have come into England ſince the Eſtabliſhment of the French Church in the Savoy have joined with it.

Ever ſince we have begun to uſe the Book of Common-Prayer, though Providence hath brought over many Miniſters from beyond the Seas, ſome from Geneva, ſome from France, ſome from Germany, ſome from Poland, ſome from Lithuania, ſome from Piemont, that is, almoſt from all the Reformed Churches; as alſo ſome Students in Divinity, ſome Elders, and other private Perſons of all Conditions, we have ſeen none of them that ever made any Difficulty to aſſiſt at Divine Service, and to conform to it. All of them that have been preſent upon Communion Days, having devoutly received the Lord's Supper kneeling, and thoſe that have preached, and among them two of Geneva, both of them very worthy Men, by Name Monſieur Calendrin and Monſieur Buſſon, have all of them acknowledged in their Prayer the King's Majeſty ſupreme Governour in this Realm and other his Dominions, over all Perſons, and in all Cauſes, as well Eccleſiaſtical as Civil, and prayed for the moſt reverend Archbiſhops and right reverend Biſhops, as well as for inferiour Miniſters of the Church, juſt as it is in the bidding of Prayer. Among them who have thus conformed to us, and preached in our Congregation, I may not omit that pious and learned Man Mr. Heraut the eldeſt of the Miniſters of the Walloon's Congregation of London, who is known for a Perſon that both feareth God and honoureth the King, and is behind none for true Zeal to the Reformed Churches. I muſt ſet down here likewiſe the worthy Italian Miniſter Mr. Breſinal who gave us a Sermon upon Chriſtmas-Day laſt, to ſhew that he is no Separatiſt from the Church of England; though he followeth the ſame Diſcipline with the other Strangers Churches in London. Mr. Guillard Miniſter and Divinity Reader deſigned in the Univerſity of Mont Alban, and Mr. Eſcoſier Delegate of the Piemontan Churches, are likewiſe of them who have conformed, and preached very learnedly to our Congregation.

FRIDAY June 21.

The Lords hear the Objections of the Roman Catholicks againſt the ſanguinary Laws.

Speech and Papers delivered by Col. Tuke.

Another Paper delivered by Lord Arundel of Wardour.

Extracts from the Journal of the Lords.

Die Veneris 21. Junii 1661.

This Day being appointed to hear what Objections could be offered by the Roman Catholicks concerning the ſanguinary Laws, Colonel Tuke at the Bar made a long Speech and delivered two Papers, one being a Liſt of the penal and ſanguinary Laws concerning Religion, another Paper of their Deſires. They being withdrawn, the Houſe commanded the ſaid Papers to be read: And then the Lord Arundell of Wardour acquainted the Houſe, that he had another Paper from the Roman Catholicks to preſent to their Lordſhips Conſideration; which was alſo read. Then the Statute 1 Eliz. Cap. 1. was read, wherein is contained the Oath of Supremacy, and the Houſe fell into a long Debate thereof, and it being late ordered to reſume the Debate ſome other Time.

The Debate adjourn'd.

A Copy of one of the Petitions in Parliament.

A true Copy of a Petition delivered to the Parliament by the Roman Catholicks.

They take hold of the King's Declaration for a general Indulgence.

MS. Papers in the Hands of the Bp. of Peterborough.

His Majeſty having been pleaſed in his moſt gracious Declaration from Breda, (which hath been ſince confirmed upon other Occaſions) to declare a Liberty to tender Conſciences, and that no Man ſhall be diſturb'd or call'd in queſtion for Differences of Opinion in Matters of Religion, which do not diſturb the Peace of the Kingdom: Theſe are his Majeſty's own Words: We his Roman Catholick Subjects do humbly lay hold on this Grace and Favour, and are Petitioners to the Right Honourable the Lords and Commons aſſembled in this preſent Parliament, that we may by their Mediation receive the Benefit of his gracious Promiſe, not being conſcious to ourſelves of the leaſt Guilt that may render us incapable of this gracious and general Indulgence.

The Roman Catholicks in the Beginning of the Reign of King James had made a like Petition for Liberty of their Religion. And the ſame Anſwer might have now ſerved, which was then given. See the Catholicks Supplication unto the King's Majeſty for Toleration of Catholick Religion in England. With ſhort Notes or Animadverſions in the Margin. Whereunto is annexed Parallelwiſe, a Supplicatory Counterpoiſe of the Proteſtants unto the ſame moſt excellent Majeſty Together with the Reaſons of both ſides for and againſt Toleration of divers Religions: With a Preface dated Oxford from St. Mary's-Hall, May 2. 1603. ſubſcribed Gabriel Powel. London, for Edm. Weaver, 1603. 4to.

That we differ from thoſe that profeſs the Religion eſtabliſhed in this Kingdom, even in Matters of Religion, is no Queſtion; and whether our Opinions are grounded upon Truth and Reaſon, is not pertinent to our Buſineſs: Since we do not pretend to juſtify our Doctrine, but to ſubmit both it and ourſelves to his Majeſty's Mercy. But the only material Queſtion (as we humbly conceive) is this, whether our Opinions are conſiſtent with our Obedience to the King and the Peace of the Kingdom, to which we take the Boldneſs to make this Anſwer.

We have not heard, that there hath been any Objection to any of our Opinions concerning our Fidelity to his Majeſty, and our peaceable Comportment with our fellow Subjects, but only in our owning of a ſpiritual Juriſdiction in the Pope incompatible (as it is conceived) with the Power and Authority of the King, and ſuch as not only enervates our Allegiance, but by that depending on a foreign Power, endangers the Peace and Quiet of the Nation.

Though the Conſiſtence of the Opinions of the Roman Catholicks with the ſtrict Duty of Subjects to their Sovereign may be ſufficiently evinced by the conſtant Practice of Roman Catholicks in all Countries where they are permitted to live, yet we will not content ourſelves with a Proof from the Effects, but endeavour to give the Parliament a more exact Satisfaction, by a ſhort Declaration of what we believe in that particular, in which (we humbly conceive) we have hitherto been miſunderſtood.

They declare for Allegiance to the King.

In the firſt Place, we do declare that our Obedience to our Prince is an Article of our Faith grounded upon the unalterable Word of God, and not only to Princes of our own Religion, but even to thoſe who are Enemies of it.

And againſt the Pope's Power of Depoſing or Abſolving.

We do in the next Place declare, that it is no Article of our Faith, that, by Virtue of that ſpiritual Juriſdiction acknowledged by us in the Pope, he has any Authority to depoſe a King, or abſolve his Subjects from their Allegiance; and the Truth of both theſe we are ready to confirm by Oath; and further that if at any Time the Pope ſhall attempt to execute that pretended Power, we are ready with our Lives and Fortunes to oppoſe him.

Which is only a problematical Opinion.

Now whether there be any reaſonable Ground to imagine, that contrary to an Article of our Faith, and ſo ſworn to be by us, we ſhould eſpouſe an Opinion that is only Problematical, to the Prejudice of our Duties, and contrary to our Oath, is humbly offered to the chriſtian Conſideration of the honourable Members of both Houſes.

The papal Juriſdiction only Spiritual.

We do not know what Inconveniences ſuch a ſpiritual Juriſdiction can create in the Minds of thoſe Subjects, as to the leſſening their Obedience to the temporal Magiſtrate, who are ſo fortified againſt the irregular Execution of it, and which in its own Nature is ſo abſolutely diſtinct from that Juriſdiction which Princes juſtly challenge over all their Subjects.

Church and State are like Soul and Body well conſiſtent.

It is the Wiſdom (at leaſt as we ſtand inform'd) of the divine Providence, with ſuch Harmony to diſpoſe of thoſe Powers, by which the whole Man is to be governed, that they no Way claſh one with another; that of the Soul which properly belongs to God, not interfering with that which belongs to Cæſar.

They profeſs it their Principle to obey, and will confirm it by Oath.

To conclude, what greater Security can be given by a Subject to his Prince of his Fidelity and Obedience, than the Pawn of his Religion delivered by his Doctrine; and the Sacrifice of his Will declared by an Oath, and confirmed by his Practice. We acknowledge ourſelves bound by the Articles of our Religion to obey our Sovereign, and we ſwear that we will, and that in Oppoſition to all foreign and domeſtick Power whatſoever without Reſtriction.

Another Paper of the Roman Catholicks.

An Anſwer of the Roman Catholicks to the Queſtion, whether their Opinions be conſiſtent with their Obedience to the King and the Peace of the Kingdom?

Trial of Lord Stafford.

The Lord Stafford's Declaration before the Houſe of Lords after his Condemnation for High-Treaſon.

The Lord Stafford's Confeſſion of his going to Breda, and offering the King one hundred thouſand Pounds to take off the penal Laws.

And that a Bill being now brought in, it was oppoſed by the Lord Chancellor Hyde.

—— That there had been at divers Times Endeavours uſed, and Overtures made to obtain an Abrogation or at leaſt a Mitigation of Severities againſt Catholicks, but this to be procured no otherwiſe than by legal and parliamentary Means. That he himſelf went to Breda whilſt the King was there, and propounded 100,000 l. in behalf of the Catholicks to take off the penal Laws: That after the King came in, there was a Bill brought into the Houſe, in favour of Catholicks, but it was oppoſed by my Lord Chancellor Hyde, &c.

Father Walſh of the Rebellion in Ireland.

Bleſſed by the Pope for the Catholick Cauſe.

Father Walſh, in the Dedication of his Hiſtory of the Iriſh Remonſtrance, tells us, of an univerſal Rebellion or Inſurrection of all the Catholicks in Ireland, a very few excepted, againſt his Majeſty's Laws, Authority, and Deputies of that Kingdom Anno 1641; of their Confederacy formed, and a War continued by them for many Years after; of two ſeveral Peaces (the firſt 1646. the ſecond 1648.) with his Majeſty's Lord Lieutenant in that Interim, ſcandalouſly violated by the prevailing Party among them.

Yea to that prodigious Heighth did the Inſolence of the rebellious Faction ariſe, that at length they baniſhed his Majeſty's Lieutenant, and took the Royal Authority upon themſelves.

But it may be ſince his Majeſty's happy Reſtauration they have repented of their former Wickedneſs.

And therefore they could not repent of that Rebellion.

Repented of a Rebellion that was bleſſed and ſanctified by the Pope! A Catholick Army (for ſo they ſtyled themſelves) repent of fighting for the Catholick Cauſe!

And long after refuſed to aſk the King's Pardon.

They were ſo far from repenting, that the popiſh Clergy of that Kingdom aſſembled in a National Synod Anno 1666. refuſed to petition the King for Pardon, though they were at leaſt thirty then preſent, and above 500 more of them alive, which were obnoxious to the Laws for their Carriage during the late Wars of the Roman Catholick Confederates[a].

Some indeed offered a Remonſtrance of their Loyalty:

Yet the Subſcribers were very few in Compariſon to the Refuſers.

Indeed ſince his Majeſty's Return, ſome of the Iriſh Clergy and Laity agreed to preſent ſuch a Remonſtrance to his Majeſty, as might ſeem to give him ſome tolerable Security of their Loyalty for the future. But the whole Number of Eccleſiaſtical Subſcribers was only 69, the Oppoſers being 2000 or thereabouts, beſides all others in the Iriſh Colleges and Seminaries abroad: And of theſe few Subſcribers, ſome fell off immediately, upon the firſt Intimation of Diſpleaſure from the Internuncio de Vecchiis, and their general Superiors beyond the Seas[b].

In England many Roman Catholicks had been in Arms againſt King Charles I.

In England many Roman Catholicks were actually in Arms againſt King Charles the Firſt: His Majeſty himſelf (that had moſt Reaſon to know) informs us, that great Numbers of that Religion were entertain'd in the Army of the Rebels; that others were ſeduced, to whom he had formerly denied Employment; that twenty or thirty at a Time of one Troop or Company had been taken Priſoners[c].

And but few with him, unleſs ſuch as the Enemy hunted into his Camp.

But were not many of the Roman Catholicks in the King's Army? They were indeed; but not ſo many as his Enemies would make the World believe. His Majeſty tells us in his Declaration, that ſometimes in a Month together there had not been one Papiſt near his Court. I am ſure he was not much beholden to them for their Company at any Time; his Majeſty knew it was the Policy of his Enemies to hunt them into his Camp, that they might bring an Odium upon the Royal Cauſe, and confirm the People in that groundleſs Jealouſy of the King's Adherence to Popery, which made him (by his Proclamation) to inhibit all Men of that Religion to repair to him: Beſides we are told by one of the Roman Church, that 'tis a Maxim of the Jeſuits (who have long bore the greateſt Sway in England) in the Quarrels of Princes and great Men, to have ſome of their Fathers on one Part, and ſome for the contrary, that they may work for their own Intereſts on both Sides[d]. And (whatever boaſts they now make of their Loyalty to the late King) we have not yet forgotten, how they pleaded to the late Uſurpers, that for the Preſervation of their Lives they were forced to flee into the King's Gariſons without ever acting againſt the State[e]. That a great Part of them were never in actual Arms againſt the Parliament, but only fled to the Enemy's Gariſons for Shelter, &c.[f]

But I have ſo much Charity as to believe, that ſome Roman Catholicks offer'd their Lives and Fortunes to the King upon more generous Motives; that they ſerv'd him faithfully and ſuffered for him, becauſe (as a great Man of that Religion ſaid of himſelf) they valued the Favour and Eſteem of their Countrey above all earthly Things; or were true Engliſhmen as to this World[g].

g The Earl of Briſtol in his Speech made July 1. 1673.

The Jeſuits had a Conſult to bring King Charles I. to the Block.

We have known ſome Tempers that have conquered the Malignity of Poyſon; and ſome Men have a greater Love for their King and Countrey, than for their Prieſts and Confeſſors; ſome have too much Honeſty, and ſome too little Zeal for Religion to be intruſted with the State Myſteries of Jeſuits and biggotted Papiſts. A reverend and learned Perſon of our Church hath divers Times told the World in print, [h] that there was a Conſult in England of the whole Faction of Jeſuits about bringing his ſacred Majeſty to the Block; but what Number of the Laity were privy to that execrable Deſign, we are not able to learn.

[h] Dr. Du Moulin's Anſwer to Philanax Anglicus, p. 56. (Ed. 1679.) This certain Intelligence ſhall be juſtified whenſoever Authority will require it; that the Year before the King's Death, a ſelect Number of Engliſh Jeſuits were ſent from their whole Party in England, firſt to Paris then to Rome, with this Queſtion in Writing: That ſeeing the State of England was in a likely Poſture to change Government, whether it was lawful for the Catholicks to work that Change, for the advancing and ſecuring the Catholick Cauſe in England, by making away the King, whom there was no hope to turn from his Hereſy? And p. 61. as for my being defied by the Papiſts, I have defied them now ſeventeen Years, to call me in queſtion before our Judges and ſo I do ſtill.

But if ever the Engliſh Papiſts had any Reaſon to boaſt of their Obedience to the Government, it was under the late uſurped Powers: For they baſely flatter'd the moſt infamous Rump; [i] they publickly owned them for the ſupream Authority of the Nation, and pleaded the Merit of their Fidelity to them. And if generally to take and punctually to keep the Engagement, if to flatter the great Tyrant, if to offer, that for a Toleration they would renounce the Intereſt of the Stuarts, be Arguments of Firmneſs of Loyalty to the Crown, then I will grant, that the Roman Catholicks are the King's moſt loyal and dutiful Subjects.

[i] See the Petition of the Roman Catholicks to the ſupream Authority of this Nation, the Parliament of the Commonwealth of England. Chriſtian Moderation, p. 59, 60. p. 51. Divers Papiſts had taken the Oath of Abjuration and Engagement, &c. Part II. p. 41. The Roman Catholicks have generally taken and punctually kept the Engagement, &c. Dr. Baily in the Life of Biſhop Fiſher (as I find him quoted by Mr. Fowlis) is very zealous in aſſerting the Loyalty of the Papiſts; and yet at the ſame Time bravely tells us, what good Subjects they were to Oliver Cromwell: Whereas (ſaith he) all other Sorts and Sects (excepting thoſe who are for all Sorts and Sects) appear againſt the preſent Government like Arie, Scorpio, &c. The Roman Catholicks like Piſces (the Emblem of the Fiſherman) are contented to remain quiet underfoot.

But I will conclude this Head with this Obſervation, that Mr. White in the heighth of Oliver's Tyranny, ſet out a Book under the Title of the Grounds of Obedience and Government. This moderate Roman Catholick (as he is eſteemed) labours not only to diſengage the People of England from all Obligation to his preſent Majeſty, (then in Exile) but his Majeſty too from laying any further Claim to his Crown, but (bleſſed be God) the King was reſtored to his Government, to which his Roman Catholick Subjects (according to this Gentleman) ought not to endeavour his Reſtitution.

The King's Letter to the Houſe of Commons, for diſpatching the Bill to confirm the Act of Indemnity.
Such Act of Indemnity to be paſſed before any other Bills.

His Majeſty's gracious Letter to the Houſe of Commons, to paſs the Bill for confirming the Act of Oblivion and Indemnity.

London, for the King's Printers, 1661. in two Sheets, Fol.

Charles R.

Truſty and well-beloved we greet you well. At the opening our Parliament you were told, that we had a great Deſire this Summer to make a Progreſs through ſome Parts of our Kingdom, which we reſolve to begin in Devotion to our City of Worceſter, that we may pour out our Thanks to God for our Deliverance there, and the Seaſon of the Year quickens us in that Inclination, as we preſume it diſpoſes you to a Deſire to withdraw from this City, and to viſit your Countries. But you may remember we told you then, that we had cauſed ſome Bills to be prepared for you, for Confirmation of what we enacted at our laſt Meeting, and we ſaid all we could to you of the Value we ſet upon the Act of Indemnity (as we have great Reaſon to do) and if we could have uſed ſtronger Expreſſions to have conjured you ſpeedily to have diſpatched it, we aſſure you we would have done it: And we did think what we ſaid would have made an Impreſſion in all who profeſs a Deſire to ſerve us; and therefore we expected every Day that the ſame Bill would have been preſented to us for another Aſſent. We muſt confeſs, we hear you have ſhewed great Affection to us ſince your coming together, and that you have already prepared and paſſed ſome very good Bills (for which we heartily thank you) that are ready for the Royal Aſſent: Yet we cannot but tell you, that though we are enough concerned to expedite thoſe Bills, we have no mind to paſs them till the Act of Indemnity be likewiſe preſented to us, upon which (if you take our Word) moſt of our Good and Quiet depends, and in which we are ſure our Honour is concerned. Therefore we muſt again, and as earneſtly as is poſſible, conjure you to uſe all poſſible Expedition in the paſſing that Act in the ſame Terms we already paſſed it (to which we take ourſelf obliged) and that you will for the preſent lay aſide all private Buſineſs, that ſo betaking yourſelves only to the publick, you may be ready to adjourn by the Middle of the next Month, which will beſt ſuit with all our Occaſions. And ſo not doubting of your Readineſs to comply with us in theſe our juſt and neceſſary Deſires, we bid you heartily farewel. Given at our Court at Whitehall, the two and twentieth Day of June 1661. in the thirteenth Year of our Reign.

This Letter had the deſired Effect of prevailing with the Commons, and obliging the People.

Matthew Hale, Eſq; afterwards an eminent Judge, was very inſtrumental in promoting the Act of Indemnity.

Matthew Hale, Eſq; Knight of the Shire for the County of Gloceſter in this Parliament, bore his Share in the happy Period now put to the Confuſions that threatned threatned the utter Ruin of the Nation, which contrary to the Expectations of the moſt ſanguine, ſettled in ſo ſerene and quiet a Manner, that thoſe who had formerly built ſo much on their Succeſs, calling it an Anſwer from Heaven to their ſolemn Appeals to the Providence of God, were now not a little confounded to ſee all this turned againſt themſelves, in an Inſtance much more extraordinary, than any of thoſe were upon which they had built ſo much. His great Prudence and excellent Temper led him to think, that the ſooner an Act of Indemnity were paſſed, and the fuller it were of Graces and Favours, it would ſooner ſettle the Nation, and quiet the Minds of the People: And therefore he applied himſelf with a particular Care to the framing and carrying it on: In which it was viſible, he had no Concern of his own, but merely his Love of the Publick that ſet him on to it.

Burnet's Life of Sir Matth. Hale, 1682. 12°. p. 31.

SUNDAY June 23.
The King could not avoid the giving Protection and Favour to ſome Roman Prieſts.

The King gave open Countenance and expreſs Protection to ſome of the Roman Prieſts who had been helpful and ſerviceable to him abroad, and came over with him, or ſoon followed him.

As pleaded in Court at the Tryal of ſome of them.

Printed Tryals, 1680.

Henry Starkey who had loſt his Leg and ſpent his Eſtate in the King's Service;

And had diſcovered a Plot againſt the King's Life before his Return.

Henry Starkey indicted in 1679. for having taken pretended Orders from the See of Rome, made this open Plea in Court:

I appeared for the King, when he had but 500 Men in Appearance for him: I am but a younger Brother, an Eſquire's ſecond Brother. I ſpent in the King's Service above 5000*l.* which I got myſelf, and bled for it, before I had it. I ſpent my Annuity of ſevenſcore Pound a Year for the King; I loſt my Leg for him, and ſpent my Eſtate to that Degree, that that Day when I received Sentence of Baniſhment, I had but two half Crowns left. And pray my Lord, give me leave to add one Thing more, I did diſcover to the King a Plot that was deſigned againſt his Perſon, State and Government, and did deliver into his Hands eleven Articles of Treaſon, which I had writ with my own Hand, and this he hath owned, and will own. So that upon this I was threatned by thoſe that were Parties to the Treaſon, that the King ſhould not be gone twenty four Hours, but I ſhould be impriſoned. When the King went, what muſt I do? Muſt I ſtay there and hazard my Life, or truſt to the King's Mercy? I was forced to come along with the King for Protection: I came to Whitehall, and the King roſe up and gave me his Hand to kiſs, and ſo did the Duke of York, and told me I was welcome. I went to my Lord Chancellor Hyde, who when he ſaw me embraced me in his Arms, and ſaid, Thou art welcome, I am glad to ſee thee in England. I had Occaſion to ſpeak with the Biſhop of London, Dr. Sheldon, about another Perſon, and when I came to him he aſked me, what is your Name? My Lord, ſaid I, my Name is Starkey, with that he catches me faſt by the Hand, and when he had done that, he took me in his Arms, and told me I am glad with all my Heart to ſee you ſafe here in England. ——— And I do ſuffer this Day for the Service I have done the King.

Therefore kindly received at Whitehall:

And by Chancellor Hyde and Biſhop Sheldon.

Lionel Anderſon alias Munſon, another Roman Prieſt, favour'd and protected for writing againſt the temporal Power of the Pope.

Lionel Anderſon alias Munſon, tried at the Old Bailey for having taken pretended Orders from the Church of Rome, Jan. 17, 1679. pleaded, For my ſtaying in the Kingdom, I had the King's expreſs Command, and an Order from the Council Board. They ordered Mr. Peter Welſh and myſelf, and ſome more to ſtay, for writing againſt the temporal Power of the Pope; for the King of England againſt the Court of Rome. My Lord, all the World knows me, and I am known to moſt of the dignified Clergy in England: My Lord Biſhop of London, and Dr. Lloyd, and the Biſhop of Durham ſent to me to tell me, that if they knew of my Tryal they would be here. My Lord, I have lain under an ill Cenſure for ſcribling and writing againſt the temporal Power of the Church of Rome. ——— And after his Conviction he pleaded thus in Arreſt of Judgment:

His like Plea in Arreſt of Judgment.

I can ſay this, that I would have gone out of England, but the King kept me here, telling me he had need of my Service; and I had a Protection from the Council Board. The Biſhop of London, when I was taken firſt, ſent a Letter to Sir Clement Armiger, that neither I nor my Books ſhould be meddled with; for that I had written for the King and the Government, for which I was excommunicated at Rome. And when I was taken and in Cuſtody of ſome of the Horſe-Guard, the Duke of Monmouth ſent to have me freed again. I begg'd of the King that I might go, but he told me, that I ſhould ſtay in England; and Mr. Peter Welſh and I had Orders from the Council, he one, and I another to ſtay.

While the Papiſts were now endeavouring to get the Penal Laws repealed in Parliament, it was proper for the Church Proteſtants to remember, that all the Engliſh Catholick Clergy, who owed as much Allegiance to the King, or would be thought to owe as much as any other of his Subjects, yet never wrote one Line, or publiſhed one Opinion, againſt whatſoever the Rebels ſaid or did.

Mr. Creſſy had drawn up a like Formulary of Allegiance;

But it was refuſed by moſt of the Papiſts.

Lord Clarend. Animadv. on Mr. Creſſy, 1673. 8vo. p. 120.

On the contrary, Thomas White a Romiſh Prieſt and Emiſſary, by many Books written in the Time of Uſurpation, ſought to debauch the Nation, eſpecially by one printed in the Year 1655. called the Grounds of Obedience and Government, with this abuſed Maxim in the Title Page; Salus Populi ſuprema Lex eſto. In this Book Serenus Creſſy, an Engliſh Benedictine Monk, drew up a Formulary, like that of the Iriſh Remonſtrance, for the Engliſh Catholicks to ſubſcribe, and preſent to his Majeſty, as a Teſtimony of their Allegiance and Affection to him. But as in the Caſe of the Iriſh Remonſtrance, it was refuſed by moſt of the Papiſts; and gave the Lord Clarendon Occaſion to ſay, —— Mr. Creſſy would find himſelf as much miſtaken, as he was formerly in his Draught of a Proteſtation or Subſcription for the Fidelity of the Engliſh Catholicks.

Lord Clarend. againſt Mr. Creſſy, 8vo. p. 76.

Mr. Creſſy cannot forget, that ſhortly after he deſerted the Church of England, and publiſhed his Exomologeſis, he did in that Book publiſh a Proteſtation or Subſcription, which all the Roman Catholicks in England would be willing to take; and in Truth it did not differ much in Subſtance or Senſe from the Oaths which are enjoyn'd by Law; and no doubt he would have taken it himſelf, and did then believe that all other Catholicks might have taken it likewiſe. But within a ſhort Time all that Impreſſion of that Book was brought up, or otherwiſe procured; and a Second Edition of it publiſhed, wherein the Proteſtation of Duty and Obedience, which was in the firſt, was totally left out in the ſecond Impreſſion, it not being thought a fit Obligation for the Catholicks to enter into.

What prevented an Indulgence to the Romiſh Prieſts, was an intended Proviſo that it ſhould not extend to the Jeſuits; who thereupon gave Reaſons, and the other Prieſts proved them to be unreaſonable.

Dr. du Moulin's Reply to a Perſon of Honour, 1673. 4to. p. 8.

An Account given of the ſecular Prieſts ſetting forth a Remonſtrance againſt the Jeſuits, in a printed Diſcourſe, entitled, The Jeſuits Reaſons unreaſonable, wherein they juſtly upbraid the Jeſuits and the Jeſuited with many falſe Doctrines and ſeditious Practices. And therefore this Diſcourſe, no doubt, was ſuppreſſed, as ſoon as it came forth, by the numerous and prevailing Jeſuitical Party: Yet it was drawn out of Darkneſs by that ſkilfull and happy Inquiſitor of Books, our excellent Dr. Stillingfleet.

Teſtimony of Monſieur Gaches to the Engliſh Liturgy.

M. John Durel of the Government and Worſhip of the Reformed Churches, Lond. 1662. 4to. p. 65.

I will here ſet down what Monſieur Gaches, Miniſter of Charenton, one of the moſt eloquent and moſt zealous Preachers of the French Reformed Churches have at this Day, and known to be one of the beſt Men now living, writes to me in a Letter I received from him in this June laſt. I read your Liturgy, ſaith he, a long Time ſince, and I was wonderfully edified with it; and your great Prelate of Dureſme may teſtify unto you, that I aſſiſted more than once at the Divine Service which he performed in the Palace Royal, and in the other Houſe which was given them. And it is but a few Days ſince that I was again preſent at it in that Houſe, where my Lord of St. Alban's hath his Chapel at this Day. If again another Confirmation of this be required, I hope I have found one which will prove fully ſatisfactory; and that is a Paſſage in an Epiſtle of Fridericus Spanhemius, ſome Time Preacher and Divinity Reader at Geneva, prefixed to the third Part of his Dubia Evangelica, which he dedicates to the late Lord Primate Ireland, to the Earl of Pembroke, to the Earl of Angus, and to the Earl of Lauderdale, now his Majeſty's Secretary of State for the Kingdom of Scotland. This Author is ſo well known for his Piety and Learning, that when I have named him, I need ſay no more, only I would mind them for whom I write, that Dr. Spanhemius was Divinity Reader at Geneva, when he ſpake thus: "I have given the Reaſons, moſt Reverend Prelate, and you moſt illuſtrious Lords, why I thought "it fit to prefix your Names to this Work, and why I was deſirous publickly "to teſtify, how happy I think myſelf in the Honour of your good Affection. I "often call to mind thoſe truly fortunate Iſlands of yours, and that ancient "Happineſs, which one would think hath fled to you from all the other Places "of Europe." That Happineſs is an Appendix of that Piety of yours, which with the greateſt Delight I obſerved many Years ſince to flouriſh in England in Men both of the higheſt and loweſt Degree. That beauteous Face of your Church doth often repreſent itſelf before mine Eyes, likewiſe that Reverence in the publick Worſhip of God, that Attention, that Fervour of your Countrey-men in God's Service, that Zeal as well of great Perſons as of private Men, that publick Piety in the Church, and private Devotion in the Family, the proper Virtue of your Nation, the like whereof your may elſewhere ſeek and hardly find, &c.

A like Attempt of the Papiſts in the Reign of King James — whom Dr. Matth. Kelliſon did ſordidly flatter to that Purpoſe; and inſiſted much upon the Merits and Example of his Queen Mother.

During the great Application of the Papiſts to King and Parliament for taking off the Penal Laws, it was remembred, that a like Attempt was made upon the Court in the Beginning of King James's Reign, as appeared in A Survey of the New Religion, detecting many groſs Abſurdities which it implieth. Set forth by Matthew Kelliſon, Doctor and Profeſſor of Divinity. Firſt Edition 1603. ſecond, 1605. Dedicated to King James, —— congratulating his Highneſs for being placed peaceably in his Regal Throne, —— that God had called him out for this good Purpoſe —— to do Service for that Church and Faith of which you are called the Defender; inſomuch, that if the general Voice grounded only on the Expectation, which is commonly conceived of you, were as true as common, I ſhould not need at this Time to be the Suppliant for the Freedom and Liberty of your diſtreſſed Catholicks. —— [concluding.] As St. Ambroſe ſaid once to Monica of her Son Auſtin, Filius tantarum Lacrymarum perire non poteſt, I may ſay of your Highneſs, to wit, that the Son of ſuch a Mother, and Prince of ſuch a Princeſs, and Inheritour of ſuch Virtues, ſuch Examples, ſuch Tears, ſuch Wiſhes, can never periſh, that is, cannot but be a Catholick, —— at leaſt move you, if not to admit wholly the Catholick Religion, yet however, to permit it, at leaſt not to perſecute it, which ſhe loved herſelf ſo well, and wiſhed to your Highneſs ſo heartily.

Your Highneſs's moſt Humble
And Obedient Subject,
Matthew Kellison.

See the Petition apologetical of Lay-Papiſts, calling themſelves the Lay-Catholicks of England, preſented as is ſaid to his Majeſty, wherein they preſumptuouſly demand a Toleration of their Popiſh and Antichriſtian Religion, and offer Proofs of their Loyalty, and Pledges for their Maſs Prieſts Honeſty, contradicted, examined, glozed, and refuted. By Matthew Suttcliffe, 1606. 4to.

The Title of that Petition was, A Petition Apologetical to the King's moſt excellent Majeſty, by the Lay-Catholicks of England, in July laſt. Printed at Doway, 1604. 4to.

To his ſecond Edition 1605. there is another Epiſtle to the Right Honourable Lords, the Lords of his Majeſty's Privy-Council.

He makes another Addreſs to the Lords of the Council, inſinuating that the King is ſo well diſpoſed to them, that if they have not Indulgence granted, it is none of the King's Fault, but of thoſe about him.

—— Pardon me (my Lords) if I ſeem ſomewhat vehement, it is a publick Cauſe, and a general Calamity of my Catholick Brethren, for which I plead: Neither let it ſeem ſtrange unto you, that leaving now the King I have recourſe unto his Counſel; becauſe the World is ſo well perſuaded of this ſo amiable a Prince, and Catholicks have already found him ſo gracious and favourable, that all now is thought to conſiſt in your Honours, and that whatſoever Severity is uſed againſt them, doth either all proceed from you, and not from the King at all, or if from him, not from him as from his own Diſpoſition, but as from his Counſellour's Suggeſtion. ——— Vouchſafe to work the Means with his moſt excellent Majeſty, already ſo well inclined to his Catholick Subjects, that the Catholick Religion may be permitted unto them ———

Die Veneris 28. Junii, 1661.

Upon Debate of the Lords.

Journal of the Lords.

This Day the Houſe of Peers reſumed the Debate concerning the Sanguinary Laws, and after a long Debate this following Order was made, viz.

Order that no Alteration be made in the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance.

Upon Debate of the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance this Day, this Houſe is of Opinion that nothing has been offer'd to this Houſe to move their Lordſhips to alter any thing in the ſaid Oaths.

A Committee to conſider of the Sanguinary Laws.

Ordered, that theſe Lords following do conſider of the Sanguinary Laws concerning Prieſts, and ſuch other Laws as reach to Blood, and preſent the ſame to the Houſe. His Royal Highneſs the Duke of York, &c.

The Jeſuits had promiſed the King Money from France for a general Toleration:

But when they heard of a Clauſe to exclude their Order, there was no Money, and no Toleration.

No Security by the Papiſts taking an Oath of Allegiance if they could have a Diſpenſation to take it and not to keep it.

Hiſtory of the Engliſh College of Doway, 1713. 8vo. p. 30.

The King was ſo inclinable to the Papiſts, that he was willing to conſent to any thing in Favour of them. His Temper was not unknown to the Papiſts, a Deſign was on foot to procure a Toleration for them. The King had a Privy-Council fit for the Purpoſe, and hoped to have the Parliament as pliable, if Money could be commanded from a neighbouring Prince, as the Jeſuits had promiſed him; but when theſe good Men underſtood, that it was a Clauſe to be inſerted in the Act of Toleration, that no Jeſuit ſhould be ſuffered to live in England, there was no Money to be had; the Lords who were to bring it about were deſired to let it drop. The King was fool'd, and the general Intereſt of Popery ſacrificed to the private Intereſt of the Jeſuits.

Account given by Father Peter Walſh of the Order of St. Francis, in his Letter dated London, October 28, 1673.

Printed 1676. 8vo. p. 80.

Nov. 29, 1678. There was a Meſſage from the Lords to the Houſe of Commons, that the Lords had received Information, that there is a Faculty under the Seal of Cardinal Barberini, for diſpenſing with the taking of the Oaths. And Sir John Knight acquainted the Houſe, that the Papers mentioned by the Lords was found among Mr. Ireland's Papers, and he delivered the ſame at the Table ——— which was ſent to the Lords.

Complaint that the Papiſts loſt this Opportunity.

——— I know and cannot but mind you, of what the Roman Catholicks of theſe Kingdoms have done, even ſince the King's happy Reſtauration, by not being adviſed by Church-men of honeſt Principles, in point of his Majeſty's independent Power, and the Subjects indiſpenſable Obedience to him in all Civil and Temporal Things, according to the Laws of the Land: They have loſt three fair Opportunities of being not only eaſed of all their Preſſure from the Penal Statutes, but rendred as happy as they could in Reaſon deſire, or even wiſh, under a Proteſtant King and Government.

The firſt Opportunity was offered them in England in the Year 1661. when it was earneſtly and ſtrongly moved in their Behalf in the Houſe of Lords, to repeal the Sanguinary Laws in the firſt Place, and a Bill was drawn up to that Purpoſe.

Another in 1662. and a third in 1666. in Ireland,

Where the Romiſh Clergy were allowed to hold a General Congregation at Dublin, in Order to teſtify their Fidelity to the King, which they refuſed to do.

The ſecond and third were in Ireland; the former in the Year 1662. when a diſcontented Party of the Adventurers and Soldiers there had laid their Deſign for ſurpriſing the King's Caſtle at Dublin; and the latter in the Year 1666. when we were in the firſt War with Holland, and near to it with France, and the Iriſh national Congregation of the Roman Catholick Clergy, was by Occaſion of that War ſuffered to convene at Dublin, in order to aſſure the King of their Fidelity: How happy the Roman Catholicks in general might have been, if they had taken Time by the Forelock in any of thoſe three Opportunities, eſpecially in the firſt, may eaſily be underſtood. And how unhappy their Neglect or Wilfulneſs hath proved to themſelves, I cannot but with Grief of Heart conſider, the rather becauſe I was myſelf the only Man employ'd firſt to the Roman Catholick Clergy both of England and Ireland, on the 'foreſaid Occaſions, to prepare them againſt any Obſtruction from themſelves of the Favours intended towards them, and that nothing elſe was

At this firſt Opportunity in 1661. the Oath of Allegiance only was required: His Majeſty was inclined to diſpenſe with the Oath of Supremacy.

was required on the firſt Occaſion from thoſe in England, but their being ready to take the Oath of Allegiance only, as in the Statute 3 Jacobi; his Majeſty being then inclined to have diſpenſed with them for the Oath of Supremacy: Nor in the ſecond and third Occaſion was any thing required from thoſe of Ireland, more than their ſigning the Loyal Remonſtrance or Formulary, which had been ſigned before in the Year 1661. by ſome of their own Eccleſiaſtical Brethren, and ſo conſiderable a Number of their Nobility and Gentry. For my own Part, I am morally certain, that if thoſe fair Opportunities had not been ſlighted, or if either the one or the other Condition had been embraced, you ſhould not have ſeen in your Days any ſuch Tryal of Men for bearing Office, as that you complain of ſo much now, a Renouncing of the Doctrine or Tenet of Tranſubſtantiation according to the late Act of Parliament of England. And I am no leſs certain, that had you hearkened to the Advice of any of thoſe many virtuous learned Church-men amongſt you, who have as much true Zeal according to Knowledge; even for the Splendour of Catholick Religion, and as much true Reverence for, and Obedience to his Holineſs, as according to Reaſon or Chriſtianity they can have, and withal are truly well-affected and rightly principled as to that Faith and Obedience which they and you all owe by the Laws of God and Man to the Temporal Government, you had neither ſlighted any of thoſe good Opportunities, nor neglected to embrace either of thoſe two moſt reaſonable Conditions.

An Extract of a Letter written to a Jeſuit concerning the Act of Toleration.

The Jeſuits averſe to any Toleration.

When likely to be excluded from the Benefit of it.

Secret Policy of the Jeſuits, Lond. 1715. 8vo. Append.

I underſtand you are about to make the common Good ſtoop to the particular of your Order, as is the conſtant Practice, contrary to the Law of Nature and Principles of Chriſtianity. For I have been inform'd that you in a boaſting manner affirm, the Parliament will proceed no further about taking away the Sanguinary Laws, and ſome Friends of yours endeavour to make it believ'd, that it is not for his Majeſty's Intereſt to make good his ſolemn Promiſe from Breda having Regard to tender Conſciences.

The Religion of the Church of England, &c. 4to. 1670. p. 35.

The Papiſts had been as earneſt for a Toleration under the late uſurped Powers, they did wheedle the Rump Parliament, promiſing what dutiful Subjects they would be to them, in caſe they might but enjoy their Liberty, bitterly inveighing againſt the Severities exerciſed upon them in the King's Time. They ſaid, If the Rigour of the Laws were qualified to a Temper of Mercy, that the Catholicks might enjoy but half the Liberties to which they were born, they would be the moſt quiet and uſeful Subjects of England; ſince their Religion obligeth them to obey the lawful Commands of their Superiours, not only for Fear, but Conſcience; nor were there many that ever attempted their own Relief, by endangering their Countrey's Peace, all the reſt ſitting quietly and patiently under the Burdens which the heavy Hand of thoſe Times continually heaped upon them.

Ibid. p. 31.

The Catholicks were ſo extremely incenſed againſt the King [Charles I.] for not granting them a Toleration of Religion, which they verily expected, and by declaring that Expectation made the ordinary People of this Kingdom fear it, and by their fearing it to expreſs their Diſcontents at the Apprehenſions of it (the greateſt Occaſion of ſo much Blood-ſhed for many Years after). So incenſed, I ſay, they were, that in the Cabal of Rome it was reſolved, that ſince the King of England would not favour their Profeſſion, they would diſturb his Peace, and endeavour the Ruin both of himſelf and his Kingdoms.

Upon a Proſpect of Indulgence to be granted the Papiſts in the Beginning of the Reign of King James, a ſtout and honeſt Preacher, Robert Wakeman, B. D. Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxon. publiſhed a Sermon preached before the King's Majeſty at Noneſuch, April 20, 1605. wherein he firſt congratulates the preſent peaceable Times.——Peace the Mother of Plenty and Proſperity, which King James like the Dove with the Olive Branch in her Mouth, hath brought unto us; Peace in poſſeſſing his own without Diſturbance, Peace in being at League and Unity, as concerning civil Affairs, with all Chriſtian Princes in the World — Our true Religion is a Bleſſing above all the reſt — He then at large ſets forth the rebellious Doctrines and Practices of the popiſh Religion, a Toleration whereof (ſaith he) they ſo earneſtly ſeek in our Land of Great-Britain. But, O God, as thou haſt given to my Sovereign Lord the King a wiſe and an underſtanding Heart to diſcern their Profeſſion, ſo continue in him a religious and a faithful Heart, zealous for thy Truth, that with a conſtant Reſolution he may, as he hitherto hath done, reject all ſuch their ungodly Motions. And as he is rightly termed the Defender of the Faith, ſo grant, good Lord, that he may ever and only defend that which is the true Faith in his Dominions to the Glory of God, the Good of his Church, and the Safety of his Higneſs's Perſon, and to the Comfort of all his loving and loyal Subjects. Amen.

Publick Intelligence, 4to. No. 26.

Adviſed from Whitehall, that his Majeſty taking ſpecial Notice of the prudent Managery of Affairs by Don Franciſco de Mello, Compte de Pont, Ambaſſador Extraordinary from the King of Portugal, how by his conſtant Care and faithful Applications he hath not only ſatisfied the Deſires of his own Maſter the King of Portugal, who out of a long and natural Affection to the Engliſh always wiſh'd for a nearer Alliance with this Crown, but withal afforded ſuch vaſt Advantages to the People of England as could not be expected from any one Nation, beſides that incomparable Bleſſing which theſe Kingdoms will enjoy in that moſt excellent Princeſs Donna Katherina the Infanta of Portugal: That ſuch faithful and eminent Services for the mutual Benefit of his own and theſe Kingdoms might not be paſs'd by without ſome ſignal Mark of his Majeſty's Favour, was graciouſly pleaſed to give an Invitation to the Ambaſſador to dine with his Royal Perſon at Whitehall, on Thurſday the 27th Inſtant. And that this Royal Invitation might be anſwered with a fitting Solemnity on that Day, the Right Honourable the Earl of Bedford, together with Sir Charles Cotterell Maſter of the Ceremonies, went with his Majeſty's and his Royal Highneſs the Duke of York's Coaches, with ſeveral other Coaches belonging to the chief of the Nobility, to the Ambaſſador's Houſe, and thence conducted him with his whole Retinue to Whitehall, where being come, after the hearty Salutes of the whole Court, the Ambaſſador was placed at the ſame Table with his Majeſty. Whilſt this high Honour was given to the Ambaſſador, thoſe worthy Gentlemen of his Retinue were with all Reſpect provided for, being treated at the Tables of James Duke of Ormond Lord Steward, and Edward Earl of Mancheſter Lord Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold. —— The ſaid Portugueze Ambaſſador having taken Leave of his Majeſty and the Court on Monday July 2. ſet forward the next Day for his Return to Portugal.

At the ſame Time with his Majeſty.

Biſhop Morley in France had not gone to the Presbyterian Churches.

And had given his Reaſons, or rather Excuſes for it to Monſieur Bochart.

Bp. Morley's Preface to his ſeveral Diſcourſes, printed in 1682. 4to.

When I was in France, I did at Paris aſſiſt Dr. Coſins late Biſhop of Durham in preaching to the Engliſh Proteſtants there at Sir Richard Brown's Houſe, then Reſident there for our King, but never went to the French Preſbyterian Church at Charenton, no more than I did afterwards to that of Caen in Normandy, whilſt I was there. For which being aſked the Reaſon of the chief Paſtor of the Church, the learned Monſieur Bouchart, my Anſwer was, that I forbore to come to their Church, Firſt, becauſe we had at my Lady Ormond's Houſe there, a Congregation of our own, wherein we had not only Preaching as they had, but a Liturgy or ſolemn Form of worſhipping God by Prayers, Praiſes and Thankſgivings, which (as I was inform'd) they had not in their Churches. Secondly, becauſe though I underſtood their Language when I read it, yet I did not underſtand it, when I heard it ſpoken ſo well, as though the Matter were never ſo good, to be at all edified by it. And thirdly, becauſe if they did not favour and encourage, yet they did not, at leaſt they had not hitherto, condemned or reproved the ſcandalous and rebellious Proceedings of their Preſbyterian Brethren in England, againſt the King and againſt the Church, which until they ſhould do by ſome publick Act or Manifeſtation of their Judgment to the contrary, I could not but think they approved, or at leaſt did not diſlike what our Preſbyterians in England had done and were ſtill a doing. And therefore I did forbear for the preſent to joyn in Communion with them there at Caen, as I had done formerly for the very ſame Reaſons with thoſe at Charenton.

Chiefly becauſe the French Churches had not cenſur'd the Engliſh Preſbyterians for their Rebellions againſt the King and the Church.

And they were theſe Reaſons of mine which I ſent Monſieur Bouchart in a Letter written in Latin, which drew from that learned Man the Anſwer which he afterward printed, and wherein he juſtifies the Epiſcopal Government in England, and condemns the taking up of Arms by Subjects againſt their Sovereigns, in defence of Religion, or for any other Cauſe, or upon any other Pretence whatſoever.

Concluding with hearty Prayers for the Parliament, &c.

[Concluding.] Bleſs the great Council of the Realm aſſembled together in the High Court of Parliament. Grant that with a ſingle Eye they may look at thy Glory, ever preferring the publick Good before their private Intereſts: Strengthen their Hands, that they may pluck out of the Throats of thoſe Cormorants, the Spoil which they have ſo greedily devoured: Rebuke the Madneſs of thoſe falſe Prophets, who through Covetouſneſs with feigned Words make Merchandiſe of thy People. Lord bleſs Levi's Subſtance, and accept the Work of his Hands; and ſuffer not the Means of thy Worſhip to come into the Hands of thoſe who count all Gain Godlineſs.—— Few have conceived this Sin of Sacrilege in their Hearts, who have not felt the Judgment of God upon their Backs. May therefore the Example of his heavy Judgments deterr and keep back all Men from this Sin.

Dr. Waſhbourne had made a like Declaration againſt Sacrilege.

Dr. Waſhbourne Prebendary of Glocеſter in his Sermon upon the 29th of May laſt, publiſhed and dedicated to the King had ſaid:

I muſt confeſs my Fears, that the Curſe which hath been upon our Nation of late Years for this Sin of Sacrilege, amongſt other great and crying Sins, will not be taken off clearly, (for we ſee God's Hand is ſtretched out ſtill againſt us in the late Plague of immoderate Rain and Waters) till Satisfaction be made by reſtoring what hath been wreſted and raviſhed from the Church. It was the Opinion of that great Advancer of Learning, Sir Francis Bacon, in his Conſiderations touching Pacification and Edification of the Church, preſented to King James, and well worthy the Conſideration of this preſent Parliament; " that all " Parliaments ſince the 27th and 31ſt of Henry VIII. who gave away Impropria" tions from the Church, ſtood in ſome ſort obnoxious, and obliged to God in " Conſcience to do ſomewhat for the Church, to reduce the Patrimony thereof " to a Competency; for ſince they have debarred Chriſt's Spouſe of a great " Part of her Dowry, it were Reaſon they made her a competent Jointure."

Beginning.] In the Name of God, Amen. I ſuppoſe it is not unknown to you, learned Auditors, that there hath been ſome Time ſince a frequent Report, which hath reached the Ears of all, that I propounded at the Commencement a new and unheard-of Queſtion, viz. of bowing towards the Altar, whereby we ſolemnly worſhip God. The Queſtion now is, Whether that Bowing towards the Altar, whereby we worſhip God, at our ingreſſe into his Houſe, and likewiſe our egreſſe, and as often as we ſtand before the Altar, for the performing of Divine Service with our humble and ſupplicant Veneration, be lawful, holy, and praiſe-worthy, conformable to the Practice of the ancient Catholick Church, and not with Reaſon to be calumniated by our upſtart Innovators.

A Bill from the Commons for Church-wardens to aſſeſs and levy Taxes.

Extracts from the Journal of Lords.

Die Saturni 6. Julii, 1661.

A Bill brought from the Houſe of Commons, entitled, An Act for enabling of Church-Wardens to aſſeſs and levy ſuch Sums of Money as ſhall be neceſſary to be expended in the Repairing of Churches, and upon other Occaſions incident to their Office, Monday July 8.

Die Lunæ 8. Julii, 1661.

His Majeſty went to the Houſe of Lords, where when the Commons were come, the Speaker, among other Things, ſaid thus to his Majeſty:

The Speaker's Speech to the King.

What Bills they had confirmed.

Eſpecially the Act of Oblivion.

The King's own Act and Deed.

His unparallell'd Mercy.

Echard, Ch. II. p. 56.

Your Majeſty was pleaſed, at the Opening of the Parliament to recommend unto us two Bills, one for Confirmation of publick Acts, another for the private Acts that paſſed the laſt Parliament: They were ſo many in Number, and great in Weight, that hitherto we could not conſider of them all; but ſome we have peruſed, as the Act of Confirmation of Judicial Proceedings, that for taking away the Court of Wards and Liveries; and alſo all thoſe that relate to your Majeſty's Cuſtoms and Exciſe. And that we might with ſome Chearfulneſs ſee your Majeſty's Face, we have brought our Brother Benjamin with us, I mean your Act of Oblivion. I take the Boldneſs to call it yours, for ſo it is by many Titles: Your Majeſty firſt conceived it at Breda, you help'd to contrive and form it here in England; and we muſt all bear you witneſs, you labour'd and travell'd 'till it was brought forth: And ſince it had a Being, ſome Queſtion being made of its Legitimation, your Royal Heart is not at eaſe until it be confirmed. And now, Sir, give me Leave to ſay, by the Suffrage of a full, a free, and legal Parliament, it is preſented to your Majeſty to be naturalized. Your Majeſty's Deſires are fully anſwered by all the Repreſentatives of the People; and their hearty Prayers to God is, that all your Subjects may be truly thankful to you, and that your Majeſty may long live to enjoy the Fruits of this unparallell'd Mercy. Your Majeſty was pleaſed lately to intimate to us, that you ſo valued the Quiet and Satisfaction of your People, and the keeping of your Royal Word, that though divers other Bills were made ready for you, you would vouchſafe the

For which he was much more concerned than for any other Bill.

The paſſing of this Bill makes a great Holiday.

Which ſhall have a ſecond Service, with Anthem and Collect, or Offering.

A free and voluntary Preſent.

the Honour to this Bill alone, your Favourite, to come and paſs it. Sir, hereby you have made this a great Holyday, and we ſhall obſerve it with Joy and Thankſgiving. Upon ſuch ſolemn Feſtivals, there uſed to be a ſecond Service and Anthem, and a Collect, or at leaſt an Offering. My Anthem ſhall be Quid tibi retribuam Domine? And my Collect a ſpeedy Repair of your Revenue. Then mentioning the King's Patience, Providence, and Frugality abroad in not bringing home any Debts for the Nation to pay, &c. he thus concluded, the Commons of England do by me their Servant humbly preſent you with this Bill, entitled, An Act for a free and voluntary Preſent, and with it a Succeſs anſwerable to your Royal Heart's Deſire.

The King's Answer.

The King's Speech after paſſing the two Bills mentioned by the Speaker.

The Money Bill had been ready for ſome Time, but the King not willing to paſs it without the other very good Bill, for which he had impatiently long'd.

Equally concern'd for his Subjects as for himſelf.

It will be want of Judgment if ever he deſires any good Thing for himſelf that is not good for his People.

He deſires their Diſpatch of the other publick Bills that they may adjourn 'till Winter.

He puts himſelf and them in mind of his Declaration from Breda;

And of their own Declaration to renounce all former Animoſities; and to have Good-will and Confidence in each other.

To look forward, not backward.

Our Settlement a wonderful Miracle of God.

Our Unanimity will make our Enemies fear us, and our Neighbours love and reſpect us.

Mutual Affection and Confidence will diſappoint all Deſigns againſt the publick Peace, and fully eſtabliſh our joint Security.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

It is a good Time ſince I heard of your paſſing this Bill of Money, and I am ſure you would have preſented it to me ſooner, if you thought I had deſir'd it; but the Truth is, though I had need enough of it, I had no Mind to receive it from you, 'till I might at the ſame Time give my Aſſent to this other very good Bill that accompanies it, for which I long'd very impatiently. I thank you for both with all my Heart, and though there are other good Bills ready, with which you will eaſily believe I am very well pleaſed, and in which I am indeed enough concerned, yet I choſe rather to paſs theſe two Bills together, and to paſs them by themſelves without any other, that you may all ſee, and in you the whole Kingdom, that I am at leaſt equally concerned for you and them, as for myſelf: And in Truth it will be want of Judgment in me, if ever I deſire any thing for myſelf, that is not equally good for you and them. I am confident you will believe that my Well-being is of ſome Uſe and Benefit to you, and I am ſure your Well-being, and being well pleas'd, is the greateſt Comfort and Bleſſing I can receive in the World. I hope you will be ready within a few Days to diſpatch thoſe other publick Bills which are ſtill depending before you, that I may come hither and paſs all together, and then adjourn 'till Winter, when what remains may be provided for. The laſt Parliament, by God's Bleſſing, laid the Foundation of the Happineſs we all enjoy; therefore I thought it but Juſtice to the Memory of it, to ſend you Bills for the Confirmation of what was then enacted; and I cannot doubt but you will diſpatch what remains of that kind with all convenient Speed; and that you will think, that what was then thought neceſſary for the publick Peace, ought not to be ſhaken now, or any good Man leſs ſecure of what he poſſeſſes, than he was when you came together. It is to put myſelf in Mind, as well as you, that I ſo often mention to you my Declaration from Breda: And let me put you in Mind of another Declaration publiſhed by yourſelves about the ſame Time, and which I am perſuaded made mine the more effectual, an honeſt, generous, and Chriſtian Declaration ſign'd by the moſt eminent Perſons, who had been the moſt eminent Sufferers, in which you renounced all former Animoſities, all Memory of former Unkindneſſes, vow'd all imaginable good Will to and all Confidence in each other. Therefore let it be in no Man's Power to charge me or you with Breach of our Word or Promiſe: Let us look forwards; and not backwards, and never think of what is paſſed, except Men put us in Mind of it by repeated Faults we had forgot, and then let us remember no more than what concerns thoſe very Perſons. God hath wrought a wonderful Miracle in ſettling us as he hath done; I pray let us do all we can to get the Reputation at home and abroad of being well ſettled. We have Enemies and Envyers enough, who labour to have it thought otherwiſe; and if we would indeed have our Enemies fear us, and our Neighbours love and reſpect us, and fear us enough to love us, let us take all the Ways we can, that as the World cannot but take Notice of your extraordinary Affection to me, and of the Comfort I take in that Affection, ſo that it may likewiſe take Notice of your Affection to, and Confidence in each other; which will diſappoint all Deſigns againſt the publick Peace, and fully eſtabliſh our joint Security.

An Act for confirming publick Acts.

Preamble.

Whereas during the late Difficulties and Exigencies of Affairs in the Abſence of his moſt Excellent Majeſty, and in reference to his Return from beyond the Seas into theſe his Majeſty's Dominions, the Lords and Commons being aſſembled at Weſtminſter the five and twentieth Day of April, in the twelfth Year of his Majeſty's Reign, were from thence, and after his Majeſty's Return, continued until the twenty ninth Day of December then next following, and now laſt paſt, and then diſſolved by his Majeſty: In which Time ſeveral Acts were paſſed by his Majeſty, by and with the Advice and Conſent of the ſaid Lords and Commons aſſembled, as aforeſaid, which being of neceſſary Uſe, are fit to be continued and confirmed, although the manner of the ſaid aſſembling, enforced by the Difficulties and Exigencies aforeſaid, which then lay upon the Nation, is not to be drawn into Example. Be it therefore enacted —— that all and ſingular the Acts made —— ſince the ſaid five and twentieth Day of April, —— that is to ſay, one Act entitled, An Act of Free and General Pardon, Indemnity, and Oblivion. —— and all other Acts —— ſhall be and hereby are ratified and confirmed, and enacted and declared to have the full Force and Strength of Acts of Parliament, according to the Tenour and Purport thereof, and ſo ſhall be adjudged, deemed, and taken to all Intents and Purpoſes whatſoever, and as if

All Acts confirmed ſince the twenty fifth Day of April.

SUNDAY July 14. The firſt Reading of the Engliſh Liturgy in the French Church in the Savoy.

Publick Intelligence by Authority, 4^to^. No. 28.

By Virtue of a Grant from his Majeſty for ſetting up a new French Church in the Savoy under the immediate Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of London, the Liturgy of the Church of England was firſt read in the French Tongue in the Chapel of the Savoy, with Sermons by Meſſieurs Durell and le Couteur. There was a very great Number of People, and many Perſons of Quality, viz. the Duke and the Ducheſs of Ormond, the Counteſs Dowager of Derby, the Counteſs of Oſſory, and of Athol, the Earls of Stafford, Newcaſtle, Devonſhire, the Lord Cavendiſh, the Vice-Chamberlain with his Family. Mr. Durell, heretofore Chaplain to the Duke de la Force in France, did preach in the Morning, and Mr. le Couteur, heretofore Miniſter of the Reformed Church of Caen in Normandy, and now Dean of the Church of Jerſey, did preach in the Afternoon.

Account given ſuitable to what has been before related.

Athen. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 551. from Durell

About 1642. the Duke of Soubize living near to the Court at Whitehall, and finding it troubleſome and ſometimes impoſſible, by Reaſon of his Infirmities, to go to the Walloon's Church in the City of London, had commonly a French Sermon preached before him in his own Houſe every Sunday. This being found very commodious to the French living near thereunto, it was thought convenient upon the Death of the ſaid Duke to ſet up a French Church about the Strand; and it being in a manner ſettled, that in the City did ſo highly reſent it, that ever after the Members thereof did endeavour by all Means poſſible to pull it down. Upon the King's Reſtauration the French Church in the City addreſſed his Majeſty to have the French Congregation at Weſtminſter broken, and forbidden to aſſemble, becauſe it was not eſtabliſhed by lawful Authority. They at Weſtminſter did preſent an humble Suit to his Majeſty, that he would be pleaſed to continue it. His Majeſty upon Conſideration of the Matter granted both their Requeſts, by breaking the Congregation at Weſtminſter, and by ſetting up a new Church under the immediate Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of London, wherein Divine Service ſhould be performed in French, according to the Book of Common-Prayer by Law eſtabliſhed, his Majeſty providing for one Miniſter, and they themſelves allowed to add to him as many as by them ſhould be thought convenient. Provided that the ſaid Miniſters be preſented to the Biſhop of London, and by him inſtituted.

To his Excellency James Duke of Ormond, &c.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

As I had no other Aim when I made this Sermon, but only the private Inſtruction of my Auditors; ſo would it never have come into my Thoughts to expoſe it to publick View and Cenſure, had not your Excellency in ſome ſort impoſed upon me a Neceſſity of ſo doing, partly by letting me know that ſuch was your Excellency's Pleaſure; partly by declaring after you had heard it, that you judge it ſuch as might contribute ſomething to the Edifying of God's Church in this preſent Conjuncture of the Affairs of Religion in this Kingdom. —— Your Excellency having had the Honour to accompany his Majeſty in all his Travels, and to ſhare with him in all his Troubles. And for theſe Reaſons (yet without detracting from the Praiſe of any one) we may conclude without the leaſt Scruple, that your Excellency deſerves the Name of the unblemiſh'd Subject, &c.

Information given to the Houſe of Commons of a ſeditious Paper, &c.

Publick Intelligence, by Authority, 4to. N°. 28.

On Friday laſt, July 12, the Houſe of Commons had Information of a ſeditious Paper againſt the late Proceedings of the Houſe, entitled, Sundry Reaſons humbly tendred to the moſt honourable Houſe of Peers, by ſome Citizens and Members of London, and other Cities, Boroughs, and Corporations, and Ports againſt the new intended Bill for Governing and Reforming Corporations. Whereupon the Houſe appointed a Committee to examine and enquire after the Author, with the Printer and Publiſher thereof. The Committee met, and ſoon found Mr. William Prynne (a Perſon well known to the World) to be the Author thereof. And accordingly this Day (July the 15th) the whole Matter was reported to the Houſe, who thereupon being highly provoked, Mr. Prynne was unable to conceal it any longer, for 'twas proved that he had ſent that Paper to the Printing-Houſe, that he corrected the Proof Sheet, and alſo the Reviſe, with his own Hand; and as ſoon as the Houſe roſe on Friday laſt, he flew to the Printing-Houſe, and commanded them to diſtribute the Form, for they would be ſearched.

A Committee appointed to examine into it,

Who found Mr. William Prynne to be the Author;

Who after ſome Evaſion confeſſed himſelf to be the unhappy Author:

And excuſed himſelf upon the Service he had done the King.

Mr. Prynne now deſired to be heard, and (unable to evade the Evidence) confeſſed himſelf to be the unhappy Author. Then he ſpake largely, ſetting forth the Service he had done for the King formerly, how kind and civil the King had been to him, &c. alledging, that he had no miſchievous Intent, but was very ſorry for what he had done, and humbly craved their Pardon. The Houſe then unanimouſly called upon him to withdraw, and afterwards proceeded to debate it, and reſolved the Queſtion, that the ſaid printed Paper entitled Sundry Reaſons humbly tendred to the moſt honourable, &c. is an illegal, falſe, ſcandalous, and ſeditious Pamphlet.

Voted to be an illegal, falſe, ſcandalous, and ſeditious Pamphlet.

The Cenſure of the Houſe upon Mr. Prynne, delivered by the Speaker.

He ſubmitted, thank'd the Houſe, and ſate down again in his Place.

Wood's Ath. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 314.

Mr. Prynne was called in again to receive the Senſe of the Houſe, which was as aforeſaid. Mr. Speaker worthily told him, how ſorry he was that a Perſon of his Years and Experience ſhould commit ſo foul an Offence, one that had formerly ſuffer'd ſo much, and yet now deſerved to ſuffer all his Puniſhments over again, Impriſonment, Pillory, &c. But the Houſe had conſidered his late Services and Hazards for his Majeſty, and in Contemplation thereof, and his Expreſſions of his Sorrow (which truly ſeemed very great) the Houſe had ſhewn Mercy to him. Mr. Prynne then did thankfully acknowledge the Juſtice of the Houſe in their Judgment of his great Offence, that his Paper was an illegal, falſe, ſcandalous, and ſeditious Pamphlet; that he did humbly ſubmit thereunto, and did render moſt humble Thanks to that Houſe, and every Member thereof for their Mercy and Favour to him; which Words he ſpake with great Senſe of his own Offence, and the Houſe's Goodneſs, not offering to juſtify the leaſt Line of his Paper, which his Conſcience told him he could not. Whereupon the Houſe being ſatisfied with his Confeſſion and Recantation did remit his Offence, and Maſter William Prynne ſate down in his Place.

TUESDAY July 16.

The Proceedings of the Lords upon the Bill concerning Penal Laws againſt the Roman Catholicks.

Journ. Lords.

The Houſe of Lords proceeded to finiſh the Report concerning Penal Laws againſt Roman Catholicks, and appointed a Committee to conſider of and prepare a Bill to be offered to this Houſe upon theſe particular Heads:

Their Lordſhips to peruſe the whole Statute 5 Eliz. Cap. I. and to conſider what Part thereof is fit to be repealed.

The Clauſes of the Statute 27 Eliz. Cap. II. concerning the receiving of Jeſuits and ſeminary Prieſts to be repealed.

The Clauſes of the Statute 35 Eliz. Cap. II. concerning Nonconformiſts to be repealed.

The Clauſes 1 Jac. Cap. IV. concerning putting former Laws againſt Recuſants and Jeſuits into Execution to be repealed.

The Clauſes 3 Jacobi Cap. IV. concerning going out of the Realm, and not taking the Oath of Allegiance, and giving Bond for thoſe that ſeduce others to be repealed.

The Writ De Hæretico comburendo to be repealed.

In the Preamble of the Bill to ſet forth the Reaſons and Grounds of theſe Alterations, and alſo to conſider of fit and proper Remedies to preſerve the Proteſtant Religion from the Inconveniencies which the Repealing of theſe Laws may otherwiſe produce. But this Indulgence not to be extended to Jeſuits. The Names of the Lords Committees, Duke of York, Lord Treaſurer, Lord Privy-Seal, &c.

The popiſh and preſbyterian Intereſt were united towards repealing the Penal Laws.

The Preſbyterians had long before promiſed the Papiſts to take off that Burden from them.

For ſo King Charles I. in his Declaration publiſhed after the Battle of Edge-Hill, October 23, 1643. affirms, — All Men know the great Number of Papiſts which ſerve in their Armies, Commanders, and others; the great Induſtry they have uſed to corrupt the Loyalty and Affection of all our loving Subjects of that Religion; the private Promiſes and Undertakings that they have made to them, that if they would aſſiſt them againſt us; all the Laws made in their Prejudice ſhould be repealed.

And even the Letter from a Perſon of Quality [a Papiſt] to a Peer of the Realm [a Proteſtant] in this Seſſion upon Occaſion of this Debate, in July 16, 1661. Thomas Gumble, S. T. P. Chaplain to George Monk Duke of Albemarle, was inſtalled Prebendary of Wincheſter in the twelfth Stall, void by the Reſignation of Dr. Sebaſtian Smyth.

Printed with the Anſwer of the other Prieſts, 1661. 4to.

Upon the Reſolution of the Lords that the Indulgence to be granted to the Roman Catholicks ſhould not be extended to the Jeſuits. That Society drew up a Paper, entitled, Reaſons why the Jeſuits hope that they ſhould partake of the Favour ſhewed to other Prieſts, in taking away the Sanguinary Laws.

The ſame Reaſons which moved the Peers to take away the Sanguinary Laws from other Prieſts may move them alſo to take them away in reſpect of the Jeſuits; in his Poſtſcript is bold to ſay, — That their Sir Arthur Aſhton had a Commiſſion from the Rebels Party, — and that the Presbyterian Paſham did court the Roman Catholicks to ſide with them, with a Promiſe or Proffer of a perfect Abolition of the Penal Laws.

The Jeſuits plead they are free-born Subjects, and of tender Conſciences:

And that ſome of their Scholars had been the beſt Friends to the King.

And other Penitents of their Society.

ſuits; for the Jeſuits are free-born Subjects as well as others; they have been as faithful to his Majeſty as others; they are of tender Conſciences as well as others. The Jeſuits all along have been Furtherers of the King, and Actors alſo as far as their Functions beareth, that is, they were in the Camp where ſome of them were killed, others impriſoned, moſt of them loſt their neareſt Relations in the War, and in a manner all had their Friends undone for the King. All thoſe that depended on the Jeſuits ſtood conſtant to the King, even to Death; amongſt theſe were ſome ſignal Perſons, as Sir Henry Gage, Sir John Smith, Sir John Digby, and others, who having been formerly Scholars of the Jeſuits, were actually when they died Penitents of the Jeſuits: And Mr. Peter Wright who was executed at Tyburn for a Jeſuit was particularly maligned becauſe he was Sir Henry Gage his Prieſt. As for noble Perſons who loſt great Eſtates, and endured much Hardſhip for his Majeſty, the late Ducheſs of Buckingham, the late Marquis of Worceſter, the late Earl of Shrewſbury were Penitents of the Society, as other prime Nobility yet in being.

Now whereas two Things are objected againſt the Jeſuits, they are both eaſily anſwered.

The Pope's depoſing Power not taught by the Jeſuits more than by other Communities in the Church of Rome.

And the General of the Jeſuits in 1616. has forbid all their Order to teach that Doctrine.

Firſt, It is objected that the Jeſuits teach the Doctrine of the Pope, depoſing Kings: It is anſwered, that no Community can be leſs accuſed of that Doctrine, than the Jeſuits. It is true, four or five Jeſuits did many Years ago teach this Doctrine, as they had found it taught by others ancienter than their Order. But ſince the firſt of January 1616. the General of the Jeſuits forbad any of his to teach, preach, or diſpute for that Doctrine, or print any thing for it, to take away the Aſperſion which the Writings of ſome few have brought upon the Society; and now actually all Jeſuits are obliged under Pain of Damnation, not to teach that Doctrine either in Word, Writing, or Print, which none in the Church but they only are.

They depend on the Pope only to go Miſſionaries at his Command, Otherwiſe they have the leaſt Dependence on the Pope of any Church-men whatſoever.

Secondly, 'Tis objected that the Jeſuits do particularly depend on the Pope. It is anſwered, that they are obliged by a particular Vow to be ready to go to the utmoſt Bounds of the Earth, to preach the Goſpel to Infidels, when the Pope ſhall think it fit to ſend them; and they have no other Vow which doth particularly oblige them but this, which can prejudice no Kingdom. On the other Side, ſpeaking of their Dependence, (which may byaſs their Affections) they have the leaſt Dependence on the Pope of any Church-men, for they are by ſpecial Vow excluded from all Benefices and Dignities, by which the Pope may win the Affection of other Church-men.

The Venetians and French have recalled the Baniſhment of the Jeſuits.

As for what is ſaid of the Venetians and French baniſhing the Jeſuits, it is anſwered, that both thoſe Eſtates have repealed their Acts.

They are willing to ſubmit to what all other Catholick Prieſts ſhall agree to.

And therefore hope to be Partakers of the common Favour.

Laſtly, That the Jeſuits being willing to ſubmit to whatſoever all other Catholick Prieſts ſhall agree to, and offering all the Security which others offer, they hope they may be Partakers of the ſame Favours which ſhall be granted to others, that ſo that Mercy may extend to all, and the World may ſee that the Sanguinary Laws are truly taken away.

The other Prieſts well knew that if the Jeſuits inſiſted on a Share, they ſhould loſe the whole;

And therefore they prov'd and publiſh'd the Jeſuits Reaſons to be unreaſonable.

London,
Printed 1662.
4to.

The Jeſuits Reaſons unreaſonable; or Doubts propoſed to the Jeſuits: Upon their Paper preſented to divers Perſons of Honour, for Non-Exception from the common Favour voted to Catholicks.

After a Preface by Way of Apology for ſeeming to lay load upon the already Oppreſſed, and contribute to and even provoke a Perſecution againſt their fellow Catholicks, they begin and ſay:

The Jeſuits not to hope for the ſame Favour, becauſe it was their wicked Practices that provok'd the making of Sanguinary Laws,

Therefore guilty of the Blood of Prieſts and Catholicks.

They manage Religion not by Perſuaſion but by Force.

This the Principle and Practice of Father Parſons;

A continual Traytor to his Queen and Country:

He adhered to Mary Queen of Scots,

To begin then: My firſt Doubt ſhall be whether you Jeſuits have Ground to hope the ſame Favour with others. For if you, by your unjuſt and wicked Practices provoked the Magiſtrates to enact thoſe Laws: If the reſt of the Prieſts and Catholicks were by you plung'd in ſuch Miſeries, upon Diſcovery of your Negotiations, which were imputed to the whole Body of them; how can you be thought to deſerve Remiſſion, whoſe ſeditious Principles are too deeply guilty of the Blood of Prieſts and Catholicks ſhed in the Kingdom ever ſince you came into it? Thoſe who know your Practices in the Countries, where you, by the means ordinarily of deluded Wives, govern the great Ones, know this to be your Maxim, to manage Religion, not by Perſuaſion, but by Command and Force. This Principle did your chief Apoſtle of England, Robert Parſons bring in with him. His firſt Endeavours were to make a Liſt of Catholicks, which, under the Conduct of the Duke of Guiſe, ſhould have changed the State of the Kingdom, uſing for it the Pretence of the Title of Queen Mary of Scotland: But her Council at Paris, which underſtood Buſineſs better, were ſo ſenſible of his Boldneſs, that they took from him the Queen's Cypher, which he had purloyned, and commanded him never more to meddle in her Affairs. Poor Edmund Campian, who is generally accounted an innocent and learned Man, and others ſuffered for ſuch Practices of his.

And foſtered the Spaniſh Invaſion.

He wrote his Dolman for the Spaniſh Title to theſe Kingdoms;

And his Leiceſter's Common-wealth to vilify the Government.

He procur'd a Bull to prevent and exclude the Proteſtant Succeſſor,

Parſons's Endeavours being ſuppreſſed by this Queen, he turned himſelf to the Spaniard, and with all his Might foſtered the Invaſion of Eighty Eight, which is known to have been another Occaſion of Sanguinary Laws. He wrote on that Occaſion his Dolman to juſtify the Spaniards Title to England, degrading the Scotiſh Succeſſion and Title of our Sovereign. He wrote alſo Leiceſter's Common-wealth (at that Time called commonly Blewcoat, becauſe it was ſent into England bound in blew Paper) which extreamly exaſperated the State, and augmented its Indignation againſt Catholicks. The ſame Man at Queen Elizabeth's Death procured a Bull from the Pope to the Catholicks in England againſt

King

And pretended to keep him out with an Army of forty thouſand Men.

King James, to hinder his coming to the Crown, unleſs he would give Liberty of Conſcience, and as his Friends gave out, had twenty thouſand Men liſted for that Effect, had not his Majeſty prevented the Danger with ſweet Words.

In the Gun-powder Treaſon, the Jeſuits were moſt Acceſſary.

And ſtill juſtify or adhere to it, by Straw, Pictures, &c.

Next followed that deteſtable Machination of blowing up the Royal Race and the whole Nobility with the Houſe of Commons, which was the Occaſion of the Oath of Allegiance, and all the Perſecution of Catholicks following upon it. This you alledge not to be originally your Invention, but is it no Guilt to follow another Man's Wickedneſs, when it leads to ſo horrid a Crime? For without doubt, both by Prayers beforehand, and by publick Teſtifications after the Fact was diſcovered, you were highly acceſſary to it. Nay many Years after you did, and peradventure to this very Day ſtill do, pertinaciouſly adhere to it. I could urge great and manifeſt Inſtances of this, were it not to loſe Time; that monſtrous Straw, of which all Chriſtendom rung ſo long, and the Pictures of Garnet and Oldeorn cannot be denied, nor want the Evidence of your inward Minds.

They were Libellers and Traytors to King James till his Death.

After theſe, came out the ridiculous and ſatyrical Books againſt King James, the Corona Regia, and the Quæres, till your Patriarch Parſons was ſhamefully turn'd out of Rome by Monſieur Bethunes, the French Ambaſſador, and Order from the King of France, being diſcovered to plot a new Treaſon againſt his Countrey, to introduce the Duke of Parma. Thus you followed King James to his Death.

No Friends to King Charles I. they oppoſed the Queen's Deſire of Aſſiſtance at Rome.

As to their Behaviour to his preſent Majeſty, they leave him to judge.

Col. Hutchenſon could diſcover their treating with Cromwell.

Direct Treaſon againſt King Charles of glorious Memory before the Wars, I cannot accuſe you of, but how refractory you were to the Queen's Deſires and Orders at Rome for his late Majeſty's Aſſiſtance, is well known: And what you have done ſince the Beginning of the Wars, and how you have behav'd yourſelves, both in and out of England, is fitter for me to remit to his Majeſty, and the Courts Informations, than to engage my Pen in far fewer and weaker which I could produce. Only I ſhall add this Word, if Colonel Hutchinſon were well examin'd and preſs'd, he would perhaps diſcover ſtrange Secrets, about your treating with Cromwell, no doubt much to his Majeſty's Advantage. So that leaving you this Doubt to ruminate upon, whether the Condition of them who have guiltily provok'd and deſerv'd the ſanguinary Laws, be the ſame with theirs who have ſuffer'd for being miſtaken to be their Fellows. I proceed to

The Jeſuits quâ Jeſuits are not free-born.

2. My ſecond Doubt about your firſt Reaſon, that the Jeſuits are free-born Subjects as well as others, in which methinks I find one of your uſual Sleights of Equivocation: For a Jeſuit may ſignify the Man who is a Jeſuit, and may ſignify withal the Complexion of being a Jeſuit; in the former Senſe there is no Difference between any other Prieſt Regular or Secular and a Jeſuit as to Free-born, but in the ſecond there's a wide one. For, &c.

They ought to conſider how odious it will make them, to drive on their own Intereſt againſt the whole Catholick Cauſe.

Whether they ſucceed, or not.

Concluding p. 21. Only this Word more, I ſhall deſire you to conſider how the Catholicks of England, nay of all the World, will be ſcandaliz'd and provok'd againſt Jeſuits, if they ſee you palpably and uncharitably drive on your own Intereſt alone, without caring what becomes of Religion, unleſs you may have your Wills. This I propoſe only upon Suppoſition that the Report is true: For if you endeavour no more than to procure yourſelves may be included in the Act, without endangering your Neighbours, I heartily wiſh you may prove it juſt. But bethink yourſelves well of this Dilemma, if your Solicitings ſtop the Progreſs of the Act, how will you be hated as guilty of the Continuance of thoſe ſanguinary Laws? If your Endeavours do not ſtop it, how will you be both hated for attempting it, and ſcorn'd for miſcarrying in it?

Account given of this Conteſt by Dr. P. du Moulin.

Dr. Peter du Moulin Prebendary of Canterbury writes thus: Let them hear their own Party ſpeak. A little after the King's Return, the ſecular Prieſts ſet forth a Diſcourſe in Print, the Jeſuits Reaſons unreaſonable, 1662. wherein they upbraid the Jeſuits and Jeſuited——That they never yet renounced the Doctrine of the Pope's depoſing Princes: That their General's Order againſt teaching this Doctrine was a meer Trick, and never pretended to reach England: That Santarellus his Book was printed ten Years after it, teaching the Power of depoſing Princes in all Latitude; and why ſhould the Peace of the Kingdom have no better Security than their General's Order? Who knows how ſoon that may alter, when good Circumſtances happen? And then it will be a mortal Sin not to teach this Doctrine.

The Book had been ſuppreſs'd by the Jeſuits,

Till brought out by Dr. Stillingfleet.

This and much more to the like Purpoſe you may read in that Diſcourſe, which no doubt was ſuppreſs'd as ſoon as it came forth by the numerous and prevailing Jeſuitical Party: Yet was it drawn out of Darkneſs by that ſkilful and happy Inquiſitor of Books, our excellent Dr. Stillingfleet, that rich Houſholder, who brings out of his Treaſure Things new and old, for the building up of God's Church, and confounding of her Adverſaries. See Dr. Stillingfleet's laſt Book againſt Creſſy, pag. 479.

The Repreſentation of it by a late Popiſh Writer.

Secret Policy of the Jeſuits, 1715. 8vo. p. 299.

A late popiſh Writer has ſet the Matter in this fuller Light, by way of Addreſs to the Jeſuits 1715. I own I am averſe to wording Things as the Chaplain does, that you ſeem rather zealous for Property than Popery. Nor do I willingly fall in with what he aſſerts concerning your oppoſing the Toleration Act deſign'd by King Charles II. when you underſtood your Order was to be excepted out of it. Yet finding in ſeveral Manuſcripts and other Accounts, that you were accus'd of the like Fact in the Reign of King Charles I. I was inclinable to think there was ſomething of a Ground-work for this Imputation. I will ſet down in a few Words the Sum of my Enquiry to clear this Point, and let every Man draw his own Inferences. When in the Year 1636. ſome Projects were a Foot in order to ſettle a Toleration in regard of Roman Catholicks, and upon Terms

Of the Toleration of Roman Catholicks in 1636.

Then oppoſed by the Jeſuits.

Certain that King Charles II. had a Mind to grant a Toleration to his Roman Catholick Subjects.

For which ſome ſtrong Attempts were made in the Privy-Council and in Parliament.

The Jeſuits clandeſtinely oppoſed it.

Prevailing with the Roman Catholick Lords not to ſuffer their Order to be excepted.

not very advantageous to the Jeſuits, 'tis apparent from original Letters of Miniſters employ'd in this Affair, that the Buſineſs was oppoſed by the Society, and that upon the ſame Occaſion a certain Jeſuit publiſhed a Treatiſe with this Title: Quod Libertas Conſcientiæ non conveniat Anglis pro præſenti rerum Statu. Theſe Letters may be produced if occaſion be. But the Oppoſition the Chaplain ſpeaks of was made by the Jeſuits after the Reſtauration of King Charles II. Now how far this is to be laid at their Doors, if we believe the common Opinion, it needs no Proof: Thus much in the firſt Place is certain, that King Charles II. was once in a Mind to have granted a Toleration to his Roman Catholick Subjects, as he ſignified from Breda, and confirm'd it again in a publick Declaration in the Year 1662. And again, not only the Privy Council, but a ſtrong, and as it was judged a prevailing Party, was made in the Parliament in order to effect it, till the Deſign dropt at the Solicitation of ſeveral Roman Catholick Lords. Now to clear the Chaplain from being an Impoſtor in relating this Matter in the Manner he does, ſeveral Books were publiſhed the Year abovementioned 1662, which ſignify ſtrongly that the Jeſuits were at the Bottom of this Affair, and clandeſtinely oppoſed the Toleration Bill, by the Mediation of the Catholick Lords, who were not for having them excepted. Neither is the Buſineſs of ſo ancient a Date, but that there are Perſons now in being, who have received the ſame Account from ſuch as had a good Opportunity of being truly informed by thoſe who were active in the Affair. I own Things of this Nature ought to be well atteſted, and yet the Accuſation is of that Quality, that it cannot be ſuppoſed to be punctually made out. It has ſo ill an Aſpect of itſelf, that whoſoever had a Hand in it were ſure to contrive Matters ſo, that the World ſhould not evidently know what Springs they moved by. If we may be permitted to conſider the Thing in itſelf, it is not diſagreeable to ſome other Syſtems in the Society: For if the Happineſs of the Church depends very much upon the Jeſuits as you pretend; if turning the Society out of the Roman College was repreſented as a Fact, equivalent to putting an End to Catholick Religion in England, as ſome would make it, what Deſolation to the Goſpel would not happen, if the Society were for ever debarr'd from ſetting Foot in England? So that according to theſe Notions, no one in your Intereſt and Sentiments, could ſubſcribe to an Act of Toleration with Excluſion of the Society; but he muſt implicitely ſign the Diſſolution of the Catholick Religion in England. I do not pretend to urge theſe Reflections as capable to make good the vulgar Report, that the Society were the Occaſion of the Toleration Act being dropt. I am ſatisfied you would rather have ſaid with Jonas, Tollite me & mittite in mare & ceſſabit tunc a vobis; ſcio enim ego quoniam propter me tempeſtas hæc grandis venit ſuper vos, Jonas i. 12. And I ſhall be glad if you can produce any authentick Proof to clear yourſelves. In the mean Time it muſt be allowed, that as the Chaplain was not the Forger of this Accuſation, ſo it will perhaps be thought that the Circumſtances I have mentioned are very ſtrong in a Thing of this Nature, and capable to make you hugely ſuſpected.

For that might bring on a Diſſolution of the Catholick Religion in England.

Father Orleans is bold to ſay, the King might have reign'd in Peace, could the Proteſtants have endur'd, that he who dy'd a Catholick, ſhould ſhew ſome Toleration to ſuch of his Subjects as were ſo; and had they not gone about to oblige him to diſinherit his Succeſſor, for being of a Religion he would willingly have profeſs'd himſelf. Engliſh Tranſlation of Orleans's Hiſt. p. 227.

Lord Clarendon's full Anſwer to the popiſh Pretence of Loyalty, in order to facilitate the Toleration.

The Papiſts in order to obtain their Bill for a Repeal of the penal Laws againſt them, had profeſs'd great Loyalty to the King: The beſt Anſwer whereunto was made by the Lord Clarendon.

Animadverſions on Mr. Creſſy in Defence of Dr. Stillingfleet, 8vo. p. 70.

The whole Iriſh Roman Catholick Nation in pure Rebellion againſt K. Charles I.

And that for no other Cauſe but their Religion.

The ſecular and regular Clergy equally engag'd in it.

The Pope himſelf a Contributor to it, if not the Contriver of it.

And even no Engliſh Catholick ever declar'd againſt it.

Nothing can be ſtranger than that Mr. Creſſy ſhould ſo magnify the general Obedience of all Roman Catholicks, that none of them were ever in Rebellion againſt the King or his Father, when he knows very well, and hath ſome Marks of it, that the whole Iriſh Nation (ſome very few excepted) joined in Rebellion againſt the King, and but for that Rebellion, neither Preſbyterian, nor Independent, or Anabaptiſt, had been able to have done any harm in England: For the Scots Rebellion was totally ſuppreſſed, and their Army diſbanded, before the Iriſh Rebellion began. It was that which produced all the Miſchief that ſucceeded in England, and gave thoſe Sects in Religion opportunity to bring in their Confuſion to the Deſtruction of Church and State, with ſuch barbarous Circumſtances as are too horrible to repeat, though they can never be forgotten. Was not that Rebellion begun and carried on entirely by the King's Roman Catholick Subjects? Was there one Man but Catholicks who concurred in it? And did they pretend any other Cauſe for it but Religion? Was not the ſecular and regular Clergy equally engaged to ſupport it? And did not the Pope himſelf contribute to it, if not contrive it? And was not himſelf in the Perſon of his Nuncio Rinnuccini General of the Rebels both by Sea and Land? And can there be a greater Manifeſtation that the Catholick Roman Religion itſelf favoured Rebellion, than when the Head of their Church and all Eccleſiaſtical Orders joined and concurred in it? And it cannot but be obſerved, that though the Iriſh for ought appears only carried on, or were active in that Rebellion, there was not any Engliſh Catholick that made any publick Profeſſion againſt it; nor did one Engliſh Prieſt, ſecular or regular, manifeſt his Deteſtation or Diſlike of it by any publick Writing: And how much they favoured it in private Diſcourſe, there wants not abundant Evidence.

The Opinion of Father Orleans, about the Debates in Parliament upon Liberty of Conſcience.

Favour'd by the Earl of Briſtol.

Hiſtory of the Engliſh Revolut. p. 236.

There were great Debates in this Aſſembly about Liberty of Conſcience, between the Proteſtants and the Catholicks, the Church of England and the Preſbyterians. The Catholick Party was ſupported by the Earl of Briſtol, a Man in great Repute, and Head of a potent Faction. The Proteſtant Party by Chancellor Hyde, chief of an oppoſite Faction, and a Perſon of no leſs Conſideration, who putting himſelf at the Head of the prevailing Church of England Party in that that Parliament, declar'd not only againſt the Catholicks, but againſt the Preſbyterians, and all thoſe the Church of England calls Non-Conformiſts. The King who was no good Chriſtian in his Actions, but a Catholick in his Heart, did all that could be expected from his eaſy Temper, to maintain the common Liberty, that ſo the Catholick Church might have ſhare in it. But the Church of England prevail'd, and Chancellor Hyde was ſo hot upon that Point, that his Majeſty was obliged to yield rather to his Importunity, than to his Reaſons.

This Day the Count d'Eſtrade, Ambaſſador Extraordinary from the King of France, was conducted in much Pomp to Whitehall, where he received Audience of his Majeſty. And on Saturday following the Venetian Ambaſſador came through London to Weſtminſter, with a very noble Retinue, conducted by Sir Charles Cotterell Maſter of the Ceremonies to his Majeſty. At the ſame Time Prince Maurice of Naſſau and the Chancellor Weiman, both Ambaſſadors from his Electoral Highneſs of Brandenburgh took Leave of his Majeſty, with all the Satisfaction they could expect from this Court about their Negotiation, concerning an Alliance between our King and the ſaid Elector, as alſo the Guardianſhip of the Prince of Orange; leaving behind them one Monſieur Chriſtopher Brand, Counſellor of State to the ſame Elector, to be here his Reſident.

THURSDAY July 18.

Mr. Baxter's own Account of the Savoy Conference drawing to an End.

Mr. Baxter's Life, Fol. Lib. 1. Part II. p. 334.

When the Biſhops were to have ſent us two Papers, one of their Conceſſions how much they would alter of the Liturgy as excepted againſt, and the other of their Acceptance of our offered Forms, or Reaſons againſt them: Inſtead of both theſe, a good while after, they ſent us ſuch a Paper as they did before, of their Reaſonings againſt all our Exceptions without any Abatements or Alterations at all, that are worth the naming. Our Brethren ſeeing what they were reſolved to bring it to, and how unpeaceably they managed the Buſineſs, did think beſt to write them a plain Anſwer to their Paper, and not to ſuppreſs it as we had done by the firſt. This Taſk alſo they impoſed on me, and I went out of Town to Dr. Spurſtow's Houſe in Hackney for Retirement, where in eight Days Time I drew up a Reply to their Anſwer to our Exceptions; and the Brethren read it, and conſented to it; only wiſhed that it had been larger in the latter End, where I had purpoſely been brief, becauſe I had been too large in the Beginning, and becauſe Particulars may be anſwered ſatisfactorily in a few Words, when the general Differences are fully cleared.

The Commiſſion almoſt expired.
The Preſbyterians deſired perſonal Debates.
To which the Biſhops agreed.

By this Time our Commiſſion was almoſt expired, and therefore our Brethren were earneſtly deſirous of perſonal Debates with them, upon the Papers put in, to try how much Alteration they would yield to: Therefore we ſent to the Biſhops to deſire it of them; and at laſt they yielded to it, when we had but ten Days more to treat.

The grand Debater on the Preſbyterian Side was Mr. Baxter.

When we met them, I delivered them the Anſwer of their former Papers (the Largeneſs of which I ſaw diſpleaſed them) and they received it. And we earneſtly preſs'd them to ſpend the little Time remaining, in ſuch pacifying Conference, as tended to the Ends which are mentioned in the King's Declaration and Commiſſion, &c.

Who inſiſted upon the Biſhops Animadverſions on his Additions and Alterations.
Which would have been endleſs Work.

When we came to our Debates, I firſt craved of them their Animadverſions on our Additions and Alterations of the Liturgy, which we had put in long before; and that they would tells us what they allowed or diſallowed in them; that we might have the Uſe of them, according to the Words in the King's Declaration and Commiſſion. But they would not by any Importunity be intreated at all to debate that, nor to give any of their Opinions about thoſe Papers, &c.

Then they deſired by friendly Conference to go over the Particulars excepted againſt.

When they had caſt out that Part of our deſired Conference, our next Buſineſs was to deſire them by friendly Conference to go over the Particulars which we excepted againſt, and to tell us how much they could abate, and what Alterations they could yield to.

But the Biſhops inſiſted on their proving a Neceſſity of Alteration.
And then they the Biſhops were ready to anſwer ſuch Proofs.

This Biſhop Reynolds oft preſs'd them to, and ſo did all the reſt of us that ſpake. But they reſolutely inſiſted on it, that they had nothing to do, till we had proved that there was any Neceſſity of Alteration which we had not yet done; and that they were there ready to anſwer to our Proofs. We urged them again and again with the very Words of the King's Declaration and Commiſſion: I. That the Ends expreſſed are, &c. —— We told them that the End being to ſatisfy tender Conſciences, and procure Unity, thoſe tender Conſciences did themſelves profeſs, that without ſome Alteration, and that conſiderable too, they could not be ſatisfied, and Experience told them, that Peace and Unity could not without it be attained. But ſtill they ſaid, that none was neceſſary, and they would yield to all that we proved neceſſary.

This brought the Preſbyterians into a very great Strait.

And here we were left in a very great Strait, if we ſhould enter into Diſpute with them, we gave up the End and Hope of our Endeavours: If we refuſed it, we knew that they would boaſt, that when it came to the ſetting to, we would not ſo much as attempt to prove any Thing unlawful in the Liturgy, nor durſt

But the Biſhops were deaf to any other Motion or Method.

diſpute it with them. Mr. Calamy with ſome others of our Brethren would have had us refuſe the Motion of Diſputing, as not tending to fulfil the King's Commands. We told the Biſhops over and over, that they could not chuſe but know, that before we could end one Argument in a Diſpute, our Time would be expired, and that it could not poſſibly tend to any Accommodation: And that to keep off from perſonal Conference, till within a few Days of the Expiration of the Commiſſion, and then to reſolve to do nothing but wrangle out the Time in a Diſpute, as if we were between Jeſt and Earneſt in the Schools, was too viſibly in the Sight of all the World to defeat the King's Commiſſion, and the Expectations of many Thouſands, who longed for our Unity and Peace, But we ſpoke to the Deaf, they had other Ends, and were other Men, and had the Art to ſuit the Means unto their Ends. For my Part, when we ſaw that they would do nothing elſe, I perſuaded our Brethren to yield to a Diſputation with them, and let them underſtand we were far from fearing it, ſeeing they would give us no Hopes of Concord: But withal firſt to profeſs to them, that the Guilt of diſappointing his Majeſty and the Kingdom, lay not upon us, who deſir'd to obey the King's Commiſſion, but on them. And ſo we yielded to ſpend the little Time remaining in diſputing with them, rather than go home and do nothing, and leave them to tell the Court that we durſt not diſpute with them when they ſo provoked us, nor were able to prove our Accuſations of the Liturgy.

Yet the little Time remaining was to be ſpent in diſputing.

Mr. Baxter's own Account of diſputing in the Savoy Conference.

Life of Mr. Baxter, written by himſelf.

When this [Diſpute] was reſolved on, we ſpent many Hours with them about the Order of our Diſputation. I offered them to ſpend one half of the Time in the Opponents Part, if they would promiſe to do the like the other half of the Time, when we had done, that our Diſputation might be on equal Terms. They refuſed this, and anſwered, that it belonged to us only to argue who were the Accuſers, and not at all on them that were on the Defence. I told them it was we that were the Defendants againſt their Impoſitions: They command us to do ſuch and ſuch Things, or elſe we ſhall be excommunicate, ſilenced, impriſoned, and undone: We defend ourſelves againſt this Cruelty, by calling upon them to ſhew their Authority from God for ſuch Impoſitions: Therefore we ſtill call upon them to prove that God hath authorized them to any ſuch Thing; and if they refuſe this they do give up their Cauſe. We offered firſt to prove the Unlawfulneſs of their Impoſitions, if they would afterward prove the Lawfulneſs of them, or their Power ſo to impoſe them. On theſe Terms we ſtood with them about two Days, and they would not yield any Thing at all. At laſt, I oft declared to them, that we would do our Part, and prove their Impoſitions unlawful, whether they would do their Part or no; but with an open Declaration, that that we took them for Deſerters of their Cauſe. At laſt Dr. Pearſon alone undertook that he would diſpute for their Part, when we had performed ours, and we accepted of his Undertaking.

The Diſputation to be put in Writing and manag'd by three on a Side.

Mr. Baxter one.

Upon this, ſeeing it was to be all done in Writing, the reſt of the Commiſſioners on both Sides did chuſe three of a Party to manage the Diſpute, that the other might withdraw themſelves, becauſe they had no more to do. The Biſhops choſe Dr. Pearſon, Dr. Gunning, and Dr. Sparrow. The other Side choſe Dr. Bates, Dr. Jacomb and myſelf, (for I never meddled with the Choice of any, only I would fain have had Mr. William Moſes, Mr. Gibbons, and Mr. Matthew Pool into the Commiſſion, that I might have had their Help in diſputing, becauſe they were quick ingenious Men, and I could not prevail) the reſt of our Brethren preſently withdrew, and not a Man of them came near us any more; as ſuppoſing it contrary to the Agreement: But the Biſhops came (ſome of them) from Day to Day; indeed on the ſecond Day they aſked whether any more than the Diſputants might be preſent, and I anſwered them, that we cared not how many of them were preſent. And after that, others that were not in the Commiſſion aſked, whether they might be preſent; and I told them the ſame. So that there came Dr. Pory, Dr. Crowther, and almoſt the Room full of them, with two or three Scholars and Laymen, that as Auditors came in with us, Mr. Miles, Mr. Tillotſon, &c.

He was to prove the Impoſitions ſinful.

Which Word offended Biſhop Coſins, but Mr. Baxter inſiſted on it.

When I began our firſt Argument to prove their Impoſitions ſinful, Biſhop Coſins was offended at the Word ſinful, and told me that I condemned all the Churches of Chriſt, who all of them impoſed ſome Geſture or other, as much as that came to, and what intolerable Boldneſs was it in us to charge all the Churches of Chriſt with Sin. I anſwered him, 1. That many of the Reformed Churches did not impoſe any ſuch Thing on their Terms, that is, to reject all from the Miniſtry and Communion that conformed not. 2. It was no Arrogance nor Uncharitableneſs to charge all the Church and World with Sin: But he that ſaith, he hath no Sin is a Lyar. In many Things we offend all: It is the Privilege of the Triumphant Church to be without Sin. This they ſtormed at, and yet could not tell how to deny it. Biſhop Laney ſaid, that juſtified Perſons have no Sin, and are no Sinners becauſe Juſtification taketh it away. But when I anſwered him by opening the Nature of Juſtification—I granted that a Man for a certain Space might be without any Act of Sin; and as I was proceeding, here Biſhop Morley interrupted me according to his Manner, with Vehemency crying out, What! can any Man be for any Time without Sin? And then cryed out to Dr. Bates, what ſay you, Dr. Bates, is this your Opinion? Saith Dr. Bates, I believe that we are all Sinners, but I pray, my Lord, give him leave to ſpeak. I began to go on to the reſt of my Sentence where I left, to ſhew the Senſe and Truth of my Words; and the Biſhop (whether in Paſſion or Deſign I know not) interrupted me again, and mouthed out the Odiouſneſs of my Doctrine again and again; I attempted to ſpeak, and ſtill he interrupted me in the ſame Manner. Upon that I ſat down and told him, that this was neither agreeable to our Commiſſion, nor the common Laws of Diſputation, nor the civil Uſage of Men in common Converſe, and that if he prohibited me to ſpeak, I deſired him to do it plainly, and I would deſiſt, and not by that Way of Interruption. He told me, I had ſpeaking enough, if that were good, for I ſpake more than any one in the Company, &c. —— I give the Reader the Inſtance of this odious kind of Talk, to ſhew him what kind of Men we talk'd with, and what a kind of Taſk we had.

Reprov'd by Biſhop Laney.

And interrupted by Biſhop Morley.

Again and again interrupted.

Mr. Baxter beg'd for Compaſſion on a Multitude of Souls.

Which Biſhop Coſins underſtood to be a Threatning the King with the Numbers of their Party.

And a little further Touch of it I ſhall give you: When I begg'd their Compaſſion on the Souls of their Brethren, and that they would not unneceſſarily caſt ſo many out of the Miniſtry and their Communion: Biſhop Coſins told me, that we threatned them with Numbers, and for his Part he thought the King ſhould do well to make us name them all. A charitable and wiſe Motion! To name all the Thouſands of England that diſſented from them, and that had ſworn the Covenant, and whom they would after perſecute, &c.

Biſhop Sterne look'd well, but offended Mr. Baxter.

Among all the Biſhops there was none who had ſo promiſing a Face, as Dr. Sterne the Biſhop of Carliſle: He look'd ſo honeſtly and gravely and ſoberly, that I ſcarce thought ſuch a Face could have deceived me; and when I was intreating them not to caſt out ſo many of their Brethren through the Nation, as ſcrupled a Ceremony which they confeſs'd indifferent, he turn'd to the reſt of the reverend Biſhops, and noted me for ſaying in the Nation, he will not ſay in the Kingdom, ſaith he, leſt he own a King. This was all that ever I heard that worthy Prelate ſay: But with Grief I told him, that half the Charity which became ſo grave a Biſhop, might have ſufficed to have help'd him to a better Expoſition of the Word Nation, &c.

Biſhop Morley offer'd to confute Mr. Baxter by a Book of his own.

Biſhop Morley earneſtly pleaded my own Book with me (my fifth Diſput.) as he had done before the King: And I ſtill told him, I went not from any Thing in it. He vehemently aggravated the Miſchiefs of conceived Prayer in the Church, &c.

One in the Company, not a Commiſſioner, deſired to be heard.

And aſk'd in effect whether all Nonconformiſts had not been Rebels?

One learned Doctor behind me (that was no Commiſſioner) deſired to be heard, as if he had ſome unanſwerable Argument, and it was a Queſtion, Whether all that ſcrupled Conformity, whom we pleaded for, were not ſuch as had been againſt the King. I anſwered him, 1. That the King himſelf had given ſufficient Teſtimony of many of them. 2. That there is not one Miniſter of twenty that we plead for had ever any Thing to do in the Wars, or againſt the King, &c.

When

Mr. Baxter's Argument that upon ejecting Nonconformiſts, there would not be Miniſters enough to ſupply the Churches.

Anſwered by Biſhop Morley.

Which Anſwer Mr. Baxter found to be notoriouſly falſe.

Yet again ſo diſtinguiſhes that it might be true; i. e. no ſettled Miniſter at Aylesbury, but an Army Chaplain to the Gariſon.

This a marginal Note in Mr. Baxter.

When I told them, that if they caſt out all the Nonconformiſts, there would not be tolerable Miniſters enough to ſupply the Congregations: Biſhop Morley anſwered, that ſo it was in the late Times, and that ſome Places had no Miniſters at all, through all thoſe Times of Uſurpation; and named Ayleſbury, which he knew to have had none upon his own Knowledge. I told him, that I never knew any ſuch, and therefore I knew there were not many ſuch in England: And if it were ſo, I hoped that he would not plead for ſuch a Miſchief by the Example of the Uſurpers. But ſince I have enquired of the Inhabitants about Ayleſbury, and they unanimouſly profeſſed, that it was notoriouſly falſe, and named me the Miniſters that had been there ſucceſſively, and uſually two at once. [Upon Enquiry of the Inhabitants ſince, I underſtand that it is no ſuch Thing; but that Ayleſbury was well ſupplied, either by a ſettled Incumbent, or the Preacher of the Garriſon.]

He anſwers another Objection of Biſhop Morley; to remember how they dealt with the Legal and Loyal Clergy.

Alſo the ſaid Biſhop, when I talk'd of ſilencing Miniſters, for Things indifferent, told me, that we ſhould remember how we did by them; and that we talk'd not then as now we do. I anſwered him, that I was confident there was no Man there preſent that had ever a Hand in ſilencing any of them. For my own Part, I had been in Judgment for caſting out the utterly inſufficient and notoriouſly ſcandalous, indifferently of what Opinion or Side ſoever; but I had publickly written againſt the ſilencing or diſplacing any worthy Man for being againſt the Parliament: And if it had been otherwiſe, he ſhould take Warning by others Faults, and not imitate them, and do Evil becauſe Cromwell did ſo.

Biſhop Walton charges Mr. Baxter with very uncharitable Words.

From which Mr. Baxter vindicates himſelf.

Upon this, Dr. Walton Biſhop of Cheſter ſaid, Indeed Mr. Baxter did write againſt the caſting of us out. But Mr. Baxter, did not you ſay, that if our Churches had no more than bare Liberty, as others had without the Compulſion of the Sword, that none but Drunkards would join in them. I anſwered, No, my Lord, I did not. I only ſaid, that as they had been ordered, if they had but equal Liberty for Volunteers, they would be like Ale-houſes, where many honeſt Men may come, but the Number of worſe Comers is ſo great, as maketh it diſhonourable, &c.

Dr. Bates againſt Dr. Gunning.

Dr. Bates urged Dr. Gunning, that on the ſame Reaſons they ſo impoſed the Croſs and Surplice, that they might bring in Holy Water and Lights, and abundance of ſuch Ceremonies of Rome, which we have caſt out. He anſwered, yea, and ſo I think we ought to have more, and not fewer, if we do well, (or to that Senſe) &c.

Another pregnant Inſtance of the Advantages taken by the Papiſts in the Deſtruction of the Church of England.

They publiſhed a much greater Multitude of Popiſh Books.

The Tranſlator of Monſieur Daille's Apology for the Reformed Churches into Engliſh, printed at Cambridge, 1653. 12°. does in the Preface relate, —— I am convinced of the ſeaſonableneſs of publiſhing this Tranſlation, being certified from Engliſh Seminaries beyond the Seas, and convinced by Relations from Newcaſtle, Brecknock, and other Places on this Side the Water, that they (the Papiſts) are very buſie at their Harveſt-Work here. —— Being told by the London Bookſellers, who are the moſt competent Judges, that at leaſt thirty thouſand popiſh Books have been printed there within theſe laſt three Years. Wednesday July 24. Report of the Lords Committees about taking up the Body of Archbiſhop Parker, by Matthew Hardy.

Extracts from Journal of the Lords.

The Earl of Northampton reported to the Houſe of Lords, that the Committee had examined the Buſineſs upon the Petition of Dr. Pory, and their Lordſhips find upon the Examination of Witneſſes, that Matthew Hardy did take up the Body of Archbiſhop Parker out of the Place where he was buried, and took away the Lead wherein he was wrap'd, and ſold it, and buried the Body of that worthy Perſon under a Dunghill, having defaced his Monument, and converted his Tomb Stone to the Uſe of a Table in his Houſe; to which the ſaid Hardy pleaded the Act of Indemnity. The Houſe taking into Conſideration this inhuman Act did order, that this Houſe will reſpite the giving any Determination, whether this Fact be within the Act of Oblivion or not, until the next Meeting after the Adjournment of this Parliament, and in the mean Time the ſaid Matthew ſhall take up or cauſe to be taken up the Bones of the ſaid Archbiſhop of Canterbury where they are now laid, and put them into the ſame Place where he was firſt buried; and that he ſhall forthwith at his own Charges erect a Tomb over the ſaid Place of his Burial as formerly was. And this Houſe will further conſider, whether it be not fit to have a Bill brought in for preventing Inconveniences in the like kind hereafter.

Pleaded to be within the Act of Oblivion.

Hardy to take up the Bones of the Archbiſhop, and reſtore them to the Burial Place, and erect a Tomb over it.

The Commons ſit twice a Day for Diſpatch.

Publick Intelligence, 4to. No. 28.

In purſuance of his Majeſty's gracious Meſſage for the Adjournment of the Parliament on Friday or Saturday next, the Houſe of Commons ſate this Day both Forenoon and Afternoon, to give a quick and better Diſpatch to Affairs of ſo high Concernment.

Mr. Baxter goes on with his Account of the Savoy Conference.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. P. II. p. 340.

Towards the End of our Meetings, Biſhop Coſins taking the Chair, told us, that a very worthy Perſon had offered unto his Superiours a Paper containing the Way to our Reconciliation, which he thought ſo reaſonable and fit, that he deſired us to take them into our Conſideration, and ſo delivered me the Paper. I aſked him from whom he expected an Anſwer, he ſaid, from me. I told him that he might well know that I would enter upon no new Debates without the Conſent of my Brethren preſent, &c.

A Paper for Reconciliation offered by Biſhop Coſins.

The Paper offered by Biſhop Coſins as from ſome conſiderable Perſon.

A Way humbly propoſed to end that unhappy Controverſy which is now managed in the Church, that the Sore may no longer rankle under the Debate, nor Advantages be got by thoſe that love Diviſion.

I. That the Queſtion may be put to the Managers of the Diviſion, Whether there be any thing in the Doctrine, or Diſcipline, or the Common Prayer, or the Ceremonies, contrary to the Word of God, and if they can make any ſuch appear, let them be ſatisfied.

II. If not, let them then propoſe what they deſire in point of Expediency, and acknowledge it to be no more.

III. Let that then be received from them, and ſpeedily taken into the Conſideration and Judgment of the Convocation, who are the proper and authentick Repreſentatives of the Miniſtry, in whoſe Judgment they ought to acquieſce in ſuch Matters; and not only ſo, but to let the People that follow them know, that they ought not to diſturb the Peace of the Church under the Pretence of the Proſecution of Expediency, ſince the Diviſion of the Church is the great inexpedient.

To which Mr. Baxter gave an Anſwer.

The Anſwer to the 'foreſaid Paper.

Right Reverend, &c.

As it was your Deſire that we ſhould return an Anſwer to theſe three Propoſals, only in our own Names, who are but three, ſo we muſt here profeſs therefore, that it is not to be taken as the Act of the reſt of our Brethren the Commiſſioners, but as Part of the Conference to which we are deputed, &c.

When I read and delivered theſe Papers, the Biſhops were much diſpleaſed, that I ſhould charge ſo many Things on the Church as Sins: Where you may note the marvellous Oſcitancy of theſe Men, that when they had treated with us ſo long, and received ſo many large Exceptions and Replies, and in all had heard us open the Sinfulneſs of their Way, they ſhould yet imagine that we had accuſed their Way but of Inexpediency, and think to gratify themſelves by ſuch a poor Device. But their main Deſign was to divide us, while they ſet us upon diſtinguiſhing all their Sins from their Inexpediencies; and they thought that one would take that for inexpedient only, which others took to be Sin, &c.

Mr. Baxter moſt angry with Biſhop Morley.

By this Time, our frequent croſſing of their Expectations I ſaw had made ſome of the Biſhops angry; above all Biſhop Morley, who over-ruled the whole Buſineſs, and did intereſt himſelf in it deeplier than the reſt, and was of a hotter Spirit and a readier Tongue. But that which diſpleaſed them moſt was the Freedom of my Speeches to them, that is, that I ſpake to them as on Terms of Equality as to the Cauſe, yet with all honourable Titles to their Perſons, &c.

The Diſpute to be managed in Writing.

You have the Subſtance of our wand'ring Diſcourſes, you are now to have our as unprofitable Diſputes: In which all was to be managed in Writing ex Tempore by Dr. Pierſon, Dr. Gunning, and Dr. Sparrow, with Dr. Pierce on one Side; and Dr. Bates, Dr. Jacomb, and myſelf on the other Side; we withdrawing into the next Room, and leaving the Biſhops and them together, while we wrote our Part. And we began with the Impoſition of Kneeling on two Accounts (though I took the Geſture itſelf as lawful): 1. Becauſe I knew I had the fulleſt Evidence, and the greateſt Authority of Antiquity, or Church Law and Cuſtom againſt them. 2. Becauſe the Penalty is ſo immediate and great, (to put all that kneel not from the Communion) and it was only the Penalty, and ſo the Impoſition on that Penalty, which we diſputed againſt, &c.

They begin with Kneeling at the Lord's Supper, which Mr. Baxter took to be a lawful Geſture.

But they diſputed againſt the Impoſition on a Penalty.

Mr. Baxter brings in a Reply to their Anſwer.

The next Day I brought in our Reply to their Anſwer at large, as here followeth, &c.

And next Day Dr. Gunning brought a Replication to it.

When this Reply was read, Dr. Gunning ſpake a few Words againſt the Length of it; and deſired a Copy of it, that he might take it home with him to bring in an Anſwer the next Day. —— The next Day Dr. Gunning brought in a large Diſcourſe, in Anſwer to our laſt Reply. His Anſwer itſelf was full of inſulting Words, eſpecially becauſe I had uſed the Word begging the Queſtion, (though ſufficiently explained) as applied to them that were Reſpondents, &c.

And Mr. Baxter again a Rejoinder:

I took Dr. Gunning's Paper home, and brought them an Anſwer the next Day we met; and though I took not a Copy of his Paper for want of Time (and he would not lend it me after) yet you may the Sum and Senſe of all his Anſwer in the following Reply, which as the former, my Brethren read over and approved of.

Or Reply to the Biſhops Diſputants.

The Reply to the Biſhops Diſputants, which was not anſwered.

Whether it be our Arguing or your Anſwering that is laxe, declamatory, pedantick, (as you call it) and whether your confident Inſulting ariſe from your Advantages or Infirmity of Mind, and want of Matter for more pertinent Anſwers are Queſtions that we ſhall leave to impartial Judges: And we ſhall crave Pardon, if we rather ſeem to neglect your Words, than to follow you in theſe ſtrange Vagaries any further than meer Neceſſity for ſaving your Readers from the Error into which they are fitted to miſlead them doth require, &c.

Another Paper by Dr. Gunning.

This Paper was given in the very laſt Day of our Commiſſion and Diſpute: And Dr. Gunning read another which he had prepared for an Inſultation at our Diſmiſſion, which Paper had ſome Miſtakes in it, and the Citation of many Witneſſes, who (as he would have perſuaded us) took the Word Receiving, Rom. xiv. 15. as not meaning or including Receiving to the Holy Communion in the Srcrament.

And continual Squabble.

In the Beginning he affirmed that we had refuſed to diſpute, 'till they had promiſed to take their Turn, and prove the Lawfulneſs of their Impoſitions. To this I anſwered, that it was contrary to our open and frequent Profeſſion, that we would do our Part, whether they would do theirs or not: Only I ſaid, that if they refuſed it, we ſhould take it for a deſerting of their Cauſe. This he a while denied: I appealed to the Auditors of his Party; and they gave no Anſwer: Dr. Bates witneſſed it, Dr. Jacomb offered his Oath of it. He told them that they were Parties. By this Time I ſaw mine Error, in giving Way for their Doctors to crowd in to applaud them and witneſs for them, when we had none (or next to none) of ours there, ſuppoſing by the Agreement three only muſt have ſtay'd. When Dr. Gunning had read his inſulting Anſwer the Day before, and made a great Matter of my telling the Reſpondent of begging the Queſtion, they put Dr. Sanderſon Biſhop of Lincoln into the Chair, that his Learning and Gravity might put a Reputation upon his Sentence, he being a very worthy Man, but for that great Peeviſhneſs which Injuries, Partiality, Temperature and Age had cauſed in him: The Biſhop in a few angry Words pronounced, that Dr. Gunning had the better, and that the Reſpondent could not beg the Queſtion, and that I was a Man of Contention if I offered to reply. I told him, that though we reverenced much his Lordſhip's Age and Learning, yet he was but a Party, and no Judge; which yet if he were, it was ſo ſtrange to us, that a Man ſhould be prohibited to reply, and a Cenſure antedated paſſed on that Reply before it was heard, and on the Replyers for it, that we craved his Lordſhip's Pardon if we diſobeyed him, and gave in our Reply, which might have more in it than he could foreſee. And the next Day when I gave in the Reply (before inſerted) there was no ſuch Inſulting as before.

Biſhop Sanderſon accuſed of Peeviſhneſs and angry Words.

Dr Gunning juſtified by the joint Votes of the Biſhops and Doctors,

Which Mr. Baxter thought a wrong Way.

Threatning that at the Day of Judgment their own Votes ſhould not abſolve them.

When Dr. Gunning had read his Citations of Teſtimonies of the Senſe of Rom. xiv. 15. Biſhop Coſins called to all the Biſhops and Doctors in the Room for their Votes [All you that think that Dr. Gunning hath proved that Rom. xiv. ſpeaketh not of Receiving the Sacrament, ſay I. And ſo they all cry'd I. I told him that we knew their Opinion before, and that if this were the Uſe he made of our Conceſſion, that they ſhould be all preſent, while ours were all abſent (ſave two or three Scholars, and two or three Gentlemen that ſtood behind to hear) it ſhewed that their Cauſe was very needy of Defence, when their own Voices muſt go inſtead of Argument: But if they would go on upon ſuch lamentable Reaſoning as they had uſed, to caſt out the faithful Paſtors and the People, and divide the Church, and afflict the Brethren, the Day was coming when their own Votes ſhould not abſolve them.

And charging them with fruſtrating the King's Commiſſion and the Kingdom's Hopes.

Hereupon we fell again upon the Point of Charity and Compaſſion to the Church, and their fruſtrating the King's Commiſſion, and the Kingdom's Hopes. And when they profeſſed their Deſires of the Churches Peace; I told them they would not abate the ſmalleſt Thing, nor correct their groſſeſt Errors for it: And hereupon I read over to them the Preface (drawn up by Mr. Calamy) before our Reply to their Anſwer to our Exceptions againſt the Liturgy, which reciting their Corruptions, and ſhewing their Uncharitableneſs, offended, but ſilenced them.

The Commiſſion expired;

Otherwiſe Mr. Baxter had many more Arguments remaining,

Which he would venture, tho' beyond the Time.

By this Time the Evening of our laſt Day was far gone, and I deſired to know of them, whether we ſhould continue our Diſpute any further, as private Men voluntarily among ourſelves; for I had many more Arguments, which I deſired before to have read all at once, but could not be permitted: Or whether they would receive my Arguments, and the Reply which I laſt read. Dr. Pierſon reſolved that he would meddle no more after that Night. Biſhop Morley ſaid, he thought it unfit when the King's Commiſſion was expir'd that we ſhould meddle in it any further. But Dr. Gunning and I had ſo much Mind to it, (for I knew that almoſt all my Arguments were yet behind, and it was a Cauſe that might eaſily be made very plain) that I told him I would venture on the Danger for the Love of Charity and Peace, and he agreed that I ſhould ſend him in all my Arguments with the laſt Reply (which he had not anſwered) the next Day.

Report to be made to the King, that both Sides were agreed on the Ends, but diſagreed on the Means of the Churches Unity and Peace.

Laſtly, I deſired Biſhop Morley to reſolve us what Account we were jointly to give his Majeſty of our Proceedings, that we might not wrong each other. And by his and their Conſent it was agreed on, that we give nothing in our Account to the King as charged on one another, but what is delivered in by the Party in Writing: And that all our Account was to be this, that we were all agreed on the Ends, for the Churches Welfare, Unity, and Peace, and his Majeſty's Happineſs and Contentment, but after all our Debates were diſagreed of the Means. And this was the End of that Aſſembly and Commiſſion.

Mr. Baxter would have carried on the Diſpute in Writing, but Dr. Gunning would receive no more Papers from him.

As ſoon as we were gone, I delivered my Papers to a Scribe to be tranſcribed, and about eight a Clock or nine, juſt as I was entring the Door of my Lodging, Dr. Gunning's Meſſenger comes to me, to tell me, that upon further Conſideration he ſhould receive no more Papers from me after that Day, and ſo our further Trouble was prevented.

He gives a Copy of the Diſputation on the other Side.

In the laſt Place, it's Time that I give you a Copy of their Diſputation, and that which followeth is exact and all.

Oppon. Dr. Pierſon, Dr. Gunning, Dr. Sparrow, and Dr. Pierce. My Aſſertion is, Nothing contained in the Liturgy is ſinful.

This general Aſſertion I am ready to make good in all Particulars, in which our Brethren ſhall think fit to charge the Liturgy with Sinfulneſs.

And becauſe our Brethren have as yet by Way of Diſputation charged no other Part of it with the Imputation of Sinfulneſs, but that which concerneth kneeling at the Communion, therefore my firſt Aſſertion as to that particular is this:

So ended the Conference.

The Command contained in the Liturgy concerning kneeling at the Communion is not ſinful, &c. ——— And thus our Diſpute at the Savoy ended, and with it our Endeavours for Reconciliation upon the Warrant of the King's Commiſſion.

SUNDAY July 28.

Mr. Baxter would have given a Character of each Biſhop in the Savoy Conference:

But is content to tell what Part each of them acted.

Were it not a Thing in which an Hiſtorian ſo much concerned in the Buſineſs is apt to be ſuſpected of Partiality, I would here annex a Character of each one that managed this Buſineſs, as they ſhewed themſelves. But becauſe it hath that Inconvenience I will omit it, only telling you what Part each one of them acted in all this Work.

1. The Biſhop of London, Dr. Sheldon.

2. Dr. Frewen Archbiſhop of York.

Dr. Morley Biſhop of Worceſter.

Dr. Coſins Biſhop of Durham.

The Biſhop of London (ſince Archbiſhop of Canterbury) only appeared the firſt Day of each Conference (which beſides that before the King, was but twice in all as I remember) and meddled not at all in any Diſputations: But all Men ſuppoſed that he and Biſhop Morley (and next Biſhop Hinchman) were the Doers and Diſpoſers of all ſuch Affairs. The Archbiſhop of York ſpake no more than I have told you, and came but once or twice in all. Biſhop Morley was oft there, but not conſtantly, and with free and fluent Words, with much Earneſtneſs, was the chief Speaker of all the Biſhops, and the greateſt Interrupter of us; vehemently going on with what he thought ſerviceable to his End, and bearing down Anſwers by the ſaid Fervour and Interruptions. Biſhop Coſins was there conſtantly, and had a great deal of Talk with ſo little Logick, natural or artificial, that I perceived no one much moved by any thing he ſaid. But two Virtues he ſhewed (though none took him for a Magician): One was, that he was excellently well verſed in Canons, Councils, and Fathers, which he remembred, when by citing of any Paſſages we tried him. The other was, that as he was of a ruſtick Wit and Carriage, ſo he would endure more Freedom of our Diſcourſe with him, and was more affable and familiar than the reſt. Biſhop Hinchman (ſince Biſhop of London) was of the moſt grave, comely, reverend Aſpect of any of them; and of a good Inſight in the Fathers and Councils, Coſins and he and Dr. Gunning being all that ſhewed any of that Skill among us conſiderable; in which they are all three of very laudable Underſtandings, and better than any other of either of the Parties that I met with. And Biſhop Hinchman ſpake calmly and ſlowly, and not very oft: But was as high in his Principles and Reſolutions as any of them.

Dr. Hinchman Biſhop of Sarum.

Dr. Sanderſon Biſhop of Lincoln.

Biſhop Sanderſon of Lincoln was ſome Time there, but never ſpake that I know of, but what I have told you before: But his great Learning and Worth are known by his Labours, and his aged Peeviſhneſs not unknown.

Dr. Gauden Biſhop of Exeter.

Biſhop Gauden was our moſt conſtant Helper; he and Biſhop Coſins ſeldom were abſent. And how bitter ſoever his Pen be, he was the only Moderator of all the Biſhops (except our Biſhop Reynolds): He ſhewed no Logick, nor meddled in any Diſpute, or Point of Learning; but a calm, fluent, rhetorical Tongue: And if all had been of his Mind we had been reconciled: But when by many Days Conference in the Beginning, we had got ſome moderating Conceſſions from him (and from Biſhop Coſins by his Means) the reſt came in the End and brake them all. Biſhop Lucie of St. David's, ſpake once or twice a few Words calmly, and ſo did Biſhop Nicholſon of Gloceſter, and Biſhop Griffiths of Aſaph (though no Commiſſioners;) and did no more.

The Biſhops who appeared, though not Commiſſioners.

Biſhop King of Chicheſter I never ſaw there: Biſhop Warner of Rocheſter was there once or twice; but medled not that I heard. Biſhop Laney of Peterborough was twice or thrice there, and talked as is before recited; for I remember no more.

Biſhop Walton of Cheſter was there once or twice, and ſpake but what is before recited, that I know of.

Biſhop Sterne of Carliſle deceiv'd Mr. Baxter by his Face.

Biſhop Sterne of Carliſle, ſince Archbiſhop of York, was of a moſt ſober, honeſt, mortified Aſpect, but ſpake nothing that I know of, but that weak uncharitable Word before-mentioned: So that I was never more deceived by a Man's Face.

Biſhop Reynolds of Norwich.

Biſhop Reynolds ſpake much the firſt Day for bringing them to Abatements and Moderation: And afterwards he ſate with them, and ſpake now and then a Word for Moderation. He was a ſolid honeſt Man, but through Mildneſs and Exceſs of timerous Reverence to great Men, altogether unfit to contend with them.

Mr. Thorndike.

Mr. Thorndike ſpake once a few impertinent paſſionate Words, confuting the Opinion which we had received of him from his firſt Writings, and confirming that which his ſecond and laſt Writings had given us of him.

Dr. Earle, Dr. Heylyn, Dr. Barwick, Dr. Hacket, Dr. Sparrow.

Dr. Earle, Dr. Heylin, and Dr. Barwick never came. Dr. Hacket (ſince Biſhop of Coventry and Litchfield) ſaid nothing to make us know any Thing of him. Dr. Sparrow ſaid but little, but that little was with a Spirit enough for the impoſing dividing Cauſe.

Dr. Pearſon, Dr. Gunning.

The firſt allow'd to be a true Logician and Diſputant, the ſecond accuſed of paſſionate Invectives.

A forward Speaker, a good Diſputant, of great Study, Induſtry and Reading.

Of a very temperate Life, but vehement in high Principles, eager, fervent, of Prejudice and Paſſion.

Dr. Pearſon and Dr. Gunning did all their Work (beſide Biſhop Morley's Diſcourſes) but with great Difference in the Manner. Dr. Pearſon was their true Logician and Diſputant, without whom, as far as I could diſcern, we ſhould have had nothing from them, but Dr. Gunning's paſſionate Invectives mix'd with ſome Argumentations: He diſputed accurately, ſoberly and calmly (being but once in any Paſſion) breeding in us a great Reſpect for him, and a Perſwaſion that if he had been independent, he would have been for Peace, and that if all were in his Power, it would have gone well: He was the Strength and Honour of that Cauſe which we doubted whether he heartily maintain'd. Dr. Gunning was their forwardeſt and greateſt Speaker, underſtanding well what belonged to a Diſputant, a Man of greater Study and Induſtry than any of them, well read in Fathers and Councils, and of a ready Tongue; (and I hear and believe of a very temperate Life, as to all carnal Exceſſes whatſoever) but ſo vehement for his high impoſing Principles, and ſo over-zealous for Arminianiſm and Formality and Church Pomp, and ſo very eager and fervent in his Diſcourſe, that I conceive his Prejudice and Paſſion much perverted his Judgment, and I am ſure they made him lamentably over-run himſelf in his Diſcourſes.

Dr. Pierce.

Of Dr. Pierce I will ſay no more, becauſe he hath ſaid ſo much of me.

Dr. Bates a ſolid Speaker.

Mr. Baxter's Reaſons why he ſpake ſo much, as to have it objected, that he ſpoke too boldly and too long.

On our Part, Dr. Bates ſpake very ſolidly, judiciouſly and pertinently when he ſpake: And for myſelf, the Reaſon why I ſpake ſo much, was becauſe it was the Deſire of my Brethren, and I was loath to expoſe them to the Hatred of the Biſhops, but was willinger to take it all upon my ſelf, they themſelves having ſo much Wit as to be therein more ſparing and cautelous than I; and I thought that the Day and Cauſe commanded me thoſe two Things, which then were objected againſt me as my Crimes, viz. ſpeaking too boldly, and too long. And I thought it a Cauſe that I could comfortably ſuffer for; and ſhould as willingly be a Martyr for Charity as for Faith.

TUESDAY July 30.
The Lords recommend the Chaplain of their Houſe, Dr. Hodges, to his Majeſty for ſome good Eccleſiaſtical Preferment to be immediately conferr'd upon him.

Die Martis 30. Julii 1661.

Whereas this Houſe is very ſenſible of the conſtant and diligent Attendance that Dr. Hodges hath made both in this and the laſt Parliament upon the Houſe of Peers, and ſaying Prayers daily before their Lordſhips: It is ordered by the Lords in Parliament aſſembled, that the Lord Treaſurer of England, the Lord Chamberlain, the Earl of Angleſey, and the Lord Holles are by Virtue of this Order eſpecially to recommend in the Name of this Houſe the ſaid Dr. Hodges to his Majeſty for ſome good Eccleſiaſtical Preferment. And further, that his Majeſty be moved by their Lordſhips, that the Archbiſhop of Canterbury and Biſhop of London may be appointed by his Majeſty to find out ſome ſuch Preferment as may anſwer the Deſire of this Houſe, on the behalf of the ſaid Doctor, which their Lordſhips pray may be conferred on him immediately.

Order for a Bill to enable Perſons to give or create any Tythes to any Parſonage or Vicarage where the Lands lye.

Ordered, that Mr. Attorney General do prepare a Bill againſt the next Meeting, whereby any Perſon may be enabled to give any Tythes or create Tythes where none in kind is payable, to be in Succeſſion to any Parſonage or Vicarage within the Precinct where the Lands lye, out of which the Tythes iſſue, by Deed enrolled in any of the Courts of Weſtminſter.

The Speech of the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons to his Majeſty on the Throne, before the paſſing of the Bills.

The Speaker Sir Edward Turner's Speech to the King on the Throne.

Eachard's Ch. II.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

Your loyal Houſe of Commons have with unwearied Labour conſulted for the Service of your Majeſty, and the Good of this Nation. And now the Fields grow white to Harveſt: In the great Field of Nature all Fruits do not grow ripe together, but ſome in one Month, ſome in another: So it is in the Courſe of our Proceedings; ſome of our Fruits are in the Bloſſom, while others are in the Bud; ſome are near ripe, and others fit to be preſented to your Majeſty. Amongſt the Number of our choiceſt ripe Fruits, we firſt preſent you with a Bill for the Safety and Preſervation of your Majeſty's Royal Perſon and Government, wherein we deſire it may be enacted, "That if any Perſon ſhall compaſs, imagine, or deſign your Majeſty's Death, Deſtruction, or bodily Harm, to impriſon or reſtrain your Royal Perſon, or depoſe you, or ſhall levy War againſt your Majeſty, within or without your Realm, or ſtir up any foreign Power to invade you, and ſhall declare or expreſs ſuch his wicked Intention by Printing, Writing, Preaching, or malicious and adviſed Speaking, being thereof legally convicted ſhall be adjudg'd a Traytor." And becauſe much of our late Miſery took its riſe from ſeditious Pamphlets and Speeches from the Pulpit, it is provided, "That if any Man ſhall maliciouſly and adviſedly publiſh or affirm your Majeſty to be an Heretick or a Papiſt, or that you endeavour to introduce Popery, or ſhall ſtir up the People to Hatred or Diſlike of your Royal Perſon or Government, then every ſuch Perſon ſhall be made incapable of any Office or Employment, either in Church or State. And if any Man ſhall maliciouſly and adviſedly affirm, that the Parliament begun at Weſtminſter the third of November 1640. is yet in being, or that any Covenant or Engagement ſince that Time impos'd upon the People, doth oblige them to endeavour a Change of the Government either in Church or State; or that either or both Houſes of Parliament have a Legiſlative Power without your Majeſty, then every ſuch Offender being thereof legally convicted, ſhall incur the Penalties of a Premunire mention'd in the Statute made 16th of Rich. II.

Safety of the King's Perſon and Government.

Treaſon for the Life only of Charles II.

Premunire to call the King an Heretick or Papiſt.

In the next Place, Sir, give me leave, I beſeech you, without any Violence to the Act of Oblivion to remember a ſad Effect of the Diſtempers in the laſt Age: When the Fever began to ſeize upon the People they were impatient till they loſt ſome Blood. *The Lords Spiritual, who in all Ages had enjoy'd a Place in Parliament, were by an Act of Parliament excluded. Your Majeſty's Royal Grandfather was wont to ſay, no Biſhop, no King: We found his Words true, for after they were put out, the Feaver ſtill increaſing, in another Fit the Temporal Lords followed, and the King himſelf: Nor did the Humour reſt there, but in the Round the Houſe of Commons was firſt garbled, and then turn'd out of Doors. It is no wonder, when a Sword is put into a mad Man's Hand, to ſee him cut off Limb by Limb, and then to kill himſelf. Your Majeſty is now happily reſtored to the Government, the Temporal Lords and Commons are reſtored to their Seats in Parliament: And ſhall the Church alone ſuffer? Sit Eccleſia Anglicana libera & habeat Libertates ſuas illæſas. In order to this great Work, the Commons have prepared a Bill to repeal the Law made in 17 Car. whereby the Biſhops were excluded this Houſe. Theſe noble Lords have all agreed, and now we beg your Majeſty will give it Life, ſpeak but the Word, great Sir, and your Servants yet ſhall live.

The Lords Spiritual reſtored to Parliament.

We cannot forget the Method, how our late Miſeries, like Waves of the Sea, came in upon us: Firſt the People were invited to Petition to give colour to ſome illegal Demands, then they muſt Remonſtrate, then they muſt Proteſt, then they muſt Covenant, then they muſt Aſſociate, then they muſt engage againſt our lawful Government, and for the Maintenance of the moſt horrid Tyranny that ever was invented. For the Prevention of this Practice for the future, we do humbly tender to your Majeſty a Bill entituled, An Act againſt Tumults and Diſorders, upon Pretence of preparing or preſenting publick Petitions or Addreſſes to your Majeſty or the Parliament.

Againſt Tumults and Diſorders in Petitions or Addreſſes.

The ſole Right of the Militia in the King.

For diſpoſing the Land Forces.

And ordering the Navy.

Againſt the Regicides.

For the Duty of Exciſe.

In the next Place we hold it our Duty to undeceive the People, who have been poyſon'd with an Opinion, that the Militia of this Nation was in themſelves, or in their Repreſentatives in Parliament; and according to the ancient known Laws we have declared the ſole Right of the Militia to be in your Majeſty. And foraſmuch as our Time hath not permitted us to finiſh a Bill intended for the future ordering of the ſame, we ſhall preſent you with a temporary Bill for the preſent managing and diſpoſing of the Land Forces. And likewiſe another Bill for the eſtabliſhing certain Orders for the Regulation and Government of your Majeſty's Navies and Forces by Sea. According to your Majeſty's Commands, we have examin'd many of the publick and private Bills which paſs'd laſt Parliament, and have prepared ſome Bills of Confirmation. We have alſo aſcertained the Pains and Penalties to be impoſed upon the Perſon or Eſtates of thoſe Miſcreants, who had a Hand in the Murder of your Royal Father of bleſſed Memory, and were excepted in your Majeſty's Act of Oblivion: Wherein we have declared to all the World, how juſt an Indignation we had againſt that horrid Regicide. We have likewiſe prepared a Bill for the Collection of great Arrears of the Duty of Exciſe, which I do here, in the Name of the Commons of England, preſent unto your Majeſty.

And for providing Carriages in his Majeſty's intended Progreſs.

A Receſs very ſeaſonable.

Your Majeſty was pleaſed, at the opening of the Parliament, to tell us you intended this Summer to take a Progreſs, and ſee your People, and at your Return hoped to bring a Queen home with you. Sir, this welcome News hath made us caſt about all Ways for your Accommodation; and therefore that no Conveniences might be wanting for yourſelf, your Queen, or Attendants, we have prepared a Bill intituled, An Act for providing neceſſary Carriages in all your Royal Progreſſes and Removals. Your Majeſty was likewiſe pleaſed, at our firſt Meeting, to ſay you would not tire us with hard Duty, and therefore about this Time intended a Receſs. That Royal Favour will now be ſeaſonable, and we hope advantageous to your Majeſty and ourſelves. We know in our Abſence your princely Heart and Head will not be free from Cares and Thoughts of our Protection: And when we leave our Hive, like the induſtrious Bee, we ſhall but fly about the ſeveral Countries of the Nation to gather Honey; and when your Majeſty ſhall be pleas'd to name the Time, return with loaded Thighs unto our Houſe again.

Act for Safety of his Majeſty's Perſon.

Cap. I. An Act for Safety and Preſervation of his Majeſty's Perſon and Government, againſt treaſonable and ſeditious Practices and Attempts.

Preamble.

This Act making it a Premunire to call the King a Papiſt, had afterward an Interpretation put upon it, that the King really was ſo. But ſurely the two Houſes did not think ſo.

If any Perſon after the 24th of June 1661. ſhall maliciouſly and adviſedly publiſh or affirm the King to be an Heretick or Papiſt, or that he endeavours to introduce Popery, ſhall be diſabled and made incapable of having, holding, enjoying or exerciſing any Place, Office, or Promotion, Eccleſiaſtical, Civil, or Military ——

And it is hereby declared, that the Oath uſually called the ſolemn League and Covenant, was in itſelf an unlawful Oath, and impoſed upon the Subjects of this Realm, againſt the fundamental Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom.

The Lords and Commons aſſembled in Parliament, deeply weighing and conſidering the Miſeries and Calamities of well nigh twenty Years before your Majeſty's happy Return, and withal reflecting upon the Cauſes and Occaſions of ſo great and deplorable Confuſions, do in all Humility and Thankfulneſs acknowledge your Majeſty's incomparable Grace and Goodneſs to your People, in your free and general Pardon, Indemnity and Oblivion, by which your Majeſty hath been pleaſed to deliver your Subjects, not only from the Puniſhment, but from the Reproach of their former Miſcarriages; which unexampled Piety and Clemency of your Majeſty, hath enflamed the Hearts of us your Subjects with an ardent Deſire to expreſs all poſſible Zeal and Duty in the Care and Preſervation of your Majeſty's Perſon (in whoſe Honour and Happineſs conſiſts the Good and Welfare of your People) and in preventing as much as may be all treaſonable and ſeditious Practices and Attempts for the Time to come. And becauſe the Growth and Increaſe of the late Troubles and Diſorders, did in a very great Meaſure proceed from a Multitude of ſeditious Sermons, Pamphlets and Speeches, daily preached, printed and publiſhed, with a tranſcendent Boldneſs, defaming the Perſon and Government of your Majeſty and your Royal Father, wherein Men were too much encouraged, and above all from a wilful Miſtake of the ſupream and lawful Authority, whilſt Men were forward to cry up and maintain thoſe Orders and Ordinances, Oaths and Covenants, to be Acts legal and warrantable, which in themſelves had not the leaſt Colour of Law or Juſtice to ſupport them. From which kind of Diſtempers, as the preſent Age is not wholly freed, ſo Poſterity may be apt to relapſe into them, if a timely Remedy be not provided. We therefore the Lords and Commons, &c.

By virtue of this repealing Act, the old Conſtitution return'd, and the Biſhops ſate in the Houſe of Peers.

Cap. II. An Act for Repeal of an Act of Parliament, entituled, An Act for diſenabling all Perſons in Holy Orders to exerciſe any temporal Juriſdiction or Authority.

Repealed, annulled, and made void to all Intents and Purpoſes whatſoever.

Whereas at the Parliament begun at Weſtminſter the third Day of November, in the ſixteenth Year of the Reign of our late Sovereign Lord King Charles, of bleſſed Memory, ſince deceaſed, an Act of Parliament was made, entituled, An Act for diſenabling, &c. which Act hath made ſeveral Alterations prejudicial to the Conſtitution and ancient Rights of Parliament, and contrary to the Laws of this Land, and is by Experience found otherwiſe inconvenient.

Two other Bills, one for reſtoring, the other for preſenting Money to his Majeſty.

Cap. III. An Act for the declaring veſting and ſettling of all ſuch Monies, Goods and other Things in his Majeſty, which were received, levied, or collected in theſe late Times, and are remaining in the Hands or Poſſeſſion of any Treaſurers, Receivers, Collectors or others, not pardoned by the Act of Oblivion.

Cap. IV. An Act for a free and voluntary Preſent to his Majeſty.

Act againſt tumultuous Petitions.

Cap. V. An Act againſt Tumults and Diſorders upon Pretence of preparing or preſenting publick Petitions or other Addreſſes to his Majeſty or the Parliament.

Preamble.

Whereas it hath been found by ſad Experience, that tumultuous and other diſorderly ſoliciting, and procuring of Hands by private Perſons, to Petitions, Complaints, Remonſtrances and Declarations, and other Addreſſes to the King, or to both or either Houſes of Parliament, for Alteration of Matters eſtabliſhed by Law, Redreſs of pretended Grievances in Church or State, or other publick Concernments, have been made uſe of to ſerve the Ends of factious and ſeditious Perſons gotten into Power, to the Violation of the publick Peace, and have been a great Means of the late unhappy Wars, Confuſions and Calamities in this Nation. For preventing the like Miſchiefs for the future, be it enacted, &c.

Cap. XI. An Act for confirming of three Acts therein mentioned —— An Act for the raiſing of ſeventy thouſand Pounds for the further Supply of his Majeſty: And one other Act, entituled, An Act for the Confirmation of Marriages: And one other Act, entituled, An Act for a perpetual Anniverſary Thankſgiving on the twenty ninth Day of May.

Act for reſtoring Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction.

Without the uſual Oath ex Officio.

Cap. XII. An Act for Explanation of a Clauſe contained in an Act of Parliament, made in the ſeventeenth Year of the late King Charles, entituled, An Act for Repeal of a Branch of a Statute Primo Elizabethæ concerning Commiſſioners for Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical. —— That neither the ſaid Act, nor any Thing therein contained, doth or ſhall take away any ordinary Power or Authority from any of the ſaid Archbiſhops, Biſhops, or any other Perſon or Perſons named as aforeſaid; but that they and every of them exerciſing Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, may proceed, determine, ſentence, execute and exerciſe all Manner of Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, as they might lawfully have done, before the making of the ſaid Act, &c. —— Provided, it ſhall not be lawful for any Archbiſhop, Biſhop —— to tender or adminiſter unto any Perſon whatſoever, the Oath uſually called the Oath ex Officio, or any other Oath whereby ſuch Perſon may be charged or compelled to confeſs or accuſe, or to purge him or herſelf, of any criminal Matter or Thing, whereby he or ſhe may be liable to Cenſure or Puniſhment.

Among the private Bills.

For uniting Churches in Droitwich.

An Act for the Uniting of the Parſonages of St. Andrew and St. Mary Witton in Droitwich, in the County of Worceſter.

The King's Speech to the two Houſes.

His Majeſty's Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Thanks and repeated Thanks.

Eſpecially for their repealing the Act which excluded the Biſhops from Parliament.

I perceive by the thin Appearance of the Members of both Houſes this Day, that it is high Time to adjourn: In Truth the Seaſon of the Year, as well as your particular Affairs require it, and therefore I do willingly conſent to it. I thank you for the many Bills you have preſented me with this Day, of which I hope the Benefit will redound to the whole Kingdom. I thank you for the Care you have taken for the Safety of my Perſon, which (truſt me) is the more valuable to me, for the Conſequence I think it is of to you: And upon my Conſcience, there is no Body wiſhes ill to me, but they would quickly revenge themſelves of you, if they could. I thank you for the Care you have taken of yourſelves, of your own Safety and Honour in the Act againſt Tumults and Diſorders, upon Pretence of Petitions; to which Licence we owe much of the Calamities we have undergone. But I thank you with all my Heart, indeed as much as I can do for any Thing, for the Repeal of that Act which excluded the Biſhops from Parliament; it was an unhappy Act in an unhappy Time, paſſed with many unhappy Circumſtances, and attended with miſerable Events, and therefore I do again thank you for repealing it. You have thereby reſtored Parliaments to their primitive Inſtitutions; and I hope, my Lords and Gentlemen, you will in a ſhort Time reſtore them to the primitive Order and Gravity of Debates and Determinations, which the Licence of the late diſtemper'd Times had ſo much corrupted, which is the only Way to reſtore Parliaments to their primitive Veneration with the People, which I heartily wiſh they ſhould always have.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Recommending to Lords and Gentlemen, the good Government and Peace of their Countries.

To finiſh Bills depending, the two Houſes may adjourn themſelves.

You are now going to your ſeveral Countries, where you cannot but be welcome for the Services you have perform'd here: I do very earneſtly recommend the good Government and Peace of your Countries to your Care, and your Counſel and your Vigilance. There are diſtemper'd Spirits enough, which lye in wait to do Miſchief; by laying Reproaches upon the Court, upon the Government, Reproaches upon me, and Reproaches upon you: Your Wiſdoms and Reputations and Authority will, I doubt not, weigh down their light Credit; and the old and new good Laws will, I hope, prevent any Miſchief they intend. However you have done very well, and I do heartily thank you for it, in declaring my ſole Right over the Militia, the queſtioning of which was the Fountain from which all our bitter Waters flow'd. I pray make haſte to put the whole Kingdom into ſuch a Poſture, that evil Men who will not be converted may yet chuſe to be quiet, becauſe they find they ſhall not be able to do the Harm they deſire to do. I know you have begun many Bills in both Houſes which cannot be finiſh'd till your Meeting again; and that they may be finiſh'd then, I forbear to make a Seſſions now, but am contented that you adjourn till the twentieth of November, when I hope by God's Bleſſing, we ſhall come happily together again.

In a Word, my Lords and Gentlemen, I thank you for what you have done, and am confident that what you have left undone, you will diſpatch with all Alacrity and to all our Satisfactions, at our next Meeting: And ſo you may adjourn till the twentieth of November.

The two Houſes adjourn'd.
The Convocation prorogued by a Schedule of the Preſident.

Accordingly the two Houſes adjourn'd to the twentieth Day of November next enſuing.

And the Convocation was prorogued till the twenty firſt of November, by a Schedule of the Preſident the Lord Biſhop of London.

Remarks of Sir Edward Lake on the late Act for taking away the Oath ex Officio, &c.

Sir Edward Lake on the Oath ex Officio, &c. 1662. 4^to.

The Places and Offices of the Civilians were but precarious and of little Uſe or Value as before, till the Doubt concerning Coercive Power was by Parliament taken away; which was not till the latter End of Summer 1661. and then with the Proviſo againſt the Oath ex Officio, and Purgation, which not a little diminiſhes theſe Offices. —— Wherefore I would have this Act reviſed and re-examined for Amendment of it. —— Should any object that ſome Civilians deſired that that this Act, whereby the Oath ex Officio and Purgation is forbidden, ſhould paſs at the End of the Receſs of Parliament, the latter End of the Summer 1661. and not ſtay, as ſome would have had it, till the next Meeting, but rather paſs now though with theſe Proviſoes.

Other Objections to the ſaid Act.

Biſhops Courts diſſolved, Fol. 1681. p. 33.

Others objected to the ſaid Act, that the Clauſe to be repealed was not in an Act of the ſeventeenth, as here expreſsly declared, but really in the ſixteenth of Car. I. and from that Miſtake they would infer a Nullity in this Act of Explanation.

The Journal of the Earl of Sandwich, in his Voyage to fetch over the Infanta of Portugal.

MS. Fol.

Some material Paſſages in the Journal of the Earl of Sandwich, ſent with a Fleet to fetch home the Infanta of Portugal, but firſt to ſail into the Streights, to Algiers, Tangier, &c.

Thurſday June 27. 1661. at Sun-ſet Capt. Bennet went off from the Fleet to Liſbon to the King of Portugal in the Martyn Fregate, with the King of England's Letter.

Friday July 5. 1661. In the Malaga Road where we came to an Anchor yeſterday about Noon, the Governor of Malaga, the Conde de Torreno, came and dined aboard me, and the Duke of Tyrſis was then in the Mole with four Genoa Gallies.

Saturday July 6. 1661. I ſent the Governor the King's Letter to the King of Spain, and one from myſelf to the King of Spain.

Sunday, about ſix a Clock in the Morning we ſet ſail bound for Algiers.

Friday July 12. In the Morning I went aſhoar at Alicant to recover my Health, being in a high Fever.

Friday July 19. 1661. In the Evening I came aboard again my Ship, my Health much bettered.

Monday July 29. about nine a Clock we came to an Anchor in Algier Road, about a Mile from the Mole-head, in 29 Fathom: Fiſher's Gate juſt open off the Mould-head. This Day alſo I ſent Captain Spragge with the King's Letter to the Governor, and another from myſelf, and to bring me off the Conſul, the which was performed; and together with the Conſul at a full Council of War, we framed our Propoſals, and I ſent them aſhoar by ſix a Clock the next Morning by Captain Spragge and the Conſul Mr. Browne.

Tueſday July 30. Captain Spragge and the Conſul came on board me again about 11 a Clock, and brought me Word, that they would have no Peace without Liberty to ſearch our Ships. This Morning they of the Town had wrought very hard, and brought over a Boom from the Mole-head towards the Fiſher's Gate. I called a Council of War inſtantly, and it was reſolved to attempt the deſtroying the Ships with the next Opportunity of a fitting Wind, and accordingly every Man prepared and fitted his Ship, but the Night was ſtark calm.

The Attempt upon Algier.

Not practicable.

Wedneſday July 31. In the Morning the Wind was eaſtwardly, and a great Fogg. About twelve we had a Breeze at North-Eaſt, with a rowling Eaſtern Sea, the Commanders all met together on board me, reſolved it was not fitting to make an Attempt then, it being little Wind, and ſuch as the Fire Ships could not get in with, if the Boome had been opened, nor could the Leewardly Squadron birth themſelves, the Order of birthing the Ships being agreed on as followeth, &c. nor could thoſe Ships that ſhould birth themſelves get off again, if they could perform the Work; and the Rowling of the Sea would be a Hinderance to thoſe Ships who ſhould ride with their Broadſides to it, to all the Vice-Admiral's Squadron.

The Forts and Caſtles play upon the Engliſh;
Who return their Broadſides.
To little purpoſe.

Immediately after Dinner this Day, the Forts and Caſtles of the Town began to play upon us, whereupon we reſolved upon a ſudden to veer within a Cable or two nearer them, and fire our Broadſides, which we did for two or three Hours, and then finding the Waſte of our Powder and Shot to little purpoſe, we thought beſt to warpe off out of Shot, and wait for the Opportunity of a Wind fitting to carry us in to our Attempt, the which we did; their Shot did ſome hurt to the Maſt and Rigging of many Shipps, and killed ſome Men: And ſo we were told by a Slave that ſwam off to us the next Day, and that our Shot killed them many Men at the Mole-head, and much to other Places in the Town, and ſome went clear over the Town.

Thurſday Auguſt 1. Wind at E. N. E. blew very hard, no Opportunity. I ſent a Ketch to Alicant with Advice for the Martyn Frigate, and to give the Merchants Notice, that the War was begun between us and Algiers.

Advertiſement to the Reader. ——— Though we have ſeen the Covenant reduced to Aſhes, yet even thoſe Aſhes may be fruitful of Iſſue. The Covenant paſſes ſtill with ſome for a Martyr; in whoſe Eſteem, neither the Infamy of a publick Burning by the common Hangman's Hand can leſſen its Reputation; nor yet the publick Cenſure of an entire Parliament (whereas it was ſcarce half a one that gave it Life) diminiſh its Authority. Men that for ſeveral Years have been catechiſed by it in Rebellion, we find ſtill obſtinately wedded to their former dangerous Opinions, which doubtleſs (where they remain) will not be idle, but upon all Occaſions readily put forth themſelves into Act, to plunge us into our former Miſeries. Now to extirpate Rebellion Root and Branch, and to free us from the ſad Conſequences of thoſe pernicious Doctrines which the Covenant teaches; let this learned and judicious Refutation ſerve, which gives us its perfect Anatomy in all the Parts thereof, &c.

The King's Letters to the University of Cambridge, at the Requeſt of Magdalen, Emanuel, and Sydney Colleges, to be admitted to equal Privileges in nominating Proctors, Taxers, and Scrutators.

Reg. Cantabr.

The King's Order to the Univerſity of Cambridge.

CHARLES R.

Whereas the Maſters, Fellows, and Scholars of St. Mary Magdalen College, Emanuel College, and Sidney Suſſex College in our Univerſity of Cambridge, have made it their humble Suit to us, that of our Princely Grace and our Royal Authority their ſeveral Colleges might be admitted to have equal Privileges with the reſt of the Colleges in that our Univerſity, for the nominating and preſenting Proctors, Taxers, and Scrutators ſucceſſively, unto which at the making of the Statute of the nominating of the ſaid Officers they could not be admitted; two of the ſaid Colleges not being then founded, and the other at that Time in a very low Condition, from which it hath been ſince recovered. In Conſideration of which, and out of our Readineſs to contribute our Endeavours, as well for the Encouragement of Learning, as the greater Tranquillity of our ſaid Univerſity; we have thought fit to gratify this their Requeſt, and do therefore hereby ſignify our Royal Will and Pleaſure, that the ſaid three Colleges of Mary Magdalen, Emanuel, and Sidney have from henceforth equal Privileges with the reſt of the Colleges in that our Univerſity of nominating and preſenting Proctors, Taxers, and Scrutators ſucceſſively, according to ſuch Proportion and Order, as ſhall be judged by the Vice-Chancellour and major Part of the Heads of the Univerſity, who ſhall alſo apportion the Burthens and Duties which they with the reſt of the Colleges ſhall bear and perform. And that in the interim for the better preſerving the Peace of the Univerſity, the late Circle by which theſe three with the other Colleges have had their Courſes ſhall remain and be obſerved; any thing contained in the Statutes of our ſaid Univerſity to the contrary notwithſtanding. Whereof, &c. Given at our Court at Whitehall the third Day of Auguſt in the thirteenth Year of our Reign.

A loyal Formulary engaging Faith and Obedience to the King.

F. Walſh Letter to the Catholick, 8vo. 1674. p. 2.

Account of the Iriſh Remonſtrance.

The loyal Formulary of remonſtrating, promiſing, and proteſting indiſpenſable Faith and Obedience to our gracious King Charles II. in all civil and temporal Things whatſoever, according to the Laws of the Land, or of his Kingdoms reſpectively. Which Formulary was firſt conceived and agreed upon in the Reign of his Majeſty's Father of glorious Memory, about five and thirty Years ſince, by the Roman Catholicks of England, or at leaſt ſome leading Perſons of them; but more lately (viz. after his preſent Majeſty's happy Reſtauration) and more effectually too was eſpouſed by conſiderable Numbers of thoſe of Ireland, for many evident Reaſons. The chief Reaſon was, the rather by that Means to induce his Sacred Majeſty to command the Ceaſing of a rigorous Proſecution, which was then * actually on Foot in that Kingdom under the Triumvirate of Sir Maurice Euſtace Lord Chancellour, and the Earls of Orrery and Montrath againſt all Roman Catholicks univerſally, without Diſtinction or Exception of any.

* 1661.

Many Subſcriptions made to it.

After much both private and publick Debate about this Formulary in the Years 1661. and 1662. it not only was ſubſcribed at ſeveral Times and Places by the proper Hands of threeſcore and ten of their Clergy (whereof a Biſhop was one) and an hundred and ſixty four of their chiefeſt Lay Nobility, Gentry and Proprietors (whereof one and twenty were Peers, viz. ſeven Earls, nine Viſcounts, and five Barons) but (immediately after the firſt Subſcription at London, Anno 1661.) was ſolemnly preſented to, and graciouſly accepted by his Majeſty. And I ſuppoſe they that had any Diſlike of it in thoſe Days were well enough pleaſed with their Shares of the Succeſs; which was his Majeſty's effectual countermanding the Winds and Tempeſt of Perſecution throughout Ireland, and his gracious Smiling on the diſtreſſed Catholicks, both People and Clergy of that Iſland.

This publick Profeſſion of Loyalty was ſoon traduced and impugned by the Roman Eccleſiaſticks,

This honeſt Formulary (now commonly called the Iriſh Remonſtrance) ſo neceſſarily and piouſly eſpouſed thus by ſo many good Patriot Subſcribers, as a conſcientious, chriſtian, full, and ſatisfactory Profeſſion of the Duty which by all Laws, divine and human, they (as well as all other Subjects) owe his Majeſty againſt all Pretences of the Pope to the contrary, was even for that very Cauſe (i. e. for being ſo chriſtianly honeſt and ſincerely loyal) ſoon after traduced and impugned by ſundry Eccleſiaſticks of the Roman Communion, and chiefly by many of thoſe Iriſh who had received moſt Benefit by it.

Who got it to be condemned as unlawful, deteſtable, &c.

Theſe good Men were not content by their Reproaches and Calumnies to make it odious at home, but alſo dealt ſo by their diſloyal Acts and powerful

By Letters of Internuncio's and Cardinals.

Friends in other Countries, that they got it to be cenſured and condemned in formal Terms, as unlawful, deteſtable, ſacrilegious; yea, in Effect as ſchiſmatical and heretical by the publick Cenſures of the Louvain Theological Faculty, and publick Letters alſo both of the Bruſsel Internuncio's De Vecchii, and Roſpiglioſi, and of the Roman Cardinals De propaganda Fide, under the Preſidency of Cardinal Francis Barbarin himſelf, though amongſt other his many Titles at Rome, ſtyled Protector of England.

And did violently oppoſe it for twelve Years together:

With great Perſecution of the Adherers to it.

Having thus gotten the Face of Authority on their Side, they have not ceaſed ever ſince, for twelve Years to the preſent 1673. but eſpecially theſe five or ſix laſt Years, have in a moſt furious manner proceeded even with all the vileſt Arts of malicious Cabals, Conſpiracies, Plots, Libels, and an impoſter Commiſſary, and a forged Commiſſion, and all the moſt lying Slanders imaginable, to proſecute and defame the few remaining conſtant Eccleſiaſtical Subſcribers. They have kept them in continual Chace with all the greateſt, and all the moſt illegal, moſt uncanonical Extent of an abuſed Power, with Monitories, Citations, Depoſitions, Excommunications, Denunciations, and even publick Affiction of poſting of them.

Reading and Feaſting by Sir Heneage Finch.

Athen.Oxon. *Vol.*II.*col.*822.

Sir Heneage Finch, Bart. of Raunſton in Buckinghamſhire, Solicitor-General to his Majeſty, was now Autumn or Summer Reader of the Inner Temple, and choſe to read upon the Statute of 39. Eliz. concerning the Payment and Recovery of the Debts of the Crown; which Statute (tho' ever ſeaſonable and then moſt neceſſary) was never before read upon by any but himſelf. The Reading and Entertainment laſted from the fourth to the ſeventeenth of Auguſt. The former was with great Strength of Reaſon, Depth of Law, and admirable Senſe; and the other with as great Variety as could be imagined carried on. The firſt Day's Entertainment was of divers Peers of the Realm and Privy-Counſellors, with many others of his noble Friends. The ſecond of the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, and chief Citizens of London. The third (which was two Days after the former) of the whole College of Phyſicians, who all came in their Caps and Gowns. The fourth was of another long Robe, for all the Judges and Advocates (Doctors of the Civil Law) and all the Society of Doctors Commons. The fifth was of the Archbiſhops, Biſhops, and the chief of the Clergy: And the laſt, which was on the fifteenth of Auguſt, was of the King, Duke of York, Lord Chancellour, moſt of the Peers and great Officers of Court, the Lords Commiſſioners of Scotland and Ireland, &c. In April this Year he was choſen Parliament Man for this Univerſity, but did us no good when we wanted his Aſſiſtance for the taking off the Tribute belonging to Hearths.

After the Savoy Conference a Meeting of the Preſbyterian Brethren to draw up an Account, and a Petition to the King.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. P. II. p. 364.

When this Work [the Savoy Conference] was over, the reſt of our Brethren met again, and reſolved to draw up an Account of our Endeavours, and preſent it to his Majeſty, with our Petition for his promiſed Help yet for thoſe Alterations and Abatements which we could not procure of the Biſhops: And that firſt we ſhould acquaint the Lord Chancellour withal, and conſult with him about it; which we did, and as ſoon as we came to him, according to my Expectation, I found him moſt offended at me, and that I had taken off the Diſtaſte and Blame from all the reſt. At our firſt Entrance he merrily told us, that if I were but as fat as Dr. Manton we ſhould all do well. I told him, if his Lordſhip could teach me the Art of growing fat, he ſhould find me not unwilling to learn, by any good Means. He grew more ſerious, and ſaid, that I was ſevere and ſtrict, like a melancholy Man, and made thoſe Things Sin which others did not. And I perceived he had been poſſeſſed with Diſpleaſure towards me upon that Account, that I charged the Church and Liturgy with Sin, and had not ſuppoſed that the worſt was but Inexpediency. I told him, that I had ſpoken nothing but what I thought, and had given my Reaſons for. —— After other ſuch Diſcourſe, we craved his Favour to procure the King's Declaration yet to be paſſed into an Act, and his Advice what we had further to do. He conſented that we ſhould draw up an Addreſs to his Majeſty, rendering him an Account of all; but deſired that we would firſt ſhew it to him, which we promiſed.

They firſt wait on the Lord Chancellour,

Who being moſt offended with Mr. Baxter, made a jeſt upon him,

And then ſeriouſly reproved him for a melancholy and too ſcrupulous Man.

Mr. Baxter defends himſelf.

They begg'd the King's Declaration might be paſſed into a Law.

Account of the Savoy Conference from another Writer.

The Author of the Myſtery and Iniquity of Nonconformity, &c. 1664. writes thus of the Savoy Conference, p. 54.

C. But did not his Majeſty order a Conference between both Parties?

T. D. He did indeed between Dr. Reynolds, &c. but what was the Iſſue? the ſober Party came off, and would have acquieſced in his Majeſty's gracious Conceſſions upon thoſe Exceptions they made to the Liturgy and Ceremonies of the Church: But a more fiery Party (for all the Faction was then in Town) flew ſo high as to ſay, that an indifferent Thing if commanded was no more indifferent but unlawful.

C. But would they do nothing towards a Cloſure? ——

T. D. Yes! when the Conceſſions would not ſatisfy, they diſperſe a Thing called A Petition for Peace to incenſe the People, to which they annex an unauthorized Form of Worſhip, compoſed, printed, publiſhed, and diſperſed by private Perſons to affront publick Authority.

C. A Petition for Peace from them who fomented all our Wars, whoſe Diſcipline was ſettled with Conſpiracy and promoted by Rebellion. —— And they now muſter up all the old Objections againſt the Common Prayer, and add new ones: Particularly Mr. Zachary Crofton runs out into that Exceſs, that we find him in the Tower a Year together; and ſtill abroad upon Bail.

Marmaduke Lord Langdale departed this Life in his Houſe at Holme in the Eaſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, Auguſt 5. 1661. and was buried at Sancton near adjacent; leaving Marmaduke his Son and Heir, who married Elizabeth the Daughter of Thomas Savage of Beeſton in Com. Ceſtr. Eſq;

In Conſideration of his great Actions and Sufferings for the Royal Cauſe, he was, by Letters Patents bearing Date at Bruges in 4. Feb. 16 Car. II. advanced to the Degree and Dignity of Baron of this Realm by the Title of Lord Langdale of Holme in Spaldyngmoor, to deſcend to his Heirs Male.

Proceedings in the Parliament of Ireland relating to Church Affairs.

Church Affairs in Ireland,

Directed by the Primate.

Life of Archbiſhop Bramhall.

During this Seſſion of the Parliament in Ireland ſeveral Advantages were obtained for the Church, in which his Grace [the Primate, Dr. John Bramhall] was very induſtrious. Several of the Biſhops muſt acknowledge their Augmentations to his Interceſſion, as likewiſe the inferiour Clergy the forfeited impropriate Tythes; and the whole Church all the advantageous Clauſes in the Acts of Settlement and Explanation, though of many of them ſhe reaps but ſmall Benefit, as of the two Acres out of the hundred for Glebes in the firſt, which were after reduced to ten in every Pariſh in the laſt Act, but out of this ſo pious Proviſion, not ſo much as one Acre was ſettled on any one Church. But this is owing to ſome Male-Adminiſtration, when the Piety of the King and the Bounty of the Parliament intended better Things.

Two Bills projected by him.

There were two Bills for the paſſing whereof his Grace took very great Pains, but was defeated in both. And ſome were of Opinion, that truly it was better for the Church that neither ſhould paſs, than that both ſhould.

1. For a Tything Table of Ulſter to extend to the whole Kingdom.

The firſt was for making the Tything Table of Ulſter the Rule for the whole Kingdom, there being the ſame Reaſon now for its being received in the other Provinces that was at firſt for its Admiſſion into that. The Lands of theſe Countries being formerly employed in Tillage are now ſo much converted to Paſturage as the eaſieſt and moſt profitable kind of Huſbandry, that whole Baronies are overſpread with Cattle, out of which very little Profit ariſes to the Miniſter, out of the greater ſort nothing, inſomuch as he who miniſters to the People ſpiritual Things, reaps ſo little of their carnal, that I know a Prebend in the Dioceſe of Lymerick (formerly of good Value) that has been ſet for ſome Years of late by this Means for four Pence a Year. Yet in this his Grace could find no Relief.

2. To enable the Biſhops to make Leaſes for ſixty Years.

Oppoſed by ſome of the Biſhops themſelves.

The other Bill was for enabling the Biſhops to make Leaſes for ſixty Years, in which he had no better Succeſs, for moſt of both Houſes that wiſhed well to the Church, and had ſuffer'd in her Cauſe, oppoſed it. Some of the Biſhops appearing openly againſt it, notwithſtanding the great Reſpect they had for his Grace's Judgment, as the then Lord Biſhop of Cork, now Lord Archbiſhop of Dublin, and others. This was indeed a great Trouble to his Grace, and made him ſay, Surely I have lived long enough: I begin to doubt I have loſt my Reaſon, for my Integrity I will never loſe, I that have ſuffer'd ſo much for the Patrimony of the Church formerly, cannot betray it in my old Age. And indeed the Conſideration of his Integrity and of his Wiſdom, together with the Experience he vouched of ſome good Effects of a like Statute formerly mentioned in Reſpect of ſome Northern Biſhopricks, prevailed ſo far, that nothing was wanting at laſt but the Royal Aſſent, but before that paſſed, an Errour was diſcovered in the Bill which was very fatal to it: For before it could return amended out of England, the Earl of Orrery, by the Duke of Ormond's aſſuming, was at Liberty to ſpeak his Senſe in the Caſe. His Lordſhip had a great Regard for the Perſons of the preſent Biſhops, and for their Sufferings; but he had a greater for Succeſſion; in favour whereof, and for the Support of their Order, he conceived the Church was endowed, and not for the Sake of the Men of any one Age however meritorious. In ſhort, the Injuſtice of one Biſhop ſweeping away the half of the Eſtate of the Church for ſo long a Time as ſixty Years, leaving only the bare Statute Rent for his Succeſſors, the Opportunities of ſuch Leaſes would give the Tenants to alter and confound the Bounds of the Church Lands with ſuch of their own as are contiguous (of which there want not already ſome Precedents, and there will be more Inſtances of this kind for the want of Inquiſitions poſt Mortem) with many other not only Inconveniences, but Miſchiefs, which he preſaged to the Church, as the Conſequences of ſuch a Power, were ſo demonſtrated by that Force of Reaſon, of Wit, and Eloquence that always attends that noble Orator, that the Bill was thrown out of the Houſe of Lords, where it had received the firſt Encouragement, ſome of thoſe who were moſt concern'd for it, returning his Lordſhip Thanks for the Illumination he had given them in that Point.

Rejected upon the Arguments and Intereſt of the Earl of Orrery.

The Primate's View in the Bill was to encourage the Tenants to improve the Eſtates by the longer Term in them.

How the Primate came to be (as many of his own Order are adjudged) of the wrong Side of the Queſtion in this Matter I know not. But I know this, it was no Advantage he propoſed to himſelf that blinded his Eyes, remembring to have heard him ſay, that moſt of his Lands were ſet out by his Predeceſſor for a long Time yet unexpired, and that he would fill them up to ſixty Years, without requiring any Fine, that the Tenants might be encouraged to improve them.

His Majeſty's intended Progreſs to Worceſter and the Royal Oak.

Echard. Ch. 2. p. 64.

His Majeſty had once reſolv'd this Year upon a Summer Progreſs, and more eſpecially to Worceſter, and to the Royal-Oak, that he might the better manifeſt the Senſe of his Deliverance, and teſtify his Gratitude and Acknowledgments in thoſe Parts. In order to which, his Tent-Office was held at Clerkenwell-Green, to prepare all Things for his Equipage and Accommodation. But either Cares, Buſineſs or Pleaſures intervening, the Progreſs was deferr'd till another Summer, and not then made. However the principal Inſtruments of his wonderful Eſcape were not forgotten: The Parliament took Notice of ſome of them, and particularly allow'd a thouſand Pounds to Mrs. Jane Lane, and the Penderels thoſe faithful Brothers, waiting upon his Majeſty, were diſmiſs'd with a princely Reward.

Letter to Mr. Baxter from the Governor of New-England.

A Letter to the reverend and much honoured Mr. Richard Baxter, one of his Majeſty's Chaplains in ordinary from John Endecott, Eſq; Governor of New-England, by Order of the general Court, expreſſing their Thanks for his furthering their Concernments in their late Applications to his Majeſty; and deſiring his Intereſt for their Liberty to ſerve God according to the Scriptures, a Liberty they had for many Years enjoy'd, —— proteſting againſt the Generation of the Quakers, our bitter and reſtleſs Enemies, complaining of Perſecution, but are themſelves moſt troubleſome and implacable Perſecutors of us, who deſire but to keep our own Vineyard in Peace, &c. dated Boſton in New-England this 7th of Auguſt 1661.

The Quaker's Complaint of their Sufferings in New-England.

Journal of Geo. Fox, 8vo. Part I. p. 575.

We received Account from New-England, that the Government there had made a Law to baniſh the Quakers out of their Colonies upon pain of Death in caſe they returned; and that ſeveral of our Friends having been ſo baniſhed and returning, were thereupon taken and actually hanged; and that divers more were in Priſon, in danger of the like Sentence to be executed on them. When thoſe were put to Death, I was in Priſon at Lancaſter, and had a perfect Senſe of their Sufferings, as though it had been myſelf, and as though the Halter had been put about my own Neck, though we had not at that Time heard of it. But as ſoon as we heard of it, Edward Burrough went to the King, and told him, there was a Vein of innocent Blood opened in his Dominions, which if it were not ſtopp'd would overrun all. To which the King reply'd, but I will ſtop that Vein. Edward Burrough ſaid, then do it ſpeedily, for we know not how many may be put to Death. The King anſwered, as ſpeedily as you will, call (ſaid he to ſome preſent) the Secretary, and I will do it preſently. So the Secretary being called, a Mandamus was forthwith granted, &c.

Upon which they apply to the King to ſtop that Vein of Blood.

The Dutch Ambaſſadors deſire to return.

Publick Intelligence, 4to. No. 34.

The Holland Ambaſſadors in London have requeſted the States-General, that if his Majeſty of England ſhould go his Progreſs into the Countrey, that they would be pleaſed to ſend two Men of War to tranſport them homeward.

Many of the Separatiſts had return'd to the Communion of the Church of England, even before the Reſtoration.

Notice taken, that ſome of the great Leaders in Separation and ſtrange Doctrines had made an early Return to the Faith and Communion of the Church of England, even before the Reſtoration of the King. So the Author of the Freſh Suit againſt Independency, p. 41.

Printed in 1677, 8vo.

Let it be conſidered that divers ſober Perſons in England, Scholars and others, who in their Youth were taken in the Snares of Independency and Separation, have been reduced by Study and Experience, ſome half-way, ſome quite back to the Communion of the Church of England. —— I will inſtance in ſome few.

Mr. John Ellis of Waddeſdon.

One Mr. Ellis, a learned Man and an able Preacher, happened at Colcheſter in the War Time to fall into the ſame Errors in Judgment and Practice; his Experience reduced him long before the King and Biſhops returned. He hath written his Retractation, and therein lamentably bewaileth his Sin and Misfortune, that ever he had to do in that Way.

Francis Rayworth or Raworth Miniſter of Shoreditch.

Mr. Rayworth a good Man, and a Man of good Learning and Parts, happened alſo, upon the unhinging of the Government, to fall into the Errors of Independency and Separation; proceeded ſo far as to gather a Church, and walk'd in that Way a while, in Time became ſenſible of the Evil of it, and the Miſchiefs it did to the Publick, and returned to the Communion of the Church of England again, and died Miniſter of Shoreditch.

Mr. Philip Nye.

Mr. Nye one of the Apologiſts, after all his ſtruggling for Independency, came ſo far back before his Death, that he writ a Manuſcript to prove the Lawfulneſs of Magiſtrates appointing Miniſters for the People, and the Lawfulneſs of hearing the Conformiſts Preachers in the Pariſh Churches; as Mr. Baxter telleth us, &c.

Mr. John Robinſon.

Thus alſo did Mr. John Robinſon, a Man of good Learning, ſharp Wit, and excellent Parts, who in his young Time became ſo unhappy as to improve Nonconformiſts Principles into actual Separation from the Church, and proved a bitter Adverſary. He cried out againſt National Churches, Biſhops, Miniſtry, Liturgy, and all Pariſh Church Worſhip as falſe and antichriſtian. And to make People loath to frequent the Pariſh Churches, he applieth Epheſ. ii. 12. to them as if they were no better than Churches of Pagans. But for all this, before his Death, though he did not publickly renounce his Errors; and come quite back to the Communion of the Church of England, as ſome others had done before him, and as ſome others did after him; it is evident he came back one half of the Way, printing in his latter Times againſt his former Books, the Lawfulneſs of communicating with the Church of England in the Word and Prayer; as Mr. Bayley taketh Notice.

Mr. William Allen Citizen of London.

Mr. William Allen, an eminent Citizen of London, of above forty Years ſtanding, a ſtudious Man all his Days, in his young Time happened to fall into the Errors of Independency, and after that to Anabaptiſm, proceeded ſo far as to write Books to plead their Cauſe; yet his after Studies and great Experience returned him again to the Communion of the Pariſh Churches. And in the Year 1659. he writ his Retractation of Separation, and divers other good Books ſince. And not only Mr. Allen, but divers others both Men and Women, that have been taken with the fair Pretences of Separation, have upon their Experience quitted thoſe Aſſemblies, and maintain full Church Communion with the Pariſh Churches.

The Author himſelf.

And for my own Part (ſaith the Author) I do confeſs that in my young Time, I was alſo overcome of the Arguments for Independency and Anabaptiſm, and for a conſiderable Time walked in thoſe Ways, but my Study and Experience together returned me in the Year 1658. to the Communion of the Pariſh Churches again.

FRIDAY Aug. 9.

Mr. Baxter's Paper ſhewn to the Lord Chancellor, who was not pleaſed with it;

Then to the Lord Chamberlain, who was for blotting out ſeveral Paſſages.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part II. p. 365.

When we ſhew'd our Paper to the Lord Chancellour (which the Brethren had deſired me to draw up, and had conſented to without any Alteration) he was not pleaſed with ſome Paſſages in it, which he thought too pungent or preſſing, but would not bid us put them out. So we went with it to the Lord Chamberlain (who had heard from the Lord Chancellor about it) and I read it to him alſo, and he was earneſt with us to blot out ſome Paſſages, as too vehement, and ſuch as would not be well born. I was very loath to leave them out, but Sir Gilbert Gerrard (an ancient godly Man) being with him, and of the ſame Mind, I yielded (having no Remedy, and being unmeet to oppoſe their Wiſdoms any further) and ſo what we ſcored under, we left out, and preſented the reſt to his Majeſty afterwards. But when we came to preſent it, the Earl of Mancheſter ſecretly told the reſt, that if Dr. Reynolds, Dr. Bates and Dr. Manton would deliver it, it would be the more acceptable (intimating that I was grown unacceptable at Court) but they would not go without me, and he profeſs'd he deſir'd not my Excluſion: But when they told me of it, I took my Leave of him, and was going away: But he and they came after me to the Stairs, and importuned me to return, and I went with them to take my Farewel of this Service. But I reſolved that I would not be the Deliverer of any of our Papers (though I had got them tranſcribed and brought them thither) ſo we deſired Dr. Manton to deliver our Petition, and with it the fair Copies of all our Papers to the Biſhops (which was required of us) for the King. And when Biſhop Reynolds had ſpoken a few Words, Dr. Manton delivered them to the King, who received them and the Petition, but did not bid us read it at all. At laſt in his Speeches ſomething fell in, which Dr. Manton told him the Petition gave him a full Account of, if his Majeſty pleaſed to give him leave to read it: Whereupon he had leave to read it out, the Occaſion was a ſhort Speech which I made to inform his Majeſty, how far we were agreed with the Biſhops, and wherein the Difference did not lye, as in the Points of Loyalty, Obedience, Church-Order, &c. This Dr. Manton alſo ſpake, and the King put the Queſtion, But who ſhall be judge? And I anſwered him, that Judgment is either publick or private: Private Judgment called Diſcretionis, which is but the Uſe of my Reaſon to conduct my Actions, belongeth to every private rational Man: Publick Judgment is either Eccleſiaſtical or Civil, and belongeth accordingly to the Eccleſiaſtical Governors or Paſtors, and the Civil, and not to any private Man.

To which Mr. Baxter with great Reluctance yielded.

Unacceptable at Court.

Unwilling to go.

Importun'd to it.

The Papers introduc'd to the King by Biſhop Reynolds, and delivered by Dr. Manton.

Mr. Baxter in diſpute with the King.

The Queſtion of his Majeſty, Who ſhould be Judge?

Mr. Baxter's Diſtinction upon Judgment.

I will give you the Copy of the Petition juſt as I drew it up, becauſe 1. here you may ſee what thoſe Words were which could not be tolerated. 2. Becauſe it is but ſuppoſing the underſcored Lines to be blotted out, and you have it as it was preſented without any Alteration.

A Copy of the Petition to his Majeſty, as it was firſt drawn up by Mr. Baxter; with the Lines that had been blotted out.

We crave your Majeſty's Pardon for the Tediouſneſs of this Addreſs, and ſhall wait in hope, that ſo great a Calamity of your People, as would follow the Loſs of ſo many able faithful Miniſters as rigorous Impoſitions would caſt out, ſhall never be recorded in the Hiſtory of your Reign: But that theſe Impediments of Concord being forborn, your Kingdoms may flouriſh in Piety and Peace, and this may be the ſignal Honour of your Government, and your Joy in the Day of your Accounts. And in the Concluſion of this Buſineſs, ſeeing we could not prevail with theſe Prelates and prelatical Men (after ſo many Calamities by Diviſions, and when they pretended Deſires of Unity) to make no conſiderable Alterations at all; the Reaſon of it ſeeming unſearchable to ſome, was by others confidently conjectured to be theſe, &c.

SATURDAY Auguſt 10. Account of Dr. Thomas Turner Dean of Canterbury.

Dr. Thomas Turner took Poſſeſſion of the Deanery of Canterbury. He was Son of Thomas Turner of Heckfield in the County of Southampton, Alderman and Mayor of Reading in Berkſhire, born in the Pariſh of St. Giles's in that Borough, about An. 1593. admitted Scholar of St. John's College in Oxford, June 26, 1610. under the Tuition of Mr. William Juxon, afterwards Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Becoming a practical uſeful Preacher, much followed by all the Orthodox, he was made domeſtick Chaplain to Biſhop Laud, Chaplain in ordinary to King Charles the Firſt, Canon Reſidentiary of St. Paul's Octob. 29, 1629. and Dean of Rocheſter, Feb. 26, 1641. Soon after he was ſequeſtred from his Church of St. Olave in Southwark, plundred, carried away Priſoner by a Party of Horſe, and forced to fly for his Life. In 1643. he was made Dean of Canterbury, but not reſtored to the Profits of it till Aug. 10, 1660. he died Octob. 8, 1672. in the eighty firſt Year of his Age, and was interr'd in that Cathedral.

A Diſcourſe of Robert Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, in Defence of the late Lord Primate Uſher and his Writings: And particularly his Notion of the Sign of the Croſs in our Office of Baptiſm. Dated London Auguſt 10. 1661. Prefixed to a Collection of ſeveral learned Diſcourſes entituled, Biſhop of Lincoln's Pref. to Clavi Trabales, 1661. 4to. London, ſold by R. Morrice, 1661, 4to.

Clavi Trabales: Or Nails faſtned by ſome great Maſters of Aſſemblies, confirming the King's Supremacy, the Subject's Duty, and Church Government by Biſhops. The Particulars whereof are,

I. Two Speeches of the late Lord Primate Uſher's, the one of the King's Supremacy, the other of the Duty of Subjects to ſupply the King's Neceſſities.

II. His Judgment and Practice in point of Loyalty, Epiſcopacy, Liturgy, and Conſtitutions of the Church of England.

III. Mr. Hooker's Judgment of the King's Power in Matters of Religion, Advancement of Biſhops, &c.

IV. Biſhop Andrews of Church Government, &c. both confirmed and enlarged by the ſaid Primate.

V. A Letter of Dr. Hadrianus Saravia of the like Subject.

Unto which is added, a Sermon of Regal Power, and the Novelty of the Doctrine of Reſiſtance. Alſo a Preface by the Right Reverend Father in God the Lord Biſhop of Lincoln. Publiſhed by Nicholas Bernard, Doctor of Divinity, and Rector of Whitchurch in Shropſhire.

Biſhop Sanderſon's Diſcourſe of Epiſcopacy.

Epiſcopacy (as eſtabliſhed by Law in England) not prejudicial to Regal Power: Written in the Time of the Long Parliament by the ſpecial Command of the late King. By the Right Reverend Father in God Robert Sanderſon, Lord Biſhop of Lincoln.

London, for Rob. Pawlett, 1673, 8vo.

To the moſt high and mighty King Charles II, &c.

Moſt gracious and dread Sovereign,

His Epiſt. Ded. to the King.

That I take the Boldneſs humbly to preſent this ſhort Diſcourſe to your Majeſty's ſacred Hand and piercing Eye; it is upon this one and only Account, that how mean ſoever the Performance be, the Undertaking was in Obedience to the Command of a moſt gracious Maſter, your Majeſty's Royal Father of bleſſed Memory. The Occaſion this: When the Army had gotten the King into their own Cuſtody, out of the Hands of thoſe that had long holden him in Durance at Holdenby; to put a Blind upon the World, they made a Shew of much Good towards him, which (as ſoon after appear'd) they never meant him. Amongſt other the pompous Civilities wherewith (the better to cloak their Hypocriſy) they entertain'd him, it was their Pleaſure to vouchſafe him the Attendance of ſome of his own Chaplains: Which though it could merit little (for ſuch a Kindneſs could not with Juſtice have been denied to a far meaner Perſon) was yet a Boon his former Goalers thought too big for him. In that Summer Progreſs (ſuch as it was) four of his own naming, with the Clerk of his Cloſet, were ſuffered to wait upon him, (which was in Auguſt 1647.) his Majeſty being then at Hampton-Court, one Day called me to him, and told me he had a little Work for me to do. Some about him, it ſeems, had been often diſcourſing with him about Epiſcopacy, as it was claimed and exerciſed by the Biſhops within this Realm, which (whether out of their good Will to him, or their no good Will to the Church, I am not able to ſay) they had endeavoured to repreſent unto him, as not a little derogatory to the Regal Authority, as well in the Point of Supremacy as of Prerogative: In the one by claiming the Function as of divine Right, in the other by exerciſing the Juriſdiction in their own Names. His Majeſty ſaid further, that he did not believe the Church Government by Biſhops, as it was by Law eſtabliſhed in this Realm, to be in either of the 'foreſaid Reſpects, or any other Way prejudicial to his Crown; and that he was in his own Judgment fully ſatisfied concerning the ſame; yet ſignified his Pleaſure withal, that for the Satisfaction of others, I ſhould take theſe two Objections into Conſideration, and give him an Anſwer thereunto in Writing. In Obedience to which his Majeſty's Royal Pleaſure, after my Return home, I forthwith (according to my bounden Duty) addreſſed myſelf to the Work, and was drawing up an Anſwer to both the Objections, as well as I was able, with a Purpoſe to preſent the ſame (as ſoon as it ſhould be finiſhed) to his Majeſty in Writing, upon the firſt offered Opportunity. But behold, before I could bring the Buſineſs ad umbilicum, and quite finiſh what was under my Hand, the Scene of Affairs was ſtrangely changed: The King trepann'd into the Iſle of Wight; the Maſk of Hypocriſy by long wearing, now grown ſo thin and uſeleſs, that it was fit for nothing but to be thrown by; no kind of Impiety and Villany, but durſt appear barefaced, and in the open Sun; high Inſolencies to the Contempt of Authority every where committed, Majeſty itſelf trampled upon by the vileſt of the People; and the Hearts of all loyal honeſt Men ſadly oppreſſed with Griefs and Fears. Yet had the Men who ſteer'd the Publick as they liſted (that they might give themſelves the more Recreation, amuſe the World anew, and grace the black Tragedy they were acting with more Variety) a Mind to play one Game more the next Year, viz. the Treaty at the 'foreſaid Iſle of Wight. Where as ſoon as I underſtood, that by his Majeſty's Nomination, I was to give my Attendance, I looked out the old Papers I had laid aſide a good while before, made up what was then left unfiniſhed, and took the Copy with me to the Iſle, thinking that when the Treaty ſhould be ended (for whilſt it laſted, his Majeſty was taken up with other Thoughts and Debates of higher Concern) I might poſſibly have the Opportunity to give his Majeſty an Account thereof. What became of that Treaty, and what after enſued, is ſo well known to the World, that there is no need, and withal ſo ſad, that it can be no Pleaſure to remember. But thenceforward were thoſe Papers laid aſide once again, and deſtined to perpetual Silence, had not a Debate lately ſtarted concerning one of the principal Points therein handled, occaſioned ſome Perſons of eminent Place and Eſteem in the Church (and one of them conſcious to the aforeſaid Command laid upon me by the late King) to deſire a Sight of thoſe Papers. Which being by their Encouragement now made publick (though having little other to commend them, either to the World but Truth and Plainneſs, or to your Majeſty, but that they had firſt Riſe from his Command whoſe Throne and Virtues you inherit) I humbly beſeech your Majeſty graciouſly to accept, together with the Prayers of Account of Dr. Humphrey Lloyd.

Humphrey Lloyd Fellow of Oriel College in Oxon. in 1631. and a great Tutor there for many Years; Chaplain to Archbiſhop Williams (who gave him the Prebend of Ampleford in the Church of York, which he kept to his Death) deprived of that and his Vicarage of Ruabon by the Uſurpers, and reſtored to them on the King's Return, was made Canon of St. Aſaph Auguſt 13. 1661. and in the Month following was actually created Doctor of Divinity, afterwards Biſhop of Bangor.

See Dec. 14. 1663.

Popery and Atheiſm were growing in the late Times of Confuſion.

The Confuſions of the late Times had carried away many Separatiſts into Popery or into Atheiſm. As Mr. Baxter honeſtly confeſs'd in his Epiſtle Dedicatory to the Saints everlaſting Reſt. —— Do not your Hearts bleed to look upon the State of England, and to think how few Towns or Cities there be (where there is any forwardneſs in Religion) that are not cut into Shreds and crumbled as to Duſt by Separations and Diviſions? To think what a Wound we have hereby given to the very Chriſtian Name; how we have hardned the Ignorant, confirmed the Papiſts, and are ourſelves become the Scorn of our Enemies, and the Grief of our Friends; and how many of our deareſt beſt eſteemed Friends have fallen to notorious Pride or Impiety, yea ſome to be worſe than open Infidels. See that you remember them, &c.

The King had been oblig'd for Money to the Roman Prieſts abroad, eſpecially to the Benedictines.

As obſerved by the Lord Clarendon to Mr. Creſſy.

Lord Clarendon*'s Animadverſions on Mr.* Creſſy againſt Dr. Stillingfleet, 8vo. p. 43.

The King had received ſome Obligations of Money and other Preſents from the Roman Prieſts abroad, and eſpecially from the Engliſh Benedictines, to whom he now ſhew'd the better Countenance; and Lord Chancellor Hyde paid the greater Reſpect to them, as he tells Mr. Creſſy one of them.

For my own Part I have always had more Kindneſs and Eſteem for the Monks of that Order, I mean for thoſe of the Engliſh Congregation, and have had more Converſation with them than with any other Religious of our Nation. They are (very few excepted) all Gentlemen, and of very good Families (as Mr. Creſſy is) and of very civil and quiet Natures, not petulant and troubleſome to thoſe who do not think as they do. And they were very kind to all their baniſhed Country-men in France and Flanders, for I have not known them in any other Provinces in the Times of the late Perſecution. I have been aſſured, that they expreſſed more Affection and Duty to the King, and were more uſeful to him, even in aſſiſting him with Money in his greateſt Diſtreſſes, and performing all other Offices for him, than all the other religious Communities put together. And they had the good Fortune to have Opportunity to be inſtrumental towards his Majeſty's happy Deliverance after the Battle at Worceſter: The Conſideration of all which hath prevailed with the King to give them more Countenance and Protection, than he hath done to any other Eccleſiaſtical Order; and which on their Part they have ſo well merited, that I have not heard of one Benedictine Monk (Mr. Creſſy only excepted) who hath imbarked himſelf in Controverſies in the preſent Conjuncture, to the diſquieting of himſelf and others, and in throwing Reproaches upon the Church of England.

A Convent of Benedictines at Somerſet-Houſe.

There was a Convent of Benedictine Monks in the Savoy, who often attended in the Chapel at Somerſet-Houſe, and officiated there at Maſs and in Confeſſions, of which Number was James Corker one of the Queen's Prieſts, till that Convent was ſuppreſſed about 1674. Corker was afterwards tried and convicted as a Prieſt in 1679. he had a Breve from Rome to be Biſhop of London, as depoſed by one who had ſeen it.

The King's Letter for Epiſcopacy in Scotland.

The King's Letter to the Council in Scotland, for eſtabliſhing Church Government in that Kingdom.

Printed 1661.

Charles R.

Right Truſty and Well-beloved Couſins and Counſellors, we greet you well. Whereas in the Month of Auguſt 1660. we did by our Letter to the Preſbytery of Edinburgh declare our Purpoſe to maintain the Government of the Church of Scotland ſettled by Law, and our Parliament having ſince that Time, not only reſcinded all the Acts ſince the Troubles began, referring to that Government, but alſo declared all thoſe pretended Parliaments null and void, and left to us the ſettling and ſecuring of Church Government: Therefore in Compliance with that Act Reſciſſory, according to our late Proclamation dated at Whitehall the 10th of June, and in Contemplation of the Inconveniences from the Church Government, as it hath been exerciſed theſe twenty three Years paſt, of the Unſuitableneſs thereof to our monarchical Eſtate, of the ſadly experienced Confuſions which have been cauſed during the late Troubles by the Violences done to our Royal Prerogative, and to the Government Civil and Eccleſiaſtical, ſettled by unqueſtionable Authority, we, from our Reſpect to the Glory of God, and the Good and Intereſt of the Proteſtant Religion, from our pious Care and princely Zeal for the Order, Unity, Peace, and Stability of that Church, and its better Harmony with the Government of the Churches of England and Ireland, have, after mature Deliberation, declared to thoſe of our Council here, our firm Reſolution to interpoſe our Royal Authority for reſtoring of that Church to its right Government by Biſhops, as it was by Law before the late Troubles, during the Reigns of our Royal Father and Grandfather of bleſſed Memory, and as it now ſtands ſettled by Law. Of this our Royal Pleaſure concerning Church Government you are to take Notice, and to make Intimation thereof in ſuch a Way and Manner as you ſhall judge moſt expedient and effectual.

Woodrow's Hiſtory of the Church of Scotland, Vol. I. p. 96.

The Parliament had releas'd the King from his Purpoſe and Promiſe, and had given him a full Power to ſettle the Church Government.

The Preſbyterian Government inconvenient and unſuitable to Monarchy.

And therefore in Uniformity to England and Ireland, Government of the Church by Biſhops to be reſtored in Scotland, as it was before the late Troubles.

And we require you and every one of you, and do expect, according to the Truſt and Confidence we have in your Affections and Duty to our Service, that you will be careful to uſe your beſt Endeavours for curing the Diſtempers contracted during thoſe late evil Times, for uniting our good Subjects among themſelves, and bringing them all to a chearful Acquieſcing and Obedience to our Sovereign Authority, which we will employ by the Help of God for the maintaining and defending the true Reformed Religion, Increaſe of Piety, and the Settlement and Security of that Church in her Rights and Liberties, according to ancient Law and Cuſtom. And in order thereunto our Will is, that you forthwith take ſuch Courſe with the Rents belonging to the ſeveral Biſhopricks and Deaneries, that they may be reſtored and made uſeful to the Church, and that according to Juſtice and the ſtanding Law. And moreover you are to inhibit the aſſembling of Miniſters in their ſeveral ſynodical Meetings through the Kingdom, until our further Pleaſure, and to keep a watchful Eye over all, who upon any Pretext whatſoever, ſhall, by Diſcourſing, Preaching, Reviling, or any irregular or unlawful Way, endeavour to alienate the Affections of our People, or diſpoſe them to an ill Opinion of us and our Government, to the Diſturbance of the Peace of the Kingdom. So expecting your chearful Obedience and a ſpeedy Account of your Proceedings herein, we bid you heartily farewell. Given at our Court at Whitehall, Auguſt 14, 1661. and of our Reign the thirteenth Year.

By his Majeſty's Command,

Dr. Barwick to be removed from Durham to the Deanery of St. Paul's.

On the Death of Dr. Matthew Nicholas, Dean of St. Paul's Church in London, the Governors of the Church by his Majeſty's Command ſent for Dr. Barwick Dean of Durham, to take Poſſeſſion of this Deanery of St. Paul's, as a Perſon not unfit to contribute ſomething to the Reparation of the immenſe Ruins of that Cathedral. It is well known to every one, that if Dr. Barwick had regarded his own private Intereſt and Advantage, he would not have accepted this new Deanery, where there was neither Houſe nor Furniture, but what was either hir'd or bought, in Exchange for that other where neither was wanting. And indeed in Anſwer to his Majeſty's Meſſage he wrote expreſsly, that he knew very well the Dignity whereto he was going to be promoted, was both of leſs Value than that he muſt relinquiſh, and of greater Care and Trouble; and that what he then enjoy'd was ſo agreeable to him, that if it were at his Option, he would not quit it for the greateſt Dignity in the Church, much leſs for that he was then commanded to accept; yet that he receiv'd his Majeſty's Commands with the utmoſt Veneration, and ſhould willingly comply with the Orders of his Superiors in the Church.

Diſpute of the Validity of Quakers Marriages.

Geo. Fox's Journal, 4to. Part I. p. 587. under the Year 1661.

Among the Exerciſes and Troubles, that Friends had from without, one was concerning Friends Marriages, which ſometimes were called in Queſtion. And in this Year there happened to be a Cauſe tryed at the Aſſize at Nottingham concerning a Friend's Marriage. The Caſe was thus: Some Years before two Friends were joined together in Marriage amongſt Friends; and lived together as Man and Wife about two Years: Then the Man died, leaving his Wife with Child, and leaving an Eſtate in Lands of Copyhold. When the Woman was delivered the Jury preſented the Child Heir to its Father's Lands, and accordingly the Child was admitted: Afterwards another Friend married the Widow. And after that, a Man that was near of Kin to her former Huſband, brought his Action againſt the Friend that had laſt married her; endeavouring to diſpoſſeſs them, and deprive the Child of the Inheritance, and to poſſeſs himſelf thereof, as next Heir to the Woman's firſt Huſband. And to effect this he endeavoured to prove the Child illegitimate, alledging, the Marriage was not according to Law. In opening the Cauſe, the Plaintiff's Counſel did uſe unſeemly Words concerning Friends, ſaying, that they went together like brute Beaſts; with other ill Expreſſions. After the Counſels had on both Sides pleaded, the Judge (viz. Judge Archer) took the Matter in Hand, and opened it to them, telling them, that there was a Marriage in Paradiſe, when Adam took Eve, and Eve took Adam; and that it was the Conſent of the Parties that made a Marriage. And for the Quakers, he ſaid, he did not know their Opinions; but he did not believe they went together as brute Beaſts, as had been ſaid of them, but as Chriſtians; and therefore he did believe the Marriage was lawful, and the Child lawful Heir. And the better to ſatisfy the Jury, he brought them a Caſe to this Purpoſe: A Man that was weak of Body, and kept his Bed, had a Deſire in that Condition to marry; and did declare before Witneſſes, that he did take ſuch a Woman to be his Wife, and the Woman declared that ſhe took that Man to be her Huſband. This Marriage was afterwards called in Queſtion, and as the Judge ſaid, all the Biſhops did at that Time directly conclude it to be a lawful Marriage. Hereupon the Jury gave in their Verdict for the Friend's Child, and againſt the Man that would have deprived it of its Inheritance.

Raiſed among themſelves for proving a Friend's Child to be illegitimate.

Judge Archer gave his Opinion, that the Marriage was lawful, and the Child a lawful Heir.

The next Account of the Savoy Conference, which the Preſbyterian Commiſſioners publiſhed, or rather ſuffered to go abroad, was entitled, The Grand DEBATE between the moſt Reverend the Biſhops, and the Preſbyterian Divines appointed by his Sacred Majeſty as Commiſſioners for the Review and Alteration of the Book of Common-Prayer, &c. *Being an exact Account of their whole Proceedings. The Exceptions of the Preſbyterian Brethren againſt ſome Paſſages in the preſent Liturgy: Acknowledging with all Humility and Thankfulneſs his Majeſty's moſt princely Condeſcenſion and Indulgence to very many of his loyal Subjects, as well in his Majeſty's moſt gracious Declaration, as particularly in this preſent Commiſſion, iſſued forth in Purſuance thereof. We doubt not but the Right Reverend Biſhops, and all the reſt of his Majeſty's Commiſſioners entruſted in this Work, will, in Imitation of his Majeſty's moſt prudent and chriſtian Moderation and Clemency, judge it their Duty (which we find to be the Apoſtles own Practice) in a ſpecial Manner to be tender of the Churches Peace, to bear with the Infirmities of the Weak, and not to pleaſe themſelves, nor to meaſure the Conſciences of other Men by the Light and Latitude of their own, but ſeriouſly and readily to conſider and adviſe of ſuch Expedients, as may moſt conduce to the healing of our Breaches, and uniting thoſe that differ.

And albeit we have an high and honourable Eſteem of thoſe godly and learned Biſhops and others who were the firſt Compilers of the publick Liturgy, and do look upon it as an excellent and worthy Work, for that Time, when the Church of England made her firſt Step out of ſuch a Miſt of popiſh Ignorance and Superſtition, wherein it formerly was involved; yet conſidering that all human Works do gradually arrive at their Maturity and Perfection, and this in particular being a Work of that Nature, hath already admitted ſeveral Emendations ſince the firſt compiling thereof, it cannot be thought any Diſparagement or Derogation either to the Work itſelf, or to the Compilers of it, or to thoſe who have hitherto uſed it, if after more than one hundred Years ſince its firſt Compoſure, ſuch further Emendations be now made therein, as may be judged neceſſary for ſatisfying the Scruples of a Multitude of ſober Perſons, who cannot at all (or very hardly) comply with the Uſe of it, as now it is, &c.

Concluding.] Thus have we in all humble Purſuance of his Majeſty's moſt gracious Endeavours for the publick Weal of his Church, drawn up our Thoughts and Deſires in this weighty Affair, which we moſt humbly offer to his Majeſty's Commiſſioners for their ſerious and grave Conſideration: Wherein we have not the leaſt Thoughts of depraving or reproaching the Book of Common-Prayer; but a ſincere Deſire to contribute our Endeavours towards healing the Diſtempers, and (as far as may be) reconciling the Minds of Brethren. And in as much as his Majeſty hath in his gracious Declaration and Commiſſion mentioned new Forms to be made and ſuited to the ſeveral Parts of Worſhip, we have made a conſiderable Progreſs therein, and ſhall, by God's Aſſiſtance, offer them to the Reverend Commiſſioners with all convenient Speed: And if the Lord ſhall graciouſly pleaſe to give his Bleſſing to theſe our Endeavours, we doubt not but that the Peace of this Church will be ſhortly ſettled, the Hearts of Miniſters and People comforted and compoſed, and the great Mercy of Unity and Stability (to the immortal Honour of our moſt dear Sovereign) beſtowed upon us and our Poſterity after us.

A Caveat to the Cavaliers. Sic vos non vobis.

The Preface.] Some three Weeks ſince came forth a Paper, entitled, A Cordial for the Cavaliers, which I took upon Peruſal to be a well-meaning Miſtake; and printed ſuch an Anſwer to it, as I thought might clear the Intereſt in Queſtion: To which Anſwer were added ſome very innocent and neceſſary Cautions to the Royal Party. —— The City Church Meetings look but like authorized Conventicles, the Pulpits are profaned by unqualified and ſeditious Lecturers; and thoſe too out of the rankeſt of the old Separatiſts, both Presbyterian and Independent, the better to advance the common Work of ſtirring up the Rabble againſt his Sacred Majeſty, whom they do more than covertly aſperſe with Rottenneſs of Heart, preſſing the ſad Calamities of the Nation, and the imminent Danger of Perſecution, ſo cloſe and home to the People, as if the Knife were already at their Throats. Theſe Lectures are increaſed both in Number and Boldneſs, to a moſt ſcandalous and prodigious Degree, even ſince the late Receſs of the Parliament, not only to the Hazard of the publick Peace, but to the Infamy and Diſhonour of the Engliſh Church. ——

Theſe are the Men that cry, The Goſpel's perſecuted, the Candleſtick's removed, &c.

Nor is the Preſs leſs active, or leſs dangerous than the Pulpit; they have their private Inſtruments and Combinations to diſperſe their Libels; and I dare undertake there may be found among the confederate Stationers in this Town above a Million of ſeditious Pamphlets. 'Tis the beſt Trade they drive, their Gains are great, their Hazard little, beſide the Pleaſure of accompliſhing their Malice.

I was myſelf upon a Search for the Phœnix (a virulent Pamphlet) which with the Printer, Publiſher, and Stationer I diſcovered to Maſter Secretary, Sir Edward Nicholas, who with great Honour and Exactneſs ſifted the Matter, and proceeded in it. I found at the ſame Time the two firſt Sheets of The Year of Prodigies, an Impoſtor of a moſt damnable Deſign. This Book is lately perfected, ſought for, and many Copies taken. —— The Author of it ranſacks ſeveral Stories for memorable Accidents and Prodigies, and for Remarks of ſuch and ſuch Judgments that followed them. Theſe does he match with a moſt impudent Forgery of the like Wonders here, to ſtrike the People with a ſuperſtitious Expectation of the ſame Events.

Death of Mr. William Taylor, born at Kigbley in Yorkſhire Septemb. 30, 1616. entred a Batchelor in Magdalen Hall, Oxon. 1631. took one Degree in Arts, was made School-maſter of Keniton or Keynton in Herefordſhire, proceeded in his Faculty, went to Cirenceſter in Gloceſterſhire about the latter End of 1639. became School-maſter there, in the Place of Henry Toppe, then ejected by the puritanical Townſmen. But that Town being taken by Storm by the Royal Party, Febr. 2, 1642. Toppe was reſtored. So that Taylor retiring to London, became Preacher at Bowe near that City, and afterward Miniſter of St. Stephen's in Colemanſtreet, in the Place of Joh. Goodwin turned out by the Parliament. But meeting with Oppoſition there, he exerciſed his Function for ſome Time in a Church in Woodſtreet, and kept a Lecture at St. Giles's near Cripplegate every Sunday, and another Lecture on a Week Day in St. Peter's Cornhill. Afterwards being recalled by the Rump Parliament to St. Stephen's, he kept it to his dying Day, Septemb. 5, 1661. Buried in the Chancel of the Church of St. Stephen, with a Funeral Sermon by Dr. William Spurſtow of Hackney, wherein he ſpoke many Things to his Honour. He was a laborious and learned Man in his Profeſſion. And though a zealous Preſbyterian, yet he was a Lover of the King in all Revolutions, as a Doctor of his Perſuaſion hath often told me.

Act of Council in Scotland for reſtoring Epiſcopal Government.

Woodrow's Hiſtory of the Church of Scotland, Vol. I. Append. N^o^. 25.

Act of Council at Edinburgh for declaring his Majeſty's Pleaſure for reſtoring the Church to its Government by Biſhops the ſixth Day of September 1661.

The Lords of his Majeſty's Privy-Council having conſider'd his Majeſty's Letter of the Date at Whitehall, the fourteenth Day of Auguſt laſt bearing, that whereas his Majeſty by his Letter to the Preſbytery of Edinburgh in the Month of Auguſt, one thouſand ſix hundred and ſixty Years, declared his Royal Purpoſe to maintain the Government of the Church of Scotland ſettled by Law. And the Eſtates of Parliament of this Kingdom having ſince that Time not only reſcinded all the Acts ſince the Troubles began relating to that Government, but alſo declared all thoſe Parliaments null and void, leaving to his Majeſty the ſettling of Church Government: Therefore in Compliance with that Act Reſciſſory, and in Purſuance of his Majeſty's Proclamation of the tenth of June laſt, and in Contemplation of the Inconveniences that accompanied and iſſued from the Church Government, as it hath been exerciſed theſe twenty three Years paſt, and of the Unſuitableneſs thereof to his Majeſty's monarchical Eſtate, and of the ſadly experienced Confuſions, which during theſe late Troubles have been cauſed by the Violences done to his Majeſty's Royal Prerogative, and to the Government Civil and Eccleſiaſtical, eſtabliſhed by unqueſtionable Authority: His Majeſty having Reſpect to the Glory of God, and the Good and Intereſt of the Proteſtant Religion, and being zealous of the Order, Unity, Peace, and Stability of the Church within this Kingdom, and of its better Harmony with the Government of the Churches of England and Ireland, hath been pleaſed, after mature Deliberation, to declare unto his Council his firm Reſolution to interpoſe his Royal Authority, for reſtoring of this Church to its right Government by Biſhops, as it was by Law before the late Troubles, during the Reigns of his Majeſty's Royal Father and Grandfather of bleſſed Memory, and as it now ſtands ſettled by Law; and that the Rents belonging to the ſeveral Biſhopricks and Deaneries be reſtored and made uſeful to the Church according to Juſtice and the ſtanding Law, have therefore in Obedience of and conform to his Majeſty's Royal Pleaſure aforeſaid, ordained, and by theſe Preſents ordain the Lyon King at Arms and his Brethren, Heralds, Perſuivants, and Meſſengers of Arms to paſs to the Market Croſs of Edinburgh, and other Royal Boroughs of the Kingdom, and there by open Proclamation to make Publication of this his Majeſty's Royal Pleaſure, for reſtoring the Church of this Kingdom to its right Government by Biſhops; and in his Majeſty's Name to require all his good Subjects to compoſe themſelves to a chearful Acquieſcence and Obedience to the ſame, and to his Majeſty's Sovereign Authority now exerciſed within this Kingdom. And that none of them preſume, upon any Pretence whatſoever by diſcourſing, preaching, reviling, or any irregular and unlawful Way, the endeavouring to alienate the Affections of his Majeſty's good Subjects, or diſpoſe them to an evil Opinion of his Majeſty or his Government, or to the Diſturbance of the Peace of the Kingdom, and to inhibit and diſcharge the Aſſembling of Miniſters in their ſeveral Synodical Meetings, until his Majeſty's further Pleaſure therein be known: Commanding hereby all Sheriffs, Bailiffs of Bailiaries, Stewards of Stewartries and their Deputies, all Juſtices of the Peace, and Magiſtrates, and Council of Boroughs, and all other publick Miniſters to be careful within their ſeveral Bounds and Juriſdictions, to ſee this Act punctually obeyed: And if they ſhall find any Perſon or Perſons, upon any Pretexts whatſoever, by diſcourſing, preaching, reviling, or otherwiſe as aforeſaid, failing in their due Obedience hereunto, or doing any thing in the contrary thereof, that they forthwith commit them to Priſon, 'till his Majeſty's Privy-Council after Information of the Offence, give further Order therein. And hereof the Sheriffs and others aforementioned are to have ſpecial Care, as they will anſwer upon their Duty and Allegiance to his Majeſty. And further, the Lords of his Majeſty's Privy-Council do hereby inhibit and diſcharge all Perſons liable in Payment of any of the Rents formerly belonging to the Biſhopricks and Deaneries from paying of the Rents of this preſent Year one thouſand ſix hundred and ſixty one Years, or in Time coming, or any Part thereof, to any Perſons whomſoever, until they receive new Order thereanent from his Majeſty or his Council. And ordain theſe Preſents to be printed and publiſhed as ſaid is, that none may pretend Ignorance of the ſame.

His Majeſty's Letters to the Governour and Colonies of New England,

Journal of George Fox, 8vo. Vol. I. p. 577.

The King's Letters directed to our truſty and well-beloved John Endicot, Eſq; and to all and every other the Governour or Governours of our Plantations of New-England, and of all the Colonies thereunto belonging, that now are, or hereafter ſhall be, and to all and every the Miniſters and Officers of our Plantations and Colonies whatſoever, within the Continent of New-England.

CHARLES R.

In Behalf of the ſuffering Quakers.

If any of them are condemned to Death or other corporal Puniſhment, or impriſoned; they are to be ſent over to England.

Truſty and well-beloved, we greet you well. Having been informed that ſeveral of our Subjects amongſt you, called Quakers, have been and are impriſoned by you, whereof ſome have been executed, and others (as hath been repreſented unto us) are in Danger to undergo the like; we have thought fit to ſignify our Pleaſure in that Behalf for the Future, that if there be any of thoſe People called Quakers amongſt you, now already condemned to ſuffer Death, or other corporal Puniſhment; or that are impriſoned, and obnoxious to the like Condemnation, you are to forbear to proceed any further therein; but that you forthwith ſend the ſaid Perſons (whether condemned or impriſoned) over into this our Kingdom of England, together with the reſpective Crimes or Offences laid to their Charge; to the End ſuch Courſe may be taken with them here, as ſhall be agreeable to our Laws, and their Demerits. And for ſo doing, theſe our Letters ſhall be your ſufficient Warrant and Diſcharge. Given at our Court at Whitehall the ninth Day of September, 1661. in the thirteenth Year of our Reign.

By his Majeſty's Command,

WILLIAM MORRIS.

This Mandamus obtained by Edward Burrough,

Who took Care of conveying it to New England by Samuel Shattock,

Who had been baniſhed from New England, and was to be hanged upon his Return.

Many Friends or Quakers with him.

George Fox, Ibid.

When a Mandamus was thus granted, a Day or two after Edw. Burrough going again to the King, to deſire the Matter might be expedited, the King ſaid, he had no Occaſion at preſent to ſend a Ship thither; but if we would ſend one, we might do it, as ſoon as we would. Edward Burrough then aſked the King, if it would pleaſe him to grant his Deputation to one called a Quaker, to carry the Mandamus to New-England. He ſaid, Yes, to whom you will. Whereupon E. B. named Samuel Shattock, (as I remember) who being an Inhabitant of New-England, was baniſhed by their Law, to be hanged, if he came again, and to him the Deputation was granted. Then we ſent for one Ralph Goldſmith, an honeſt Friend, who was Maſter of a good Ship; and with him we agreed for three hundred Pounds (Goods or no Goods) to ſail in ten Days. He forthwith prepared to ſet Sail, and with a proſperous Gale, in about ſix Weeks Time arrived before the Town of Boſton in New-England upon a firſt Day Morning, called Sunday. With him went many Paſſengers, both of New and Old England that were Friends, whom the Lord did move to go to bear their Teſtimony againſt thoſe bloody Perſecutors, who had exceeded all the World in that Age, in their bloody Perſecutions. The Townſmen at Boſton ſeeing a Ship come into the Bay with Engliſh Colours, ſoon came on Board, and aſked for the Captain; Ralph Goldſmith told them, he was the Commander. They aſked him, if he had any Letters? He ſaid, Yes. They aſked, if he would deliver them? He ſaid, No, not to Day. So they went aſhore and reported, There was a Ship full of Quakers, kers, and that Samuel Shattock was amongſt them, who they knew was by their Law to be put to Death, for coming again after Baniſhment: But they knew not his Errand, nor his Authority. So all being kept cloſe that Day, and none of the Ship's Company ſuffer'd to go on Shore, next Morning Samuel Shattock the King's Deputy, and Ralph Goldſmith the Commander of the Veſſel, went on Shore, and ſending back to the Ship the Men that landed them, they two went through the Town to the Governour John Endicot's Door, and knock'd; he ſent out a Man to know their Buſineſs: They ſent him Word, their Buſineſs was from the King of England, and they would deliver their Meſſage to none but the Governour himſelf. Thereupon they were admitted to go in, and the Governour came to them, and having received the Deputation and the Mandamus, he laid off his Hat, and look'd upon them; then going out, he bid the Friends follow him. So he went to the Deputy Governour, and after a ſhort Conſultation, came out to the Friends, and ſaid, We ſhall obey his Majeſty's Commands. After this the Maſter gave Liberty to the Paſſengers to come on Shore, and preſently the Noiſe of the Buſineſs flew about the Town; and the Friends of the Town and the Paſſengers of the Ship met together, to offer up their Praiſes and Thankſgivings to God, who had ſo wonderfully delivered them from the Teeth of the Devourer. While they were thus met, in came a poor Friend, who being ſentenced by their bloody Law to dye, had lain ſome Time in Irons, expecting Execution. This added to their Joy, and cauſed them to lift up their Hearts in high Praiſes to God, who is worthy for ever to have the Praiſe, the Glory, and the Honour, for he only is able to deliver, and to ſave, and to ſupport all that ſincerely put their Truſt in him.

He is called the King's Deputy.

He and the Maſter of the Veſſel go to the Governour's Houſe, and deliver their Meſſage to him,

Who promiſed to obey his Majeſty's Commands;

Which occaſioned Joy and Thankſgiving for the great Deliverance.

Some Time after this, ſeveral of New England's Magiſtrates came over hither, and one of their Prieſts; and we had ſeveral Diſcourſes with them, at ſeveral Times, concerning their Murdering our Friends, the Servants of the Lord; but they were aſhamed to ſtand to their bloody Actions. At one of thoſe Meetings, I aſked Simon Broadſtreet (who was one of the New England Magiſtrates) whether he had not an Hand in putting to Death thoſe four Servants of God, whom they hanged for being Quakers only, as they had nick-named them. And he confeſſed, he had. I then aſked him, and the reſt of his Aſſociates that were preſent, whether they would acknowledge themſelves to be Subjects to the Laws of England? And if they did, by what Law they had put our Friends to Death? They ſaid, they were Subjects to the Laws of England, and they had put our Friends to Death by the ſame Law, as the Jeſuits were put to Death here in England. I aſked them then, whether they did believe, that thoſe Friends of ours, whom they had put to Death, were Jeſuits or Jeſuitically affected? And they ſaid, Nay. Then ſaid I, ye have murdered them, if ye have put them to Death by the Law that Jeſuits are put to Death here in England, and yet confeſs they were no Jeſuits. By this it plainly appears, ye have put them to Death in your own Wills, without any Law. Then Simon Broadſtreet finding himſelf and his Company enſnared by their own Words, ſaid, Did we come to catch them? I told them, they had catched themſelves, and they might be juſtly queſtioned for their Lives: And if the Father of William Robinſon (who was one of them that was put to Death) were in Town, it was probable he would queſtion them, and bring their Lives into Jeopardy. Hereupon they began to excuſe themſelves, ſaying, There was now no Perſecution amongſt them. But next Morning we had Letters from New England, giving us Account, that our Friends were perſecuted there afreſh. Thereupon we went to them again, and ſhewed them our Letters, which put them both to Silence and to Shame; and in great Fear they ſeemed to be, leſt ſome ſhould call them to Account, and proſecute them for their Lives, eſpecially Simon Broadſtreet, for he had at firſt before ſo many Witneſſes confeſſed, he had a Hand in putting our Friends to Death, that he could not get off from it, though he afterwards through Fear ſhuffled, and would have unſaid it again. I went alſo to Governour Winthorp, and diſcourſed with him about theſe Matters, but he aſſured me he had no Hand in putting our Friends to Death, or in any Way of perſecuting of them; but was one of them that proteſted againſt it. Now theſe ſtingy Perſecutors of New England were a People that fled out of Old England thither, from the Perſecution of the Biſhops here; but when they had got Power into their Hands, they ſo far exceeded the Biſhops in Severity and Cruelty, that whereas the Biſhops had made them pay Twelve-pence a Sunday (ſo called) for not coming to their Worſhip here, they impoſed a Fine of five Shilling a Day upon ſuch as ſhould not conform to their Will Worſhip there, and ſpoiled the Goods of Friends that could not pay it. Beſides many they impriſoned, divers they whipp'd, and that moſt cruelly, of ſome they cut off Ears, and ſome they hanged: As the Books of Friends Sufferings in New England largely ſhow, particularly a Book written by George Biſhop of Briſtol, entitled, New England Judged. In two Parts.

When the Magiſtrates of New England came to London, the Quakers charged them with Murdering their Friends.

And George Fox proved it to have been againſt Law.

They excuſed themſelves that there was no Perſecution there.

Yet the next Letters brought Advice, that Friends were perſecuted there afreſh.

Upon which the Friends again expoſtulate the Matter,

And charge them that flying themſelves from Perſecution, they were become much greater Perſecutors.

And impoſed far greater Penalties on others than ever the Biſhops had impoſed on them.

Council Board, Whitehall September 9. 1661.

Upon the humble Petition of the Company of Pariſh Clerks within the City of London, and Bills of Mortality, this Day read at the Board, ſetting forth, that notwithſtanding their great Care and Diligence uſed, that they might be enabled to preſent to publick View and Satisfaction the Weekly Bills of Mortality more perfect, with the Number of Perſons dying, and the Nature of the Diſeaſes; as alſo to give a better Account of Infants baptized (the Diſproportion

The Lord Chancellour Clarendon pays a Viſit to his Univerſity of Oxford.

Publick Intelligence, 4to. No. 37.

An Account given from Oxford, that upon Saturday laſt, September 7. our moſt Honourable Chancellour Edward Earl of Clarendon Lord High Chancellour of England came to his and our Univerſity: His Lordſhip got hither betwixt ſix and ſeven a Clock, having come through in one Day (from Worceſter Houſe in the Strand to Oxford) accompanied with many Perſons of Honour, and Gentlemen who came voluntarily, beſides the Gentlemen of his Lordſhip's own Retinue. He was met on the Way by divers Perſons of Honour and Quality of this County, who came hither along with his Lordſhip. The Vice-Chancellour (the moſt worthy and reverend Dr. Bayly, Preſident of St. John's College) with all other Governours of Colleges and Halls, Doctors, Proctors, and indeed the whole Univerſity, met his Lordſhip at Magdalen Bridge, where Mr. South (our Univerſity Orator) made a very elegant ſhort Speech in Name of the Univerſity, diſcreetly conſidering that his Lordſhip had come too many Miles in one Day to be held longer by an Oration. This ended, his Lordſhip left his Coach, and went into Magdalen College, where formerly he had his Univerſity Education under the learned Dr. Oliver, who was his Lordſhip's Tutour, and is now Preſident of that College. As his Lordſhip entred the College, another ſhort ingenious Speech was made by a Fellow of that College. Here his Lordſhip ſupp'd, and lodged as long as he ſtay'd with us.

Dr. Bayly St. John's Vice-Chancellour, and other Heads meet his Lordſhip at Magdalen Bridge; and Mr. South makes an Oration, &c.

Degrees conferr'd in Convocation.

Next Morning he came to St. Mary's Church, and heard that learned Dr. William Barker preach, who (though his Library was burned) gave his Lordſhip an excellent Sermon. And by Nine a Clock this Morning (Sept. 9.) after his Lordſhip had enquired and ſettled many Things in the Univerſity, he came to the Convocation-Houſe, where the whole Univerſity were ready met, and there as ſoon as the reverend and prudent Vice-Chancellor had declared the Reaſon of that Convocation, and the Univerſity Orator made a full and accurate Oration to his Lordſhip, Degrees in Divinity, Law, Phyſick, and the Arts, were conferred upon divers Members of this Univerſity, beſides thoſe Lords, Knights, and Gentlemen, who came along with his Lordſhip, and in Memory and Honour of this Day, were preſented Graduates of the Univerſity of Oxford. The Convocation being ended, his Lordſhip went and was entertained by the Vice-Chancellor (in Name of the Univerſity) at St. John's College, where a very ingenious Speech met him at the Gate made by Mr. Levens, a Fellow of that College. When his Lordſhip had dined, and given ſome further Orders concerning the Univerſity, he took Coach, and went with his Counteſs and whole Retinue to his own Houſe at Cornbury.

His Complaint of Mr. Baxter;

As very poſitive and much miſtaken in the Savoy Conference.

Dr. George Morley, Lord Biſhop of Worceſter, was inthronized in his Cathedral Church Sept. 12, 1661. and had ſoon occaſion to complain in theſe Words: Mr. Baxter hath lately printed a Book called the Miſchiefs of Self-Ignorance and the Benefits of Self-Acquaintance; in the Addreſs of which Book to his dearly beloved the Inhabitants of Kidderminſter, he hath this enſuing Paſſage relating to the Biſhop of Worceſter.

Preface to a Letter in Vindication, &c. 1662. 4to.

In a Diſputation by Writing, thoſe of the other Part formed an Argument, whoſe major Propoſition was to this Senſe (for I have no Copy) Whatſoever Book enjoyneth nothing but what is of itſelf lawful, and by lawful Authority, enjoineth nothing that is ſinful: We denied this Propoſition, and at laſt gave divers Reaſons of our Denial, amongſt which one was, It may be unlawful by Accident: You now know my Crime, it is my concurring with learned reverend Brethren, to give this Reaſon of our Denial of a Propoſition, yet they are not forbidden to preach for it (and I hope ſhall not be) but only I, you have publickly heard from a Mouth that ſhould ſpeak nothing but the Words of Charity, Truth and Soberneſs (eſpecially there) that this was a deſperate Shift that Men at the laſt are forced to, and inferring, that then neither God nor Man can enjoin without Sin. In City and Countrey this ſoundeth forth to my Reproach. —— Yet I muſt confeſs, I am ſtill guilty of ſo much Weakneſs as to be confident, that ſome Things not evil of themſelves, may have Accidents ſo evil, as may make it a Sin to him that ſhall command them. ——— Whether the Penalty of ejecting Miniſters that dare not put away all that do not kneel, and of caſting out all the People that ſcruple it, from the Church, be too great for ſuch a Circumſtance, (and ſo in the reſt) and whether this, with the lamentable Eſtate of many Congregations, and the Diviſions that will follow, being all foreſeen, do prove the Impoſitions unlawful which were then in Queſtion, is a Caſe that I had then a clearer Call to ſpeak to than I have now; only I may ſay, that the ejecting of the Servants of Chriſt from the Communion of his Church, and of his faithful Miniſters from their ſacred Work, when too many Congregations have none but inſufficient or ſcandalous Teachers, or no preaching Miniſters at all, will appear a Matter of very great Moment in the Day of our Accounts, and ſuch as ſhould not be done upon any but a neceſſary Cauſe, where the Benefit is greater than this Hurt (and all the reſt) amounts to.

Having given you (to whom I owe it) this Account of the Cauſe for which I am forbidden the Exerciſe of my Miniſtry in that Countrey, I now direct theſe Sermons to your Hands, that ſeeing I cannot teach you as I would, I may teach you as I can: And if I much longer enjoy ſuch Liberty as this, it will be much above my Expectation.

A Letter dated Worceſter, Sept. 14, 1661. giving a ſhort and true Account of the Reception and Inthronization of the Right Reverend Father in God George Lord Biſhop of Worceſter.

Reception and Inthronization of Dr. George Morley Biſhop of Worceſter.

At Perſhore.

At Red-Hill.

March into the City.

On Wedneſday Night Sept. 11. his Lordſhip lay at Bradway, whither divers Perſons of Quality purpoſely came and did accompany him to Worceſter. Before he came to Perſhore his Train was much augmented, by the Acceſſion of many of the moſt eminent Clergy of thoſe Parts: As he paſſed ſeveral of the adjoining Pariſhes, they cauſed their Bells to be rung to teſtify their Joy; and the Poor (the Fame of his Charity having come ſooner than his Coach) came in great Numbers begging, he gave them his Bleſſing, and (what poſſibly ſome of them valued more) Money. At Perſhore the Poor were too many to receive Alms particularly, and ſo my Lord ſent 5 l. to the Churchwardens to be diſtributed amongſt them. When this was ſignified to the Poor, they return'd Thanks and Acclamations, one of them ſaying aloud, that now he knew my Lord was no Presbyterian, becauſe he gave ſo liberally to the Poor. Having paſs'd Perſhore, he was firſt met by Captain Kite's Troop, who ſaluted his Lordſhip with a Volley of Shot. Nearer Worceſter the Archdeacon, all the Prebends of Worceſter (except Mr. Reynolds, Son to the Biſhop of Norwich) and a great Multitude of the Clergy met him, and attended him towards Worceſter. About two Miles from the City that noble and loyal Gentleman Sir John Packington, Baronet, with ſeveral other Gentlemen, and his gallant Troop of Voluntiers waited his Lordſhip's coming, and after Salutations and thoſe Expreſſions of Joy which abundantly teſtified his Welcome to Worceſter, they march on towards the City, and at Red-Hill (about a Mile from the City) the right Honourable and right Valiant Lord Windſor (Lord Lieutenant for his Majeſty of that County) expected the Lord Biſhop's coming, and with him thoſe worthy and loyal Gentlemen, Sir John Winford the high Sheriff, Sir Henry Littleton, Sir John Talbot, Sir Rowland Berkley, the reſt of the Deputy Lieutenants, with their Troops, and a numerous Company of Gentlemen. After mutual Salutations and ſome Vollies of Shot (the Trumpets ſounding) the Lord Lieutenant gave Command to march in this Order. Firſt the Clergy by two and two, next all the Prebends of Worceſter, after them the Chancellor and Archdeacon, next to whom the Trumpeters in rich Liveries ſounding; then my Lord Windſor and my Lord Biſhop on his right Hand (my Lord Windſor refuſing to march unleſs the Biſhop would be pleaſed to take that Hand) after them all the Troops and Gentlemen.

To the Biſhop's Palace.

In this order they advance to Worceſter, where the Militia of that loyal City were by their Commanders Captain Streate, Captain Sheldon, &c.) ranked in excellent Order on both Sides of the Street, from the Gate of the City to the Biſhop's Palace; whither when their Lordſhips and the Gentlemen were come and alighted, three Vollies of Shot ſaluted them, the Trumpets ſounding in the Intervals.

To the Cathedral.

After half an Hour's Stay, the Biſhop having put on his Rochet, his Lordſhip (my Lord Windſor all the Commanders and Gentlemen, with a very numerous Company of People attending) went to the Cathedral in this Order; all the Prebendaries of the Church in their Formalities advanced before the Biſhop to the Church Style, from whence to the Door of the Church, were placed all the Petty-Canons, Singing Men, Choriſters, and the whole Quire in their Surplices, who at my Lord Biſhop's Approach advanced orderly towards the Church, singing Te Deum and such other Hymns as the Piety of our Forefathers thought congruous for such Solemnities. This done (that I may not trouble you with too many Particulars) and Prayers ended, my Lord Bishop gave the Benediction to the People (which I hear he is reſolved ever to do as long as he continues here) and then his Lordſhip was conducted back again to his Palace, where he had prepared a very noble Entertainment for all thoſe loyal and worthy Perſons, who had ſhewn their Love and Reſpect to the Church of England and his Lordſhip, in their chearful attending this Solemnity. An Entertainment worthy the Hoſpitality of a Biſhop, and the generous Mind of him that gave it.

With Plenty and Sobriety.

It was obſerved by many, and not a little wondred at, that in ſo great and promiſcuous a Multitude, entertained with ſo great Plenty and Affluence of all Sorts of Meats and Wines, not one Perſon was ſeen intemperate, or any Way to have exceeded the Bounds of Sobriety. In ſhort that loyal City and County ſeem to me, and are (I perfectly believe) highly well ſatisfied with the Perſon, Piety and Charity of their good Biſhop, which ſignally appeared in the honourable and hearty Reception they gave him; which was not like the Dulneſs of theſe divided Times, but ſuch as in the primitive and purer Times (many Ages e're Preſbytery was hatch'd) Alexandria and Conſtantinople gave to the great Athanaſius and Chryſoſtome at their Return from Baniſhment. His Palace which by the Iniquity of the late Times (which pretended Reformation, but practiſed Ruin) was much defaced, my Lord hath well repaired with the Expence of about 1000*l.* Non ſibi ſed ſucceſſoribus, Poſterity will reap the Benefit of his Lordſhip's preſent Expence and Charity.

And great Joy of the City and County.

Repair of the Palace.

And Bounty to other pious and charitable Uſes.

One Action more I cannot omit; the laſt Leaſe which his Lordſhip renewed, having (in favour of the good Tenant) ſet a very moderate Fine (about 300*l.*) he received not one Penny of it, but appointed the Tenant to pay 100*l.* to St. Paul's Church, 100*l.* more to Chriſt-Church in Oxon. and the reſt to Worceſter, towards the repairing the Ruins of thoſe Cathedrals. I know our Preſbyterian and Fanatick Purchaſers of Church Lands, have uſually defaced Churches, ſelling the Glaſs, Timber, Lead, &c. but that any or all of them have given ſo much (as at this Time the good Biſhop did) toward the Reparation of God's Houſe, I find not, and ſhall commend his Invention who can. My Lord (notwithſtanding his Wearineſs after ſo long a Journey) purpoſes to preach to Morrow.

William Stroud or Strode, who had been a Parliament Man, and one of the five Members demanded by King Charles I.

MONDAY Sept. 16.

Reception of Bishop Walton at Chester.

Met at Litchfield.

Publick Intelligence, 4to. No. 38.

Advice from Chester of the noble Reception of our learned Biſhop, Dr. Brian Walton, into his Dioceſe. On Tueſday the third Inſtant his Lordſhip left London, and the Saturday following, September 7. when he came within ſix Miles of Litchfield, ſome Perſons of very good Worth met him, who came purpoſely from this City of Cheſter, (above 50 Miles from that Place) the next Day being Sunday he reſted at Litchfield, where his Lordſhip and all we that were with him went to the Chapter-Houſe, there to pay to God Almighty the Duty of the Day.

Ruins of the Cathedral.

Want of a Biſhop.

I need not tell you the Condition of that Cathedral by the Iniquity of the late Times, though the Minſter is not (all Things conſidered) ſo much wanted, as ſome reverend prudent Man, whoſe Experience in the Church may beſt take Care of thoſe two Counties of Warwick and Stafford, as a very conſiderable Part of the Church of England.

At Stone.

Next Morning, Monday Sept. 9. his Lordſhip went to Stone, but in the Midway 'twixt Litchfield and that Town, he was met by more Perſons of Quality, who alſo came from Cheſter: And next Day almoſt all the Gentry of the whole County, and the Militia both of the County and City went out to meet him.

At Nantwich.

Five Troops of Horſe met him at Nantwich upon Tueſday Night: The Day following the ſpiritual Militia (the true Sons of the Church of England) came to their reverend Dioceſan on the Road; the Militia of the City received him at the Confines of their Liberties with much Gladneſs, and with many of the Aldermen conducted him into the Town, which he no ſooner entred, but many thouſands of the People bleſſing God for ſo happy a Sight, made many and loud Acclamations.

At Cheſter.

To the Cathedral Church.

Having thus brought him to the Palace, they there ſaluted him in the Language of Soldiers with ſeveral Volleys of Shot. As ſoon as he had put on his Epiſcopal Robes, he haſted the Performance of his Devotions in the Quire. When he entred the Body of the Church, the Dean (Dr. Henry Bridgman, Brother to the Lord Chief Juſtice Bridgman) and all the Members of the Cathedral habited in their Albes, received a Bleſſing from his Lordſhip, ſung the Te Deum, and ſo compaſſing the Quire in the Manner of a Proceſſion, conveyed him to his Chair. After the Solemnity was ended, with his Lordſhip pronouncing a Benediction, they all waited on him back to his Palace, and committed him to his Reſt.

Entertainment by the Dean, Dr. Bridgman.

The next Day the generous Dean gave a noble Entertainment to his Lordſhip and his Family, and all the Officers and Gentry, where with much Chearfulneſs and great Reſolution, they profeſſed their Affection to the Maintenance of Epiſcopal Government.

Petition of Francis Smith in Priſon for printing Mirabilis Annus.

Extracts from the Council-Books.

Whitehall, September 20.

In Council, upon reading the Petition of Francis Smith Stationer, now Priſoner in the Gate-Houſe, for having a Hand in compiling and printing a ſeditious Book, intituled Mirabilis Annus. Ordered, that it be referred to Mr. Secretary Nicholas to do therein as he ſhall find moſt proper for the Diſcovery of that ſeditious Book, and the Relief of the Petitioner if he find Cauſe.

Account of that Pamphlet.

A. Wood.

The said Pamphlet, intituled Mirabilis Annus, was a Libel on the Government relating several pretended Prodigies and Judgments on the Nation. This first Part was published in August 1661. another call'd Mirabilis Annus secundus in August 1662. and even a third in December the same Year; but whether any more followed I find not. They were published purposely to breed in the Vulgar an ill Opinion of the Change of Government and Religion after the King's Restoration.

The English Papists free from Prosecution.

The English Papists, tho' disappointed in their late Hopes of obtaining a Repeal of the Penal Laws against them, yet lived free from any Prosecutions, and by his Majesty's Favour enjoy'd great Liberty and Indulgence. Of which the Lord Clarendon gives the best and truest Reason.

Lord Clarendon against Cressy, 8vo, p. 86.

The King's Obligations and Favour to them.

The Nation then content with it.

Is there one Roman Catholick in England of the Laity or the Clergy, that hath suffered in the least Degree in his Person or his Estate, for being a Roman Catholick (whether many have not gotten by it, who would not have been considered under any other Title, many Men do doubt) since the Time of his Majesty's blessed Restauration. Did they ever enjoy the like Tranquillity for a quarter of that Time since the Reformation? The King looked upon many of them as Persons who had deserved well from his blessed Father and himself, which cannot be denied; and upon the rest as good Subjects; and upon all of them as Men who had suffered with him, if not for him, in the late barbarous Times of Usurpation. His Majesty graciously remembred the Humanity he had found in many Catholick Countries, and from some Catholick Princes, who always besought him not to be severe to his Catholick Subjects, when God should restore them to his Protection: And it was not agreeable to the Gentleness and Clemency of his Majesty's Nature, when he pardoned all the Breach and Contempt and Violation of the Laws, almost to the highest and foulest Transgressors, upon his Arrival to awaken those Laws for the Destruction of his poor Catholick Subjects, which upon the Matter had slept even in that Season of Tyranny, though a more arbitrary Power had been exercised for their Ruin, as well as for theirs, who had been most active and faithful to him. And the whole Nation was as well content with that his Majesty's Lenity, and did not think it reasonable that the general and universal Joy which filled the Hearts of all Men with the Blessing of the King's Return should be eclipsed or interrupted by the Tears and Sighs of their Roman Catholick Neighbours, and that they who had born their full Share in the late Persecution, should undergo new Vexations by the exacting those Penalties which they were liable to, by Laws which had been necessary to be provided against them in Times wherein there was more Cause to be jealous of them, than they hoped there was or would be hereafter. This cannot be denied to be the Case of the Roman Catholicks in England for many Years after the Till the rude and boiſterous Behaviour of the Papiſts diſturb'd the Calm,

And compell'd the King to withdraw that Countenance from them.

the King's Return, until the rude and boiſterous Behaviour of ſome of them diſturbed the happy Calm they all enjoyed; and the Vanity and Folly of others made that ill uſe of the King's Bounty and Generoſity towards them, that they endeavoured to make it believed that it proceeded not from Charity and Compaſſion towards their Perſons, but from Affection to their Religion, and took upon them to reproach the Church of England and all who adhered to it, as if they had been in a Condition as well as a Diſpoſition to oppreſs it. —— This hath chang'd the Face of that Affair, and even compelled his Majeſty to withdraw that Countenance from them, that he was willing ſhould have been more propitious to them, if they had known how modeſtly and innocently to have been happy under the Shadow of it.

Wood's Ath. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 572.

Thomas Gawen, Son of a Miniſter of the City of Briſtol, born at Marſhfield in Glouceſterſhire, educated in Wincheſter School, made perpetual Fellow of New-College, Anno 1632. aged 22, taking the Degrees of Arts and Holy Orders, travelled to Rome; and after his Return became Chaplain to Dr. Curl Biſhop of Wincheſter, who gave him a Prebend in that Church, and the Rectory (as I conceive) of Exton in Hampſhire. About the End of 1642. having the Year before left his Fellowſhip, he was appointed by the Biſhop to be Tutor to his Son at Magdalen College, where being eſteem'd a Perſon of admirable Breeding, his Company was much deſir'd and courted by Reaſon of his Travels and Diſcourſe, which ſavoured at that Time nothing of Popery, but rather an Averſion from it. Afterwards upon the Delivery up of his Charge, and a Foreſight of the Ruin of the Church of England, he travelled again to Rome with the Heir of the Dorceſtrian Pierpoints, ſpent ſome Time there and in other Parts of Italy, and returning thro' France, met with an intimate Friend of his (lately of Magdalen College) at Paris, with whom having ſeveral Conferences, that Perſon found his Diſcourſe changed, and ſome Tincture therein of the Romiſh dye: Whereupon he acquainting Dr. Stephen Goffe of the Perſon, he deſired his Company, but could not by any Means perſuade him to come within the Verge of the Court of the Queen-Mother of England then there, and the Reaſon of it was, as they conceived, becauſe he would keep his Opinion undiſcovered, to the End that he might afterwards gain ſome Profit from the Church of England. After his Majeſty's Return, he was reſtored to what he had loſt, became Rector of Biſhops-Stoke in Hampſhire, and of Fawley, but the laſt he never enjoy'd, becauſe not inducted thereunto. About that Time being diſcovered to be what he was, a Roman Catholick, he willingly left all he had, and to prevent Danger that might enſue from his clerical Brethren, he procured himſelf, by the Endeavours of Dr. Goffe, and Lord Abbot Mountague, to be ſworn a Servant to Henrietta Maria the Queen-Mother. Afterwards he went a third Time to Rome, married an Italian Woman well born, and had a Child by her, but becauſe he had nothing with her, left her and the Child, and returned to his native Countrey, his Wealth being kept for the Children of his Brother, who was then P. of the P. P. at London. About that Time he took up his Quarters in the City of Weſtminſter, lived a retired Life, a perpetual Student in religionary Controverſies, and wrote many Things. ——He died at his Houſe ſituate in the Pall-Mall on the 8th of March 1683. and was buried in the Church of St. Martin in the Fields, leaving then behind him the Character among Men, eſpecially thoſe of his own Perſuaſion, of a learned and religious Perſon.

There was publiſhed after his Death, A brief Explanation of the ſeveral Myſteries of the holy Maſs, and of the Actions of the Prieſt celebrating, very neceſſary for all Roman Catholicks for the better Underſtanding thereof: With certain Reflections upon the Apoſtles Creed touching the Sacrament. And divers Meditations and Prayers both before and after the Communion. London, 1686. 8vo.

Faſti Oxon. Vol. I. col. 836.

Elliot Farley of Baliol College, Oxon. a Worceſterſhire Man born, and bred under Mr. Henry Bright in the King's School at Worceſter, admitted Batchelor of Arts, Feb. 1, 1620. did leave Baliol College before he was Maſter of Arts, and croſſing the Seas became a Prieſt in the Church of Rome, and at preſent (1661,) he is ſaid to be the chief Favourite of the Pope, and in likelihood to be the next Cardinal.

A remarkable Story of the Papiſts being inſtrumental in procuring the Death of King Charles I.

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol. Lib. I. Part. II. p. 373.

I ſhall inſert a Paſſage not contemptible concerning the Papiſts, becauſe I am fallen into the mention of them. In Cromwell's Days, when I was writing a Book againſt the Papiſts, and my holy Commonwealth, and was charging their Treaſons and Rebellions on the Army, one Mr. James Stansfield, a reverend Miniſter of Glouceſterſhire called on me, and told me a Story, which afterwards he ſent me under his Hand, and warranted me to publiſh it, which was this:

By Mr. Atkins.

One Mr. Atkins of Glouceſterſhire, Brother to Judge Atkins, being beyond Sea, with others that had ſerv'd the late King, fell into intimate Acquaintance with a Prieſt, that had been (or then was) Governour of one of their Colleges in Flanders; they agreed not to meddle with each other about Religion, and ſo continued their Friendſhip long. A little after the King was beheaded, Mr. Atkins met this Prieſt in London, and going into a Tavern with him, ſaid to him in his familiar Way, What Buſineſs have you here? I warrant you come about ſome Roguery or other. Whereupon the Prieſt told it him as a great Secret, that there were thirty of them here in London, who by Inſtructions from Cardinal Mazarine, did take Care of ſuch Affairs, and had ſate in Council and debated the Queſtion, Whether the King ſhould be put to Death or not? And that it was carried in the Affirmative, and there were but two Voices for the Negative, which was his own and another's: And that for his Part, he could not concur with them as foreſeeing what Miſery this would bring upon his Countrey. That Mr. Atkins ſtood to the Truth of this, but thought it a Violation of the Laws of Friendſhip to name the Man.

With further Confirmation of it.

I would not print it without fuller Atteſtation, leſt it ſhould be a Wrong to the Papiſts. But when the King was reſtored and ſettled in Peace, I told it occaſionally to a Privy Counſellor, who not adviſing me to meddle any further in it, becauſe the King knew enough of Mazarine's Deſigns already, I let it alone. But about this Time I met with Dr. Thomas Goad, and occaſionally mentioning ſuch a Thing, he told me, that he was familiarly acquainted with Mr. Atkins, and would know the Certainty of him whether it were true: And not long after meeting him again, he told me that he ſpoke with Mr. Atkins, and that he aſſured him it was true; but he was loath to meddle in the Publication of it. Nor did I think it Prudence myſelf to do it, as knowing the Malice and Power of the Papiſts.

Since this, Dr. Peter Moulin hath in his Anſwer to Philanax Anglicus declared, that he is ready to prove, when Authority will call him to it, that the King's Death and the Change of the Government, was firſt propoſed both to the Sorbonne, and to the Pope with his Conclave, and conſented to and concluded for by both.

Of the popiſh Practices in the late Times as then complain'd of to the Houſe of Peers.

Epiſt. Ded. To the Houſe of Peers.

—— You have had within theſe five Years ſad Experience, what little Difference common Calamity puts between High and Low, Noble and Beggars, Mean and Honourable. And how unlikely Things are to be better your Lordſhips may judge, when (if Fame belye them not) thoſe who were the firſt Complotters of our Miſeries, Jeſuits and their Adherents, hundreds of them walk up and down in other Shapes, not fomenting only, but acting likewiſe ſo many ſeveral Sects in the Church and blowing up the Coals of irreconcileable Diſſenſions in the State; and all to bury not your Honours alone, but Religion and the whole Church of God, and Kingdom too in its own Ruins. —— The unnatural bloody War now amongſt us is a Fruit of the former Tree, a Spawn of the old Serpent, a War, I am confident, begot in Rome, hatch'd in Ireland, and foſtered up in England and Scotland by the ſame Nurſes and Midwives, the Jeſuits and their Adherents, who were the firſt Plotters and Contrivers of it. Right Honourable and Beloved, durſt I be ſo bold, I could name you the Man yet living amongſt us, by whom it was confeſs'd, by one very near to the Conclave of Rome, almoſt four Years before any Thing appeared (Anno 1637.) what ſhould happen within few Years after the Time, the Year, the Place, where it ſhould begin, whither after it ſhould ſpread, with other remarkable Circumſtances, as he heard it himſelf plotted at Rome before, and has punctually fallen out both in Ireland and England ſince.

Death of Thomas Chaloner one of the Regicides.

Athen. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 174.

Thomas Chaloner, a younger Son of Sir Thomas Chaloner, Knt. born at Steeple-Claydon near Buckingham: A Sojourner in Exeter College, Oxon. in the Beginning of 1611. aged 16. But before he took a Degree, he left the College and travell'd into France, Italy and Germany, and return'd a well-bred Gentleman. About that Time he ſettled at or near Giſburgh in Yorkſhire. —— Elected a Burgeſs to ſerve in the Long Parliament about 1643. a frequent Speaker, an Enemy to the King, his Family and Government; partly out of his natural Inclination, and partly out of Revenge for the Loſs which his Father endured for being deprived of the Propriety of the Allom Mines in Yorkſhire, which he had diſcovered about the latter End of Queen Elizabeth.

His Stations and Character.

He was one of the King's Judges in 1648. and ſoon after made a Member of the Council of State. In 1658. he was elected a Burgeſs for Scarborough in Yorkſhire, to ſerve in the Parliament call'd by Richard; but upon the turning out of the Rump, Octob. 13, 1659. he was committed to Priſon by General Fleetwood, where continuing till the 27th of December following he was releaſed to ſit again in the Rump, and on the 2d of January following he was appointed by the Houſe one of the Council of State. He was as far from a Puritan or Preſbyterian, as the Eaſt is from the Weſt, was of Harry Marten's Gang, was of the natural Religion, and loved to enjoy the comfortable Importances of this Life, without any Regard of laying up for a wet Day, which at his laſt he wanted. He publiſhed ſeveral Things, &c. at length in the Beginning of 1660. upon a Foreſight that King Charles II. would be reſtored, he withdrew himſelf beyond the Seas, and ſettling in a fearful Condition at Middleburgh in Zealand, died and was buried there about 1661.

A Petition for Peace with the Reformation of the Liturgy. As it was preſented to the Right Reverend Biſhops, by the Divines appointed by his Majeſty's Commiſſion to treat with them about the Alteration of it.

London, printed Anno Dom. 1661.

Moſt Reverend Fathers and Reverend Brethren,

The ſpecial Providence of God and his Majeſty's tender Regard of the Peace and Conſciences of their Subjects, and his Deſire of their Concord in the Things of God, hath put into our Hands this Opportunity of ſpeaking to you as humble Petitioners, as well as Commiſſioners, on the behalf of theſe yet troubled and unhealed Churches, and of many thouſand Souls that are dear to Chriſt, on whoſe Behalf we are preſſed in Spirit in the Senſe of our Duty moſt earneſtly to beſeech you, &c.

[Concluding.] We humbly beg your favourable Interpretation of our plain and earneſt Language, which the Urgency of the Cauſe commands, and your Conſent to theſe our neceſſary Requeſts; which if you grant us you will engage us to Thankfulneſs to God and you, and to employ our Faculties and Intereſts with Alacrity to aſſiſt you for the common Peace. But if you reject our Suit (which God forbid) we ſhall commit all to him that judgeth righteouſly, and wait in hope for the bleſſed Day of univerſal Judgment, when the Lord of Hoſts their ſtrong Redeemer ſhall throughly plead his Peoples Cauſe, and execute Judgment for them, and bring them forth into the Light, and they ſhall behold his Righteouſneſs. In the mean Time we will bear the Indignation of the Lord, becauſe we have ſinned againſt him. Come Lord Jeſus, come quickly! Amen.

Tryal of Mr. Andrew Parſons, Preacher, for ſeditious Words.

Mr. Andrew Parſons had been Miniſter of Wem in Shropſhire 'till 1660. at the latter End of which he was brought into Trouble, on the Account of ſeditious Words, which were ſworn againſt him, which were theſe, That the Devil was like a King, that courted the Soul, and ſpoke fair 'till he was gotten into the Throne, and then play'd Pranks. The Witneſs depoſed contrary to the Coherence of the Diſcourſe, that he ſaid the King was like the Devil: He was try'd at Shrewſbury, before my Lord Newport. Mr. Serjeant Turner, and others, May 28 and 29, 1661. It was alſo charged upon him, that he ſaid, There was more Sin committed now in England in a Month, than was heretofore in ſeven Years: And that there had been more and better Preaching in England for twenty Years paſt, than was ever ſince the Apoſtles Days. He had Council aſſign'd him, who pleaded that the Time limited by the Statute on which he was indicted, was expired. The Court yielded it was ſo, allowing twenty eight Days to a Month, but they would underſtand it of thirty Days in a Month. So he was found Guilty, and fin'd two hundred Pounds, and order'd to be impriſon'd 'till it ſhould be paid. He continued near three Months in Priſon, 'till the Lord Newport without his Knowledge procur'd the King's Pardon for his Fine. This Tryal made a great Noiſe.

SUNDAY Octob. 6.
Popery much countenanced at Court;
And yet the Jesuits had gained more Proselytes in the late Times of Confusion.

Popery was protected and favoured at Court by the special Interest of the Queen Mother, and yet the Roman Priests and Jesuits had gain'd more Proselytes in the late lamentable Confusions, than they now did in a peaceable Reign. As was well observed by Mr. John Shaw, Rector of Whalton in Northumberland, and Preacher at St. John's in Newcastle upon Tyne; saith he, —— When it pleased God of his great Goodness and Mercy to this persecuted Church and harrassed Kingdom, by a miraculous Providence, to restore his Sacred Majesty to his just Rights, and the Church to her legal and primitive Settlement, I also who was before necessitated to seek Shelter elsewhere ('till the Tyranny was over-past) returned to my own native Countrey, where I found divers (whom I left professed Sons of our Church) turned Renegades, having forsaken their own Mother in the Day of Tryal, and betaken themselves to that flattering Step-Dame of Rome. This I reflected on with much Regret, and so much the more because I found that with this Defection from their Mother, they were also grown cool in their Affection to the common Father of their Countrey, our Sovereign Lord the King, as being sowred with republican or protectorial Leaven, insused into them by the so much admired Thomas de Albiis, amongst others. I observed further that the Romanists in these Parts grew every Day more insolently active to bring more Grist to their own Mill, and list more Men in the Pope's Service, not only by printed Books, but also by private Letters and Manuscripts; the first whereof came to my Hands was the short Letter subjoin'd to this Treatise, to which I have, upon my Friend's Request, framed an Answer, and here annexed

Preface to Origo Protestantium, 1677. 4^to.

Origo Proteſtantium: Or an Anſwer to a Popiſh Manuſcript of N. N. *that would fain make the Proteſtant Catholick Religion bear date at the very Time when the Roman Popiſh commenced in the World. Wherein Proteſtancy is demonſtrated to be elder than Popery. To which is added, A Jeſuit's Letter, with the Anſwer thereunto annexed. nexed to the Letter. [The Jeſuits Letter deſiring to receive Solutions to two Queſtions; 1. To nominate the Profeſſors of the Proteſtant Faith ſucceſſively ſince the Apoſtles. 2. To evidence that the Engliſh Clergy hath a lawful Miſſion.] The next I met with was a Manuſcript (that would fain uſurp the Title of Origo Proteſtantium) ſent me by a Gentleman for my Opinion thereof, which after having peruſed and tranſcribed it, I returned to him again, and have here endeavoured to refute, and therein vindicate the Engliſh Reformation. —— Holding my ſelf obliged to ſend my poor Endeavours in ſcouring theſe Northern Coaſts, eſpecially of thoſe Popiſh Pirates, who count all fiſh that comes to the net, and will break all Laws to compaſs one unlawful Prize.

Account of Father Ruſſel, Agent in England for the Match with Portugal.

Ath. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 150.

Richard Ruſſel, a Rutlandſhire Man born, bred in the Engliſh College of Secular Prieſts at Liſbon in Portugal, was by the King of that Countrey deſigned to go into England as an Interpreter to Don Franciſco de Mello, Earl of Ponte, Embaſſador extraordinary from the ſaid King to King Charles II. to ſettle the Marriage between his Majeſty and Donna Catherina the Infanta of that Countrey. After Ruſſel's Return into Portugal, he was rewarded for his Pains with the Biſhoprick of Portalegre, where he now lives (1690).

That Match promoted by the Queen Mother as an Agent for France.

Life of Lord Chancellour Clarendon, 8^vo^. p. 157.

It is very well known, that the Queen Mother was in England, when this Matter was firſt ſet on Foot, and thoſe who ſeemed to have the beſt Judgment and Inſight into the Intrigues of thoſe Times, looked upon her coming over into England at that Time, to be in the Nature of a private Agent from the French Court, to promote that Match, which muſt redound (as it did indeed) to their Advantage, by contributing to get the Crown of Portugal to be at laſt acknowledged independent of the Crown of Spain.

The Quakers forward to go as Miſſionaries of the Spirit into Foreign Parts.

Journal of George Fox, p. I. 8^vo^. p. 585.

This Year ſeveral Friends were moved to go beyond the Seas, to publiſh Truth in Foreign Countries. John Stubbs, and Henry Fell, and Richard Coſtrop were moved to go towards China and Preſtor John's Countrey, but no Maſters of Ships would carry them. With much ado they got a Warrant from the King, but the Eaſt-India Company found Ways to avoid it, and the Maſters of their Ships would not carry them. Then they went into Holland, hoping to have got Paſſage there, but no Paſſage could they get there neither. Then John Stubbs and Henry Fell took Shipping to go to Alexandria in Egypt, intending to go by the Caravans from thence. Mean while Daniel Baker being to go to Smyrna, he drew Richard Coſtrop contrary to his own Freedom, to go along with him. And in the Paſſage Richard falling ſick, Daniel Baker left him ſick in the Ship, where he died: But that hard-hearted Man afterwards loſt his own Condition.

John Stubbs and Henry Fell get to Alexandria.

Baniſhed thence by the Engliſh Conſul.

When they had diſperſed many Books, and ſent one to the Pope.

John Stubbs and Henry Fell got to Alexandria in Egypt, but they had not been long there before the Engliſh Conſul baniſhed them from thence; yet before they came away, they diſperſed many Books and Papers there for the opening the Principles and Ways of Truth to the Turks and Grecians. They gave the Book called, The Pope's Strength broken, to an old Frier, for him to give or ſend to the Pope; which Book when the Frier had peruſed, he clapp'd his Hand to his Breaſt, and confeſſed, what was written therein was Truth; but (ſaid he) if I ſhould confeſs it openly, they would burn me. So John Stubbs and Henry Fell not being ſuffered to go farther, returned to England, and came to London again. And John had a Viſion, that the Engliſh and Dutch, who joined together not to carry them, would fall out one with the other, and ſo it came to paſs.

Dr. John Barwick, upon a Proſpect of the King's Return, had an Offer of the Biſhoprick of the Iſle of Man; but he proſecuted the Intereſt of others more than his own. For when the Right Honourable the Counteſs Dowager of Derby deſired him to give up the Right he had to the Biſhoprick of the Iſle of Man, ſince (as ſhe ſaid) he might hope for better Preferment from his Majeſty; and her Ladyſhip was very deſirous, if he would give Way, to prefer her Chaplain, Mr. Samuel Rutter, to that Dioceſe; Dr. Barwick readily comply'd with her Requeſt, much rejoyc'd that it was in his Power to oblige ſo great a Perſon. Life of Dr. Barwick Eng. 8vo. 24.

After the Death of Dr. Matthew Nicholas Dean of St. Paul's, the Governours of the Church, by his Majeſty's Command, ſent for Dr. John Barwick Dean of Durham up to London to take Poſſeſſion of the Deanery of St. Paul's, as a Perſon not unfit to contribute ſomething to the Reparation of the immenſe Ruins of that Cathedral. It is well known to every one, that if Dr. Barwick had regarded his own private Intereſt and Advantage, he would not have accepted this new Deanery, where there was neither Houſe nor Furniture, but what was either hired or bought, in exchange for that other, where neither was wanting. And indeed in Anſwer to his Majeſty's Meſſage he wrote expreſly, that he knew very well, the Dignity whereto he was going to be promoted was both of leſs Value than that he muſt relinquiſh, and of greater Care and Trouble; and that what he then enjoy'd was ſo agreeable to him, that if it were at his Option, he would not quit it for the greateſt Dignity in the Church, much leſs for that he was then commanded to accept; yet that he received his Majeſty's Commands with the utmoſt Veneration, and ſhould willingly comply with the Orders of his Superiors in the Church.

About the Middle of October 1661. Dr. Barwick undertook this new and difficult Charge, with a Habit of Body broken by Care and Pains, but with a Mind ſufficiently raiſed. His firſt Care at London was, what it had been alſo at Durham, to reſtore the Celebration of Divine Service by the ſacred Muſick of a Choir, which had, for I know not what Reaſon, been hitherto omitted. Some ſay that the Dean, his Predeceſſor, had 'till then purpoſely abſtained from that Method of Celebration, in hopes by little and little thereby to abate the Envy of the Sectaries. But their Envy at that Time did not ſeem to be of ſuch Moment, if an Eſtimate thereof were made from the Force they were able to exert in the then late Elections of Parliament Men. Beſides that ſo good a Man, as we muſt think that Dean was, is reverenced even by ſuch as are bad. It ſeems more probable, that this and ſome other Things, which might have been for the Service of the Church, were omitted by that excellent Perſon, only becauſe of his ill Health: For he died within leſs than a Year after he took Poſſeſſion of the Deanery. It is certain Dr. Barwick was not much concern'd for the Envy of the Sectaries, if he lay under it. What affected him a great deal more was, that he found the College of Minor Canons to that Time, not only negligent of God's Worſhip, but fill'd with Men, for the greateſt Part, very unfit at leaſt to celebrate it in a Church, one of the moſt renowned in the whole Chriſtian World, &c.

Dr. Calamy, among the Miniſters ſuffering by the Bartholomew Act. —— Creighton or Creton Mr. Richard Hook, he was preſented to this Living by Mr. Markham. He was not ſo well lik'd by the Inhabitants at his firſt coming as he was afterwards. When he was ejected, he for ſome Time preached in his own Houſe, and then went to Northampton, where he had ſome Eſtate, and there he taught School, and went to Church, but preached occaſionally.

Funeral Sermon for a loyal Citizen, Sir Abraham Raynardſon.

The wicked Man's ſad Diſappointment, and the righteous' Man's ſure Recompence. Being a Sermon preached October 17, 1661. at the ſolemn Funeral of the Right Worſhipful Sir Abraham Raynardſon, Knight, late Alderman of London. By George Smallwood, M. A. and Rector of St. Margaret's New Fiſh-ſtreet, London.

Epiſt. Ded. To the Right Worſhipful and truly pious Lady the Lady Raynardſon.

—He that in all publick Tranſactions expreſſed ſo much Piety and Obedience to God's Commands, ſo much Loyalty to his lawful Sovereign, ſo much religious Care to keep a ſpotleſs and undefiled Conſcience, ſo much tender Love and Reſpect to the Welfare of his Brethren and Fellow-Citizens, who was ſo zealous to preſerve the City from being ſtained with the indelible and everlaſting Infamy of Sacred Royal Blood, certainly he and his Actions deſerved a more eloquent Tongue and a more accurate Pen.

Text, Prov. xi. 18. The Wicked worketh a deceitful Work, but to him that ſoweth Righteouſneſs ſhall be a ſure Reward.

P. 29. The greateſt and moſt eminent Tryal and Teſtimony of his Righteouſneſs and Integrity was in that fatal Year 1648. when the Blood of his Sacred Majeſty was ſhed by cruel and wicked Hands, then it pleaſed God to call him to be Lord-Mayor of London, in which Office, coming to him in ſuch a ſtormy Time, he was ſtedfaſt and unmoveable from his Integrity, he ſhewed himſelf a good Chriſtian, a wiſe Magiſtrate, a loyal Subject, and a loving Citizen. —— in three very memorable Paſſages.

1. When a Treaty was concluded between his late Majeſty of Bleſſed Memory, and the Parliament then ſitting, and in Order thereunto an Engagement was ſubſcribed by moſt of the Common-Council and principal Members of the City, for the carrying on of that Treaty; afterwards the Treaty proving ineffectual, and the Parliament being diſſolv'd by the unjuſt Violence of the Army and their Abettors, a ſtrict Enquiry was made after the Names of thoſe that ſubſcribed the perſonal Treaty. But the Book wherein the Names of the Subſcribers on both Parts, for and againſt the Treaty were written, containing about two Reams of Paper, being privately brought to this worthy Knight, then Lord-Mayor; he tend'ring the Good and Welfare of all his Brethren and Fellow-Citizens, not knowing what might be the Conſequence of it, if ſuch a Record ſhould be found extant, took it and burnt it to Aſhes privately in his Chamber, that nothing might remain to the Prejudice of any. How many, perhaps, here preſent were deeply engaged to him for the Safety of their Eſtates, if not of their Lives, by this one Action.

2. When ſome tumultuous and buſy Commoners had contrived a traiterous and wicked Petition to bring his Sacred Majeſty and others to a Tryal, and were vehemently urgent to have it read and voted in the Common-Council, that ſo it might be preſented to the then new moulded Parliament, as the Deſire of the whole City; this heroick and noble Knight oppoſed the promoting thereof, and would not ſuffer it neither to be read nor voted, notwithſtanding the Rage and Violence of the adverſe Party, who told him, they would have it voted whether he would or no before their Riſing, and ſome of them ſtirred up a tumultuous Rabble againſt him without; notwithſtanding all this unworthy Dealing with him, he continued like an unmoveable Rock, perſiſting in his Reſolution, and endured thoſe Inſolencies from eight of the Clock in the Morning 'till eight at Night, accompanied only with two of his Brethren, and would not yield a Jot to their unreaſonable Deſires, notwithſtanding all their clamorous Importunities: And at laſt when no Reaſon would prevail with them, not able longer to endure their uncivil Behaviour towards him, and chiefly that he might to the utmoſt of his Power keep the City and Citizens from being ſtained with the Guilt of that Sacred Innocent Blood, he reſolutely took up the Sword and departed the Court to his great Hazard. All theſe Proceedings he cauſed to be regiſtred in the Book of Records belonging to the City for an evident Teſtimony to After-times of his own and the City's Integrity and Innocency as to that ungodly and execrable Fact of taking away the King's Life, which he heartily abhorred: For all which gallant and noble Reſolutions and Performances he had ſince publick Thanks given him by a Declaration from the City.

3. When the uſurping Parliament had made an Act to aboliſh the Kingly Office and Houſe of Lords, and ſent it to this worthy Perſon, then Lord-Mayor, to be proclaimed at the uſual Places of the City, he judging it altogether inconſiſtent with, nay, poſitively contrary to the ſeveral Oaths which he had taken, and conſidering of what dangerous Conſequence it might be to the City and Citizens, he delayed to do it for eight Days; and afterward being ſummoned to come in Perſon before the Parliament to give a Reaſon of his Refuſal, he appearing told them plainly, that his Conſcience being 'forecharged with divers Oaths would not permit him to do what they required, though he was before ſo great an Aſſembly, ſurrounded with his Enemies, and his Perſon, Eſtate, Liberty, and Life were all in their Power, and lay at their Mercy, which was no better than Cruelty; yet he did not ſhrink back for Fear, but gave them a flat Denial to their very Faces. Whereupon he was voted out of his Office, fined two thouſand Pounds, and committed Priſoner to the Tower of London, where he remained for a Time, and was afterward releaſed. But not paying his Fine, the Committee for advance of Monies ordered his Goods, houſhold Stuff, and wearing Apparel to be ſequeſtred and ſold by a Candle, which was done accordingly, and ſo his whole Fine was extorted from him in Money, Bonds, and Goods, by the Power of that Committee. —— His being Lord-Mayor that Year was prejudicious to his Eſtate at leaſt to the Value of twenty thouſand Pounds, beſide his Fine, as he hath affirmed under his own Hand, and I dare believe it, coming from the Mouth or Pen of a Perſon of ſuch Worth and Integrity as he was, and for all theſe Sufferings he hath had no Recompence upon Earth. —— God only is his exceeding great Reward, &c.

Order againſt putting Saint Paul's Church to any prophane Uſe.

An Order of the Mayor and Court of Aldermen againſt any Part of St. Paul's Church being made a Market-place, or being put to any other profane Uſes for the Time to come.

Continuat. of the Hiſt. of St. Paul's Cathedral; Fol. p. 148.

The late Condition of that Church very lamentable.

St. Paul's Cathedral lay in a lamentable Condition for divers Years, being made a Horſe Quarter for Soldiers, during the whole Time of the late Uſurpation: The ſtately Portico with beautiful Corinthian Pillars, being converted to Shops for Seamſtreſſes, and other Trades, with Lofts and Stairs aſcending thereto; for the fitting whereof to that Purpoſe, thoſe ſtately Pillars were ſhamefully hewed and defaced for Support of the Timber Work; and the Statues of King James and King Charles the Martyr (erected on the Front thereof) deſpitefully thrown down and broke in Pieces.

The Reparations of it upon the King's coming in.

But ſhortly after the happy Reſtoration of King Charles II. that the Biſhop, with the Dean and Chapter, came to enjoy their rightful Poſſeſſions, Care was not only taken to prepare ſome Part of the Fabrick for the Service of God, according as it ſtood by Law eſtabliſhed, but to proceed in that great Work of its Repair, ſo carried on before thoſe woful Diſtractions, which were occaſioned by a predominant Party in that unhappy Parliament begun at Weſtminſter the 3^d^ of November 1640.

The Eaſt Part made fit for divine Service.

In order whereto, finding the Stalls in the Quire, with the Organ-Loft totally deſtroyed, it was concluded, that for preſent Uſe, the Eaſt Part of the Church above the old Quire, which ſince the demoliſhing of Paul's Croſs had been converted to a preaching Place, whereunto the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen uſually reſorted, might be fitted for divine Service; the then Dean and Canons at their own Charge enlarging it the Length of one Arch into the old Quire, and by a new Wall ſevering it therefrom, cauſed Stalls to be placed therein, intending to make uſe of it accordingly, until the Repairs of the remaining Part of the old Fabrick ſhould be fully perfected.

The Care of the new Dean. Dr. Barwick to obtain his Majeſty's Protection and Royal Grants in Favour of St. Paul's.

Life of Dr. Jo. Barwick, 8vo. p. 317.

The Dean, Dr. Barwick, thought it proper humbly to implore his Majeſty's Protection on this Occaſion, and to obtain two Royal Grants under the Broad Seal, one for Repairing the decay'd Walls of the Cathedral, the other for taking Care of its Privileges and Immunities, extinguiſh'd in the late Rebellion, and not yet ſufficiently reſtor'd. Nor did he only uſe his utmoſt Endeavours to defend againſt her Enemies, the Church under the divine Providence committed to his Charge, but ſometimes alſo employ'd his Care, that ſhe ſhould not ſuffer by the Imprudence of her Friends; if peradventure they did any thing with no ill Deſign, which Poſterity might draw in to a Precedent to her hurt. Hence it was, that when the Lord-Mayor of London (while the Dean was in the Countrey taking the Air for his Health) had order'd himſelf a new Seat to be made in St. Paul's Church at the Expence of the City; as ſoon as the Dean heard of it, he preſs'd that honourable Perſon, in more than one Letter to permit the Church, to whom the Care of thoſe Matters properly belong'd, to excuſe the City from that Expence; and took Care that Copies of the Letters which he wrote upon that Occaſion, were tranſcrib'd into the authentick Regiſters of the Church; leſt poſſibly the City let into a Miſtake by ſuch a Precedent, might afterwards claim ſome Right in a Church, which under God and the King is altogether free.

The Lord-Mayor not allow'd to erect a Seat at the Expence of the City, without Leave of the Dean.

Deceivers deceiv'd: Or the Miſtakes of Wickedneſs in ſundry erroneous and deceitful Principles, practiſed in our late fatal Times, and ſuſpected ſtill in the Reaſonings of unquiet Spirits. Delivered in a Sermon at St. Paul's, Oct. 20, 1661. before the Right Honourable Sir Richard Browne, Knight and Baronet, Lord Mayor of the City of London, and the Aldermen his Brethren. Being the Initial alſo of the Reverend Dr. John Barwick, Dean of the ſaid Church, at the firſt Celebrity of divine Service with the Organ and Choriſters, which the Lord Mayor himſelf ſolemnized with his perſonal Preſence from the very Beginning.

Text, Prov. xiv. 8. —— But the Folly of Fools is Deceit.

P. 11. A ſecond deceitful Principle is following a godly Party, whereof I take Occaſion to ſpeak from a Paſſage of mine own Experience; for being conſulted once in Point of Conſcience by a Perſon of conſiderable Quality, a little after the Beginning of the late Miſeries, whether he might lawfully and with a ſafe Conſcience take one of the rebellious Oaths or Proteſtations? And I having anſwered him in the Negative, that he might not do it with a ſafe Conſcience, he reply'd, that he would hold with the godly and praying Party, and ſo took it: And indeed this was the vulgar Error of England at that Time, to follow thoſe who had the moſt plauſible Shews of Godlineſs in outward Appearance above others. ——

P. 27. Inſtead of being led by the Spirit of God, doubtleſs ſome are led by the Spirit of the Devil; as I make no queſtion thoſe late wretched publick Murderers were (whom the Right Honourable the preſent Lord-Mayor had the Lot under God's Grace and Providence to ſuppreſs, to his monumental Honour, the Trophy whereof be his unto all Poſterity) I ſay they were not led by the Spirit of God, but by the Spirit of the Devil, as indeed ſome ſaid, they fought like Devils, &c.

Mr. Baxter's Account of printing the Papers that paſſed at the late Savoy Conference.

The publiſhing of them imputed to Mr. Baxter, which he denied and charg'd on a needy Curate who took a Copy for him.

While I was in Shropſhire and Worceſterſhire it fell out, that ſome one printed one of our Papers given in to the Biſhops: And though I was above one hundred Miles off, yet was it all imputed to me, and Roger L'Eſtrange put it in the News Book, that it was ſuppos'd to be my doing. Indeed when Dr. Gunning had aſked me, whether we would keep ours from the Preſs, if they would do the ſame by theirs, I would not promiſe him; but told him, though I ſuppoſed that none of us intended to be ſo preſumptuous as to publiſh them without Authority, yet I could promiſe nothing for all them that were abſent; nor could any one promiſe it, when ſo many Scriveners were intruſted to tranſcribe them, that the King and Biſhops might have Copies; and whether any of thoſe Scriveners might keep a Copy for themſelves I knew not. And after this moſt of the other Papers were printed, by I know not whom to this Day: But I conjectured that a poor Man that I paid for writing me a Copy (Dr. Reynolds's Curate) was likelieſt to do it, to get ſomething to ſupply his very great Wants; but I am utterly uncertain. But I had Intelligence that the ſecond Papers were in the Preſs, and that Malice might impute it to me no more, I went to Secretary Morrice, and acquainted him with it, that he might ſend a Meſſenger to ſurprize them: But he told me, that if I could aſſure him that the Biſhops had not given Conſent, I ſhould have a Warrant to ſearch for them. I told him, I knew not what He deſired Mr. Secretary Morrice to ſeize the Papers in the Preſs.

Life of Mr. Baxter, *Fol. Lib.*I. Part. II. p. 379.

what the Biſhops had done, but he might eaſily conjecture; nor would I ſearch for them, but having told him, left him to do what he thought meet.

He complains of the ſurreptitious and very faulty Impreſſion.

And confeſſes the laſt Paper was not printed without his Knowledge.

And here I muſt give Notice, that whereas there were then printed, 1. Our firſt Propoſals for Concord in Diſcipline. 2. Our Papers upon the Sight of the firſt Draught of the King's Declaration. 3. Our Petition and Reaſons to the Biſhops for Peace. 4. Our Reformed Liturgy. 5. Our Exceptions againſt the Faults of the Common-Prayer-Book. 6. Our Reply to the Biſhop's Anſwer to theſe Exceptions; with the Anſwer itſelf verbatim inſerted. 7. Our laſt Petition and Account to the King. 8. A Copy of all their Diſputation for the Liturgy with our Anſwers. All theſe being ſurreptitiouſly printed (ſave the firſt Piece) by ſome poor Men for Gain, without our Knowledge or Correction, are ſo falſly printed, that our Wrong by it is very great: Whole Lines are left out; the moſt ſignificant Words are perverted by Alterations, and this ſo frequently, that ſome Parts of the Papers (eſpecially our large Reply, and our laſt Account to the King, are made Nonſenſe and not intelligible. But the laſt Paper (Dr. Pearſon and Dr. Gunning's Diſputation) I confeſs was not printed without my Knowledge: For Biſhop Morley's Miſreports with ſo great Confidence uttered, had made it of ſome Neceſſity: But I added not one Syllable by way of Commentary, the Words themſelves being ſufficient for his Confutation.

The different Effect of publiſhing theſe Papers.

The coming forth of theſe Papers had various Effects; it increaſed the burning Indignation which before was kindled againſt me on one Side, and it ſomething mitigated the Cenſures that were taken up againſt me on the other Side, &c.

The four Claſſes of Reformers in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, could not agree upon reforming the Common-Prayer.

View of the new Directory.

The Story is obſervable, which the learned and excellent Dr. Hammond relates of thoſe four Claſſes of Reformers in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, who had ſet themſelves up in this Kingdom. Theſe had made Complaint to the Lord Burghley againſt our Liturgy, and entertained Hopes of obtaining his Favour in that Buſineſs about the Year 1585. He demanded of them whether they deſired the taking away of all Liturgy? They anſwered, no. He then required them to make a better, ſuch as they ſhould deſire to have ſettled inſtead of this. The firſt Claſſis did accordingly frame a new one (which I ſuppoſe was that Book of Common Prayers mentioned by Biſhop Bancroft, according to the general Form. But this the ſecond Claſſis diſliked, and alter'd in 600 Particulars. That again had the Fate of being quarrell'd by the third Claſſis; and what the third reſolved on by the fourth. And the diſſenting of thoſe Brethren, as the Diviſion of Tongues at Babel, was a fair Means to keep that Tower then from advancing any higher.

The Services of Biſhop Sanderſon in the late Savoy Conference.

Walton's Life of Biſhop Sanderſon, Fol. p. 37.

There was a chriſtian Care taken, that thoſe whoſe Conſciences were (as they ſaid) tender, and could not comply with the Service and Ceremonies of the Church, might have Satisfaction given by a friendly Debate betwixt a ſelect Number of them, and ſome like Number of thoſe that had been Sufferers for the Church Service and Ceremonies, and now reſtored to Liberty; of which laſt ſome were then preferr'd to Power and Dignity in the Church. And of theſe Biſhop Sanderſon was one, and then choſe to be a Moderator in that Debate, and he perform'd his Truſt with much Mildneſs, Patience and Reaſon; but all prov'd uneffectual: For there be ſome Prepoſſeſſions like Jealouſies, (which though cauſeleſs, yet) cannot be remov'd by Reaſons as apparent as Demonſtration can make any Truth. The Place appointed for this Debate was the Savoy in the Strand; and the Points debated were, I think, many; (and I think many of them needleſs) ſome affirmed to be Truth and Reaſon, ſome denied to be either; and theſe Debates being at firſt in Words, proved to be ſo looſe and perplex'd, as ſatisfied neither Party. For ſome Time that which had been affirmed was immediately forgot, or miſtaken, or denied, and ſo no Satisfaction given to either Party. And that the Debate might become more ſatisfactory and uſeful, it was therefore reſolved, that the Day following the Deſires and Reaſons of the Non-conformiſts ſhould be given in Writing, and they in Writing receive Anſwers from the conforming Party, and though I neither now can, nor need to mention all the Points debated, nor the Names of the diſſenting Brethren; yet I am ſure Mr. Richard Baxter was one, and I am ſure alſo one of the Points debated, was concerning a Command of lawful Superiours, what was ſufficient towards its being a lawful Command, &c. Atteſted by

PETER GUNNING.
JOHN PEARSON.

Moſt People underſtand this of Mr. Richard Baxter.

Theſe who were then two of the Diſputants, ſtill live, and will atteſt this; one being now Lord Biſhop of Ely, and the other of Cheſter. And the laſt of them told me very lately, that one of the Diſſenters (which I could, but forbear to name) appeared to Dr. Sanderſon to be ſo bold, ſo troubleſom, and ſo illogical in the Diſpute, as forced patient Dr. Sanderſon (who was then Biſhop of Lincoln, and a Moderator with other Biſhops) to ſay with an unuſual Earneſtneſs, that he had never met with a Man of more pertinacious Confidence, and leſs Abilities in all his Converſation.

The Caſe of Worthenbury a Chapel of Eaſe to Bangor, now a Parochial Church.

Dr. Calamy's Account, p. 702.

At the King's Return, Worthenbury in Flintſhire (which had in the Interim been ſeparated and fixed as a Pariſh by itſelf; as it hath ſince been to Perpetuity by an Act of Parliament in the 2d of William and Mary) return'd to its Dependance as a Chapelry upon Bangor, and Mr. Fogg being ejected thence, Dr. Henry Bridgman return'd to the ſequeſtred Rectory. —— Mr. Puleſton and Dr. Bridgman having had a Diſpute about the Tythe of Worthenbury, came to this Agreement (by the Mediation of Sir Thomas Hanmer) on Sept. 11, 1661. that Dr. Bridg-

Dr. Bridgman and his Succeſſors ſhould have all the Tythe Corn and Hay of Worthenbury (except the Tythe Hay of Emeral Demeſne) if before the firſt of November following he diſcharg'd Mr. Philip Henry from the Chapel of Worthenbury without ſuffering him to officiate there any more in any Time to come. Hereupon Dr. Bridgman diſcharg'd him by a Writing under his Hand, which was publiſh'd in the Church by one of Mr. P's Servants on October the 27th.

MONDAY Oct. 28. Dr. Ralph Widdrington expell'd from a Fellowſhip of Chriſt's College, Cambridge, ſued a Mandamus to be reſtored.

Raymond's Reports, Fol. 1696, p. 21.

Term. Mich. 13 Car. II. Dr. Ralph Widdrington Fellow of Chriſt's College in Cambridge, was ejected out of his Fellowſhip by the Maſter and Fellows, and he brings a Mandamus to be reſtored to it: And upon this Writ the Maſter and Fellows return (amongſt other Things) that if any Fellow be peccant, he ſhall be corrected by the Maſter and Dean; and if he find himſelf aggrieved with his Puniſhment it is lawful to appeal to the Chancellor of the Univerſity and two ſenior Doctors. And upon this Return, the Court reſolved, that Dr. Widdrington ſhall not have Remedy here, but he ought to reſort to the Viſitors mentioned in the Return, &c.

The Court ſend him back to the proper Viſitors of the College.

Term. Hill. 13, 14 Car. II. Dr. Widdrington being expell'd from his Fellowſhip in Cambridge ſued for a Mandamus to be reſtored to it. But it was reſolved, that tho' the Court had Juriſdiction in the Cauſe, yet the Foundation was Eleemoſynary on Condition they ſhould be ſubject to their Viſitors, and therefore the Court ſhould not intermeddle, till after an Appeal to the Viſitor, and not per ſaltum. So the Court could not reſtore him, but the ſaid Doctor was afterwards reſtored by the Lords of the Council.

Again Term. Hill. 14, 15 Car. 2. B. R. Doctor Widdrington having formerly brought his Mandamus to be reſtored to his Fellowſhip in Chriſt's College Cambridge, and upon that the Maſter Dr. Cudworth and his Fellows made a Return, which ſeemed to the Court ſufficient, and thereupon he could not obtain a Writ of Reſtitution: But he finding that the Return was very falſe, brought his Action upon the Caſe, and thereupon a Reference was procured to certain Commiſſioners, viz. the Biſhop of London, the Lord Chamberlain, and ſome of the Judges, and upon hearing the whole Buſineſs, Dr. Widdrington was cleared and awarded to be reſtored. And now he moved by Allen, that in regard the Return was ſcandalous, and might hereafter tend to his Diſparagement, and ſince the other Side were willing that all Things before paſs'd might be buried in Oblivion, the ſaid Return might be taken off the File, which he ſaid might be ſince all Parties concerned were conſenting thereunto. But the Court did ſomewhat doubt of that, they not knowing any Precedent for the withdrawing any Record of the Court. But they made a Rule, that the Record ſhould be daſhed through in the Nature of a Cancellation, and with that Allen was content.

He brings his Action upon the Caſe.

Referred to Commiſſioners who award him to be reſtored.

WEDNESDAY Oct. 30. Mr. John Sherman Fellow of Jeſus College, Cambridge, preſented to the Rectory of Wilmeſloe in Cheſhire.

Cum Magiſter Johannes Sherman Socius Collegii Jeſu modo ſuffragiis veſtris electus ſit ad Rectoriam de Wilmeſloe in Dioc. Ceſtrenſi; Placet vobis ut ſuper hac electione veſtra Præſentationem habeat ad dictam Rectoriam de Wilmeſloe Sigillo veſtro communi ſigillatam. Conceſſ. 30. Octob. 1661.

Dr. Oliver died Octob. 27. 1661. buried Octob. 30.

Publick Intelligence, 4to. No. 45.

Advice from Oxford, that on Wedneſday Octob. 30. that moſt learned and reverend Dr. John Oliver, Dean of Worceſter, and Preſident of Magdalen College in Oxford, was buried in that College Chapel with great Solemnity, the whole Univerſity attending his Corps, with large Expreſſions of univerſal Sorrow for ſo unvaluable a Loſs; whoſe Memory is precious to all that knew him, either in his academical Exerciſes and Offices, or when domeſtick Chaplain to that renowned Martyr William Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or ſince all along theſe laſt worſt Times. He was ſtrangely deſirous to leave this World, though few alive had ſuch Temptations to ſtay in it; for he lived to ſee himſelf Head and Governour of the College he was bred in, and his own Scholar Lord High Chancellor of England, as well as of the Univerſity, Edward Earl of Clarendon, to whom he gave a Legacy, as a grateful Memorial, ſeal'd up in a Paper. Beſides which and two or three Legacies to his Nephews, Niece, and Servants; all that God had ſent him ſince his Majeſty's Reſtauration (for till then he was ſtripp'd of all) he gave wholly to pious Uſes, either to the Poor, or Reparation of Churches, viz. of St. Paul's, Wincheſter, Worceſter, and to the College.

See Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, Part II. p. 122.

This moſt learned, meek, and pious Perſon was a Kentiſh Man born, and originally of Merton College, was afterward ſucceſſively Demy and Fellow of that of Magdalene, where his Eminence in Learning and orthodox Principles in Religion being conſpicuous, he was taken into the Service of Dr. Laud, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and by him made his Domeſtick Chaplain, and promoted in the Church; but loſing all in the Time of the Rebellion, he was elected Preſident of his College in April 1644. upon the Advancement of Dr. Frewen to the See of Litchfield. In the latter End of 1647. he was turn'd out of his Preſidentſhip by the Committee of Lords and Commons for the Reformation of the Univerſity of Oxon. and in the Beginning of the next Year, by the Viſitors themſelves in their own proper Perſons. So that afterwards living obſcurely, and in great Hardſhip, he wanted the Charities which he before beſtowed on the Poor and the Publick, being in a Manner the Object of Charity himſelf. On the 18th of May 1660. he was by Authority of Parliament reſtored to his Preſidentſhip, and on the 22d of the ſaid Month he took Poſſeſſion thereof, being the firſt of all loyal Heads that was reſtored to what they had loſt in this Univerſity. Soon after he was by his Majeſty's Favour (upon the Motion of the Earl of Clarendon formerly his Pupil) nominated Dean of Worceſter in the Place of Dr. Richard Holdſworth, who died 1649. in which Dignity he was inſtalled September 12, 1660. and kept it to the Time of his Death, which happening Octob. 27, 1661. was buried in Magdalen College Chapel. —— A good Benefactor to his College, to which his two immediate Predeceſſors Wilkinſon and Goodwin, who were thruſt in by the Parliament and Oliver for their Saintſhip and Zeal to the bleſſed Cauſe, gave not a Farthing, but rak'd and ſcrap'd up all that they could get thence, as the reſt of the Saints then did in the Univerſity.

The Happineſs of thoſe who ſleep in Jeſus. Or the Benefit that comes to the dead Bodies of the Saints, even while they are in the Grave ſleeping in Jeſus. Delivered in a Sermon preached at the Funeral of that pious and religious Lady, the Lady Anne Waller at the new Church in Weſtminſter, Octob. 31, 1661. Together with the Teſtimony then given unto her. By Edmund Calamy, B. D. and Paſtor of Aldermanbury.

Priſoners ſent from the Tower of London to remote Priſons.

Several Priſoners in the Tower, Regicides and others, by reaſon of the Practice of their Parties, were now in October ſent away from the Tower to ſeveral remote Places, Caſtles and Iſlands, for ſecuring the Peace. And ſeveral ſuſpected Perſons of the Fanatick Party were now ſeized and committed to ſeveral Priſons. The Market of Herbs, which uſually ſtood before in Cheapſide, and by Titchbourn in his Mayoralty (becauſe it cumbred up the Ways) was placed in St. Paul's Church-yard, and a Croſs built there, was by Proclamation, to avoid the Scandal of buying and ſelling upon that Ground, removed into Alderſgate-Street and Aldermanbury.

It ſhall no more be ſaid, the Lord liveth that brought up the Children of Iſrael out of the Land of Egypt, but the Lord liveth that brought up the Children of Iſrael out of the Land of the North. Ordered to be printed. By Peter Sterry.

In his Epiſtle to the Parliament. —— Right Honourable, I have deſired in my Preaching, in my Prayers, to work with God, even for the opening of the Eyes of Men, to ſee that the ſame Spirit which lay in the polluted Bed of Papacy, may meet them in the perfumed Bed of Preſbytery. —— To which Purpoſe I have in my Sermon repreſented the ſame Spirit which dwells in the Papacy, when it enters into the purer Form of Preſbytery, is fuller of Deſpite and Danger. Many Daughters have done virtuouſly, but thou excelleſt them all; ſo may England now ſay unto the Lord, in many Mercies, as eſpecially in that of ſaving us from this bloody Deſign of the Ægyptian Papacy, thou haſt done graciouſly and wonderfully; but this laſt Mercy by which thou ſaveſt us from the black Plots and bloody Powers of the Northern Preſbytery, hath exceeded them all. [And in this Sermon, he doth all along arraign the Presbyterians as worſe and more wicked than the Papiſts.]

Tho. White, Roman Prieſt, againſt the Infallibility.

For which Hereſy the Inquiſition proceeded againſt him.

And condemn'd his Doctrine as falſe, ſeditious and ſcandalous.

Mr. Stillingfleet*'s Append. to Mr.* Tillotſon*'s Rule of Faith,* 8vo. 1666. p. 52.

Mr. White and his Party in the Church of Rome not only diſown the common Doctrine of the Infallibility of Popes and Councils, but diſpute againſt it as pernicious and deſtructive to Chriſtian Faith. —— Doth he think we never heard of Mr. White's Sonus Buccinæ, nor of that Chapter in it, where he ſaith, that the Doctrine of Pope and Councils Infallibility tends to overthrow the Certainty of Chriſtian Faith; and that the propagating ſuch a Doctrine is a greater Crime than burning Temples, raviſhing the ſacred Virgins on the Altars, trampling on the Body of Chriſt, or the ſending the Turk or Antichriſt into Chriſtian Countries. Doth he think we can believe that the Pope and Cardinals, the Jeſuits and all the Papiſts agree with Mr. White in this? It ſeems not ſo by the Proceedings in the Court of Rome againſt him, in which as appears by the Cenſure of the Inquiſition againſt him, dated Nov. 17, 1661. his Doctrine is condemned not only as falſe, ſeditious, and ſcandalous, but as heretical and erroneous in Faith. And if it were not for this very Doctrine he was there cenſured, why doth Mr. White ſet himſelf purpoſely to defend it in his Tabulæ Suffragiales?

The King's Letters to the Univerſity of Cambridge, for Sam. Drake and John Lake to be admitted Doctors, and John Milner and Robert Haſilwood Batchelors in Divinity.

Extracts from the Archives at Cambridge

The King's Letter directed to our Truſty and Well-beloved the Vice-chancellour, &c. of our Univerſity of Cambridge.

CHARLES R.

Truſty and Well-beloved we greet you well. Whereas Samuel Drake, John Lake, and John Milner heretofore Members of that our Univerſity come recommended to us by divers Teſtimonials, as of their Piety and Learning, ſo of their conſtant Loyalty to our Royal Father of glorious Memory and ourſelf, and this approved both by active Service in the late Wars, and by ſad Sufferings ever ſince: And having received a good Character of the Piety and Orthodox Learning of Robert Haſilwood, Clerk: We graciouſly conſidering the Iniquity of the late ſad Times, whereby the ſaid Perſons were debarred from taking their ſeveral reſpective Degrees in that our Univerſity in due Time, have been moved out of our Princely Senſe of their Loyal Affections to us and the Church, and for their juſt Encouragements in their future Services to both, to recommend them unto you for their ſeveral Degrees, willing you upon Receipt thereof to grant unto the ſaid Samuel Drake and John Lake the Degree of Doctors of Divinity, and unto John Milner and Robert Haſilwood that of Batchelors in the ſame Faculty: Any Statute, Cuſtom, or Conſtitution in that our Univerſity to the contrary notwithſtanding. —— Given at our Court at Whitehall the eighth of November 1661. in the thirteenth Year of our Reign.

The Biſhop of Elphin's Speech to his Majeſty, in the Name of the Peers of Ireland.

His Majeſty having graciouſly declared his Pleaſure (for the Good of his Subjects of Ireland) that he had made James Duke of Ormond Lord Lieutenant General of that Kingdom, the Lord Biſhop of Elphin addreſſed himſelf to his Majeſty in this following Speech in the Name of all the Peers of Ireland.

On Occaſion of the Duke of Ormond being made Lord Lieutenant.

S I R,

We come before your Majeſty this Day like thoſe Women in their haſty Retreat from the holy Sepulchre, labouring under the Strivings of their twin Paſſions of Fear and Joy; Fear leſt this our latter Addreſs might be deemed a Neglect; or that we might not ſeem to have a ſufficient Value for your Majeſty's late Favour unto Ireland, when we have not more early acknowledged it: And yet we come with Joy too, Joy that your Majeſty hath placed ſo noble, ſo loyal, ſo juſt, and ſo deſired a Perſon over us. One, whom your Enemies cannot reaſonably diſapprove of, and whom your Friends I am ſure always paſſionately pray'd for, &c.

Sir Audley Mervin's Speech on the ſame Occaſion in the Name of the Commons of Ireland.

The Speech of Sir Audley Mervin, Speaker of the Houſe of Commons in Ireland, to his Majeſty, in the Name of all the Commons of that Kingdom.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

Spirits and Elixirs are preſerved in ſmall glaſs Vials. Our humble Addreſs is in Nature of an Elixir, and therefore muſt be given but in a few Grains. Sir, we have with great Devotion obſerved the Exerciſe of your Royal Wiſdom and Patience, in unravelling the complicated Intereſts of your Kingdom of Ireland, and winding them up in their diſtinct Bottoms. Some Princes would have followed Alexander's Method, who cut the Gordian Knot, that either he could not or would not untie. But Sir, if your Subjects may take the Pleaſure and the Profit, you have been contented to take the Pains, &c.

Epiſtle to the Lady Balcarres, whoſe Daughter had been ſtoln away by the Roman Prieſts.

Epiſt. Ded. To the Right Honourable Anne Counteſs of Balcarres.

—— You may remember the Mercies of your younger Years, of your married State, and of your Widowhood; your Comforts in your truly noble Lord, though troubled and interrupted by his Death, yet increaſed by the Conſideration of his Felicity with Chriſt; your Comfort in your hopeful Iſſue, though abated with the Injury of Roman Theft, which ſtole one of the Roſes of your Garden, that they might boaſt of the Sweetneſs, when they called it their own. I may well ſay ſtole it, when all the Cheat was performed by unknown Perſons in the Dark, and no Importunity by you or me, could procure me one Diſpute or Conference in her hearing, with any of the Seducers. Dated Auguſt 25, 1661.

With a Poſtſcript to the ſaid Lady, dated Nov. 1, 1661.

Epiſtle to his People of Kiderminſter,

Epiſtle to my dearly beloved the Inhabitants of the Borough and Pariſh of Kiderminſter in Worceſterſhire.

Which gave great Offence to Dr Morley Biſhop of Worceſter.

As I never deſired any greater Preferment in this World than to have continued in the Work of my Miniſtry among you, ſo I once thought my Days would have been ended in that deſired Station: But we are unmeet to tell God how he ſhall diſpoſe of us; or to foreknow what Changes he intends to make, though you are low in the World, and have not the Riches which cauſe Mens Eſtimation with the moſt, I ſee no Probability that we ſhould have been ſeparated 'till Death, could I but have obtained Leave to preach for nothing.

But being forbidden to preach the Goſpel in that Dioceſe, I muſt thankfully take the Liberty which ſhall any where elſe be vouchſafed me. —— The great Crime which is openly charged on me, and for which I am thought unworthy to preach the Goſpel (even where there is no other to preach) is a Matter that you are unacquainted with, and therefore as you have heard me publickly accuſed of it, I am bound to render you ſuch an Account, as is neceſſary to your juſt Information and Satisfaction.

As giving a very partial Account of the late Savoy Conference.

It pleaſed the King's Majeſty (in the Proſecution of his moſt Chriſtian Reſolution of uniting his differing Subjects by the Way of mutual Approaches and Abatements) to grant a Commiſſion to twelve Biſhops and nine Aſſiſtants on the one Side, and to one Biſhop and eleven other Divines and nine Aſſiſtants on the other Side, to treat about ſuch Alterations of the Liturgy as are neceſſary to the ſatisfying of tender Conſciences, and to the reſtoring of Unity and Peace. My Experiences in a former Treaty (for Reconciliation in Matter of Diſcipline) made me entreat thoſe to whom the Nomination on the one Side was committed, to excuſe me from the Service which I knew would prove troubleſome to myſelf and ungrateful to others, but could not prevail. But the Work itſelf I very much approved, as to be done by fitter and more acceptable Perſons. Being commanded by the King's Commiſſion, I took it to be my Duty to be faithful, and to plead for ſuch Alterations as I knew were neceſſary to the aſſigned Ends; thinking it to be Treachery to his Majeſty who entruſted us, and to the Church and Cauſe for which we were entruſted, if under Pretence of making ſuch Alterations as were neceſſary to the two 'fore-mentioned Ends, I ſhould have ſilently yielded to have No Alteration, or next to none.

In the Concluſion (when the chief Work was done by Writing) a Committee of each Part was appointed to manage a Diſputation in Preſence (by Writing alſo) therein thoſe of the other Part formed an Argument, whoſe major Propoſition was to this Senſe (for I have no Copy): Whatſoever Book enjoyneth nothing but what is of itſelf lawful, and by lawful Authority, enjoyneth nothing that is ſinful. We denied this Propoſition, and at laſt gave divers Reaſons of our Denial, among which one was, that It may be unlawful by Accident and therefore ſinful. You know my Crime; it is my concurring with learned reverend Brethren to give this Reaſon of our Denial of a Propoſition; yet they are not forbidden to preach for it (and I hope ſhall not be) but only I, &c.

Concluding.] It is ſoon enough for you and me to be juſtified at the Bar of Chriſt (by himſelf that hath undertaken it) againſt all the Calumnies of malicious Men. —— Farewell my dear Brethren who are my Glory and Joy in the Preſence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt at his Coming, 1 Theſſ. ii. 18, 19.

By the King's Printers 1661.

By the King: A Proclamation for Reſtraint of killing, dreſſing, and eating of Fleſh in Lent, or on Fiſh Days appointed by the Law to be obſerved —— Taking Notice of the good Laws heretofore made for the Obſervation of Lent and other Faſting Days, as well for the ſparing of Fleſh Victuals, as for maintaining of the Navy and Shipping, by Encouragement of Fiſhermen; and that notwithſtanding ſuch good Proviſions made, all ſorts of People have for many Years paſt taken upon them a Liberty to kill and eat on prohibited Days; to prevent ſo great and growing an Enemy to the Plenty of his Kingdom, his Majeſty hath thus timely (to take away all the Pretences of Excuſe) expreſſed his Royal Commandment in this Behalf, whereof he will expect and doth require due Notice to be taken, and a ſtrict Conformity to be yielded thereunto. —— Given at our Court at Whitehall this eleventh Day of November 1661. in the thirteenth Year of our Reign.

Memoranda touching the Oath ex Officio, pretended Self-Accuſation, and Canonical Purgation: With ſome Notes about the making New, and Alteration and Explanation of Old Laws. All moſt humbly ſubmitted to the Conſideration of this Parliament. By Edw. Lake, Philo-Monarch-Phil. With an Epiſt. Ded. to William Earl of Strafford, dated Weſtminſter November 11, 1661. —— My Lord, my full Scope in this Model is, to the beſt of my Judgment (which I always ſubmit to better) and of my Skill and Power to contribute ſomething tending to the further Happineſs and Continuance of Truth and Peace, with Juſtice and Honour, in this Church and State, now by God's Bleſſing (to whom be all Honour and Praiſe) ex poſtliminio, as it were, freed from Slavery and Tyrannical Oppreſſion, and reſtored to a Capacity of their priſtine Beauty and Splendour, by the moſt happy Reſtauration of our gracious Sovereign, whom God preſerve. —— I cannot but wiſh for the common Good, that your Lordſhip were put in Statum merendi, into the Sphere of your proper Activity, that the Publick might reap the Benefit thereof; and that your Talent might be no longer (as it was whilſt rebellious Uſurpation cauſed it) wrapp'd up in a Napkin, nor your Candle hid under a Buſhel. So wiſhes, ſo prays, &c.

In the Epiſtle to the Reader there is this Character given of this noble Lord: —— As to that moſt noble Perſon to whom this is inſcribed, tho' according to his Birth and Education, his Motion hath always been in an higher Orb and Contemplation of Affairs of greater Moment, more immediately enabling him to ſerve his King and Countrey: Yet even in the ſubject Matter of theſe Memoranda he is not unverſed, if not more particularly, yet as comprehended in that Generality of Learning and Knowledge, whereto he hath from his younger Years been habituated, at the Feet of ſuch a Stateſman as was his moſt accompliſhed Father, and ſuch Inſtructors as he by his eſpecial and moſt diſcerning Choice appointed him; and all this perfected up by moſt advantageous Acquiſitions by Travel and Reſidence in foreign Parts, &c.

Advice given, that by Letters expreſs from Tangier of the ſixteenth of the laſt Month of October, we are aſcertained, that the Earl of Sandwich was then at Tangier, which Place is very ſtrong in Fortifications, hath many fair Gardens, and is ſo well ſituated, that no Ship can paſs in or out of the Streights, but ſuch Ships as ride there may ſee and ſpeak with them; and that the Portugueze were very civil to the Engliſh, and made great Expreſſions of their Welcome.

Epiſt. Ded. To the Preſbyterian Divines, the Publiſhers and Abettors of a Pamphlet entitled, A Petition for Peace, &c.

—— Gentlemen,

That you may not glory either in your Cauſe or Fortune, you are here condemn'd to ſuffer publick Shame by a weak Hand, yet ſo as not to make you proud of the Conqueſt, for ye fight againſt yourſelves, and fall by your own Weapons. This is the certain Fate of all your Strivings againſt the Right of Biſhops. The Liberties you challenge muſt be allowed again by you to the People, and where's your Holy Diſcipline then? Advertiſement.

Advertiſement, dated November 14, 1661.

—— If my Intelligence deceive me not, this ſame ſchiſmatical Piece of Holineſs was delivered to the Preſs by Mr. Baxter, or his Order. The levelling Ibbotſon, I ſuppoſe, he that printed the Adjutators Propoſals, I mean, and the Petition to the Army againſt the Mayor and Aldermen in 1647. I am told too, that R. W. has a Finger in the Pye, Britannicus his old Friend. —— My Information tells me further, that the Bauble was barrell'd up for Fear of Venting, and ſo ſent ſeveral Ways, which being performed with much Secrecy and Diſpatch, does but beſpeak a general Tumult, and prepoſſeſs the Nation againſt better Reaſon. ——

Three Queſtions.

I conclude with three Queſtions:

Firſt, Without Repentance can there be any Salvation? Or without Confeſſion and Reſtitution any Repentance?

Secondly, Why will you not ſwear to obey Biſhops as well as you covenanted to deſtroy them? And why may not you as well be forced to take a lawful Oath, as you forc'd others to take an unlawful one?

Thirdly, Why is it not as lawful for Biſhops to ſilence Preſbyterians, as for Preſbyterians to extirpate Biſhops?

At four a Clock in the Evening came in to us Sir John Lawſon and the Fairfax: The Commanders came on board me, and in the Night they ſet ſail again up the Gutt. ——

Death of the Prince of Spain.

October 31. Thurſday. I ſtood in for Tangier Bay, and by the Way had a Letter from Mr. Myles, which ſignified the Prince of Spain to be dead, and at Night Mr. Rolt came to me from Tariff in the Martyn, and preſently went off again for Gibraltar.

November 1. Friday. Mr. Myles with the Colonel of the Horſe in Tangier and his Son, and the Judge of the Town, and two other Cavaliers came and dined with me on Board. In Tangier Bay now riding with me the Ships James, Mountague, Newcaſtle, Waltham's and Blake's Ketches.

November 5. Tueſday. The Martyn with Captain Rolt came in to us from Gibraltar.

November 6. Wedneſday. The Princeſs came in from Pharo, brought the Report of the King of Portugal's being to be married to a Daughter of the old Prince of Orange, and that the Embaſſadour was gone away from Liſbon to Holland about it.

November 7. Thurſday. Came along a Fleet of twenty eight Sail of Engliſh Merchant Men from Alicant and Malaga, the Greyhound and Gift were with them in Convoy. I ſent the Gift on to convoy them off the Rock, and ſo to go to Liſbon to victual. ——

November 8. Friday, at twelve a Clock at Night the Princeſs ſet Sail for Cadiz with Mr. Bennet, Mr. Mackworth, and my Lieutenant: Sir John and the Fairfax to cruize. ——

The Moors about Tangier viſit the Engliſh.

November 13. Wedneſday. Some ſixteen or eighteen Moors (one of them being the Governour under Gayland of this Province) came to the old Watch Tower to the Eaſt of old Tangier and made a Fire and Sign to ſpeak with us. Whereupon two Boats were ſent mann'd with Muſqueteers, who had Conference with them and very civilly treated, the Moors expreſſing a Deſire to have Trade and Commerce with us, but could not do it without Leave firſt from Gayland, to whom they ſaid they would ſend for Licenſe.

About two of the Clock in the Afternoon came in the Auguſtine from Liſbon with Letters, and Mr. Charles Herbert from Sir Rich. Fanſhaw.

Tangier to be render'd up to the Engliſh.

November 15. Friday. Mr. Mules was with me from the Governour to conſult about preparing for the Rendition of Tangier, and I reſolved to ſend a Frigate for Lagos with Mr. Rolt and the Town Major for Liſbon; and wrote Letters to Sir *Rich. The ſame Day a Letter from the King to the Council was read, requiring that in all the ſeveral Churches, immediately after their Prayer for the King, they pray for Queen Catharine, and for Mary Queen Mother, James Duke of York, and the reſt of the Royal Family.

Publick Intelligence by Authority, 4to. No. 48.

This Day John James, that notorious Inſtrument of Sedition and Rebellion, was brought from Newgate to the King's-Bench Bar in Weſtminſter Hall, where he was arraigned for Preaching maliciouſly and traiterouſly againſt the Life and Safety ty of our Sovereign Lord the King, and againſt the Peace and Government of this Realm; declaring at a Conventicle in White-Chapel, Saturday October 19, 1661. his Intention to deſtroy his Majeſty, and the Nobles of this Realm; juſtifying thoſe bloody Murtherers, who for their horrid Impieties were executed this laſt Year; as well as thoſe Firebrands in Scotland, who were brought to Juſtice in that Kingdom, bemoaning and bewailing the Miſcarriage of that monſtrous Plot of thoſe bloody Miſcreants, who were lately arraigned at the Old Bailey. All which and much more was fully prov'd by ſeveral Witneſſes before the Lord Chief Juſtice Foſter, and the reſt of the Juſtices of that Court. Whereupon the Jury brought him in Guilty of High Treaſon, for which he is to receive Judgment on Friday next.

Printed Tryal.

The Indictment ſet forth, that the ſaid John James — being aſſembled with other falſe Traytors in Bulſtake-Alley in the Pariſh of White-Chapel in the County of Middleſex, did ſpeak and publiſh theſe treaſonable Words following, viz. That the King was a bloody Tyrant, and a blood-thirſty Man, and his Nobles the ſame: That the King and his Nobles had ſhed the Blood of the Saints at Charing-croſs, and the Blood of the Covenanters in Scotland; that the King was brought in to this End, to fill up the Meaſure of his Iniquities; and that the King's Cup of Iniquity had filled more within this laſt Year than in many Years before, and bewail'd that they had not improved their Opportunity when they had Power in their Hands; that it would not be long before they had Power again, and then they would improve it better, and he bemoaned the Apoſtaſy of the People of God, and ſaid, they had not fought the Lord's Battles throughly, but when the Lord ſhould give his Work into their Hands again, they would do it better; and that the Death and Deſtruction of the King grew very near. All which is laid to be done againſt the King's Peace, his Crown, and Dignity. ——

WEDNESDAY Nov. 20. Meeting of the Parliament.

Extract from the Journal of the Lords.

This Day the Lords and Commons met again after near four Months Adjournment, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal being ſate in the Houſe of Peers, Sir Edward Turner, Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, with the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes, came as heretofore in the Lords Houſe, where his moſt Sacred Majeſty, with his Imperial Crown on his Head, made a moſt gracious Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

The long deſired Sight of Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in Parliament aſſembled.

The aſking for Money in a very ſoft Way;

Not for himſelf but for the Publick.

I know the Viſit I make you this Day is not neceſſary, is not of courſe; yet if there were no more in it, it would not be ſtrange that I come to ſee what you and I ſo long deſired to ſee, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and the Commons of England met together to conſult for the Peace and Safety of the Church and State; by which Parliaments are reſtor'd to their primitive Luſtre and Integrity. I do heartily congratulate with you for this Day. But, my Lords and Gentlemen, as my coming hither at this Time is ſomewhat extraordinary, ſo the Truth is, the Occaſion of my coming is more extraordinary: It is to ſay ſomething to you on my own Behalf, to aſk ſomething of you for my ſelf; which is more than I have done of you, or of thoſe that met here before you, ſince my coming into England. I needed not have done it to them; and upon my Conſcience, I need not do it now. They did and you do upon all Occaſions, expreſs ſo great an Affection and Care of all that concerns me, that I may very well refer, both the Matter and Manner of your doing any thing for me, to your own Wiſdoms and Kindneſs: And indeed, if I did think that what I am to ſay to you now did alone, or did moſt concern myſelf; if the uneaſy Condition I am in, if the Streights and Neceſſities I am to ſtruggle with did not manifeſtly relate to the publick Peace and Safety, more than to my own particular, otherwiſe than I am concern'd in the Publick, I ſhould not give you this Trouble this Day. I can bear my Neceſſities, which merely relate to myſelf, with Patience enough.

Mr. Speaker, and you Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

Great Occaſion to ſettle the conſtant Revenue of the Crown.

The crying Debts want neceſſary Proviſions.

The Revenue already anticipated.

The Neceſſities are real, not imaginary.

I do not now importune you to make more Haſte in the Settling the conſtant Revenue of the Crown, than is agreeable to the Method you propoſe to your ſelves: I deſire you ſeriouſly to conſider the inſupportable Weight that lies upon it, the Obligations it lyeth under to provide for the Intereſt, Honour, and Security of the Nation in another Proportion than in any former Times it hath been obliged to. I know very well, you have very affectionately and worthily taken all this into your Thoughts, and will proceed in it with as much Expedition, as I can reaſonably wiſh; but I come to put you in Mind of the crying Debts which do every Day call upon me for ſome neceſſary Proviſions, which are to be made without Delay, for the very Safety of the Kingdom; of the great Sums of Money that ſhould be ready to diſcharge the ſeveral Fleets when they come home, and for the neceſſary Preparations that are to be made for the ſetting out new Fleets to Sea againſt the Spring; that Revenue being already anticipated to as important Services, which ſhould be aſſign'd to thoſe Preparations. Theſe are the preſſing Occaſions which I am forced to recommend to you with all poſſible Earneſtneſs, and do conjure you to provide for, as ſpeedily as poſſible, in ſuch a Manner, as may give us Security at home, and ſome Reputation abroad. I make this Diſcourſe to you with ſome Confidence, becauſe I am very willing, and deſirous that you ſhould throughly examine whether theſe Neceſſities I mention be real or imaginary; or whether they be fallen upon us

To make Inſpection into the Revenue, and diſcover any ill Management of it.

Not to believe the looſe Diſcourſes of giving away Money in a profuſe Manner.

us by my Fault, my own Managery, or Exceſſes, and provide for them accordingly. I am very willing that you make a full Inſpection into my Revenue, as well the Diſburſements as Receipts; and if you find it hath been ill managed by any Corruption in the Officers I truſt, or by my own Unthriftineſs, I ſhall take the Information and Advice you ſhall give me very kindly: I ſay if you find it; for I would not have you believe any looſe Diſcourſes, how confidently ſoever urged, of giving away eighty thouſand Pounds in a Morning, and many other Extravagances of that kind. I have much more Reaſon to be ſorry that I have not to reward thoſe who have ever faithfully ſerved the King my Father and myſelf, than aſham'd of any Bounty I have exerciſed towards any Man.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The Nation not ſo well compoſed.

Many wicked Inſtruments ſtill active.

New Diſeaſes require new Remedies.

The beſt Method a good Correſpondence between the King and Parliament,

To confirm our Happineſs at home, and create Eſteem abroad.

I am ſorry to find that the general Temper and Affections of the Nation are not ſo well compoſed, as I hoped they would have been, after ſuch ſignal Bleſſings from God Almighty upon us all, and after ſo great Indulgence and Condeſcenſions from me towards all Intereſts. There are many wicked Inſtruments ſtill as active as ever, who labour Night and Day to diſturb the publick Peace, and to make all People jealous of each other. It will be worthy of your Care and Vigilance to provide proper Remedies for the Diſeaſes of that kind; and if you find new Diſeaſes, you muſt ſtudy new Remedies. Let us not be diſcouraged, if we help one another, we ſhall, by God's Bleſſing, maſter all our Difficulties: Theſe which concern Matters of Religion, I confeſs to you are too hard for me; and therefore I do recommend them to your Care and Deliberation, which can beſt provide for them: I ſhall not need to recommend, or put you in Mind of the good Correſpondence that ought to be kept between you for the Good of yourſelves and me, and the whole Kingdom; and I may tell you it is very neceſſary for us all. You will find, whoſoever doth not believe me, doth not love you, and they who have no Reverence for you have little Kindneſs for me; therefore I pray let us adhere faſt to each other, and then we ſhall, with the Help of God, in a ſhort Time perſuade or oblige all Men to that Submiſſion and Obedience to the Law, as may conſtitute a full Meaſure of Happineſs to Prince and People, and perſuade our Neighbours to that Eſteem and Value they formerly had for us.

A Note upon one Paſſage in the King's Speech.

It was not a Preſbyterian but a Fanatical Plot of all Sorts of diſcontented People, raiſed and encouraged by thoſe who had loſt Offices and Places, and purchaſed Crown and Biſhops Lands, and whoſe Heads were turn'd by enthuſiaſtick Notions.

Abridgment of Mr. Baxter's Life, p. 178.

Note the wicked Inſtruments in diſturbing publick Peace, referred to the late Plot, then believed as ſufficiently proved. And yet late Writers on the Side of the Diſſenters have made it a ſham Plot (as almoſt all Plots have been called that have not been executed) and that chiefly on Authority of one of the Plotters themſelves, Captain Yarrington, who in 1681. did publiſh a full Diſcovery of the firſt Preſbyterian ſham Plot: In which Diſcovery he declares, he related nothing but what he could prove by Letters, and many living Witneſſes, and his Account (ſays Dr. Calamy) was never publickly contradicted.

Dr. Calamy's Note, ib. p. 181.

When the Houſe of Commons after this Speech came to their Debates, up ſtands Sir J. P. [Sir John Packington] one of the Knights for Worceſterſhire, and with open Mouth informs them of a dangerous Preſbyterian Plot on foot; and that many of the chief Conſpirators were now in Priſon in Worceſterſhire. The like Information was given by ſome Members who ſerved for Oxfordſhire, Herefordſhire, Staffordſhire, and other Places.

The Lords Spiritual took their Seats.

See Sir John Pettus Conſtitution of Parliaments, 8vo. 1680. p. 194.

The Lords Spiritual now return'd to their legal and accuſtom'd Seats in Parliament, and ſome of their Lordſhips were added to the Committees for Privileges, for Petitions, &c. And from this Time the junior Biſhop in the Houſe commonly read the Form of Prayers before their proceeding to any Buſineſs.

Biſhop Gauden's Pillar of Gratitude.

Printed 1661. Fol.

Upon the Proſpect of this Reſtauration of the Biſhops to their Seats in Parliament, there was publiſhed by Biſhop Gauden a decent Panegyrick upon the King and Parliament, entitled, A Pillar of Gratitude; inſcribed to the Right Honourable and moſt Noble Princes, Dukes, Marqueſſes, Earls, Viſcounts, and Lords, Barons and Peers of the Parliament of England: Together with the other Honourable Gentlemen, Knights and Burgeſſes of the Houſe of Commons.

In a verboſe Style.

Beginning.] There ſhall need no other Apology for the erecting and thus dedicating this Pillar of Gratitude, than that which all Juſtice and Ingenuity do make, for the Archbiſhops and Biſhops, with all the orderly Clergy of the Church of England; who muſt ceaſe to be Chriſtians and Men, religious and rational, juſt and ingenuous, if we ſhould not be highly ſenſible, how much we are commanded by all the Laws of Gratitude to God and Man, to expreſs in ſome publick and ſolemn Manner, the humble Senſe of our thankful Hearts, for that great Mercy, ſignal Honour, and eminent Favour, which the good Providence of God, by the Graciousneſs of the King's Majeſty, by the Nobleneſs of the Houſe of Peers, and by the Generoſity of the preſent Houſe of Commons, (yea, we hope, by the Deſire and Conſent of all wiſe, ſober, and juſt Men, in this Church and Kingdom) hath reſtored, as the other dignified Clergy to their reſpective Dignities, ſo us, the Archbiſhops and Biſhops not only to the Exerciſe of our Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction, but alſo to the ancient Honour of ſitting, conſulting, and voting in the Houſe of Peers. ——

Concluding, P. 62.] What now remains but the Author's particular craving, and your Lordſhips, with the other Gentlemen, vouchſafing Pardon for the great Preſumption of ſuch an Orator? who conſcious to his many Defects hath adventured by this grateful Exceſs, to put your Lordſhips and them upon the Exerciſe of your and their noble Patience, thereby to give the World a further great Experiment of that Gentleneſs and Candour, which adds Luſtre to all your other honourable and heroick Virtues; of which no Men are more Witneſſes, than the Biſhops and Clergy of the Church of England, not only as wond'ring Spectators but as thankful Enjoyers.

THURSDAY Nov. 21.

A Meſſage from the Commons of a Deſign againſt the Peace of the Kingdom.

Extracts from Journal of the Houſe of Lords.

A Meſſage was brought from the Houſe of Commons to the Lords, by Mr. Secretary Morice and others, to let their Lordſhips know, that divers Malecontents, Fanaticks, caſhiered and diſbanded Officers and Soldiers, and others, have ſome Deſign amongſt them, tending to the Breach of the Peace of this Kingdom. Therefore they deſire their Lordſhips would join with them to move his Majeſty, that he would be pleaſed to iſſue out a Proclamation, that all ſuſpicious and looſe Perſons may be ſent out of theſe Towns of London and Weſtminſter. Their Lordſhips concurred in this Meſſage.

A Vote of the Commons to ſupply the King with twelve hundred thouſand Pounds.

Journ. Com.

The Houſe of Commons reſolved upon the Queſtion, Nemine Contradicente, that the Sum of twelve hundred thouſand Pounds be ſpeedily raiſed for Supply of the King's Majeſty's preſent Occaſions; and that the Houſe do reſolve into a grand Committee to conſider of the Manner of Raiſing the ſaid Supply.

Opening of the Convocation.

Biſhop of London Preſident in the Abſence of the Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

The King's Letters read.

They treat upon reviſing the Book of Common-Prayer,

And appoint a Committee of Biſhops for that Purpoſe.

The Duke of York returns from ſurveying Dunkirk, and (as ſome ſaid) telling the King it was not worth keeping.

Publick Intelligence, by Authority, 4to. No. 48.

This Day his Highneſs the Duke of York (a Prince ſufficiently known to the Chriſtian World for his Affection to Action and Magnanimity) returned to Court from Dunkirk, whither he went attended by the Lord Charles Gerrard of Brandon, Sir William Compton, Mr. Legg of his Majeſty's Bedchamber, and other noble Perſons, and there found the noble Governour the Lord Rutherford, carefully ſurveying 'twixt 900 and 1000 Men at work, to make that Garriſon as eminent for its Strength, as it is for its Uſe, where and all along the River of Thames, as well as in the Downs, his Highneſs gave Orders for divers Ships to be diſpatched to ſeveral Parts for his Majeſty's Service.

The ſame Day John James was brought to the King's-Bench Bar at Weſtminſter, where he received his Sentence to be drawn, hang'd, and quartered for High-Treaſon. A ſufficient Warning to all Diſperſers of Sedition, as well from Pulpit, as by unlicenſed Pamphlets.

A Bill for Executing the Perſons attainted of High-Treaſon.

Extracts from the Journal of Commons.

In the Houſe of Commons Nov. 22, 1661. A Bill for executing certain Perſons attainted for High-Treaſon being read the firſt Time; Reſolved, that the Bill be read again the ſecond Time on Monday Morning next at ten of the Clock when the Houſe is full, and that ſuch of the Perſons attainted, named in the Bill, as are now in the Tower do then appear, and have Liberty to offer what they can for themſelves: And Sir John Robinſon Lieutenant of the Tower is to give Notice hereof to the Perſons before mentioned, and to cauſe them to be brought on Monday at ten of the Clock to attend this Houſe.

Addreſs to the King for ſending other Criminals to the Tower, in order to their Tryal.

Ordered, that the King's Majeſty be deſired to ſend for John Lambert and Sir Henry Vane back again to the Tower of London, in order to their Tryal, and that his Majeſty be further deſir'd to ſend for Sir Hardreſs Waller and ſuch other Perſons attainted of High-Treaſon as were lately ſent away back again to the Tower.

Charles, R.

Moſt Reverend Father in God we greet you well. Whereas by our Commiſſion under our Great Seal of England, bearing Date the tenth Day of July laſt, we did (amongſt other Things) give full, free, and lawful Liberty to you as Preſident of the Convocation, and to others the Biſhops and Clergy for our Province of York, to confer, debate, treat, conſider, conſult, and agree of and upon ſuch other Points, Matters, and Things as we from Time to Time ſhould deliver or cauſe to be delivered unto you in Writing, under our Sign Manual or Privy Signet, to be debated, conſidered, conſulted, and concluded upon, any Statutes, Act of Parliament, Proclamation, Proviſion, Reſtraint, Clauſe, Matter, or Thing to the contrary notwithſtanding: Our Pleaſure therefore is, and according to the Liberty and Power reſerv'd by our ſaid Commiſſion, we do hereby authorize and require, that you review or cauſe a Review, to be had and taken, both of the Book of Common-Prayer, and of the Book of the Form and Manner of making and conſecrating Biſhops, Prieſts, and Deacons; and after mature Conſideration, that you make ſuch Additions or Alterations in the ſaid Books reſpectively as to you ſhall ſeem meet and convenient: Which our Pleaſure is, that you exhibit and preſent unto us in Writing for our further Conſideration, Allowance, or Confirmation; and for ſo doing this ſhall be your Warrant. Given at our Court at Whitehall the 22d Day of November 1661.

By his Majeſty's Command,

To our Right, Truſty, and Well-beloved the moſt Reverend Father in God Acceptus Archbiſhop of York.

The Archbiſhop's and Biſhops Letter to the Convocation.

A Letter from the Archbiſhop and Biſhops of the Province of York to the Lower Clergy.

That they the Archbiſhop and Biſhops are ſitting in Conſultation with the Biſhops of the Province of Canterbury.

SIRS,

You ſee the Contents of his Majeſty's Letters for the Review of the Book of Common-Prayer, and Ordination of Biſhops, Prieſts, &c. for the Diſpatch whereof his Majeſty requires all poſſible Expedition. His Grace and ourſelves ſit in Conſultation with the Biſhops of the Province of Canterbury. And becauſe the Time allotted for the Diſpatch of theſe Things is ſo ſhort, and an Act of Parliament for Confirmation of them ready to paſs the ordinary Courſe of concluding them here firſt, then ſending of them down for your Concurrence, and returning them up again, is ſo dilatory, that it will not be conſiſtent with his Majeſty's Expectation, it is therefore our Deſires and Requeſt to you, that forthwith you would paſs a Vote for a Proxy in Behalf of your whole Houſe (wherein our Prolocutors are deſired to concur) to Dr. Henry Fearne Prolocutor, Dr. John Earles Dean of Weſtminſter, Dr. John Barwick Dean of Paul's, or to ſome other of the lower Houſe of Convocation there Conjunctim or Diviſim, to give your Conſents to ſuch Things as ſhall be concluded on here in relation to the Premiſſes. This Proxy under your Dean and Chapter and your Chancellour's Seal we earneſtly deſire may (if poſſible) be ſent up by the next Poſt after this comes to your Hands. This is all we have at preſent: We therefore commit you to the Protection of Almighty God, reſting Urging all poſſible Diſpatch.

SIR,

The encloſed to Dr. Neile, your Prolocutor, goes to him from all the Biſhops of the Province, having in it a true Copy of another from his Majeſty to my ſelf. Deliver it, I pray, unto him preſently (excuſing my not writing unto him at preſent in particular) and haſten their Diſpatch back according to the Directions therein with as much Speed as poſſibly you can; for 'tis of great and general Concernment. The Chancellour who hath been our Clerk herein will perhaps (if at Leiſure) ſay more! I adding only this here in the Caſe, that if we have not all from you by the End of next Week we are loſt. And in Caſe the Convocation ſit not, wiſh the Doctor preſently to open the Letter as if it had been ſent to himſelf only. Farewell.

The King's gracious Meſſages to the Houſe of Commons,

Thanking them for their free Gift;

And directing a Proclamation that the Commonwealth Money ſhall paſs in Payment the 25th of March next.

Extracts from Journal of the Commons.

The King ſent a Meſſage to the Commons to expreſs his Thanks for the Supply they had voted to him, he was exceeding much beholden to the Houſe of Commons for their great Gift, and the Manner of it in giving ſo freely, &c. and ſoon after another Meſſage, that making the Good of his People the Subject of his Thoughts, and conſidering that the Calling in the Money called the Commonwealth's Money by the laſt of this Month might be prejudicial to his People, and hazard the Exportation of a great Part thereof, he was graciouſly pleaſed, by the Advice of his Privy-Council, to direct a Proclamation to be iſſued, ſignifying his Majeſty's Pleaſure to accept of the ſaid Money in any Payment to be made to him 'till the 25th Day of March next.

SATURDAY Nov. 23. Some of Cromwell's Officers taken up, and all ordered to depart twenty Miles from London.

Biſhop Parker's Hiſt. Eng. 8vo, p. 17.

On the 23d of Novemb. 1661. A Meeting of veteran Rebells was taken at London. Amongſt theſe the principal were the diſbanded Officers of the Army, Pecker, Streater, Weilks, Gladman, Heins, Litcott, Kenrick, and Read, famous Names among the Cromwellians, who being ſeaſonably confin'd, the Conſpiracy died in the very Birth. —— But when they would not be at reſt, tho' many were daily put in Priſon, the Officers that had been in Cromwell's Army were commanded to remove to twenty Miles Diſtance from London, and not appear with Arms; which unleſs they did, they were to be puniſhed with Impriſonment, which was alſo ordered at the ſame Time by the Privy-Council of Ireland, being urged by the ſame Reaſons.

The like Order at Dublin.

In Convocation the Preſident Lord Biſhop of London delivers one Part of the Book of Common-Prayer reviſed by the Biſhops to the lower Houſe for their Review.

Thoſe Regicides who had come in upon Proclamation, were this Day brought to the Bar of the Houſe of Lords, to anſwer what they could ſay for themſelves why Judgment ſhould not be executed againſt them; they ſeverally alledg'd, that upon his Majeſty's gracious Declaration from Breda, and the Votes of Parliament, and his Majeſty's Proclamation publiſh'd by the Advice of the Lords and Commons then aſſembled in Parliament, they did render themſelves, being adviſ'd that they ſhould thereby ſecure their Lives, and humbly crav'd the Benefit thereof, and the Mercy of the Houſes, and their Mediation to his Majeſty in their Behalfs. Harry Marten briſkly added, that he had never obey'd any Proclamation before this, and hop'd that he ſhould not be hang'd for taking the King's Word now. New Debates aroſe about them, and a Bill was brought in for their Execution, which was read twice, but afterwards dropt; and ſo they were all ſent to their ſeveral Priſons, and but little more heard of them.

Mr. Eachard calls him Mr. Tho. Firebrace, but that is a Miſtake, it was Mr. (afterwards Sir) Henry Firebrace, a Gentleman of a very ancient Family of Stoke-Golding in Leiceſterſhire; upon the Reſtoration he was made Sir Henry Firebrace, *and Clerk of the Kitchen to his Majeſty, which Poſt he enjoy'd all that and the next Reign, but not complying then with the Revolution, retired from the Court, and died about four Years after, leaving two Sons, the Rev. Theſe are to certify, that our late dread Sovereign of bleſſed Memory, upon the 29th Day of January 1648. being the Day immediately before that horrid and execrable Murder was committed upon the Perſon of his ſacred Majeſty, did give me in Charge to recommend to his Son, our gracious Sovereign that now is, Mr. Henry Firebrace, as having been a Perſon very faithful and ſerviceable to him in his greateſt Extremities, and moſt ſtrict Impriſonments, and therefore fit to be employed and intruſted by his Majeſty that now is. Given under my Hand this five and twentieth Day of November 1661.

A Bill againſt Quakers, &c.

In the Houſe of Lords, Hodie ſecunda vice lecta eſt Billa, An Act for preventing the Miſchiefs and Dangers that may ariſe by certain Perſons called Quakers, and others refuſing to take the lawful Oaths.

Among the ſtanding Orders of the Houſe, the Biſhops had been called Lords of Parliament and not Peers. This complain'd of as derogatory to the Peerage of the Lords ſpiritual, and referr'd to a Committee.

Ordered by the Lords, that the Committee for Privileges do conſider of an Order in the ſtanding Orders of this Houſe, which mentions the Lords the Biſhops to be only Lords of Parliament and not Peers; whereas ſeveral Acts of Parliament mention them to be Peers; and the Committee is to make Report thereof to this Houſe, whether the ſaid Order may not be repealed. And all Records both in the Tower and elſewhere concerning this Buſineſs, are to be brought to the Committee to be peruſed, as their Lordſhips ſhall think fit, and to adjourn themſelves from Time to Time as they pleaſe.

James Harrington, Eſq; Author of the Oceana, and Head of a Common-wealth Club, which laſted till about Feb. 21, 1659. upon the King's Reſtoration retir'd and liv'd in private; but being looked upon as a dangerous Perſon, he with Major John Wildman, and Praiſe-God Barebone, a notorious Schiſmatick, were committed Priſoners to the Tower of London Nov. 26, 1661. where continuing for ſome Time, Harrington was tranſmitted to Portſey Caſtle, and kept there for ſeveral Months. Afterwards being ſet at Liberty, he travelled into Italy, where talking of Models, Common-wealths and Government, he was reputed no better than a whimſical or crack-brain'd Perſon. His cloſe Reſtraint which did not agree with his high Spirit, and hot and rambling Head, was the protractick Cauſe of his Deliration or Madneſs; I do not mean Outragiouſneſs, for he would diſcourſe rationally enough, and be facetious in Company, but a deep Conceit and Fancy that his Perſpiration turned into Flies and ſometimes into Bees. Which Fancy poſſeſs'd him a whole Year before he died, his Memory and Diſcourſe being then taken away by a Diſeaſe, which ended his Life at Weſtminſter, Sept. 7, 1677.

Mr. Baxter had ſo unhappily engag'd himſelf, that he could not come off with Honour.

Which was the Caſe of many others.

Mr. Richard Baxter had been the more buſy in the late Conference, and the more active and partial in the repreſenting of it, becauſe he began to have little Hopes of Favour from the King and the Church; and becauſe he had tied himſelf down too faſt in his former Writings, to be at Liberty to obey and conform, as was indeed the unhappy Caſe of many others.

He had wrote againſt reſtoring Epiſcopacy and Liturgy,

And even againſt re-admitting the King.

Second Part of the Hiſtory of Separation, 8vo. p. 73, &c.

And of all Parliaments preferr'd that of Rich. Cromwell.

Mr. Baxter writes in his own Life: I came to London, April 13, 1660. where I was no ſooner arrived, but I was accoſted by the Earl of Lauderdale, who having heard, that my Judgment was that our Obligations to Richard Cromwell were not diſſolved, nor could be till another Parliament, or a fuller Renunciation of the Government, took a great deal of Pains with me, to ſatisfy me in that Point, p. 215.

In the Year 1658. he had printed his five Diſputations of Church Government; which were deſigned againſt reſtoring the extruded Epiſcopacy and Liturgy, and to juſtify the Preſbyterian Ordination, &c. In 1659. he ſet forth his holy Commonwealth, which was no other than a Plot to keep out the King, as the other was to keep out the Biſhops. And his Endeavour is to prove, that the King being ſecluded, and his Subjects diſcharg'd of their Obedience, ought not to be re-admitted. ——In the Preface, that a Succeſſion of wiſe and godly Men, may be ſecured to the Nation in the higheſt Power, is that I have directed you the Way to in this Book. Explaining himſelf, that the King was not the higheſt Power in the Times of Diviſion. ——My Wiſh is (ſaith he) that our Parliament may be holy, and this aſcertained from Generation to Generation, by ſuch a neceſſary Regulation of Elections, that all thoſe who by Wickedneſs have forfeited their Liberties, [i. e. the King and loyal Party] may neither chuſe nor be choſen. And the reducing Elections to faithful, honeſt, upright Men; ſuch as (he ſays) were then in Richard Cromwell's Parliament, is the only, only, only Way to a certain and perpetual Peace and Happineſs. He commended Richard Cromwell as one that inherited his Father's Virtue, one who piouſly, prudently and faithfully, to his immortal Honour, exerciſed the Government: Therefore he perſuaded all Men to live in Obedience to him; and ſtyled himſelf (in the Epiſtle to his five Diſputations) a faithful Subject to your Highneſs as an Officer to the univerſal King. R. B.

Confeſſion of Mr. Baxter, that he was always againſt the Powers in Being.

Ibid. p. 88.

Mr. Baxter confeſs'd that he had always been out of Humour with the prevailing Powers, ſays he, when the Preſbyterians ſeem'd uppermoſt, I was look'd on as a Diſſenter; when the Rump was uppermoſt, I was by their Order ſequeſtred; with the Army I was out much more; Cromwell was not for me, becauſe I was not for him.

8vo. 1682. p. 164.

Cenſur'd by ſome of his own Fraternity.

See the Collections made from Mr. Baxter's Writings and Actions, by the Author of the ſecond Part of the Hiſtory of Separation; concluding, the Things related are moſtly Matters of Fact recorded by his own Hand:——And becauſe by the Mouth of two or three Witneſſes every Thing is eſtabliſhed, I ſhall conclude with the Teſtimony of two or three credible Perſons of his own Fraternity: The firſt is of Mr. Herle, a noted Preſbyterian, who, as Mr. Bagſhaw reports, ſaid of Mr. B. that it had been happy for the Church of God if Mr. B's Friends had never ſent him to School. The ſecond is Mr. Cawdrey, who was of the ſame Opinion: And he mentions a third Perſon, as knowing in the Myſtery of Godlineſs as either of them, who ſaid that notwithſtanding the great Noiſe raiſed about Mr. B. he would end in Fleſh and Blood.

Mr. Mould Vicar of Sturton. The late Dr. Only Preb. of Weſtm. has nobly augmented this Vicarage by giving in the great Tythes, and the Advowſon to Chriſt-Church, Oxon.

Account of Dr. Tho. Warmeſtry.

Athen. Oxon. Vol. II. c. 250.

Thomas Warmeſtry, D. D. was inſtalled Dean of Worceſter Nov. 27, 1661. in the Room of Dr. John Oliver lately deceaſed. He died October 30, 1665. and was buried in the Cathedral: He was born and educated in Grammar Learning in this City of Worceſter, Son of William Warmeſtry Regiſtrar of this Cathedral Church, became a Student of Chriſt-Church in 1624. or thereabouts, took the Degrees in Arts, that of Maſter being compleated in 1631. and had ſome ſpiritual Cure in his own Countrey conferr'd upon him ſoon after. In 1640. he was a Clerk for the Dioceſe of Worceſter in the two Convocations of the Clergy held that Year, and in 1642. he retired for Security ſake (the Nation being then in a Combuſtion) to the King at Oxon. where he was actually created D. D. the ſame Year, and afterwards loſt what he had before obtained in the Church, notwithſtanding he had always before been accounted a Puritan. After the King's Cauſe declined, he lived moſtly in London, was the Diſtributer of Money (obtained from generous Loyaliſts) to Sufferers for the Royal Intereſt, was chief Confeſſor to loyal Martyrs, a conſtant and indefatigable Viſiter and Comforter of ſick and diſtreſſed Cavaliers; very zealous alſo in converting Infidels, induſtrious in reclaiming the Looſe, and eſtabliſhing the Wavering, zealous and careful in preparing his Auditors for the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and for Death. After the King's Return he was reſtored to what he had loſt, was made Prebendary of Glouceſter, and in the Year following Dean of Worceſter.

Heath's Account of the Execution of John James, a Fifth Monarchy Teacher, condemn'd for High Treaſon.

Heath's Chron. p. 502.

John James a Fifth Monarchiſt, by Trade a Small-Coal Man in London, who had been engag'd in Venner's Rebellion, and eſcaped, kept on a like Meeting in White-Chapel, and there flew into ſeveral traiterous Speeches and Invectives againſt the King and Government, for which he was committed to Newgate, and within this Michaelmas Term convicted and condemned as a Traytor; on November 27. he was drawn on a Sledge to Tyburn, ſome of his Sect and Opinion throwing themſelves into the ſame Sledge and embracing him. At the Gallows he denied the Words charg'd upon him, avowed his Chilianiſm, and the perſonal Reign of Chriſt, and prayed not for the King or any in Authority. His Quarters were diſpoſed of by his Majeſty's Orders, and his Head ſet on a Pole in White-Chapel near his Meeting-Houſe.

See the printed Tryal.

The ſaid John James, Priſoner Convict, was brought again to the King's-Bench Bar, Nov. 22. and it being demanded what he had to ſay, why Judgment of Death ſhould not paſs upon him according to Law, he anſwered out of the Prophet Jeremiah, that if they put him to Death, they ſhould ſurely bring innocent Blood upon themſelves and upon this City; and added that precious in the Sight of the Lord is the Death of his Saints. After which Sentence was pronounc'd againſt him as a Traytor.

Between his Conviction and Condemnation his Wife delivered a Petition to the King, but obtain'd no other Anſwer, than that Mr. James was a ſweet Gentleman. And on Mrs. James preſſing the King further, he anſwer'd, he is a Rogue and ſhall be hanged.

Members of the Reformed Churches beyond the Seas coming over hither, join with the Church of England.

M. John Durel of the Government and Worſhip of the Reformed Churches, 4to. 1662. p. 63.

Whenſoever any of the Members of the Reformed Churches come over from beyond the Seas to us, and that they are to live in ſuch Parts of this Kingdom or City, as that they cannot conveniently go to any of thoſe Stranger Churches, whether French, Italian, or Dutch, that are amongſt us; they tell them that they may, and that they ought to come to our Churches, to be preſent at our Service, to ſay Amen to our Prayers, to receive the Holy Communion with us, and after our Way; and to perform all Church Duties, according to our uſual Rites and Ceremonies by Law eſtabliſhed. Of this I could produce many hundred Witneſſes, but I will name only one, who is a Man beyond all Exception in this Matter; and that is Dr. John Colladon, one of the King's Phyſicians in Ordinary, born in the Town and bred up in the Church of Geneva, and known for a ſound Proteſtant, and who had the Honour to congratulate his Majeſty's moſt happy Reſtauration from the City and Church of Geneva, and from the Proteſtant Cantons of Switzerland. Enquire of him, and he will tell you, that when he came over into England, not knowing whether there would be a French Church in thoſe Parts of the Kingdom or City, where his Occaſions might oblige him to ſettle and abide; before he parted, not being fully informed what the Judgment of the Church of Geneva was about the Church of England, he put this Quære to the Rulers of his ſaid Church: Whether it was lawful for him to join with the Church of England in publick Worſhip; and receive the Holy Sacrament according to the uſual Rites thereof? It was anſwered, that he might, and that it was not to be queſtioned. And ſo he did, and ſo doth at this very Day, and ever did upon all Occaſions.

Dr. John Colladon was a Conformiſt here, by the Advice of his own Church of Geneva.

The Death of a learned and excellent Prelate, Dr. Brian Walton, Lord Biſhop of Cheſter, born in Cleveland within the North-Riding of Yorkſhire, admitted in Magdalen College, Cambridge, thence remov'd to Peter-Houſe, M. A. 1623. Rector of St. Martin's Orgar in London, and of Sandon in Eſſex, Prebendary of St. Paul's, and Chaplain to King Charles I. Under Sequeſtration he laid the moſt noble Deſign of Learning and Religion, by undertaking and happily performing the vaſt Work of collecting and publiſhing the Biblia Polyglotta, printed at London in ſix Volumes Folio, Anno 1657. which Books he preſented to his Majeſty ſoon after his Reſtauration, who not only made him his Chaplain in Ordinary, but for his great Virtues, Learning, Loyalty, Sufferings, and indefatigable Induſtry for the publick Benefit of Learning, did advance him to the See of Cheſter, to which being conſecrated Decemb. 2, 1660. he viſited his Cathedral Church and City in September 1661. and had a very honourable Reception. Upon his Return to London he fell ſick, and died at his Houſe in Alderſgate-ſtreet on the 29th of November 1661. On the 5th of December following he was buried on the South-ſide of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul. Soon after was a noble Monument put over his Grave with a large Inſcription thereon.

Death of Lady Savile.

The Lady Savile, that illuſtrious Example of Piety towards God, and Love to her Countrey about this Time reſigned her Breath, eaſily yielding to a Diſtemper contracted from her Wearineſs of an Age ſo wicked and ſo ungrateful to God, unſhaken as ſhe had ſtood againſt the ſecret Conſpiracies and open Force of the moſt inveterate Enemies of the Crown. When ſhe found her Diſeaſe increaſe upon her, leaving the Town ſhe went to her Houſe at Wimple in Cambridgeſhire, and ſent for Dr. Barwick to her from London, deſirous to make uſe of his pious Miniſtrations in her laſt Extremity, whoſe Conſtancy in both Fortunes ſhe had often experienced, as well as his Counſel in doubtful, and his Fidelity in difficult Affairs: And a Year and a half after the Reſtoration, ſhe gave up her great and innocent Soul to God. —— See her Benefaction to the Church of Adwick, among the Gifts and Charities in 1660.

Imprimatur libellus hic cui titulus, &c. cum laude digniſſimi Authoris. Rob. Pory, S. T. P. &c.

Concluſion of the Preface, wiſhing for a preſcribed Form of Pulpit Prayer.

The Preface concluding. —— But till I find better Arguments than any they have yet produced, I ſee no Uſurpation nor Abſurdity, nor Inconvenience in it; if it be needful to have a more particular Addreſs in the Pulpit, for a ſpecial Bleſſing upon that Diſpenſation, that it be preſcribed to us by our Superiors. And to their Authority and Prudence I humbly ſubmit myſelf, with the whole Diſcourſe that followeth upon this Argument.

The Gift of Prayer ſo called, is a great Temptation and Snare.

P. 12. The plain Truth is, as the Matter is carried amongſt you, this Gift of Prayer (as you phraſe it) is made a Temptation and a Snare, an Inſtrument of much more Danger than Security to Mens Souls; for having firſt wrought this Conceit into the Minds of Men, that to be able to open his Boſom or rather his Mouth freely in Confeſſion, Deprecation and Petition, is a certain Sign of Grace; and perſuading them in the ſecond Place, that that Grace is irreſiſtible and inamiſſible: The Man that gets a Volubility of Tongue, a Readineſs of Expreſſion, with a competent Meaſure of Boldneſs and Haſtineſs to utter any Thing before the Lord, (we might inſtance in Harriſon, Cook, Vane, Hugh Peters, &c.) is induced preſently, or rather ſeduced, to flatter himſelf into an Opinion (whatever his own Practices and Courſe of Life be) that his State is very good and irreverſible.

The worſt of Men have the moſt abounded in extempore Prayer.

But to awaken Men out of this golden Dream, that they ſleep not the Sleep of Death, let us remember them of that which is recorded by Abraham Scultetus, of a notorious Arch-Heretick in Germany, whoſe Name was Swenckfield, he ſaith, he was wont ardentes ad Deum preces creberrime fundere, to pour forth frequently moſt ardent Prayers to Almighty God. And of blaſphemous Hacket, who was executed in the Days of Queen Elizabeth, it is obſerved by many, that he was ſo ardent in his Devotions, that he would raviſh all that heard him; and ſome were infected with the Venom of his Opinion, being drawn into that Contagion by no other Engine, but that very Charm of his ardent Praying. Fertur hic Hacketus (ſaith Hadrianus Saravia of him) in concipiendis extempore precibus adeo excelluiſſe, ut Dei ſpiritu eum totum ardere, & ab eo ipſius regi linguam, iſti duo crederent, &c. Add hereunto what is recorded of John Baſilides, Duke of Moſcovia, how he prayed, &c. yet the Man was an horrid Hell-hound, an incarnate Devil, &c. —— We have obſerved, that many of your gifted Men have been as much immerſed and drowned in Luſt and Idleneſs, in Covetouſneſs and Ambition, as any other; and if it would bring any Advantage to the Chriſtian Profeſſion, we could give you ſome Centuries of ſuch Perſons, but in Charity we ſhall ſpare you, &c.

Richard Holdſworth, M. A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, was incorporated at Oxford, July 15, 1617. This moſt eminent and loyal Perſon was a Native of Newcaſtle upon Tyne in Northumberland, where for ſome Time he was educated in Grammaticals; afterwards being ſent to the ſaid College, he made wonderful Proficiency in Arts and Theology, became ſucceſſively Divinity Profeſſor of Greſham College, being about that Time Doctor of Divinity, Maſter of Emanuel College, ſeveral Times ViceChancellor of Cambridge, Archdeacon of Huntingdon in the Place of Dr. Owen Gwyn, Maſter of St. John's College, deceaſed, Anno 1633. and at length upon the Grant of the Deanery of Durham to Dr. Chriſtopher Potter in the latter End of 1645. had the Grant of the Deanery of Worceſter made unto him, having in the beginning of the Grand Rebellion refuſed the Biſhoprick of Briſtol. But the Principles of this reverend Doctor being wholly orthodox, he ſuffered therefore very much during the miſerable Condition, which the Members of the Long Parliament had brought this Kingdom to; loſt moſt, if not all his Spiritualties, was ſeveral Times impriſoned; yet was elected Maſter of Emanuel College in 1637. ejected in or about 1644. Le Neve Faſti. p. 438.

While Maſter of Emanuel College he was Vicechancellor of Cambridge, in the moſt trying Years 1640, 1641, and 1642. Ibid. p. 403.

Son of a Father of both his Names, Miniſter in Newcaſtle. —— He was elected firſt Maſter of St. John's College, and quitting it was choſen Maſter of Emanuel. He had been ſome Time Chaplain to Sir Henry Hobart, Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, and had a Living given him in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, which he exchanged for the Rectory of St. Peter Poor, where he became a moſt noted Preacher, and was much followed, more eſpecially by the Puritans. And indeed he ſeems to have been the moſt celebrated Preacher of his Time. Once as he was preaching at Mercer's Chapel, on the Acclamation made to Herod, the Auditory ſeveral Times Hummed him in ſuch a Manner, that he could not be heard, inſomuch that he was forced to call out to them more than once I pray remember the Text. — When choſen Margaret Profeſſor, there was an Order of the Houſe of Commons that he ſhould not be admitted, nor receive any of the Profits, until he had ſatisfied the Juſtice of the Parliament. —— He was again poſſeſs'd of his Living, at leaſt of his Pulpit of St. Peter's Poor. But ſoon after the Parliament had voted no more Addreſſes to his Majeſty, he was again ſeized for preaching a ſmart Sermon againſt that Reſolution of the Houſe, and by the Committee of Safety once more impriſoned: At which Time the Committee did him the great Honour to declare, that if he was permitted to preach, he would undo all that they had done. — He was an intimate Friend of Bp. Brownrigg, who drew up his Epitaph, &c. Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy, Fol. Part II. p. 79.

afterwards being at Liberty he attended his Majeſty in his diſconſolate and afflicted Condition at Hampton-Court and in the Iſle of Wight. At length, after having ſeen him crown'd with Martyrdom, he ſurrendered up his pious Soul to him that gave it on the 22^d^ of Auguſt 1649. whereupon his Body was buried in the Church of St. Peter le Poore in London, of which Church he had been Miniſter, till the Violence of the Preſbyterians forced him thence, Anno 1642. After his Death were publiſhed ſome of his Works, viz. I. Valley of Viſion in twenty one Sermons, printed 1651, 4^to^. II. Prælectiones Theologicæ, &c. 1661. Folio, which laſt Book was publiſhed by Dr. Pearſon his Nephew, who hath ſet an Account of his Life before it.

Dr. Holdſworth was a Man of the ſtricteſt Virtue, and moſt unſullied Reputation, the moſt celebrated Preacher of his Time, being Miniſter of St. Peter's Poor in Broadſtreet, to which Living he was preferred in 1623, or 1624. He was a moſt faithful Paſtor of his Pariſh, and a moſt conſcientious Man, inſomuch that when the great Sickneſs happen'd in 1625. he refuſed to go into the Countrey, as moſt others did, but lived in his Pariſh, and conſtantly viſited the Sick, deſpiſing the Contagion, and preferring the Diſcharge of his Duty before the Safety of his Perſon. In the Year 1630. he was, without making any Intereſt, or uſing any Solicitation, (ſo great was his Reputation) choſen Divinity Profeſſor of Greſham College, of which he was a great Ornament nine or ten Years. He was a Perſon that ſo ſtrictly adhered to his Duty, and ſo fearful of acting in the leaſt againſt his Conſcience, that in the beginning of the Rebellion he was ſequeſtered, plundered and impriſoned four Years in the Tower, after which Time he was releaſed, being of an unblameable Carriage, and a moſt holy Converſation. In ſhort he was, as Biſhop Brownrigg aſſures us, a moſt excellent Preacher, a moſt faithful Interpreter of Scripture, a Contemner of Riches, a moſt charitable Man, of ſtrict Morals, and one of a moſt holy Life.

Whilſt his Majeſty was at Holdenby Houſe, he requeſted that this excellent Doctor might be allowed to attend him, among the other Divines whom he then ſent for; but this was utterly denied. Yet he was afterwards permitted to wait on his Majeſty at Hampton-Court. —— After this the King again deſir'd that he might attend him at the Iſle of Wight, but it was not granted. Not long after came on the monſtrous and moſt damnable Murder of his ſacred Majeſty, which ſo deeply affected this moſt loyal and excellent Perſon, that he never enjoy'd himſelf or his Health after, but by continual Prayers, Faſtings, Tears and Grief, contracted a black Jaundice and other Diſorders, which ended not but with his Life in the Auguſt following that bloody January, &c.

The great Difficulties that lay upon the Biſhops and Clergy in reforming the Common-Prayer.

Dr. Nichols's Comment on this Preface.

It is inconceivable what Difficulties the Biſhops had at that Time to contend with about making the Alterations. They were not only to conquer their own former Reſentments, and the quick Remembrance of their Sufferings, together with the unreaſonable Demands of the Preſbyterian Party; but they had the Court to deal with likewiſe, who puſhed on to all Acts of Severity, but were willing to let the Odium thereof lye upon the Clergy. And by the Management of ſome great Perſons then in Power, the Minds of the Epiſcopal Clergy and zealous Conformiſts were ſo wrought up, upon the Talk of theſe Alterations, that the Biſhops, who were concern'd in them, found it a difficult Matter to manage the Temper of their own Friends. This was the Occaſion of the Biſhops declaring their Mind in their Anſwer to the Preſbyterians Exceptions, Sect. 6. On the contrary we judge, that if the Liturgy ſhould be altered as is there required, not only a Multitude, but the generality of the ſobereſt and moſt loyal Children of the Church of England would be juſtly offended, ſince ſuch an Alteration would be a virtual Conceſſion, that this Liturgy were an intolerable Burden to tender Conſciences, a direct Cauſe of Schiſm, a ſuperſtitious Uſage (upon which Pretence it is here deſired to be altered) which would at once both juſtify all thoſe who have ſo obſtinately ſeparated from it, as the only pious tender conſcienc'd Men, and condemn all thoſe who have adhered to that in Conſcience of their Duty and Loyalty, with their Loſs or Hazard of Eſtates, Lives and Fortunes, as Men ſuperſtitious, ſchiſmatical, and void of Religion and Conſcience.

Had the Biſhops complied with all the Alterations requir'd, it would juſtly offend the beſt Members of the Church.

And indeed this was the moſt plauſible Objection in the Convocation 1689. when poſſibly the Liturgy altered would have given Occaſion for a new Separation, upon Grounds more popular than Non-juring or Lay-Deprivations.

In the ſaid Preface are theſe Words: Divers Pamphlets were publiſhed againſt the Book of Common-Prayer. The Pamphlets here pointed at ſeem to be the Exceptions againſt the Common-Prayer, Lond. 1661. And the Reply to the Biſhops Anſwer to the Exceptions.

In fine, great Importunities were uſed to his ſacred Majeſty, that the ſaid Book might be reviſed, &c. What theſe were is to be ſeen in the two Papers of Propoſals concerning the Diſcipline and Ceremonies of the Church of England, humbly preſented to his Majeſty by the reverend Miniſters of the Preſbyterian Perſuaſion, London, printed in the Year 1661.

Nor can expect, that Men of factious, peeviſh and perverſe Spirits, ſhould be ſatisfied with any Thing that can be done in this kind by any other but themſelves. This Stricture ſeems to be level'd againſt the new Prayers drawn up by Mr. Baxter, by Appointment of the Preſbyterian Commiſſioners in the Reformation of the Liturgy. Publiſhed together with the Petition for Peace, Lond. 1661.

To the Right Honourable Edward Earl of Clarendon, Lord High Chancellor of England,
The humble Apology of Roger L'Eſtrange.

Mr. L'Eſtrange's Apology to the Lord Chancellor.

London, for Hen. Brome, 1661. 8vo.

—— Be pleas'd to know my Lord, that upon Friday Morning laſt, in Weſtminſter-Hall, a Gentleman took me aſide, L'Eſtrange (ſays he) I am glad to meet you; for I am unquiet till I have told you ſomething which both in Honour and in Conſcience, I think myſelf oblig'd to acquaint you with. I am the Perſon that gave Intelligence to my Lord Chancellour, that you betray'd the King's Deſigns, but with ſuch Caution and Deliberation, as you yourſelf in my Place would have done no leſs. —— The Gentleman was further pleas'd to give me a View of your Lordſhip's Anſwer to him, which I confeſs was charitable conſidering the Suggeſtion, but as related to my Innocence was ſharp and cruel. —— The Ground of all is fix'd upon Mr. James Whitlock, a Captain of Horſe, and a Knight of Cromwell's. He (as this Gentleman my Friend undertakes to prove) declar'd that L'Eſtrange was a Traytor, and to his Knowledge had received ſix hundred Pounds in Gold from Cromwell. —— I beg and offer that I may put my Life upon the Tryal, &c. —— I was adjudg'd to die by a Court-Martial, for endeavouring the Surprizal of Lynne by his late Majeſty's Commiſſion, as a Traytor, yet they themſelves confeſs'd that I never receiv'd any Truſt. Dr. Mills the now Chancellor of Norwich, was my Judge Advocate. —— Briefly I have ſpent twenty Years now in his Majeſty's Service according to my Duty; and after all I only beg not to be thought a Villain. My Lord,

I am your Lordſhip's

Account and Character of Mr. Pell.

Wood's Faſti Oxon. Vol. I. col. 871.

Mr. Pell who brought in the Calendar was that eminent Dr. John Pell Son of John, and he of another John Pell, deſcended from thoſe of his Name in Lincolnſhire, where they ſeem to be of ancient Extraction. Born at Southwyk in Suſſex (of which Place his Father was Miniſter) on St. David's Day Ann. 1610. Bred in the Free-School then newly founded at Stenning, a Market Town in that County. At thirteen Years of Age he was ſent to Trinity College in Cambridge; but never Scholar or Fellow. About two Years after he had taken his Maſter's Degree, wherein he was incorporated at Oxford in 1631. he married, and underſtood then, beſides the three Tongues, Latin, Greek, and Hebrew, the Arabick, Italian, French, Spaniſh, High and Low Dutch. In December 1643. he took a Journey to Amſterdam, and was there made Profeſſor of the Mathematicks next after Mart. Hortenſius, where his learned Collegue Ger. Jo. Voſſius (as he teſtifies De Scientiis Math. c. 10.) heard him with Admiration, read his publick Lectures upon Diophantus, by whom likewiſe he is ſtyled, a Perſon of various Erudition, and a moſt acute Mathematician.

Much admired abroad.

In 1646. the Prince of Orange called him to be Publick Profeſſor of Philoſophy and Mathematicks in his Schola Illuſtris at Breda, founded that Year by his Highneſs. While he continued there, William Lord Brereton was ſent by his Grandfather George Earl of Norwich to be his Scholar, and became a good Proficient, eſpecially in Algebra, to which his Genius moſt inclin'd him, and carried it on to his dying Day, which was March 17, 1679.

Sent by Oliver his Envoy to Switzerland.

In 1652. J. Pell returned into England, and two Years after Oliver Lord Protector ſent him Envoy to the Proteſtant Cantons of Switzerland, where he chiefly reſided at Zurich. He was ſent with the Title of Ablegatus, but afterward he had Order to continue there under the Title of Reſident, 'till his Return into England a little before Oliver's Death Ann. 1658. at which Time it was vulgarly known among the Royaliſts, that in the ſaid Employment he had acted nothing to the Injury of the Church of England.

He publiſhed a little anonymous Exercitation concerning Eaſter, probably drawn up upon his Amending the Calendar.

After his Majeſty's Reſtauration, he took Holy Orders from Dr. Sanderſon Biſhop of Lincoln, who had procured for him by Dr. Sheldon Biſhop of London the Parſonage of Fobbing in Eſſex Ann. 1661. and two Years after the Parſonage of Laindon with the Chapel of Baſildon annexed in the ſame County. After the ſaid Biſhop was tranſlated to Canterbury, he became one of his Chaplains, being then Doctor of Divinity, and expected ſoon after to be made a Dean; but being not a Perſon of Activity, as others who mind not Learning are, could never riſe higher than a Rector. The Truth is, he was a ſhiftleſs Man as to worldly Affairs, and his Tenants and Relations dealt ſo unkindly by him, that they cozen'd him of the Profits of his Parſonage, and kept him ſo indigent, that he wanted Neceſſaries, even Paper and Ink to his dying Day.

At length after he had ſpent his laſt Days in great Obſcurity, and had been once or twice caſt into Priſon for Debt, (with Shame be it ſpoken to the great Virtuoſi of this Age) dyed in Dyet-ſtreet in the Pariſh of St. Giles in the Fields near London, in the Houſe of one Mr. Cotborne a Reader in the Church there, on Saturday Decemb. 12, 1685. and was buried by the Charity of Dr. Rich. Buſby, School-maſter of the College School at Weſtminſter, and Dr. John Sharp Miniſter of the ſaid Church of St. Giles, in the Vault under Part of the ſaid Church, commonly called the Vicar's or the Rector's Vault, &c.

Thoughts of Biſhop Burnet, on the Reſtitution of Epiſcopacy in Scotland.
The Earl of Middleton for it.

Bp. Burnet's Hiſtory of his own Times, Fol. p. 131.

The Point of the greateſt Importance then under Conſideration was, Whether Epiſcopacy ſhould be reſtored in Scotland or not? The Earl of Middleton aſſur'd the King, it was deſired by the greater and honeſter Part of the Nation. One Synod had as good as petitioned for it; and many others wiſhed for it. —— Sharp aſſured the King, that none but the Proteſtors, of whom he had a very bad Opinion, were againſt it, and that of the Reſolutioners there would not be one in twenty againſt it. —— The Earl of Lauderdale and all his Friends on the other hand aſſured the King, that the national Prejudice againſt it was ſtill very ſtrong, that thoſe who ſeemed zealous for it ran into it only as a Method to procure Favour, but that thoſe who were againſt it would be found ſtiff and eager in their Oppoſition to it, that by ſetting it up the King would loſe the Affections of the Nation, and that the ſupporting it would grow a heavy Load on his Government. —— The King went very coldly into the Deſign. He ſaid, he remembred well the Averſion that he himſelf had obſerved in that Nation to any thing that looked like Superiority in the Church. But to that the Earl of Middleton and Sharp anſwered, by aſſuring him that the Inſolences committed by the Preſbyterians while they governed, and the ten Years Uſurpation that had followed, had made ſuch a Change in Peoples Tempers, that they were much altered, ſince he had been among them. The King naturally hated Preſbytery; and having called a new Parliament in England that did with great Zeal eſpouſe the Intereſts of the Church of England, and were now beginning to complain of the evacuating the Garriſons held by the Army in that Kingdom, he gave Way, though with a viſible Reluctancy, to the Change of the Church Government in Scotland. —— The Earl of Clarendon ſet it on with great Zeal. And ſo did the Duke of Ormond, who ſaid it would be very hard to maintain the Government of the Church in Ireland, if Preſbytery continued in Scotland. —— Upon all this Diverſity of Opinion, the Thing was propoſed in a Scotch Council at Whitehall. The Earl of Crawford declared himſelf againſt it: But the Earl of Lauderdale, Duke Hamilton, and Sir Robert Murray were only for delaying the making any ſuch Change 'till the King ſhould be better ſatisfied concerning the Inclinations of the Nation. The Reſult of the Debate (all the reſt who were preſent being earneſt for the Change) was, that a Letter was writ to the Privy-Council of Scotland, intimating the King's Intentions for ſetting up Epiſcopacy, and demanding their Advice upon it. The Earl of Glencairn ordered the Letter to be read, having taken Care that ſuch Perſons ſhould be preſent who he knew would ſpeak warmly for it, that ſo others who might intend to oppoſe it might be frightned from doing it: None ſpoke againſt it but the Earl of Kincairdin. He propoſed that ſome certain Methods might be taken, by which they might be well informed, and ſo be able to inform the King of the Temper of the Nation, before they offered an Advice, that might have ſuch Effects, as might very much perplex, if not diſorder, all their Affairs. Some ſmart Repartees paſſed between the Earl of Glencairn and him. This was all the Oppoſition that was made at that Board. So a Letter was written to the King, from thence, encouraging him to go on, and aſſuring him, that the Change he intended to make would give a general Satisfaction to the main Body of the Nation.

To conſider of fit Men to be made Biſhops;

Not the Covenanters, but the old Epiſcopal Clergy.

Upon that the Thing was reſolved on. It remained after this only to conſider the proper Methods of doing it, and the Men who ought to be employed in it. Sheldon and the Engliſh Biſhops had an Averſion to all that had been engaged in the Covenant: So they were for ſeeking out all the old Epiſcopal Clergy, who had been driven out of Scotland in the Beginning of the Troubles, and preferring them.

Mr. Woodrow ſaith, Vol. I. p. 101. Mr. Thomas Sideſerf had been Biſhop of Galloway, and depoſed in the Year 1638. for the common Faults of the Prelates at that Time, and in particular for erroneous Doctrine, and now he is tranſlated to a better Benefice.

Mr. Woodrow writes thus bitterly of Abp. Sharp, *p.*101. — His Life until his arriving at the Top of his Ambition I have read, written by one of the after Sufferers, a worthy Gentleman, and ſhould I give an Abſtract of it, the Portrait would be very black and ſurpriſing. His Dream when at the Univerſity, his taking the Tender, his Propoſal to O. Cromwell, which made the Uſurper aſſert him very publickly to be an Atheiſt, his betraying Preſbyterian Miniſters when at Court, and afterwards purſuing them for his Charges, his Baſeneſs with Iſabel Lindſay, as ſhe declared in his Face openly enough, and ſhare in the Murder of the poor Infant, his Perjury in Mr. James Mitchel's Caſe, his cruel Life and ſtrange Death would make up a very black Hiſtory, &c.

Mr. Andrew Fairfoul got the Archbiſhoprick of Glaſgow, a Man of ſome Learning and neat Expreſſion, but never taken to be either ſerious or ſincere. He had been Miniſter firſt at Leith, and at this Time was at Dunce, and in that Countrey there was no ſmall talking of his Intrigues with a Lady who ſhall be nameleſs, ibid.

Mr. James Hamilton, Brother to the Lord Belhaven, Miniſter at Cambuſnetham is placed at Galloway. His Gifts were reckoned every Way ordinary, but he was remarkable for his cunning Time-ſerving Temper, ibid.

Mr. Rob. Leightoun, once Miniſter of Newbottle, and at this Time Principal of the College of Edenburgh, made choice of the ſmall Biſhoprick of Dumblain, to evidence his Abſtractedneſs from the World. His Character was by far the beſt of any of the Biſhops now ſet up; and to give him his due, he was a Man of very conſiderable Learning, an excellent Utterance, and of a grave and abſtracted Converſation. He was

There was but one of the old Biſhops left alive, Sydſerfe who had been Biſhop of Galloway. He had come up to London, not doubting but that he ſhould be advanced to the Primacy of Scotland. —— But he had ſo diſguſted the Engliſh Biſhops —— that he was only removed to be Biſhop of Orkney, one of the beſt Revenues of any of the Biſhopricks in Scotland: But it had been almoſt at all Times a Sine-Cure. He lived little more than a Year after his Tranſlation. He had died in more Eſteem if he had died a Year before it.

Sharp declared for a Set of Men of moderate Principles. This prevailed with the Earl of Clarendon, who ſaw the King ſo remiſs in that Matter, that he reſolved to keep Things in as great Temper as was poſſible. And he not doubting but that Sharp would purſue that in which he ſeemed to be ſo zealous and hot, and carry Things with great Moderation, perſuaded the Biſhops of England to leave the Management of that Matter wholly to him. And Sharp being aſſured of that at which he had long aimed, laid aſide his Maſk, and owned that he was to be Archbiſhop of St. Andrews. He ſaid to ſome, from whom I had it, that when he ſaw that the King was reſolved on the Change, and that ſome hot Men were like to be advanced, whoſe Violence would ruin the Countrey, he had ſubmitted to that Poſt on Deſign to moderate Matters, and to cover ſome good Men from a Storm that might otherwiſe break upon them. So deeply did he ſtill diſſemble: For now he talked of nothing ſo much as of Love and Moderation. —— He was ordered to find out proper Men for the other Sees. That Care was left entirely to him. The Choice was generally very bad.

Bp. Burnet's Hiſtory of his own Times, p. 133.

Two Men were brought up to be conſecrated in England, Fairfoul deſigned for the See of Glaſgow, and Hamilton Brother to the Lord Belhaven for Galloway. The former of theſe was a pleaſant facetious Man, inſinuating and crafty; but he was a better Phyſician than a Divine. His Life was ſcarce free from Scandal; and he was eminent in nothing that belonged to his own Function. He had not only ſworn the Covenant, but had perſuaded others to do it. —— Soon after the Conſecration, his Parts ſunk ſo faſt, that in a few Months, he who had paſſed his whole Life long for one of the cunningeſt Men in Scotland, became almoſt a Changling; upon which it may be eaſily collected what Commentaries the Preſbyterians would make. Sharp lamented this to me, as one of their great Miſfortunes. He ſaid, it began to appear in leſs than a Month after he came to London.

Ibid. 134.

Hamilton was a good natur'd Man, but weak. He was always believed Epiſcopal, Yet he had ſo far complied in the Time of the Covenant, that he affected a peculiar Expreſſion of his counterfeit Zeal for their Cauſe, to ſecure himſelf from Suſpicion. When he gave the Sacrament, he excommunicated all that were not true to the Covenant, uſing a Form in the Old Teſtament of ſhaking out the Lap of his Gown, ſaying, So did he caſt out of the Church and Communion all that dealt falſely in the Covenant.

Ibid.

With theſe there was a fourth Man found out, who was then at London at his Return from the Bath. He was the Son of Dr. Leightoun, who had in Archbiſhop Laud's Time writ Zion's Plea againſt the Prelates, for which he was condemned in the Star-Chamber, to have his Ears cut and his Noſe ſlit; a Man of a violent and ungoverned Heat. He ſent his eldeſt Son Robert to be bred in Scotland, who was accounted a Saint from his Youth up. He had great Quickneſs of Parts, a lively Apprehenſion, with a charming Vivacity of Thought and Expreſſion. He had the greateſt Command of the pureſt Latin that I ever knew in any Man. He was a Maſter both of Greek and Hebrew, and of the whole Compaſs of Theological Learning, chiefly in the Study of the Scriptures. —— He had been bred up with the greateſt Averſion imaginable to the whole Frame of the Church of England. From Scotland his Father ſent him to Travel. He ſpent ſome Years in France, and ſpoke that Language like one born there. He came afterwards and ſettled in Scotland, and had Preſbyterian Ordination. But he quickly broke through the Prejudices of his Education. —— He ſoon came to ſee into the Follies of the Preſbyterians, and to diſlike their Covenant, particularly the impoſing it, and their Fury againſt all who differed from them. He found they were not capable of large Thoughts, theirs were narrow, as their was reckoned devout, and an Enemy to Perſecution, and profeſſed a great deal of Meekneſs and Humility. By many he was judged void of any doctrinal Principle, and his cloſe Correſpondence with ſome of his Relations at Doway in popiſh Orders, made him ſuſpected as very much indifferent as to all Profeſſions which bear the Name of Chriſtian. He was much taken with ſome of the popiſh myſtick Writers, and indeed a Latitudinarian, and of an over-extenſive Charity. His Writings publiſhed ſince the Revolution evidence his Abilities, and that he was very much ſuperior to his Fellows.

This is the Set of Men pitched upon to lord it over the Church of Scotland. They were, it muſt be own'd, very well choſen for their Work, and agreeable enough to the Deſign of ſetting them up, unleſs it was that the Primate turn'd too heavy for ſeveral of our Nobility, who would only have had a moderate Prelacy brought in: But when conſidered as to their perſonal Character, they made good the Countreyman's Remark, that the Biſhops of England were like the Kings of Judah, ſome good, ſome bad, but the Prelates in Scotland were like the Kings of Iſrael, not one of them good, but all of them Followers of Jeroboam, who made Iſrael to Sin.

Proceedings in Convocation.

Tempers were ſoure: So he grew weary of mixing with them. He ſcarce ever went to their Meetings, and lived in great Retirement, minding only the Care of his own Pariſh at Newbottle near Edingburgh. ——

Commonly call'd Sir Ellis.

He had a Brother well known at Court, Sir Eliſha, who was very like him in Face and in the Vivacity of Parts, but the moſt unlike him in all other Things that can be imagined. For though he loved to talk of great Sublimities in Religion, yet he was a very immoral Man. He was a Papiſt of a Form of his own: But he had changed his Religion to raiſe himſelf at Court; for he was at this Time Secretary to the Duke of York, and was very intimate with my Lord Aubigny, a Brother of the Duke of Richmond's, who had changed his Religion, and was a Prieſt, and had probably been a Cardinal if he had lived a little longer. —— His Brother, who thought of nothing but raiſing himſelf at Court, fanſied that his being made a Biſhop might render himſelf more conſiderable. So he poſſeſſed the Lord Aubigny with ſuch an Opinion of him, that he made the King apprehend, that a Man of his Piety and his Notions (and his not being married was not forgot) might contribute to carry on their Deſign. He fanſied ſuch a monaſtick Man, who had a great Stretch of Thought and ſo many other eminent Qualities, would be a Means at leaſt to prepare the Nation for Popery, if he did not directly come over to them; for his Brother did not ſtick to ſay, he was ſure that lay at Root with him. So the King named him of his own proper Motion, which gave all thoſe that began to ſuſpect the King himſelf great Jealouſies of him. Leightoun was averſe to this Promotion, as much as was poſſible. His Brother had a great Power over him, —— when he was prevailed on to accept a Biſhoprick, he choſe Dunblane, a ſmall Dioceſe as well as a little Revenue. But the Deanery of the Chapel Royal was annexed to that See. So he was willing to engage in that, that he might ſet up the Common-Prayer in the King's Chapel, for the Rebuilding of which Orders were given, &c.

A Petition of Sir Thomas Allen, againſt the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough, heard and diſmiſs'd.

Ibid.

Upon hearing the Cauſe upon the Petition of Sir Thomas Allen, between him and the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough, concerning his pretended Purchaſe of the Manor of Caſtor, Sutton, and Ayleſworth in the County of Northampton, Parcel of the Poſſeſſions of the ſaid Dean and Chapter, —— It appears that the ſaid Dean and Chapter have ſealed a Leaſe to the Petitioner who hath alſo ſealed his Counterpart. But the Petitioner complains, that in the ſaid Leaſe they have raiſed their ſaid Rents from twenty Pounds per Annum to one hundred ſixty ſeven Pounds twelve Shillings, with other Reſervations, and received from him the Fine of three hundred Pounds. The Petitioner prays for a Mitigation in the Rent and Fine. —— The Commiſſioners think not fit to alter the Rents aforeſaid, raiſed upon ſo pious an Account, and there being no other Way to relieve the Petitioner, do order that the Petition of the ſaid Sir Thomas Allen be diſmiſſed, and the ſame is hereby accordingly diſmiſſed.

SUNDAY Dec. 15.
Mr. Woodrow repreſents this Conſecration in a very odd Manner. —— In December theſe four with a great Parade at Weſtminſter, before a great Confluence of Scots and Engliſh Nobility, were dubbed firſt preaching Deacons, then Preſbyters, and then conſecrated Biſhops in one Day, by Dr. Sheldon and a few others. The Ceremony was performed in all the Modes of the Engliſh Church, with Veſtments and all their Cringes and Bows; at which 'tis ſaid ſome Indecencies fell out, and after they had received the Sacrament kneeling, in all Points they were ordained according to the Office and Form there. After the Conſecration the Biſhops and Peers were feaſted at Weſtminſter, and then went again to Church, and heard another Sermon.

Bp. Burnet's Hiſtory of his own Times, p. 133.

When the Time fixed for the Conſecration of the Biſhops of Scotland came on, the Engliſh Biſhops finding that Sharp and Leightoun had not Epiſcopal Ordination as Prieſts and Deacons (the other two having been ordained by Biſhops before the Wars) they ſtood upon it, that they muſt be ordained, firſt Deacons, and then Prieſts. Sharp was very uneaſy at this, and remembred them of what had happened, when King James had ſet up Epiſcopacy. Biſhop Andrews moved at that Time the Ordaining them as was now propoſed: But that was overruled by King James, who thought it went too far towards the Unchurching of all thoſe who had no Biſhops among them. —— But the Engliſh Biſhops were poſitive in the Point, and would not diſpenſe with it. Sharp ſtuck more at it, than could have been expected from a Man that had ſwallowed down greater Matters: Leightoun did not ſtand much upon it. He did not think Orders given without Biſhops were null and void. He thought the Forms of Law were not ſettled by any ſuch poſitive Laws as were unalterable; but only by Apoſtolical Practices, which as he thought, authorized Epiſcopacy as the beſt Form; yet he did not think it neceſſary to the Being of a Church: But he thought that every Church might make ſuch Rules of Ordination as they pleaſed, and that they might re-ordain all that came to them from any other Church; and that the Reordaining a Prieſt ordained in another Church imported no more, but that they received him into Orders according to their Rules, and did not infer the annulling the Orders he had formerly received. Theſe two were privately upon this ordained Deacons and Prieſts. And then all the four were conſecrated publickly in the Abbey of Weſtminſter. Leightoun told me, he was much ſtruck with the Feaſting and Jollity of that Day; it had not ſuch an Appearance of Seriouſneſs or Piety as became the new modelling of a Church, &c.

Ibid. p. 142.

The Biſhops came down to Scotland ſoon after their Conſecration, all in one Coach. Leightoun told me, he believed they were weary of him, for he was weary of them: But he finding they intended to be received at Edinburgh with ſome Pomp, left them at Morpeth, and came to Edinburgh a few Days before them. He hated all the Appearances of Vanity. He would not have the Title of Lord given him by his Friends, and was not eaſy when others forced it on him. In this I always thought him too ſtiff; it provoked the other Biſhops, and looked like Singularity and Affectation, and furniſhed thoſe that were prejudiced againſt him with a ſpecious Appearance to repreſent him as a Man of odd Notions and Practices, &c.

He was alſo Provoſt of Eaton College, and was a Perſon very inſtrumental to his Brother, the Duke of Albemarle, in the Reſtauration of King Charles II. He deceaſed at his Lodgings in the Old Palace Yard in Weſtminſter on Tueſday the 11th [it ſhould be 17th] 1661. and was convey'd thence to the Jeruſalem Chamber in the Dean of Weſtminſter's Houſe, whence with funeral Solemnity he was carry'd to the Abbey, and interr'd in St. Edmund's Chapel; the Duke of Albemarle his Brother being chief Mourner, and the Biſhop of Glouceſter preached his funeral Sermon December 20, 1661.

He married Suſanna Daughter of Thomas Paine of Plimtree in Devonſhire, by whom he left at the Time of his Deceaſe two Daughters: Mary the elder Daughter and Co-heir, was married to Arthur Fairwell of Weſtminſter, Eſq; (Son and Heir to Arthur Fairwell of Barington in the County of Somerſet, Eſq; who was Son and Heir to Arthur Fairwell of the ſame Place, younger Brother of Sir George Fairwell of *Hill. WEDNESDAY Dec. 18.

A Bill for granting and creating Tythes where none are payable.

In order to the Lord Scudamore's endowing of ſeveral Churches.

The Benefit of augmenting the ſmaller Livings.

Die Mercurii 18. Decemb. 1661.

In the Houſe of Lords, Hodie prima vice lecta eſt Billa, An Act for enabling Grants of Tythes and creating Tythes where none are payable in kind, to be made to the Parſons and Vicars of Churches within the Precincts whereof the Lands do lye. —— Hodie prima vice lecta eſt Billa, An Act for the Endowment of ſeveral Churches by the Lord Viſcount Scudamore.

Printed 1661. Fol. p. 55.

The Neceſſity and Advantage of augmenting the ſmaller Livings was well ſet forth by Biſhop Gauden in his Pillar of Gratitude, lately publiſhed in Folio 1661. —— It is in the Behalf of many of our poor Brethren within the Dominions of England and Wales, that there may be ſome effectual Method uſed worthy of the Wiſdom, Piety, and Charity of his Majeſty and the two Houſes of Parliament to relieve the Meanneſs and Incompetency of their ſcandalous Livings, which makes many of them as more needing, ſo leſs capable of Diſcipline, Objects alſo of vulgar Contempt, depreſſing their Spirits, ſtarving their Studies, diſcouraging them in their Duties, betraying them to Sordidneſs of Living, expoſing them to many Temptations, and laſtly, ſubjecting them to all popular Servilities, Complaicencies, and Dependancies, which are the Neſts and Breaſts, the Seminaries and Nurſeries of all Faction.

There is no Way to redeem them, their Miniſtry, and this Reformed Church, from theſe Burthens and Chains, that enter into the very Souls of many, at firſt ingenious Scholars and hopeful Miniſters, but by making ſmall Livings ſomewhat competent. His Majeſty hath ſet a great Example in this kind, commanding Augmentations to be allow'd out of his own and the Churches Impropriations. But this Bounty cometh ſhort of at leaſt three thouſand Livings which ſtill remain in England and Wales as Flats or Shallows in the Sea, &c.

The Remedies commended.

It is a Work worthy of his Majeſty's Greatneſs and your Goodneſs to apply (in God's good Time) ſome meet Help to this crying Malady, which firſt began by the Pope's unhappy alienating of Tythes from Incumbents or Rectors; and annexing them as Impropriations to religious Houſes. The Remedies commended by wiſe Men are, firſt, by uniting ſome ſmall Livings that are near adjacent: Secondly, by aboliſhing ſome injurious Cuſtoms, where wonted and over-awed Compoſitions deprive the Incumbents of the true Value of what is their due. Thirdly, by laying ſome moderate Tax on Dwelling-Houſes in Market Towns, and likewiſe in ſome populous and trading Pariſhes, as 6 d. or 9 d. in the Pound, according to the juſt Value of their Rents, ſo as no Houſe ſhould be charged which is rented under forty Shillings a Year, nor any that pays Tythes for Lands in Ferme, or in the Owner's Hands.

Chiefly the raiſing a publick Fund for the Augmentation of poor Livings, which has been ſince happily effected with no Burden to the Subject.

Theſe Helps may relieve ſome, but becauſe the Malady reacheth far beyond theſe Proportions, nothing can be ſo effectual, as (when the Nation ſhall have Peace and Plenty) the raiſing of ſome publick Stock of Money in order to compleat this great and good Work, by a publick and parliamentary Bounty, or a national Charity: By which Bank or Stock, rightly managed and improved, a good Foundation may be laid for the buying in (not of all Impropriations, which is too great a Work to be compaſſed, but) ſuch a Portion of them, as may in moſt Places make the Living or Vicarage competent, that is 60*l.* or 80*l.* or 100*l. per Annum*, according as the Dearneſs or Cheapneſs of Places doth adviſe: Nor may it ſeem heavy to raiſe ſome Tax or Pay for Chriſt's Soldiers, (his Miniſters) when ſo many Millions have been ſpent upon other Soldiers.

If ſome ſuch eaſy Tax or Subſidy, as ſhall ſeem moſt proportionable in the Wiſdom of his Majeſty and the two Houſes of Parliament, were given to God and the Church for this excellent End, to be raiſed in four Years, and the Matter publickly recommended by King, Lords, and Commons, beſides the Profit of the publick Contribution or Levy (in which ourſelves as Biſhops would be exemplary according to our Abilities) if it were well improved and imployed, no doubt many private Perſons living and dying, would liberally give to ſo noble and pious a Work: Some Noblemen and Gentlemen would, after his Majeſty's Example, for ever endow ſmall Livings with ſome ſuch Portion out of their Impropriations; eſpecially if they could do it without Charge, by reaſon of the Statute of Mortmaine, which might, as to this Intent and Uſe, be for a Time repealed.

Recommended to the Piety and Wiſdom of the Parliament.

But your Piety and Wiſdom will beſt underſtand what Ways are moſt proper to attain ſo great and good Ends, as would follow this excellent Deſign of augmenting ſmall Livings, &c.

THURSDAY Dec. 19.

A Meſſage to the Lords from his Majeſty, that divers Perſons are endeavouring to raiſe new Troubles.

Die Jovis 19 Decemb. 1661.

The Lord Chancellor acquainted the Houſe, that he had a Meſſage to deliver to the Houſe, which was to let them know, that beſides the Apprehenſions and Fears that are generally abroad, his Majeſty hath received Letters from ſeveral Parts of the Kingdom, and alſo by intercepted Letters it does appear, that divers diſcontented Perſons are endeavouring to raiſe new Troubles to the Diſturbance of the Kingdom, as in many Particulars was inſtanc'd, which Matter being of ſo great Conſequence, his Majeſty's Deſire is, that the Houſe of Commons may be made acquainted with it, that ſo his Majeſty might receive the Advice and Counſel of both Houſes of Parliament what is fit to be done herein, and to think of ſome proper Remedy to ſecure the Peace of the Kingdom.

This declar'd by the Lord Chancellor, in a Conference of the two Houſes.

See Mr. Echard's Hiſt. Ch. II. p. 68.

In a Conference between both Houſes, the Lord Chancellor declar'd, that the ſame did concern Things of a high and dangerous Nature, and that there had been a real Deſign, which had been forming ever ſince March laſt, to diſturb the Union and Peace of this Kingdom: And ſo proceeded to name ſeveral of the Parties engag'd, with the Manner and Contrivance of their barbarous Deſigns, and the Progreſs they had from Time to Time made therein; and ſaid, that although their Deſigns were at preſent diſorder'd, as to the effecting of them in this Town, to which end they made a general Invitation of diſbanded Soldiers, and diſaffected Perſons to reſort hither about the 11th of this Month, yet they were ſtill practiſing to put the ſame in Execution in the Countrey: And that the Lords to provide a Remedy againſt theſe Evils, had appointed a Committee of twelve of their Houſe, and deſired that an anſwerable Number of the other Houſe be join'd with the Lords, who might during the Receſs examine the ſaid traiterous Deſigns, and find out ſuch Expedients, as they ſhould perceive neceſſary for the preventing and ſuppreſſing them, and ſecuring the Peace of the Kingdom.

A Committee of Lords and Commons to ſit on this Occaſion during the Receſs.

The many diſcontented Parties in the Kingdom.

Defence of the Zealanders Choice, 1673.

Next to the Miracle of the King's Reſtauration, his ſafe Enjoyment of the Crown ſeem'd to be no leſs a Miracle, when the People in their ſeveral Clans and Parties were ſo uneaſy and ſo eager for Change. I have had an Account (ſaith a good Author) having been a little curious in thoſe Enquiries, of one Million and a half of the King's Subjects, that by Intereſt and Inclination were carried counter to the Court, under theſe five Heads of Diſtinction: 1. The Purchaſers of Crown and Church Lands, that are now reſtored, and they outed. 2. The Soldiers and Seamen that had fought againſt him by Sea and Land. 3. Magiſtrates and Miniſters that were removed and turned out of their Places. 4. Common-wealth's Men that were Antimonarchical in their Judgments. 5. Fanaticks properly ſo called, as Anabaptiſts, Fifth-Monarchy Men, Quakers, &c. not to mention, that the Royaliſts and Church-men were divided in their Intereſts, Judgments, and Affections.

And the ſeveral Denominations of them.

FRIDAY Dec. 20.

The King in the Houſe of Peers.

Extracts from Journals of Parliament.

Die Veneris 20. Decemb. 1661.

The King came to the Houſe of Peers, and ſent for the Commons: The Speaker preſented to his Majeſty a Bill for granting unto the King's Majeſty twelve hundred and ſixty thouſand Pounds, to be aſſeſſed and levied by an Aſſeſſment of ſeventy thouſand Pounds by the Month for eighteen Months; and ſaid,

The Speaker's Speech to him.

Great Sir,

It is our preſent Comfort, and will be our future Glory, that God hath made us inſtrumental for the Repair of thoſe Breaches, which the worſt of Times had made upon the beſt of Governments. The late great Eclipſe in our Horizon occaſion'd by the Interpoſition of the Earth is now vaniſh'd; the Stars in our Firmament are now full of Light. The Light of our Moon is become like the Light of our Sun; and the Light of our Sun is ſevenfold, &c.

The King's ſhort Speech thanking the Commons for their great Preſent.

At the paſſing of this Money Bill, the King in a ſhort Speech gave very hearty Thanks to the Houſe for their great Preſent, and declared, that he had received the Benefit of it before he had it; the Reputation thereof having given him Credit both at Home and Abroad: And that he was not more willing to give his Royal Aſſent to that Bill, than he ſhall be to paſs any Bills whatſoever, which that Houſe ſhould preſent to him for his Peoples Good.

Three other publick Bills.

The Corporation Act.

Cap. I. An Act for the well governing and regulating of Corporations.

Preamble.

For putting Corporations in the Hands of well-affected Perſons.

Whereas Queſtions are likely to ariſe concerning the Validity of Elections of Magiſtrates and other Officers and Members in Corporations, as well in reſpect of removing ſome, as placing others, during the late Troubles, contrary to their true Intent and Meaning of their Charters and Liberties. And to the End, that the Succeſſion in ſuch Corporations may be moſt probably perpetuated in the Hands of Perſons well affected to his Majeſty and the eſtabliſhed Government, it being too well known, that notwithſtanding all his Majeſty's Endeavours and unparallell'd Indulgence in pardoning all that is paſt, nevertheleſs many evil Spirits are ſtill working.

All bearing any Office to take the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy.

Wherefore for Prevention of the like Miſchief for the Time to come, and for Preſervation of the publick Peace both in Church and State; Be it enacted, &c. that all Mayors, Aldermen, Recorders, Bailiffs, Town-Clerks, Common-Council-Men, and other Perſons bearing any Office —— ſhall take the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and this Oath following:

And Oath of not taking Arms againſt the King.

I A. B. do declare and believe, that it is not lawful upon any Pretence whatſoever, to take Arms againſt the King; and that I do abhor that traiterous Poſition of taking Arms by his Authority againſt his Perſon, or againſt thoſe that are commiſſion'd by him: So help me God.

And ſubſcribing a Declaration againſt the ſolemn League and Covenant.

And alſo at the ſame Time ſhall publickly ſubſcribe before the ſaid Commiſſioners, or any three of them this following Declaration:

I A. B. do declare, that I hold there lies no Obligation upon me, or any other Perſon, from the Oath commonly called the ſolemn League and Covenant, and that the ſame was in itſelf an unlawful Oath, and impoſed upon the Subjects of this Realm againſt the known Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom.

Act againſt Vexations and Oppreſſions in Suits of Law.

Cap. II. An Act for prevention of Vexations and Oppreſſions by Arreſts and Delays in Suits of Law.

Which have been contrary to the ancient and fundamental Laws of this Kingdom.

Which ſuffer'd no Suit without expreſſing the true Cauſe of Action.

Whereas general Writs have been now iſſued without expreſſing any particular Cauſe.

And even ſham Actions brought in falſe Names.

To the vexing and undoing of many Perſons.

Whereas by the ancient and fundamental Laws of this Realm, in Caſe where any Perſon is ſued, impleaded, or arreſted, by any Writ, Bill or Proceſs iſſuing out of any of his Majeſty's Courts of Record at Weſtminſter, in any common Plea, at the Suit of any common Perſon, the true Cauſe of Action ought to be ſet forth and particularly expreſſed in ſuch Writ, Bill or Proceſs, whereby the Defendant may have certain Knowledge of the Cauſe of the Suit, and the Officer who ſhall execute ſuch Writ, Bill, or Proceſs, may know how to take Security for the Appearance of the Defendant to the ſame, and the Sureties for ſuch Appearance may rightly underſtand for what Cauſe they become engaged: And whereas there is a great Complaint of the People of this Realm, that for divers Years now laſt paſt, very many of his Majeſty's good Subjects have been arreſted upon general Writs of Treſpaſs, Quare clauſum fregit, Bills of Middleſex, Latitats, and other like Writs iſſued out of the Courts of King's-Bench, and Common-Pleas, not expreſſing any particular or certain Cauſe of Action, and thereupon kept Priſoners for a long Time for want of Bail, Bonds with Sureties for Appearances having been demanded in ſo great Sums, that few or none have dared to be Security for the Appearances of ſuch Perſons ſo arreſted and impriſoned, although in truth there hath been little or no Cauſe of Action: And oftentimes there are no ſuch Perſons who are named Plaintiffs, but thoſe Arreſts have been many Times procured by malicious Perſons, to vex and oppreſs the Defendants, or to force from them unreaſonable and unjuſt Compoſitions for obtaining their Liberty; and by ſuch evil Practices many Men have been and daily are undone, and deſtroyed in their Eſtates, without poſſibility of having Reparation; the Actors imployed in ſuch Practices having been for the moſt Part poor and lurking Perſons, and their Actings ſo ſecret, that it hath been found very difficult to make true Diſcoveries or Proof thereof.

Remedy and Prevention of theſe Evils.

For Remedy and Prevention of which ſo great growing Evils and Miſchief, and alſo for diſcouraging all frivolous and unjuſt Suits, and cauſeleſs Arreſts for the future: Be it Enacted, &c.

Act for the King's granting Leaſes in the Dutchy of Cornwall.

Cap. IV. An Act to enable the King's Majeſty to make Leaſes, Grants, and Copies of Offices, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, Parcel of his Highneſs's Dutchy of Cornwall, or annexed to the ſame, and for Confirmation of Leaſes and Grants already made.

To encourage the Tenants in the Improvement of their Eſtates.

Whereas a great Part of the Lands, Part of and annexed to the Dutchy of Cornwall, have been held by ſundry Leaſes thereof made for Years, and for one two and three Lives, by means whereof the Tenants having fixed Eſtates, have been encouraged to improve and manure the ſame, and have improved the ſame, and therein laid out great Sums of Money in Building and otherwiſe, to the great Advantage of the Publick: And whereas for twenty Years and more now laſt paſt, no ſuch Leaſes have been legally made; ſo that it is probable moſt of the Tenants Eſtates will be determined, or near Determination, e're there can be any Eſtates well and legally renewed, unleſs remedy thereof be provided; by means whereof Waſte, Spoil and Dilapidation are likely to happen, the Lands worn out and decayed, and great Diſturbance and Impoveriſhment to the Tenants. And whereas, on the like Conſideration, King Charles the Firſt was by ſpecial Law enabled to make ſuch Leaſes, be it enacted, &c.

Private Bills.

Among the Private Bills.

An Act for dividing Trinity Church in Kingſton upon Hull from Haſlee.

An Act to enable Algernon Peyton, Doctor in Divinity, to make Sale of Part of his Lands for Payment of his Debts.

Adjournment of the Houſes to the 7th of January next.

Adjourn'd to the 7th of January next.

Alterations and Amendments made in the Book of Common-Prayer.

The Conceſſions and Alterations that were now made for reforming the Book of Common-Prayer.

No ſinging of Leſſons or Epiſtle and Goſpel.

I. There was a Rubrick, that in ſuch Places where they do ſing, there ſhall the Leſſons be ſung in a plain Tune, and likewiſe the Epiſtle and Goſpel. This the Preſbyterian Divines excepted againſt, and conceived that the diſtinct Reading of them with an audible Voice, would tend more to the Edification of the Church, that Rubrick was accordingly omitted.

Some old Collects were omitted, and new ones ſubſtituted.

II. The Preſbyterian Divines propos'd, that many of the Collects for ſeveral Sundays and Holidays might be alter'd, and ſeveral new Collects were ſubſtituted in room of the old.

Communicants not to ſignify their Names over Night, or in the Morning, but at leaſt ſome Time the Day before.

III. In the Order for the Adminiſtration of the Lord's Supper the Rubrick directed, that ſo many as intend to be Partakers of the Holy Communion ſhall ſignify their Names to the Curate over Night, or elſe in the Morning before the beginning of Morning Prayer, or immediately after. Exception was taken, "that the Time "here aſſigned for Notice to be given to the Miniſter was not ſufficient", and therefore it was changed into at leaſt ſome Time the Day before.

The Preface to the ten Commandments was reſtored.

IV. It was deſir'd by the Preſbyterian Divines, that the Preface prefixed by God himſelf to the ten Commandments may be reſtored: And thoſe Words were accordingly inſerted, God ſpake theſe Words and ſaid, I am the Lord thy God.

The Exhortations to the Holy Communion amended.

V. The Exhortations to the Holy Communion were excepted againſt and ſuitably amended.

The general Confeſſion in the Communion Office to be made by one of the Miniſters.

VI. The general Confeſſion before the Communion was introduc'd by a Rubrick, appointing it to be made in the Name of all thoſe that are minded to receive the Holy Communion, either by one of them, or elſe by one of the Miniſters, or by the Prieſt himſelf. The Preſbyterian Commiſſioners deſir'd it may be made by the Miniſter only; and it was ſo directed to be made by one of the Miniſters.

This Day chang'd into as at this Time.

VII. The proper Preface upon Chriſtmas Day had, thine only Son to be born as this Day for us, which upon Exception was alter'd as at this Time for us. So on Whitſunday, this Day was chang'd into as at this Time.

The Prieſt directed to break the Bread.

VIII. In the Prayer of Conſecration, they objected that the Miniſter's breaking of the Bread is not ſo much as mentioned: And therefore a Note directed the Prieſt here to break the Bread.

The Rubrick about kneeling at the Sacrament reſtored.

IX. They deſired that a Rubrick in the Common-Prayer-Book in 5 & 6 Ed. VI. for the vindicating of our Church in the Matter of kneeling at the Sacrament, without Adoration, &c. might be reſtored, and it was ſo.

No private Baptiſm, but by a lawful Miniſter.

X. They deſired that Baptiſm may not be adminiſtred in a private Place at any Time, unleſs by a lawful Miniſter. And accordingly in the Miniſtration of private Baptiſm, the Rubrick orders, that the People without great Cauſe and Neceſſity procure not their Children to be baptized at home in their Houſes; and then to be done by the Miniſter of the Pariſh, or in his Abſence by any other lawful Miniſter.

Anſwer to a Queſtion in the Catechiſm amended.

XI. A Queſtion in the Catechiſm runs thus: Why then are Infants baptized, when by reaſon of their tender Age they cannot perform them? The Anſwer was, Yes: They do perform by their Sureties, who promiſe and vow them both in their Names. Upon Objection made to this Anſwer it was thus amended, Becauſe they promiſe them both by their Sureties; which promiſe when they come to Age themſelves are bound to perform.

The laſt Rubrick before the Catechiſm was expunged.

XII. In the laſt Rubrick before the Catechiſm, they deſire that theſe Words may be expunged, And that no Man ſhall think that any Detriment ſhall come to Children by deferring of their Confirmation, &c. and they were accordingly expunged.

The Office of Confirmation to be perform'd by the Miniſters preſenting to the Biſhop.

XIII. They deſire that none may be confirmed, but according to his Majeſty's Declaration, viz. That Confirmation be rightly and ſolemnly performed, by the Information and with the Conſent of the Miniſter of the Place. Accordingly it was directed, that the Curate of every Pariſh ſhall either bring or ſend in Writing, with his Hand ſubſcribed thereunto, the Names of all ſuch Perſons within his Pariſh, as he ſhall think fit to be preſented to the Biſhop to be confirmed.

The Rubrick after Confirmation amended.

XIV. They object to the laſt Rubrick after Confirmation, none ſhall be admitted to the holy Communion until ſuch Time as he can ſay the Catechiſm and be confirmed; as making Confirmation neceſſary to the Holy Communion. For which Reaſon it was thus ſoftned, And there ſhall none be admitted to the Holy Communion, until ſuch Time as he be confirmed, or be ready and deſirous to be confirmed.

In Matrimony till Death us depart, amended till Death us do part.

XV. In the Form of Solemnization of Matrimony they object againſt the Phraſe, till Death us depart, which with little Variation was made till Death us do part.

Two other Rubricks amended in the Office for Matrimony.

XVI. They objected againſt two other Rubricks after the Form of Matrimony, 1. Then ſhall begin the Communion, and after the Goſpel ſhall be ſaid a Sermon, &c. 2. The new married Perſons the ſame Day of their Marriage muſt receive the holy Communion. The firſt therefore was thus altered, After which if there be no Sermon declaring the Duties of Man and Wife, the Miniſter ſhall read as followeth: And inſtead of the ſecond Rubrick, it was only adviſed to be convenient that the new-married Perſons ſhould receive the holy Communion at the Time of their Marriage, or at the firſt Opportunity after their Marriage.

In the Viſitation of the Sick the Rubrick amended.

XVII. In the Order for the Viſitation of the Sick, they excepted to the Rubrick before Abſolution: Here ſhall the ſick Perſon make a ſpecial Confeſſion, &c. after which Confeſſion the Prieſt ſhall abſolve him after this ſort: And it was amended thus, here ſhall the ſick Perſon be moved to make a ſpecial Confeſſion of his Sins, if he feel his Conſcience troubled with any weighty Matter. After which Confeſſion the Prieſt ſhall abſolve him (if he humbly and heartily deſire it) after this Sort.

Rubrick for Communion of the Sick.

XVIII. In the Communion of the Sick they propoſe, "That the Miniſter be "not enjoined to adminiſter the Sacrament to every ſick Perſon that ſhall deſire "it, but only as he ſhall judge expedient." And a Rubrick was prefixed to that Effect.

Amendments in the Order for Burial of the Dead.

XIX. In the Order for the Burial of the Dead, they objected to the Rubrick, the Miniſter meeting the Corps at the Church Stile, ſhall ſay, or elſe the Miniſters and Clerks ſhall ſing, &c. and deſire that Miniſters may be left to uſe their Diſcretion in theſe Circumſtances, &c. And Alteration was made, that the Prieſt and Clerks meeting the Corps at the Entrance of the Church-yard, and going before it, either into the Church, or towards the Grave, ſhall ſay or ſing.—— They objected to the Prieſt's ſaying at the Grave, we commit his Body to the Ground—in ſure and certain Hope of Reſurrection to eternal Life; the Senſe of which was altered by ſaying, certain Hope of the Reſurrection, &c. and objecting to other Expreſſions of God's taking to himſelf the Soul——we may reſt in him as our Hope is this our Brother doth, &c. they put in a Rubrick, here is to be noted, that the Office enſuing is not to be uſed for any that die unbaptized, or excommunicate, or have laid violent Hands upon themſelves.

A Rubrick amended for the Churching of Women.

XX. In the Churching of Women, they object to the Rubrick, the Women ſhall come into the Church, and there ſhall kneel down in ſome convenient Place, nigh unto the Place where the Table ſtandeth, and the Prieſt ſtanding by her, &c. which kneeling near the Table (they ſay) is in many Churches inconvenient, and therefore they deſire that theſe Words may be left out, and that the Miniſter may perform that Service either in the Deſk or Pulpit. The new Rubrick therefore only directs, that the Woman at the uſual Time after her Delivery ſhall come into the Church decently apparell'd, and there ſhall kneel down in ſome convenient Place, as hath been accuſtomed, or as the Ordinary ſhall direct. And the 121st Pſalm before preſcrib'd being objected as ſeeming not ſo pertinent as ſome other, it was now adviſ'd that the Prieſt ſay the 116th or 127th Pſalm.

Many other Alterations and Corrections made in the Liturgy, ſufficient to have ſatisfied all reaſonable Men.

And beſides theſe and other Alterations and Amendments in the Liturgy, there were made many Corrections in the Calendar. No Apocryphal Leſſons to be read on the Sundays. The Epiſtles and Goſpels according to the new Tranſlation. With an Addition of Prayers and Thankſgivings upon ſeveral Occaſions. A new Office for the Miniſtration of Baptiſm to ſuch as are of riper Years; and Forms of Prayer to be uſed at Sea.

The Winter ſo mild, that among the Prodigies related in the Annus Mirabilis ſecundus 1662. 4to. this is one, an Inhabitant of Kingſthorp in Northamptonſhire, near the Town of Northampton, had growing upon an Apple-Tree in his Orchard in the Month of December 1661. divers young Apples. And that in this Town or not far from it in December, a Raven did hatch and bring forth a young one fledged and kept tame.

Life of King James II. 8vo. Supplement, p. 4.

My Lord of Peterborough,

I have omitted to write to you all this while in Anſwer to ſeveral of your Letters, expecting ſtill the Diſpatch of this Bearer Major Fines, who hath ſtaid here ſoliciting ſome Concerns of his Regiment, which he hath now diſpatch'd. And as to what you deſire to know concerning ſuch Offices in the reſpective Regiments as ſhall become vacant, the King hath commanded me to tell you, that when that ſhall happen, you ſhall fill them up out of ſuch of the ſame Regiment, as by Right and Merit may be advanced; which I hope will be a great Encouragement to the whole Troops under your Command, when they ſee no fear of others to come over their Heads. And becauſe ſome of the Regiments are not compleat of Soldiers according to the Eſtabliſhment, the King would have you to keep all ſuch Monies of the vacant Places of the common Soldiers in your Hands, to be laid out in recruiting or other Uſes for every reſpective Regiment, and from Time to Time to give an Account of it here, that you may receive further Directions. This is all I have to ſay to you at preſent, but to wiſh you a good Voyage, and to aſſure you that you ſhall ever find me to be Sunday 29. The Nonſuch Ketch ſailed to Cales to bring away Mr. Lever; and the Colcheſter and the Norwich went to Cruiſe off Cape Spratt.

Monday 30. In the Afternoon the Norwich came in, having ſpoken with four rich Genoa Ships bound from Cales to Malaga, and ſo to Genoa.

Tueſday 31. The Yarmouth came in from Gibraltar, and we ſaw the Auguſtine and her Convoy ſail from Gibraltar through the Gut for England.

WEDNESDAY Dec. 25. Chriſtmas Day had been turn'd into a Day of Faſting and Humiliation, with a Sermon by Mr. Calamy.

Deploring the Superſtition and Prophaneneſs of the keeping Chriſtmas.

The Feaſt by Providence buried in a Faſt.

Printed 1644. 4to.

Good People with ſome Abhorrence call'd to Mind that the Obſervation of Chriſtmas Day had been charg'd with Superſtition and Prophaneneſs; and from a Day of Joy and Thankſgiving had been changed by the Long Parliament into a Day of Faſting and publick Humiliation in the Year 1644. when Mr. Edward Calamy preach'd before the Commons in this Language: This Day [Dec. 25.] is the Day which is commonly called the Feaſt of Chriſt's Nativity or Chriſtmas Day. A Day that hath been heretofore much abuſed to Superſtition and Prophaneneſs. It is not eaſy to reckon whether the Superſtition hath been greater, or the Prophaneneſs. I have known ſome that have preferred Chriſtmas Day before the Lord's Day; and have cried down the Lord's Day, and cried up Chriſtmas Day. I have known thoſe that would be ſure to receive the Sacrament upon Chriſtmas Day, though they did not receive it all the Year after. This and much more was the Superſtition of the Day, and the Prophaneneſs was as great. Old Father Latimer ſaid in one of his Sermons, that the Devil had more Service in the twelve Chriſtmas Holydays, (as they were called) than God had all the Year after. Seneca ſaith of his Time, Olim December menſis erat, nunc annus eſt. There are ſome, that though they did not play at Cards all the Year long, yet they muſt play at Chriſtmas, thereby, it ſeems, to keep in Memory the Birth of Chriſt. This and much more hath been the Prophanation of this Feaſt. And truly I think that the Superſtition and Prophanation of this Day is ſo rooted into it, as there is no Way to reform it, but by dealing with it as Hezekiah did with the Brazen Serpent. This Year God by a Providence hath buried this Feaſt in a Faſt; and I hope it will never riſe again. You have ſet out (Right Honourable) a ſtrict Order for the keeping of it: And you are here this Day to obſerve your own Order, and I hope you will do it ſtrictly. The Neceſſities of the Times are great. Never more need of Prayer and Faſting. The Lord give us Grace to be humbled in this Day of Humiliation for all our own and England's Sins, and eſpecially for the old Superſtition and Prophanation of this Feaſt.

And yet a more moderate Preſbyterian preach'd up the Obſervation of Chriſtmas Day in 1656.

And yet a more temperate Preſbyterian, Mr. John Howes, Miniſter of God's Word at Abington, near the Town of Northampton, preaching a Lecture in that Town, Decemb. 25, 1656. had the Conſcience and Courage to recommend the ſolemn Obſervance of Chriſtmas Day, and to publiſh his Opinion of it.

P. 18. Oh let us not forget there was a Day of Chriſt's Birth, without which we had better have never ſeen the Day! O let not us deſpiſe the Day of his Birth, without which we can never be Partakers of the new Birth!

With good Arguments in a pathetick Style.

Shall we keep an annual Day to the Honour of God for bodily Deliverances from Gunpowder Traytors, and Spaniſh Armado's, from Men who can only kill the Body? And will any judge it ſinful (I ſay ſinful) to keep an annual Day to the Honour of our Saviour for ſpiritual Deliverances from infernal Enemies, who would have ſwallow'd up Soul and Body? Might the Jews under the ſtrict Pædagogie of the Law keep an Anniverſary Feaſt called Purim (which was of humane Inſtitution) without any Reproof from God, or any of the Prophets, and that only for their temporal Preſervation from the Treachery of Haman? And will any Chriſtian think it ſinful, in Goſpel Times to keep an Anniverſary Feſtival for thoſe ſpiritual unutterable and unconceivable Mercies which we enjoy by the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt.

Beloved, if you dare put any Truſt in Eccleſiaſtical Annals, (and I know no probable Reaſon but we may truſt them, as well as the Civil Annals) then Jeſus Chriſt was born as upon this Day. If you value the Judgment of many eminent Saints, who lived in the primitive Times, and before Popery was hatch'd (Ambroſe, Chryſoſtome, Auſtin, &c.) and preached willingly at this Time, then Jeſus Chriſt was born as upon this Day. If you prize the Practice of thoſe godly and learned Martyrs in Queen Mary's Days (ſuch were penitent Cranmer, learned Ridley, zealous Latimer, and many others) who ſhed their Blood in Deteſtation of popiſh Errors, and yet did conſtantly keep this Feſtival of the Birth of Chriſt; then Jeſus Chriſt was born as upon this Day. In a Word, if you ſet any Rate upon the Synod of Dort [1618.] who were never yet ſuſpected of Popery or Superſtition, and who did celebrate the Feſtival of Chriſt's Nativity with great Solemnity, honouring it with Sermons and plentiful Relief to the Poor; then Jeſus Chriſt in their Opinion was born as upon this Day. However this is enough for my Purpoſe, that the Chriſtian World hath reputed the twenty fifth Day of December (and this is our twenty fifth according to the Julian Account) for the Day of Chriſt's Birth; therefore, &c.

THURSDAY Dec. 26.
Dr. Seth Ward Dean of Sarum.

The good Works of Dr. Ward in his Deanery of Exeter.

Reg. Gauden, Exon. MS. fol. 23.
Dr. Pope's Life of Biſhop Ward, 8vo. p. 52.

Seth Ward, S. T. P., was elected Dean of Exeter in the Room of Dr. William Peterſon deceaſed, confirmed January 13. following. Upon the late Promotion of Dr. Reynolds to the Biſhoprick of Norwich, the Church of St. Laurence Jewry in London became void, and it being in the King's Gift, was conferr'd upon Dr. Seth Ward, who kept it till he was nominated Biſhop of Exeter in July 1662. and upon his Reſignation procur'd it for Dr. Wilkins. Give me Leave (ſays Dr. Pope) to take a ſhort View of what Dr. Ward did, when he was Dean of Exeter. He firſt caſt out of the Temple the Buyers and Sellers, who had uſurp'd it, and therein kept diſtinct Shops to vend their Wares. At his Majeſty's Reſtoration, the Nonconformiſts there being buoy'd up by ſome powerful Friends —— took the Boldneſs to petition the King, that the Partition in the Cathedral might not be taken down, that they might enjoy Altare contra Altare: But to give them their due, they were ſo generous as to allow one half of the Church to the Uſe of the Epiſcopal Party, to whom all did of Right belong, that therein divine Service might be celebrated according to the Act of Uniformity of Worſhip, reſerving the other Part to their ſelves to meet and hold forth in. But their Deſign was prevented by the early Application of the Dean to the King and Council, from whom he procur'd an Order to reſtore the Church to its ancient Form and Shape, and remove the Innovations: He accordingly caus'd the Partition Wall to be pull'd down, and repair'd and beautified the Cathedral, the Expences whereof amounted to twenty five thouſand Pounds. He alſo bought a new Pair of Organs, eſteem'd the beſt in England, which coſt two thouſand Pounds. —— This out of the Church Revenues upon the renewing of Leaſes.

The deplorable Condition of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Life of Dr. John Barwick, Engl. 8vo.

The Dean and Chapter were very liberal in their Contributions this Way.

By an Order of Chapter for allotting Rents to that Uſe.

And giving 500l. a Man out of his own Pocket.

The Dean's Generoſity in abating a Fine in favour to a loyal Gentleman.

And letting to the Phyſicians their Place of Meeting without a Fine.

The Condition of St. Paul's Church in London was ſo deplorable, as far exceeded the Abilities of the Chapter to repair, and requir'd the Aſſiſtance not only of all the Clergy, but of all Orders of Men, eſpecially when every good Man who had been promoted to any conſiderable Dignity in the Church had freely and liberally contributed both to the Payment of the publick Debts, and to the ranſoming of Chriſtian Captives abroad from the barbarous Tyranny of the Turks, and alſo to the Relief of the Poor of all ſorts at home, who were languiſhing up and down almoſt every where. However they that adminiſtred the Affairs of this Church look'd upon it as their Duty eſpecially, more than others, according to their ſeveral Abilities, and in Proportion to what every one had receiv'd from the Church Revenues, to ſet others an Example of Munificence. Theſe together with the Dean are four [Dr. Jo. Barwick, Dean, Dr. Tho. Turner, Dr. Joh. Hacket, and Dr. Edw. Layfield,] having each an equal Dividend with him of the common Income of the Church, they compaſſionating (as was but meet) the diſmal Eſtate of the Fabrick, did not only by an unanimous Order of Chapter appoint all the Rents of the Houſes lately built in St. Paul's Church-yard both then due, and afterwards as they ſhould become due, to be ſet apart for the Repairs of it; but every one of them likewiſe out of his own Pocket gave five hundred Pounds for the ſame Uſe, when Dr. Barwick had been ſo little a while Dean of this Church, as beſides that Sum hardly to have receiv'd from its Revenue enough to defray his daily Expences. Little of what belong'd to the Dean in particular happen'd to be leas'd out in his Time, except one Houſe in the City, in letting which he made a conſiderable Abatement to his own Loſs, in favour of a certain Gentleman of London, of whom he had formerly receiv'd a hundred Pounds towards his Majeſty's Support in his Exile: For the good Dean was ſo affected with this Inſtance of Piety to his Prince in Diſtreſs, that when the Price agreed for this Houſe did not exceed three hundred Pounds, he yet willingly remitted a third Part thereof to a Perſon that had deſerv'd ſo well of the King and of the Church. —— And the Chapter acted ſo generouſly with the learned Society of London Phyſicians, that they let them that noble Houſe, where their College us'd to meet, without any Fine, when they might each to his own Share have made a hundred Pounds out of that Leaſe. They only deſir'd without any Stipulation, that when they ſhould ſee the Repairs of the Cathedral carrying on with any Diligence, they would not ſcruple every one to contribute ſomething to promote ſo charitable a Work; as they hoped many other worthy Perſons would readily do, though under no other Obligations to them, than for their Prayers daily offer'd up to God. For thus they who had the Care of this Church, thought it moſt proper to diſcharge that Truſt, ſo as not to render themſelves unworthy either of the Eccleſiaſtical Patrimony, or of the Royal Protection, or of every good Man's Approbation and Praiſe.

London, for R. Royſton, 1662, 4to.

The Preface of Monſieur Durel to his Sermon in Defence of the Church of England, to let the World know what is the Judgment of the Paſtors of the Reformed Churches beyond the Seas, touching our Book of Common-Prayer, and the Rites and Ceremonies therein preſcribed, it was thought fit to ſet here before this following Sermon (which tends wholly to the Vindication of the ſame) theſe Extracts out of certain Letters written by the reverend, learned, and godly Miniſters of the French Reformed Churches of the Towns of Paris, Rouen, and Caen, the three moſt conſiderable Congregations of the whole Kingdom, both for the Number and Quality of the Members of them. And the Reader is deſired to take Notice, that Monſieur de l'Angle, and Monſieur Daille were Moderators of the laſt General Aſſembly of the ſaid Reformed Churches of France held at Loudun Anno 1659.

Account of the Author.

Wood's Ath. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 248.

The Author was born at Llanderkuin, near to Harlech in Merionethſhire, entred a Student in Hart Hall, Oxon. Ann. 1617. A. M. 1625. three Years after elected Fellow of Jeſus College, being then in Holy Orders. In 1632. he was admitted to the Reading of the Sentences, and ſoon after going into Scotland was admitted Doctor of his Faculty in the Univerſity of St. Andrew on the laſt of July 1634. and in October following was incorporated in Oxford. Before that Time having taken to Wife Rebecca Daughter of John Pettie of Stoke-Talmaſh near to Thame in Oxfordſhire, Eſq; became Rector of Whitfield near that Place; which Benefice he keeping 'till about 1647. was made Rector of St. Mary's Church in a Market Town called Dolgelhy or Dolgethle in his own Country, where he continued 'till the Time of his Death in 1665. and was buried in the Church-yard there; he had been ſiding with all Parties, and taking all Oaths.

Mr. Corbet's Intereſt of England.
Preface for Pacification.

London, for Geo. Thomaſon, 1661. p. 277.

The Intereſt of England in the Matter of Religion. With a Preface, recommending the Deſign of Pacification by reconciling the two Parties; and making a regular Conſociation of Epiſcopacy and Preſbytery; and exhorting all good Chriſtians in their ſeveral Places to promote the Peace of Chriſt's Kingdom and Family by all the Ways of equal and reaſonable Condeſcenſion and Forbearance.

Suppoſed to be meant of Dr. John Coſin Biſhop of Durham.

P. 175. I am informed by a Writer of our Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, who is of the Epiſcopal Perſuaſion, that an Epiſcopal Doctor of great Note, and now a Biſhop, did within theſe few Years uſe his utmoſt Endeavours to gain upon the Sorboniſts in Paris; and thereupon that he complied with them, as far as he could do in Chriſtian Prudence, and with a ſafe Conſcience. Now the Sorboniſts are the moſt moderate Papiſts, and the ſaid Doctor is known to be far enough from the leaſt Smatch of Puritaniſm. Yet not any Accommodation could be heard of between them, but rather the contrary even in the Point of the Apocrypha.

Account of the Author.

Athen. Oxon. Vol. II. col 504. See Dr. Calamy's Account, &c. 8vo. p. 333.

The Author was Son of Roger Corbet Shoemaker, born and educated in Grammar Learning within the City of Glouceſter, became a Batler of Magdalen Hall in Oxford about the Beginning of 1636. aged ſixteen Years, and in 1639. was admitted Batchelor of Arts: Afterwards he was made a Maſter of one of the Schools, and a Lecturer in that City; but when it was garriſon'd for the Parliament Uſe, he became Dinner Chaplain to Colonel Edw. Maſſey Governour thereof, preached ſeditiouſly, vilified the King and his Party in a baſe Manner, and would ſeveral Times ſay in common Diſcourſe, and in the Parliament ſometimes, that nothing hath ſo much deceived the World as the Name of a King, which was the Ground of all Miſchief to the Church of Chriſt. When the War was terminated he was called to be a Preacher at Bridgwater in Somerſetſhire, whence after ſome Time he went to the City of Chicheſter, where he was frequented by ſchiſmatical People. At length being called to a richer Cure, he went to Bramſhot in Hampſhire, —— where he continued 'till the Act of Uniformity caſt him out, Ann. 1662. and then he retired to London (as moſt Non-conformiſts did) where he lived privately, taking no Employment 'till his firſt Wife died, and then he lived in the Houſe with Sir John Micklethwaite, Preſident of the College of Phyſicians, about which Time he marry'd a Daughter of Dr. W. Twyſs, and then lived privately with Mr. Rich. Baxter at Totteridge in Hertfordſhire. At length the King's Licenſe or Toleration being publiſhed in the Middle of March 1671. he was invited by the Godly Party to Chicheſter, where he preached 'till a Month before his Death; at which Time removing to London to be cut of the Stone in the Bladder, he died as ſoon as he came to that City without effecting his Deſire, the 26th of December 1680. and was buried in the Church of St. Andrew Holborn.

The ſeveral Anſwers given to his Book.
By Rog. L'Eſtrange.

The ſaid Book entitled The Intereſt of England in Matter of Religion, was anſwered firſt by Roger L'Eſtrange, in his Intereſt Miſtaken: or, The Holy Cheat, &c. London 1661-2. 8vo. wherein it appears, that our Author Corbet juſtifies in his ſaid Book the Preſbyterian Cauſe of 1641. that he excludes the Royal Party that ſerv'd the late King from having any Hand in reſtoring of this; that he revives the pretended Miſdemeanors of the Biſhops as Occaſioners of the laſt War; that he maintains the Actings of the Preſbyterians according to the Covenant, that he makes the two Houſes participate of the Sovereignty, and denies the Lawfulneſs of the Engliſh Ceremonies. It was anſwer'd, ſecondly, by an Anonymous, in his Book entituled, the Preſbyterians unmaſked, &c. Lond. 1676. 8vo. which Book came out again in 1681. under the Title of The Diſſenter Diſarm'd, &c. ſuppoſed verily to be written by Sam. Thomas Chanter of Chriſt-Church in Oxon. whom Mr. Baxter ſtyles a ſhameleſs Writer, who publiſhed a bloody Invective againſt Mr. Corbet's pacificatory Book, called The Intereſt of England, as if it had been written to raiſe a War.

By Anonymus in the Preſbyterians unmaſked.

See the Sermon at the Funeral of the Reverend Mr. John Corbet by Richard Baxter, London 1681. where it is ſaid, he was a Man ſo blameleſs in all his Converſation, that he never heard one Perſon accuſe or blame him, except for Nonconformity, —— and that he was of ſo great Moderation and Love of Peace, that he hated all that was againſt it, and would have done any thing for Concord in the Church, except ſinning againſt God, and hazarding Salvation.

As a Native and School-maſter at Glouceſter, he laboured to ſerve that City by his Writing,

I. An Hiſtorical Relation of the Military Government of Glouceſter, from the Beginning of the Civil War between King and Parliament, to the Removal of Colonel Maſſie from that Government to the Command of the weſtern Forces. London 1645. in 18. Sheets in 4to.

II. A Vindication of the Magiſtrates of the City of Glouceſter from the Calumnies of Robert Bacon, printed in his Relation of his Uſage there, which he entitles, The Spirit of Prelacy yet working: Or Truth from under a Cloud. London 1646. 4to.

Life and Death of Mr. Tho. Cawton.

The Life and Death of that holy and reverend Man of God Mr. Thomas Cawton, ſome Time Miniſter of the Goſpel at St. Bartholomew's behind the Royal Exchange, and lately Preacher to the Engliſh Congregation at Rotterdam in Holland. With ſeveral of his Speeches and Letters, while in Exile for his Loyalty to the King's moſt excellent Majeſty. To which is annexed a Sermon preached by him at Mercers Chapel Febr. 25, 1648. not long after the inhuman Beheading of the King; for which he was committed Priſoner to the Gate-Houſe in Weſtminſter.

London, Printed for Tho. Baſſet, 1662. 8vo.

Account in ſhort of him. Thom. Cawton, Cler. admiſſ. ad Rect. de Wivenhoe Com. Eſſex. vac. per Mort. Johannis Cornwall, 27. Jun. 1637.

This Thomas Cawton, ſen^{r}. ſome Time of Queen's College in Cambridge, was a learned and religious Puritan, formerly Parſon of Wivenhoe near to Colcheſter, driven into Exile for preaching againſt the Murder of King Charles I. and for being in the ſame Plot with Chriſtopher Love, for the Raiſing of Monies to ſupply the Army of King Charles II. when he was about to come into England (from Scotland) to gain his Right.

Wood's Ath. Oxon. Vol. II. col. 432.

His Life, though it ſeems to be written by another Perſon, was drawn up by his Son Tho. Cawton, born at Wivenhoe, educated in Hebrew, Syriack, and Arabick Tongues at Rotterdam in Holland, under Mr. Robert Sheringham; then ſettled in the Univerſity of Utrecht; he came afterwards to Merton College, Oxon. admitted Batchelor of Arts in the Beginning of 1660. removing thence to Weſtminſter he lived a Non-conformiſt, and kept religious Meetings to his laſt, dying April 10, 1677.

Two Funeral Sermons for Mr. Cawton, by Mr. H. Hurſt and Mr. N. Vincent.

See the faithful and diligent Servant of the Lord bleſſed at the Coming of his Lord, Luke xii. 43. And Iſrael's Lamentation at the Death of a Prophet, from 1 Sam. xxv. 1. Being two Sermons preached at the Funeral of Mr. Thomas Cawton, the one in the Morning, the other in the Afternoon. By Henry Hurſt and Nathaniel Vincent Miniſters of the Goſpel. Both made publick thro' the earneſt Deſire of the Hearers.

London, for T. Parkhurſt, &c. 1677. 4to.

Their Character of him.

Mr. Vincent ſays of him, p. 31. I begin with his Extraction. He was of a Stock eminent for Godlineſs in the greateſt Strictneſs and Power. And to be born of thoſe who are born of God, is more honourable and advantageous than to come of the Blood of Nobles. If the Righteous Man be more excellent than his Neighbour; how excellent was this Man's Parentage? His Father was a Prophet eminent for Holineſs and Learning; and his Grandfather was the famous Mr. Rogers, the Author of the Seven Treatiſes, &c. than whom it may be truly ſaid, England hardly ever brought forth a Man that walked more cloſely with God: Let the Papiſts be ſilent, and forbear reproaching Proteſtant Miniſters.

Mr. John Watſon.

John Watſon, M. A. plundred in Scotland, coming to London, had a ſmall Vicarage in Norfolk given him by King Charles I. and after the Loſs of it, he got the Rectory of Kirkby-Cane in the ſame County, but was diſpoſſeſs'd by an Ordinance of thoſe Times, baniſhing all Scots which had fled to England to avoid the Covenant. —— He got himſelf re-poſſeſs'd of his Living, but by what means I cannot tell, ſome Time before the Reſtauration. After which he would have been preferr'd for his Sufferings, having received Promiſes of that kind from his Majeſty, had he not died ſoon after that Day, viz. in 1661. in the 48th Year of his Age. He was a Man of eminent Parts and Learning. Ibid. p. 401.

Dr. Nicholas Bernard.

Dr. Nicholas Bernard, who had been Chaplain to Archbiſhop Uſher, and by him made Dean of Ardagh in Ireland. In the Time of the Rebellion there, he ſuffer'd much; and having loſt all, he returned ſafe into England to attend on his Lord, became Rector of the rich Church of Whitchurch in Shropſhire, by the Gift of the Earl of Bridgwater, Chaplain to Oliver Lord Protector, one of his Almoners, and Preacher to the Society of Grey's-Inn. After the King's Reſtoration, being poſſeſs'd with juſt Doubts concerning the Settlement of Ireland, he refuſed to return to that Countrey, to take Poſſeſſion of a Deanery, and perhaps of a Biſhoprick. Whereupon he continued at Whitchurch, and there died, and was buried in the Winter Time Anno 1661. leaving behind him a Son named James. Faſti Oxon. Vol. I. col. 863.

Some Apoſtates to Popery.

Some Perſons who in the late Times had revolted to the Church of Rome returned to England in Hopes of Countenance and Protection.

Sir Edward Shirley.

I. Edward Shirley, a long Traveller and very ingenious Writer, he was knighted by King Charles II. Jan. 6, 1682. ſuffered ſeveral Indignities in the Time of the Popiſh Plot; and after the Abdication of King James ſuffered more on Account of his Religion. Ath. Oxon. Vol. II col. 704.

Dr. Thomas Read.

II. Thomas Read of New-College, Oxon. LL. D. a great Royaliſt, and by his Majeſty King Charles I. was nominated Principal of Magdalen Hall, upon the Flight of Wilkinſon to the Parliament. Afterwards he chang'd his Religion for that of Rome, lived beyond Sea, and wrote (as I have been told) certain Matters againſt Dr. Edward Boughen, &c. Faſti Oxon. Vol. I. col. 893

Mr. John Lakenby.

III. John Lakenby, Son of Simon Lakenby of Shadford in the County Palatine of Durham; firſt of Magdalen College, Oxon. then of Edmund Hall, where he lived a cloſe Student till the Gariſon of Oxon. was ſurrendred An. 1646. Walter Mountague Abbot in France.

V. Walter Mountague, younger Son of Edward Mountague the firſt Earl of Mancheſter, born in the Pariſh of St. Botolph without Alderſgate, London, educated in Sidney College in Cambridge, afterwards travelled beyond the Sea, and returning with an unſettled Mind, did at length (after he had been ſent once or more into France about publick Concerns) give a Farewell to his own Countrey and Religion, wherein he had been born and baptized, and going beyond the Sea he ſettled himſelf in a Monaſtery for a Time, and wrote a Letter in Juſtification of his Change, which was afterwards anſwer'd by Lucius Lord Falkland. Being received into the Favour of the Queen Mother of France, ſhe made him Abbot of Nantveil of the Benedictine Order in the Dioceſe of Metz, and afterwards Abbot of Pontois in the Dioceſe of Roan. —— In his younger Years, before he left the Church of England, he wrote the Shepherd's Paradiſe, London 1629. 8vo. And after he had left it, Miſcellanea Spiritualia: Or devout Eſſays, in two Parts. —— This Abbot Mountague died after Henrietta Maria, the Queen Mother of England, who concluding her laſt Day on the laſt of Auguſt 1669. he ſoon after followed, as I have been informed by one of his domeſtick Servants; who told me further, that he was buried in the Chapel or Church belonging to the Hoſpital of Incurables at Paris.

Mr. Abraham Woodhead.

VI. Abraham Woodhead, deprived of his Fellowſhip of Univerſity College, Oxon. An. 1648. travelled and ſettled for a Time at Rome. In 1660. he was reſtored to his Fellowſhip by his Majeſty's Commiſſioners, and remained in his College for a Time, and warily concealing his Religion which he had chang'd at Rome, he got Leave of the Maſter and Society to be abſent, as intending again to travel with the Allowance of 20*l. per Ann.* Retiring to London he ſettled at Hogſden near the City, where he lived very obſcurely and retiredly, upon that Allowance the College made to him as a Traveller, all therein (except one) knowing not to the contrary, but that he was beyond the Seas. There, I ſay, being ſettled, he not only cauſed Youths to be trained up in the Roman Catholick Religion (of which certain Members of Parliament did openly make mention in the Houſe, after the Popiſh Plot was diſcovered) but alſo wrote and publiſhed divers Books in Vindication of the Church of Rome, and thereby gained the Character, by the Men of that Party, of the prime Champion of England to ſtand up for their Cauſe.

Obadiah Walker.

VII. Mr. Obad. Walker, ejected from a Fellowſhip in Univerſity College An. 1643. travelled and ſpent a conſiderable Time at Rome. After his Majeſty's Reſtoration he was put again into his Fellowſhip, and travelled again with ſome young Gentlemen, and ſpent more Time at Rome. After his Return he was Maſter of his College, concealing his Change of Religion, yet giving ſo great Suſpicion of it, that in October 1671. on diſcovery of the Popiſh Plot, there was a Complaint made in the Parliament Houſe againſt him, for giving his aſſiſting Hand towards the training up of Youths at Hogſden near London in the Roman Catholick Principles, and that he had expreſſed himſelf very popiſhly affected in his Notes on the Life of King Alfred, &c.

Timothy Nourſe.

VIII. Mr. Tim. Nourſe elected Fellow of Univerſity College, Jan. 19, 1658. and afterwards entred into Holy Orders, and became a noted Preacher. This Perſon, who was a Man of Parts, but conceited, changed his Religion for that of Rome, and therefore was deprived of his Fellowſhip in the beginning of January 1673. Afterwards ſettling in his Patrimony, he lived there a retired and ſtudious Life, ſuffered much upon the breaking out of the Popiſh Plot, &c.

The Earl of Briſtol.

IX. George Lord Digby Earl of Briſtol, came back from his Travels a profeſs'd Papiſt, of whom Mr. Edward Bagſhaw, in the Dedication of his Diſcourſe againſt the Pope's Infallibility to his Lord and Patron the Earl of Angleſey in 1662. wrote thus: “ Many Writers of our own, as Monſ. Daille, Chillingworth, the “ Lord Falkland, the Lord Digby now Earl of Briſtol, &c. have already ſhew'd “ the Vanity and Uſeleſsneſs of the Popiſh Allegations; and becauſe it is poſſi- “ ble that the Example of the laſt honourable Perſon I named may be urged “ againſt me, becauſe his preſent Practice doth contradict his former Principles; “ I will only add this, that ſince his Book is not yet anſwered by himſelf, I hope “ he thinks it unanſwerable, and will not long continue in Communion with “ that Church, whoſe Foundations he hath ſo well overthrown.

King and Duke.

X. A general Suſpicion of the King and Duke. The Author of the Myſtery of Iniquity working in the dividing of Proteſtants, &c. printed in the Year 1689, 4to. wrote thus: The King's Apoſtacy, I muſt take the Liberty to tell them, is not of ſo late a Date as the World is made commonly to believe: For tho' it was many Years concealed, and the contrary pretended and diſſembled, yet it is certain that he abjured the Proteſtant Religion, ſoon after the Exilement of the Royal Family, and was reconciled to the Roman Church at St. Germains in France.

Pag. 6.

Nor were ſeveral of the then ſuffering Biſhops and Clergy ignorant of this, tho' they had neither Integrity nor Courage to give the Nation and Church warning of it. And within theſe five Years there was in the Cuſtody of a very worthy and

King Charles II. ſeemed to have no ſenſe of Religion. Both at Prayers and Sacrament, he as it were took Care to ſatisfy People, that he was in no ſort concerned in that about which he was employed. —— He diſguiſed his Popery to the laſt, but when he talk'd freely he could not help letting himſelf out againſt the Liberty that under the Reformation all Men took took of enquiring into Matters of Religion, &c. Biſhop Burnet, ib. p. 93.

Before King Charles left Paris he changed his Religion, but by whoſe Perſuaſion is not yet known. Only Cardinal de Retz was in the Secret, and Lord Aubigny had a great Hand in it. It was kept a Secret. Chancellour Hide had ſome Suſpicion of it, but would never ſuffer himſelf to believe it quite.

As for King James it ſeems he was not reconciled at that Time. For he told me, that being in a Monaſtery in Flanders, a Nun deſired him to pray every Day, that if he was not in the right Way God would bring him into it. And he ſaid, the Impreſſion theſe Words made on him never left him 'till he changed, ib. 74.

and honeſt Gentleman, a Letter written to the late Biſhop of D. by a Doctor of Divinity then attending the Royal Brothers, wherein the Apoſtacy of the then Duke of York to the See of Rome is particularly related; and an Account given how much the Ducheſs of Tremouille (without being herſelf ſuſpected) had heard the Queen Mother glorying of it, while the Ducheſs herſelf bewailed it as a Diſhonour to the Royal Family, and as that which might prove of pernicious Conſequence to the Proteſtant Intereſt. But tho' the old Queen privately rejoyced and triumphed in it, yet ſhe knew too well what Diſadvantage it might be both to her Son, and to the Papal Cauſe in Great-Britain, to have it at that Seaſon communicated and divulged. Thereupon it remained a Secret for many Years, and by Virtue of a Diſpenſation, he ſometimes joined in all Ordinances with thoſe of the Proteſtant Communion. But for all the Art, Hypocriſy, and Sacrilege, by which it was endeavoured to be concealed, it might have been eaſily diſcerned, as manifeſting itſelf in the whole Courſe of his Actions. And at laſt his own Zeal, the Importunity of the Prieſts, and the Cunning of the late King, prevailing over Reaſons of State, he withdrew from all Acts of Fellowſhip with the Church of England.

Calamy's Abridg. Vol. II. p. 78. The Date of Jan. 1. ſhould have been June 1.

Whereas we are credibly informed, that Dr. Anthony Tuckney, Maſter of St. John's College and one of the Profeſſors of Divinity in our Univerſity of Cambridge is well ſtricken in Years, and by Reaſon of his Age, and ſome Infirmities of Body, may not hereafter be ſo well able to undergo the Burden of thoſe two Places, we out of our Princely Care, both of that our Univerſity, and the ſaid Dr. Tuckney, do judge it meet that the ſaid Dr. Tuckney before the End of this inſtant June, do recede from the aforeſaid Maſterſhip, and Profeſſor's Place, with the Rectory of Summerſham annexed thereunto by the Grace and Favour of our Royal Grandfather: Which Signification of our ſaid Pleaſure, if the ſaid Dr. Tuckney ſhall ſubmit unto, we ſhall be ſo well pleaſed with that his Submiſſion, that we ſhall graciouſly accept thereof, and will be ready to remember it for his Good, upon any juſt Occaſion. And further, taking into our Princely Conſideration, the great Pains and Diligence of the ſaid Doctor, in the Diſcharge of the ſaid Profeſſor's Place, without that Benefit which ſhould have been received by him from the ſaid Rectory of Summerſham (which during the late unhappy and rapacious Times, was unjuſtly detained from him) upon that his Submiſſion, our Will and Pleaſure is, and we do hereby Order, that whatſoever Perſons, during the natural Life of the ſaid Dr. Tuckney, ſhall after his Ceſſion, be elected or promoted to the ſaid Profeſſor's Place, ſhall, before their reſpective Admiſſions thereunto, give ſufficient Aſſurance in Law to the ſaid Dr. Tuckney, for the yearly Payment of an hundred Pounds out of the Rectory of Summerſham to the ſaid Dr. Tuckney, (for the Reward of his former Pains) by even and equal Portions, at four uſual Feaſts of the Year; i. e. at the Nativity of our Lord and Saviour, at the Annunciation of the Bleſſed Virgin, the Birth of St. John Baptiſt, and the Feaſt of Michael the Archangel, during the Continuance of the ſaid Profeſſors, and the natural Life of the ſaid Dr. Tuckney, any Grant or Statute to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Whitehall, June 1, 1661. EDW. NICHOLAS.

This was accompanied with a Letter from the Earl of Mancheſter to the Doctor, a true Copy whereof here follows.

SIR,

You will find by this incloſed what the King's Pleaſure is, and how acceptable it will be to him, that you make a ſpeedy quitting of your Maſterſhip of St. John's College, and the Place of Regius Profeſſor. It is not out of any Diſlike of your Perſon or Diſtruſt of your Ability, but for thoſe Reaſons which are expreſſed in his own Letters. One of them I ſend you, that you may keep it for your Security; the other is delivered to the Vice-Chancellour, to be kept in the Regiſtry of the Univerſity. And I doubt not but his Majeſty will take Care, that the Conditions be performed. The Profits of both Places you are to enjoy 'till Midſummer next, and your Stay there with ſome convenient Rooms is allowed you 'till Sturbridge Fair; a Conveniency being allotted for Dr. Gunning's Uſe: And I hope you will find all Civilities from him. I ſhall upon all Occaſions improve my Intereſt for your Advantage, with the Reality of,

Your aſſured Friend to ſerve you,
Whitehall Jan. 3. 1661. E. MANCHESTER.

Sir, it is expected that in Regard of the Straitneſs of Time, you do upon the Receipt hereof make your Ceſſion of both Places.

The good Doctor (ſaith Dr. Calamy) thought it would be to no Purpoſe to contend with the Court in that Juncture, —— and therefore upon the Receipt of theſe Letters he reſign'd them both: And had the Annuity which was promiſed him punctually paid him for ſeveral Years by Dr. Gunning who ſucceeded him.

Dr. Anthony Tuckney was the Son of Mr. Tuckney Miniſter of Kirton, three Miles from Boſton. Born in Septemb. 1600. bred in Emanuel College Cambridge, houſhold Chaplain to the Earl of Lincoln; afterwards Fellow of the College, B. D. a moſt diligent and conſcientious Tutour: Aſſiſtant to Mr. John Cotton at Boſton, and after Mr. Cotton's Removal, he became Vicar of Boſton, one of the Aſſembly of Divines in 1643. never returning to Boſton, though at the Deſire of the People, he kept the Title to the Vicarage 'till 1660. and then he reſigned it, and Dr. How ſucceeded him. He had been ſettled Miniſter of Michael Quern in London, and continued there 'till 1648. only after he was made Maſter of Emanuel College (which was Ann. 1645.) he ſpent ſome Months in a Year at Cambridge; and removed with his Family thither in 1648. being that Year Vice-Chancellour. In 1653. Dr. Thomas Hill dying, Dr. Arrowſmith was choſen Maſter of Trinity College in his Stead; and thereupon Dr. Tuckney was choſen in his Room to St. John's, and was himſelf ſucceeded by Dr. Dillingham at Emanuel. Upon the Death of Dr. Arrowſmith he was choſen Regius Profeſſor in his Room. —— After the Reſtauration he was one of the Commiſſioners at the Savoy, &c.

The honourable Society of Lincolns-Inn renew'd their old Cuſtom of the Inns of Court, by chuſing a Prince, who during the ſolemn Feſtival commanded like a Sovereign in, and in the Places adjoining to the ſaid Inn. The Gentleman elected at this Time was John Lort, Eſq; of a good Family in Wales, who invited the King himſelf to the Inn, and gave him a noble Entertainment at Dinner. The King was pleaſed to ſee all the Ceremonies due to a Prince exactly obſerved in every reſpect, as a Council, Judges, and Officers of State, Honour, and Nobility attending upon this his Highneſs; and his Majeſty at the Expiration of the Term of his Royalty, was pleaſed to preſent him with the Honour of a Baronet of England.

FRIDAY Jan. 10.
Meeting of the Parliament.
The Committee of Lords and Commons appointed to enquire into the Plot make their Report of a real and formidable Conſpiracy againſt the Government.

Echard, Ch. II. p. 71.

After the Feaſtings and Revellings were ſomewhat abated, the Parliament met on the tenth of January according to Adjournment, and proceeded to Buſineſs with all Vigour, ſhewing themſelves ready both to advance the Prerogative, as well as the Revenue of the King. They were now farther alarmed with the Noiſe of Plots and Conſpiracies; and they began with receiving the Report of the ſelect Committee of Lords and Commons, appointed juſt before the Receſs.

Naming the Perſons and deſcribing their particular Deſigns.

See Biſhop Parker's Hiſt. Eng. 8vo. p. 19.

To begin with Aſſaſſination,

And a general Inſurrection.

Diſcovered by one of the Party.

Care taken by the Duke of Albemarle.

The Committe were ſenſible of the Real Danger,

And hoped the two Houſes would be ſo.

In this the Lord Chancellour gave an additional Account of the traiterous Deſigns ſet on Foot at ſeveral Times, and acquainted them with the Names of ſuch as were engaged, as Praiſe God Barebone, Samuel Moyer, Colonel Salmon, Major Wildman, late Alderman Ireton, Major Hains, and others. He told them, That there was found with Salmon a Liſt of a hundred and ſixty Officers of the late Army: That it was further diſcover'd, that there ſhould have been a Meeting in London about the tenth of December, and that they intended about the End of January to have made ſure of Shrewſbury, Coventry, and Briſtol, and that they ſhould riſe in ſeveral Parts at once: That where they were prevalent, they ſhould begin with Aſſaſſination which mov'd one of them to relate, that ſome of the late King's Judges were entertained in France, Holland, and Germany, and held conſtant Correſpondence with thoſe, and were fomented by ſome Foreign Princes. That many Arms were bought in order to this Deſign, and that they bragg'd, if they once got Footing, they ſhould not want Means to carry on their Work. That they were diſcover'd by one of their Party, and his Relation confirmed by ſuch Intelligence from abroad, as never fail'd. He further told them, that at Huntingdon many there met under the Name of Quakers, that were not ſo; and rode there in Multitudes by Night, to the great Terror of his Majeſty's good Subjects. That it might be wonder'd at, that ſome Propoſals were not made to remedy this impending Evil: But the King had adviſed with the Duke of Albemarle, now preſent at this Committee, and has put two Troops into Shrewſbury, and as many into Coventry, who by the Way had broken a great Knot of Thieves, and taken twenty. That a Rumour was ſpread, that the appointing of this Committee was only a Plot to govern by an Army; but the Committee was very ſenſible of the real Danger, and hop'd the Houſes would be ſo too; and that ſince all their Adverſaries were united to deſtroy them, ſo they ſhould unite to preſerve themſelves.

This Report put a Spirit into the Houſe of Commons, and renew'd their Proceeding againſt Vane, Lambert, &c.

Upon this Report, the Houſe of Commons reſum'd their former Order of proceeding againſt Vane, Lambert, Waller, and ſome others that were ſtill under the Power of the Law; and proceeded with greater Activity in finiſhing the two great Bills for the Eſtabliſhment of the Crown and Church, one for inſuring the Militia to the Crown, and the other for ſettling Uniformity in the Church.

Phil. Nye, jun. ordered to deliver up all Preſentations and other Forms of Admiſſion to Eccleſiaſtical Benefices.

Ordered by the Commons, that a Committee call before them Philip Nye the younger, who was Clerk to the late pretended Tryers, and to require and receive from him all Preſentations to any Eccleſiaſtical Benefices or Promotions made in the Time of the late uſurp'd Powers, and Entries of any Admiſſions, Inſtitutions, and Inductions thereupon now in his Cuſtody. —— Again, Ordered, Die Lunæ 20. Januar. 1661-2. London, 1662. 4to.

The Caſe of Philip Nye, Miniſter, humbly tendered to the Conſideration of the Parliament.

Phil. Nye, born of a genteel Family in Suſſex, entred a Commoner of Brazen Noſe College in Oxford 21. July, 1605. thence removed to Magdalen Hall, where he took the Degrees in Arts. In the Aſſembly of Divines a great Champion for the Preſbyterians, and then ſided with the Independents — In 1653. he was appointed one of the Tryers, or rather Spaniſh Inquiſitors, for the Approbation of publick Preachers, in which Office he acted the Politician ſo much, that he did not only get his Son to be Clerk to them, but enriched himſelf with Bribes, &c.

—— Againſt whom it is objected, that he acted as a chief Man in the Commiſſion for Approbation of publick Preachers, and therein exerciſed more than Epiſcopal Authority, placed and diſplaced what Miniſters he pleaſed, generally throughout the Nation; ſtopped the Courſe of Juſtice by his Power with the Protector, ſo that Patrons wronged had no Remedy by Law, and had gotten a great Eſtate by Bribes taken by himſelf and Son, in the Diſpoſal of Livings, &c. [From which Charge he endeavours to vindicate himſelf, and concludes with repreſenting himſelf an Object of Compaſſion] that he hath been a Preacher now forty Years, is now infirm and in the ſixty fifth Year of his Age, hath a Wife and three Children to be provided for, his preſent Maintenance depending upon a voluntary Contribution, and if this little Means be taken from him, his Family in reſpect of outward Subſiſtence is utterly ruined.

Defence of the Cure of Church Diviſions, Pref. p. 17.

The ſame Mr. Philip Nye not long before his Death, foreſeeing the miſchievous Conſequence of thoſe extravagant Heats the People were running into, wrote a Diſcourſe on purpoſe to prove it lawful to hear the conforming Miniſters, and anſwers all the common Objections againſt it, and wonders how the different Parties came to be ſo agreed, in thinking it unlawful to hear us preach: But he ſaith, he is perſuaded, it is one conſtant Deſign of Satan in the variety of Ways of Religion he hath ſet on Foot by Jeſuits among us. So that Mr. Nye plainly acknowledgeth, that the Jeſuits were very buſy amongſt them, &c. And Mr. Baxter ſeem'd to be of the ſame Judgment, when he ſaid; our Diviſions gratify the Papiſts, and greatly hazard the Proteſtant Religion, more than moſt of you ſeem to believe or Regard. —— He ſays again, that among many of the Inconveniences of Separation, this is one that Popery will get by it ſo great Advantage as may hazard us all, and we may loſe that which the ſeveral Parties do contend for.

To the honourable Sir John Vaughan, Knight of the Bath, ſecond Son to the Right Honourable the Earl of Carbery.

Noble and Learned Sir,

Had I had no other Knowledge of your eminent Worth and Quality, but what was tranſmitted to me by common Fame, (which places you, and that deſervedly in the firſt Rank of our moſt knowing and religious Gentry) that alone would have ſufficiently warranted me in this Addreſs, —— of manifeſting to the World how much I think you are to be honoured, and how fit to be propoſed as a publick Pattern of unſpotted Integrity, accurate Learning, and thorough Inſight into the profoundeſt Depths of Philoſophy, together with a maſculine and clean Expreſſion, —— whoſe Eyes are already opened, &c.

The Preface concluding. —— Having ſaid thus much, I now take my Leave of this Controverſy; not as if I thought that more could not be written, but becauſe I am no longer in a free Capacity to do it. Since I cannot write now in ſo unconcern'd a Manner as I did before. For having lately been deprived of my juſt Right in a Freehold I had at Chriſt-Church, for no Reaſon at all that I know of, unleſs for the impartial and unbyaſſed Diſcovery of my Judgment about indifferent, or rather doubtful Things in religious Worſhip; it would but wrong the Cauſe ſhould I proſecute it any further, ſince it may be interpreted now, that I write like a Party; and that not Conſcience but Diſcontent doth excite me to it. Drury-Lane, Jan. 10, 1661. EDWARD BAGSHAW.

This third Part concluding.] Separation cannot be juſtified, but in Caſe of indiſpenſable Neceſſity, viz. when ſuch Things are impoſed upon us as Conditions of Communion, which we cannot in Conſcience ſubmit to; for there if we depart, we do not go, but are driven out: But this deſerves to be more largely handled, which I ſhall reſerve for a particular Treatiſe. Finis.

Epiſt. Ded. To the honourable my Lord Bradſhaw Lord Chief Juſtice of Cheſter.

My noble Lord,

—— I have no one outward Motive more prevailing with me, than my perhaps too great Ambition of preſenting ſomething to your Lordſhip, whereby I might teſtify to the World, that real Eſteem I have of your Lordſhip's ſingular Worth and Eminence in general, but likewiſe to manifeſt in particular how mindful I am of thoſe many ſignal and unparallell'd Marks of Favour, which you have pleaſed to confer upon myſelf; for which, though the Service of my whole Life will be too poor and mean a Sacrifice, and no Endeavour can amount to deſerve the Name of a Requital, yet I could not but think it my Duty to ſtudy an Acknowledgment. Which Zeal of mine if your Lordſhip pleaſes either to accept or pardon, I have attained my End. For I aim at nothing more than the Honour of being owned for, my noble Lord,

Your Lordſhip's

Die 10. Jan. 1661-2. Ricardus Waugh, A. M. ad Vic. de Ware Com. Hertford. ad preſ. Magiſtri & Sociorum Coll. SS. Trin. Cantabr. [Dr. Calamy mentions Mr. Young as ejected or ſilenc'd at Ware.]

The Grounds and Occaſion of the Iriſh Remonſtrance or Formulary of declaring Allegiance to the King.

P. Walſh Hiſt. of the Iriſh Remonſtrance, Fol. p. 7.

The Occaſion of drawing up the Iriſh Remonſtrance in the Name of the Catholick Clergy is thus repreſented by Father Walſh the great Solicitor in it.

The Years 60. and 61. being paſſed over till the Winter came; and the Hopes of Roman Catholicks (for what was moved in their Behalf in the Houſe of Lords at Weſtminſter, concerning the Repeal of Laws againſt them, at leaſt and in the firſt Place, of thoſe that are called Sanguinary) being blaſted in the Bud; and the Example of the late Iriſh Rebellion, and Breach of both Peaces in 46. and 48. by ſome or many of thoſe of that Religion and Nation, having been made uſe of againſt ſuch as moved for ſuch Repeal: And the Parliament of England being adjourned or prorogued; and that of Ireland then under the Lords Juſtices, the Chancellor, the Earls of Orrery and Montrath ſitting, and a great Plot amongſt the Iriſh Catholicks ſo falſly impoſed upon them, grounded on the no leſs falſe and vain Pretence of a Letter ſent by one Prieſt to another; but contrived only by a perfidious Fanatick Impoſtor, as appeared ſoon after: And that Parliament of Ireland however, and the Lords Juſtices, upon this Ground, proceeding with ſtrange and new Severity againſt both Clergy and Laity of that Religion; and ſome few of the Catholick Gentry and Clergy conſulting together at Dublin of a Remedy, Sir Richard Barnwell, Richard Beling, Eſq; Thomas Tyrrel, Eſq; Oliver Deſe, Vicar-General of Meath, Father James Fitz-Simons, Guardian of the Franciſcans at Dublin, and others: It was reſolved upon at laſt to remonſtrate their Condition to his Majeſty, and petition his juſt and merciful Regard of them that ſuffer'd ſo unjuſtly. Which accordingly the ſaid Mr. Beling drew in the Name of the Catholick Clergy of Ireland, becauſe the Deſign was chiefly impoſed upon them, and on their Account the Laity ſuffered.

A Plot amongſt the Iriſh Catholicks here repreſented as a ſham Plot, but rather thought real and natural to them to conſpire for their Eaſe and Liberty.

This brought the Severity of the Government upon them;

Upon which they thought of a Remonſtrance of their Condition to the King.

But wiſely conſidering that to remonſtrate their Sufferings would not do without a Declaration of their Obedience.

But foraſmuch as he conſider'd, that a bare Remonſtrance of their Sufferings, or a bare Petition of Redreſs could not much avail a People that lately had acted as they had done in Obedience to the Nuncio, both he and the reſt of thoſe Gentlemen with whom he conſulted, found it neceſſary by a ſolemn Declaration of their Principles in point of Obedience in temporal Things, to obſtruct the grand Objection of the Inconſiſtency of Catholick Religion, and of a Toleration of it, with the Safety of a Proteſtant Prince or State. Which was the Reaſon, that one of thoſe Gentlemen remembring they had lately ſeen a printed Declaration of the Catholicks of England in their Name exhibited in a long Petition to the Parliament at Weſtminſter a little before, or in the Beginning of the Commotions of thoſe Kingdoms about the Year 1640. and lighting upon the Book after diligent Search, wherein they had read it, which is that of Father Creſſy an Engliſhman, and a Benedictine Monk, ſome Time before Proteſtant Dean of Leiglin in Ireland, entituled his Exomologeſis or the Motives of his Converſion to the Catholick Church, and having brought it to Mr. Beling, he judging it very proper for the preſent Matter and Purpoſe of the Catholicks and Clergy of Ireland, and much pleaſed to have ſuch a Precedent as that of Men ſo learned and wary as the Catholicks of England, for a Buſineſs or Declaration of that kind, extracted it Word by Word out of the ſaid Book, p. 76, 77, and 78. Paris Impreſſion, without any other Change, but of the Application to the King, inſtead of the Parliament, and of Ireland inſtead of England, and inſerted it in that Remonſtrance which he then drew for his own Countreymen.

They found a Precedent or Form of that Nature in Mr. Creſſy's Exomologeſis, or his Motives of Converſion,

Which Mr. Beling tranſcribed and inſerted in this new Iriſh Remonſtrance.

An Order had been made in the Inner-Star-Chamber, Friday Dec. 13, 1661.

By the Lords and others his Majeſty's Commiſſioners authorized for the Examination of the late pretended Sales of Crown and Church-Lands.

Order of the Commiſſioners for the Sale of Crown and Church-Lands about the Manor of Fiſkerton Com. Linc.

The Cauſe upon the Petition of John Barker, concerning his pretended Purchaſe of the Reverſions of the Manor of Fiſkerton, and of the Wood Grounds and Royalties there, Parcel of the Poſſeſſions of the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough, came this Day to a Hearing in the Preſence of Counſel for the Petitioner, Counſel for the preſent Dean and Chapter aforeſaid, and alſo Counſel for Sir Gilbert Gerrard, to whom the Lord Biſhop of Durham, late Dean of Peterborough, with the Chapter aforeſaid have granted a Leaſe of the ſaid Manor. And upon reading the ſaid Petition, and the Anſwer both of the preſent Dean and the Lord Biſhop to the ſaid Petition, and upon full hearing of the Counſel aforeſaid, it appears that the ſaid Biſhop had granted the Leaſe aforeſaid to Sir Gilbert Gerrard, and that the ſame paſſed under the Chapter and Common Seal bearing date the firſt of Auguſt 1660. which was not only long before the Petitioner's tioner's Application to this Board, for Satisfaction for his Purchaſe aforeſaid, but alſo ſome Months before the Grant of his Majeſty's Commiſſion for Relief of Purchaſers. And it further appears, that there is a Leaſe for Lives formerly granted yet in being, of the Wood Grounds and Royalties aforeſaid; yet foraſmuch as the Petitioner paid a conſiderable Sum of Money for the Purchaſe of the Reverſion aforeſaid, and hath reimburſed himſelf but in a ſmall Meaſure out of the Profits of the Premiſſes: It is ordered, that the Petitioner be, and he is hereby recommended to the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough aforeſaid, to be conſidered as to ſome moderate Satiſfaction to be made him out of the Fines of the next Leaſes that the ſaid Dean and Chapter ſhall renew of the Lands aforeſaid, purchaſed by the Petitioner. Signed in the Name and by the Order of the ſaid Commiſſioners, Another Order for Joh. Bar*ker to give Poſſeſſion to Sir* Gilbert Gerrard.

Order of the Lords and other his Majeſty's Commiſſioners authorized for Examination of the late pretended Sales of Crown and Church-Lands.

[Reciting their former Order made in December laſt, and then adding] Now upon Motion made in the Behalf of the ſaid Sir Gilbert Gerrard, that notwithſtanding the Leaſe granted and made as aforeſaid, to the ſaid Sir Gilbert Gerrard of the ſaid Manor, and the aforeſaid Order of the Board in favour of the Petitioner, the Poſſeſſion thereof hath been and ſtill is detained from him by the ſaid Petitioner John Barker, upon Pretence of his ſaid pretended Purchaſe: It is ordered, that the ſaid John Barker do within one Month's Time after Notice given him of this Order, ſurrender and deliver up the Poſſeſſion of the ſaid Manor to the ſaid Sir Gilbert Gerrard, to whom the ſame is leaſed as aforeſaid, in default whereof he is hereby made incapable of receiving the Benefit of the aforeſaid Order of this Board of the 13th of December laſt, in favour towards him as aforeſaid. Mr. Gibſon's View of the Churches endow'd by Lord Scudamore, 1727. 4to p. 269.

A Conveyance bearing date January 17. 13 Car. II. Anno 1661-2. whereby Henry Powle of Williamſtrop in the County of Glouceſter, Eſq; for the Sum of three hundred and threeſcore and ſixteen Pounds, ſold, granted and confirmed to John Lord Viſcount Scudamore, the Vicarage Houſe and Garden and Orchard, the Parſonage Cloſe and Barn, and a Parcel of Meadow Ground in Hempſteed-Moor: The Church Houſe, and Church, and Chancel, and Church-yard of Hempſteed, together with the perpetual Advowſon, or perfect and abſolute Patronage of the ſaid Church; and all the ſaid Henry Powle's Portion of Tythes, Oblations and Obventions whatſoever, renewing and growing within the tytheable Places of the ſaid Pariſh of Hempſteed. To have and to hold in as large and ample Manner as the ſaid Henry Powle or his Anceſtors, &c.

The Misfortune was, that the Grant of Hempſted Church and Glebe, and ſome Portion of the Tythes was in the Hands of one who made no Doubt or Scruple of his Property and Title to them. And ſo far was he from reſtoring them to the Church himſelf, that he ſet an hard Rate upon the Purchaſe made by this pious Lord, in Order to their being thus reſtored. Gibſon's View of the Churches, 4to. p. 169.

By which Purchaſe the Lord Viſcount Scudamore being enabled to effect his pious Purpoſe and Deſign, preſently reſtored the Church of Hempſteed, and ſettled upon it and the Parſon and his Succeſſors in Right thereof, all the Houſes, Tythes, and Lands ſpecified in the ſaid Conveyance. To which he added the Church-yard of the late diſſolved Priory of Lanthony, and all Manner of Tythes whatſoever ariſing from his Demeſne-Lands of the ſaid Priory; which had by the Laws and Statutes of this Realm been freed and diſcharg'd from all manner of Tythes before. And his Lordſhip procured this Reſtitution and Endowment to be confirmed by Act of Parliament.

Publick Intelligence, by Authority, 4^to^.

The good Temper and Moderation of Dr. John Wallis, Who ſhewed the like Temper in the worſt Actions of his Life, the Decyphering the King's Letters.

Dr. John Wallis, one of the Preſbyterian Commiſſioners in the Savoy Conference, behav'd himſelf with good Temper and Moderation; and had indeed ſhew'd the ſame Spirit in the worſt Actions of his Life, the decyphering of the Letters of King Charles I. and King Charles II. thus related by Dr. Peter Barwick in the Life of his Brother John.

Life of Dr. John Barwick, Engl. 8vo. 1724.

Tho' it was not eaſy to find out the Meaning of Letters written in Cyphers, with how much malicious Zeal ſoever any one ſhould attempt it; yet there was not wanting a certain Perſon, too officious at that Time to gratify the King's Enemies, who diſcover'd to them the greateſt Part of his Majeſty's Letters taken at Naſeby Fight, tho' all written in Characters.

P. 61. with a Note of the learned Editor

[I once heard my Countryman and Friend Dr. Wallis ſay, that his firſt Attempt upon Decyphering was in his Attendance as Chaplain to Sir Will. Walter, who one Night at Supper threw him a Letter intercepted from the King's Army, and bid him try if he could make any thing of it, he look'd upon the Cypher, and ſaid he knew nothing of it, but poſſibly if he had the Paper ſome Time by himſelf he might pick out a little out of it. Sir William bid him take it with him, and he preſently roſe from Table, and retiring to his own Lodging, without any Sleep he found out the Key by the next Morning, and ſatisfied Sir William Walter in it. And that began his Art and his Reputation that Way.]

Again in 1659. Mr. Barwick's Letter of Inſtructions from the King, as it was going to Bruſſels, and Mr. Alleſtrey as he was returning home from thence, both fell into the Enemies Hands. Mr. Alleſtrey betray'd (by whoſe Perfidiouſneſs is unknown) was no ſooner landed on the Engliſh Shoar, but he was immediately made a cloſe Priſoner; and Mr. Barwick's Letter, with more ſent by Mr. William Rombald and others, were intercepted by the Gariſon at Dunkirk, then at Enmity with the King. And what was yet worſe, although every different Perſon's Letter was written in a diſtinct Cypher, and that contriv'd with great Thought, yet they were all decypher'd by the Art and Ingenuity of a certain very famous Mathematician, who was hired by the Rebels. For it was the very ſame Artiſt that made theſe Diſcoveries, who (too officious to gratify the Rebels) had (as was intimated above) decypher'd his Majeſty's Papers taken at Naſeby Fight: Yet he had now at laſt this in him of a good Subject, that at this Time he diſcover'd nothing to the Rebels, which much concern'd the publick Safety; though he ſatisfied ſome of the King's Friends that he could have diſcover'd a great deal.—— And Mr. Matthew Wren (Son to the right reverend Biſhop of Ely) who was intimately acquainted with this Mathematician, obtained of him ſome Copies of thoſe Letters, as he had decypher'd them, and took care to have them delivered ſeverally to the Perſons that wrote the Letters, who all acknowledg'd them for their own, and left no room to doubt of the Decypherer's Art.

Ib. p. 152.

[I think Dr. Wallis communicated this Myſtery to none but his own Grandſon Mr. Blencow, Fellow of All Souls, Oxford, whoſe Head was too much affected by it; and he imparted it to the ingenious Mr. Wills, now D. D. Royal Decypherer, and Prebendary of Weſtminſter, 1726.]

Mr. Baxter's own Account of his going into Worceſterſhire, to ſettle himſelf a preaching Curate at Kidderminſter.

Shortly after my Return to London, I went into Worceſterſhire, to try whether it were poſſible to have any honeſt Terms from the reading Vicar there, that I might preach to my former Flock: But when I had preached twice or thrice, he denied me Liberty to preach any more; I offered him to take my Lecture, which he was bound to allow me (under a Bond of 500*l.*) but he refus'd it: I next offered him to be his Curate, and he refus'd it; I next offer'd him to preach for nothing, and he refuſed it: And laſtly, I deſired leave but once to adminiſter the Sacrament to the People, and preach my farewel Sermon to them, but he would not conſent. At laſt I underſtood that he was directed by his Superiours to do what he did: But Mr. Baldwin (an able Preacher whom I left there) was yet permitted, &c.

But the Vicar refuſed him by Order of Superiours.

He applies to the Biſhop of Worceſter, who refuſed him his Licenſe.

The People diſſuaded me from going to the Biſhop, ſuppoſing my Liberty to be in Danger, but I went that Morning with Mr. Baldwin, and in the hearing of him and Dr. Warmſtry, then Dean of Worceſter; I remembred the Biſhop of his Promiſe to grant me his Licence; but he refuſed me Liberty to preach in his Dioceſe, though I offered him to preach only on the Creed, and the Lord's-Prayer, and the ten Commandments, and only to ſuch as had no preaching. But the Diſcourſe between him and me at that Time, I have had occaſion ſince particularly to recite in my Anſwer to him, according as I noted it down when I came home, and therefore I ſhall here paſs it by. And ſince then, I never preached in his Dioceſe.

Account of the Conference between the Bp. of Worceſter

Mr. Baxter's Aſſertion of making lawful Things ſinful (as I then ſaid and muſt ſtill maintain) is deſtructive of humane Society, in taking away the Authority of commanding commanding, and the Obligation of obeying, together with the whole legiſlative Power, Civil as well as Eccleſiaſtical, and Divine as well as Humane. And thus much (as Mr. Baxter himſelf ſaith) I told him before in mine own Houſe, neither did he then deny the Aſſertion, or endeavour to diſprove what I inferr'd from it, by any of thoſe Diſtinctions or Inſtances he now uſeth. And that this is true, the reverend Dr. Warmſtry, now Dean of Worceſter, will witneſs for me, whom I deſired to be by whilſt I confer'd with Mr. Baxter; foreſeeing what Miſreport a Man of Mr. Baxter's Principles and Temper was like enough to make of what ſhould paſs betwixt us: And it was very well I did ſo, for I find that the Preſbyter as well as the Papiſt will ſerve themſelves, as often as they are put to it, of their piæ fraudes or holy Artifices of ſpeaking more or leſs than the Truth, as it makes more or leſs for their Purpoſe and Advantage; as likewiſe of putting non Cauſam pro Cauſa, or a Part and a leſs principal Part of the Cauſe for the whole Cauſe. For who would not think, that knows not Mr. Baxter, that when he tells his Diſciples of Kidderminſter, you know my Crime, with Reference to the 'foreſaid Aſſertion, and to that only: Who would not think, I ſay, that either there was nothing elſe objected againſt him, or at leaſt nothing of Moment, or that could be any juſt and reaſonable Cauſe of my forbidding him to preach in my Dioceſe? Eſpecially when he adds, that the right reverend Biſhop gave him this as a Reaſon for his forbidding him to preach; where if he means that the Biſhop gave him this as the only or the principal Reaſon, he ſpeaks without Truth, and againſt his Conſcience; for the firſt and principal Reaſon the Biſhop gave him for his forbidding him to preach, was (as he well knows, and as the Dean of Worceſter will witneſs againſt him) his Preaching before without Licence, having no Cure of his own to preach to: Whereunto when he replied, I had promiſed to give him ſuch a Licence as the Biſhop of London had given him, viz. quamdiu ſe bene gereret & durante beneplacito. I replyed, that it was true indeed, I had once promis'd to give him ſuch a Licence; but withal it was as true, that I had never promis'd to give him a Licence if he took it before I gave it him, and that for this Preſumption of his, I had now forbidden him to preach any more. Secondly, that I knew more of him ſince, than I did at that Time. For firſt, I had been credibly informed, that he had abuſed the Biſhop of London's Favour by preaching factiouſly, tho' not in the City, yet in the Dioceſe of London, and I named the Place to him. Secondly, that ſince that Promiſe of mine (which cannot be ſuppos'd other than conditional) I myſelf had heard him, at a Conference in the Savoy, maintaining ſuch a Propoſition as was deſtructive to Legiſlative Power, both to God and Man, meaning the Aſſertion before ſpoken of, viz. That the enjoining of Things lawful by lawful Authority, if they might by Accident be the Cauſe of Sin, was ſinful, which Aſſertion of his, with the horrible Conſequences of it, I told him then at Worceſter, I had formerly told him of at the Savoy openly, and before all the Company that was at the Conference: Whereunto all that he reply'd at my ſecond telling him at Worceſter was, that he had uſed ſome Diſtinctions to ſalve that Aſſertion from thoſe Conſequences; but what thoſe Diſtinctions were he did not then mention (as Dr. Warmſtry can witneſs) though in this printed Addreſs to his Friends in Kidderminſter, he ſaith he did tell the Biſhop in what a limited Senſe he and his Brethren underſtood that Aſſertion, &c.

The learned Dr. Caſaubon complained of Mr. Baxter and his Party Zeal in his Neceſſity of Reformation in and before Luther, 1664. 4to p 156. What ſhall we ſay of them who (to paſs by what they have done, when the Confuſion of the Times gave them the Opportunity which I wiſh heartily their preſent Carriage would ſuffer us altogether to forget) are yet ready to cry out againſt whatſoever they allow not (a Surplice perchance, or the Sign of the Croſs in Baptiſm) as Popiſh, Antichriſtian, Idolatrous, and would have the World believe, that Conſcience is the Cauſe of theſe Outcries. What ſhall we ſay of them? That theſe be the Saints, the Beloved of the Lord, (as one doth ſtyle them in his Life of Faith, a Sermon preached by R. B. July 22, 1660.) the Apple of his Eye, the People that are ſure to prevail and reign with him for ever. Doth he not mean the only true Chriſtians in the World. I know not what other Senſe to make of the Words. O Horror! O Inſatuation! O deluded People!

He told his dearly beloved People —— You now know my Crime; it is my concurring with learned reverend Brethren, to give this Reaſon of our Denial of a Propoſition; yet they are not forbidden to preach for it, (and I hope ſhall not be) but only I —— having given you (to whom I owe it) this Account of the Cauſe for which I am forbidden the Exerciſe of my Miniſtry in that Countrey, I now direct theſe Sermons to your Hands, that ſeeing I cannot teach you as I would, I may teach you as I can: And if I much longer enjoy ſuch Liberty as this, it will be much above my Expectation.

——— When I came back to London, my Book called the Miſchiefs of Self-Ignorance, and Benefits of Self-Acquaintance, was coming out of the Preſs; and my Affection to my People of Kidderminſter cauſed me by a ſhort Epiſtle to direct it to them, and becauſe I could never tell them publickly (being ſilenced) I told them here the Occaſion of my Removal from them, and my Silencing; for Brevity ſumming up the principal Things in my Charge. And becauſe I ſaid this was the Cauſe, the Biſhop took Advantage as if I had ſaid, this was the whole Cauſe, when the Conference between him and me was half an Hour long, and not fit to be wholly inſerted in a ſhort Epiſtle, where I intended nothing but the Sum. But the Biſhop took occaſion hereupon to gather up all that ever he could ſay to make me odious, and eſpecially out of my holy Common-wealth, and our Conference at the Savoy, where he gathered up a Scrap of an Aſſertion, which he did not duly underſtand, and made it little leſs than Hereſy, and this he publiſhed in a Book called a Letter, &c.

It is the Biſhop of Worceſter, and not Mr. Baxter, that is Paſtor of Kidderminſter, as well as of all other parochial Churches in that Dioceſe; neither did I or any other Biſhop of Worceſter ever commit the Care of Souls in that or any other Part of that Dioceſe to Mr. Baxter, though by that Preface of his to thoſe of Kidderminſter, he would make the World believe they were his Flock, and not mine; and therefore he hath the more Reaſon to complain of my Defamation of him (as he calls it) in that Place, and before that People: Whereas the Truth is, that Mr. Baxter was never either Parſon, Vicar, or Curate there, or any where elſe in my Dioceſe; for he never came in by the Door, that is by any legal Right or or lawful Admiſſion into that Sheepfold, but climbed up ſome other Way, namely by Violence and Intruſion, and therefore by Chriſt's own Inference he was a Thief and a Robber; and indeed he did rob him that was then, and is now again the lawful Vicar of that Church; he robbed him, I ſay, firſt of his Reputation amongſt his Flock, and then of his Means and Maintenance, by taking away the Fleece as well as the Flock from him; though, as Mr. Baxter himſelf hath confeſs'd to me, he be a Man of unblameable Life and Converſation, though not of ſuch Parts (ſaid Mr. Baxter) as are fit to qualify him for the Cure of ſo great a Congregation; which whether it were ſo or no, I am ſure Mr. Baxter was not to be the Judge, but in that Caſe the Biſhop then living ſhould and would have provided him a Coadjutor, as I have done ſince, and ſuch an one, as I hope will feed that Flock with much more wholſome Doctrine than Mr. Baxter did, when he ſowed the Seed of Schiſm and Sedition, and blew the Trumpet of Rebellion amongſt them. For which Cauſe I thought it my Duty (as being their Paſtor in chief) not only to forbid Mr. Baxter to preach there any more, which by the Way he had done without my Licence; but likewiſe to preach there myſelf, and to do what I could to undeceive that poor ſeduced, and miſerably deluded People, &c.

[Concluding the Citations from his own Writings.] It is evident he is ſtill of the ſame Mind, and conſequently would upon the ſame Occaſion do the ſame Things, viz. fight, and encourage as many as he could to fight againſt the King for any Thing that calls it ſelf, or which he is pleaſed to call a full and free Parliament: As likewiſe that he would own and ſubmit to any Uſurper of the Sovereignty as ſet up by God, although he came to it by the Murder of his Maſter, and by trampling on the Parliament. Laſtly, that he would hinder as much as poſſibly he could the reſtoring of the rightful Heir to the Crown. And now whether a Man of this Judgment and theſe Affections ought to be permitted to preach or no, let any but himſelf judge.

Mr. Baxter made a Prognoſtication in 1661, that where Papiſts or Hereticks are ſhut out by Law, they will ſecretly contribute the utmoſt of their Endeavours to make the Sufferings of diſſenting Proteſtants as grievous as poſſibly they can, that in deſpite of them, their own Neceſſities may compel them to cry out for Liberty, till they procure a common Toleration for all, and open the Door for Papiſts and Hereticks, as well as for themſelves. And he hath lived to make good his Prognoſtick, like Noſtredamus his Son, who having propheſied that on ſuch a Day the City ſhould be burnt, he ſet it on fire himſelf.

The Spirit of Mr. Baxter ſhew'd itſelf in the penning of the Savoy Papers; wherein there were ſome indecent Threats and Innuendo's. Their very Petition for Peace had ſomewhat of this Trumpet in it, p. 5. Take heed how ye drive Men by Penalties on that which they judge doth tend to their Damnation; and p. 14. the Denial of their Deſires would renew all our Trouble, [i. e. would throw us into another civil War.] And in the Cloſe of the ſecond Paper they tell the King, if he grants thoſe Favours, it will revive their Hearts to pray for his Proſperity.—— But p. 12. Should we loſe the Opportunity of our deſired Reconciliation, it aſtoniſheth us to foreſee, what doleful Effects our Diviſions would produce, which we will not mention in particular, leſt our Words ſhould be miſunderſtood.

Mr. Baxter call'd the Biſhop's Letter an Invective, and was adviſed not to anſwer it;

Life of Mr. Baxter, Fol.

When the Biſhop's Invective was read, many Men were of many Minds, about the anſwering of it: Thoſe at a Diſtance all cried out to me to anſwer it: Thoſe at hand did all diſſuade me, and told me that it would be Impriſonment at leaſt, if I did it with the greateſt Truth and Mildneſs that was poſſible. Both Gentlemen and all the City Miniſters told me, that it would not do half ſo much good, as my Suffering would do hurt; and that none believed it but the engaged Party; and that to others an Anſwer was not neceſſary, and to them it was unprofitable, for they would never read it. And I thought that the Judgment of Men that were upon the Place, and knew how Things went, were moſt to be regarded. But yet I wrote a full Anſwer to his Book (except about the Words in my holy Commonwealth, which were not to be ſpoke to) and kept it by me, that I might uſe it as there was Occaſion. At that Time Mr. Joſeph Glanvile ſent me the Offer of his Service to write in my Defence, [he that wrote the Vanity of Dogmatizing, &c.] but I diſſuaded him from bringing himſelf into Suffering, and making himſelf unſerviceable for ſo low an end: Only I gave him (and no Man elſe) my own Anſwer to peruſe, which he returned with his Approbation of it.

Yet he drew up a full Anſwer to keep by him,

Which he communicated to Mr. Joſ. Glanvile, who had offered to write in his Defence.

Mr. Edward Bagſhaw (Son to Mr. Bagſhaw the Lawyer, that wrote Mr. Bolton's Life) without my Knowledge wrote a Book in Anſwer to the Biſhop's: I could have wiſh'd he had let it alone: For the Man hath no great diſputing Faculty, but only a florid epiſtolary Style, and was wholly a Stranger to me, and to the Matters of Fact; and therefore could ſay nothing to them: But only being of a bold and Roman Spirit, he thought no Suffering ſhould deter a Man from the ſmalleſt Duty, or cauſe him to ſilence any uſeful Truth. And I had formerly ſeen a Latin Diſcourſe of his againſt Monarchy, which no whit pleaſed me, being a weak Argumentation for a bad Cauſe: So that I deſired no ſuch Champion. Shortly after he went over with the Earl of Angleſey, whoſe houſhold Chaplain he was, into Ireland, and having preached there for ſome Time, and returning back, was apprehended and ſent Priſoner to the Tower, where he continued long till his Means was all ſpent, and how he hath ſince procured Bread I know not.

Honourable and worthy Sir,

Rude Language to the Biſhop;

And yet confeſſes that in the main Argument the Biſhop had much the better of Mr. Baxter.

And then again reviles the Biſhop.

I am to thank you for the laſt Piece of Divertiſement you gave me, in ſending the Biſhop of Worceſter's Letter, and I wiſh you would have let me enjoyed the Satisfaction I took in reading it, without obliging me to give you my Senſe upon it: For beſides my Unwillingneſs to meddle in a perſonal Quarrel, it will not I think be very ſafe for any to engage againſt ſo angry an Adverſary, which I ſhall be thought to do, though I reſolve to ſpeak nothing but Truth in the Character I intend to give of him; and it is briefly this, that in fewer Leaves I never yet read more Paſſion, which is ſo very predominant, that his diſorderly and abrupt Style doth altogether partake of it; ſo that the Biſhop's beſt Way will be to get his Heat miſtaken for Zeal, for elſe it may juſtly be accounted ſomething that hath a worſe Name, and which in the Dog-Days will be very dangerous. —— But I muſt deal impartially and aſſure you, that as to the main Controverſy, I think the Biſhop hath much the better of Mr. Baxter, &c. [Concluding.] Laſtly, I can never enough commend the Biſhop's Wiſdom, in reſolving ſo angrily never to write again, for he is old, and hath travell'd far, and knows that it is much eaſier to ſpeak raſh and unjuſtifiable Things than to defend them. And therefore he deals with thoſe he hath provoked, as witty School-Boys do with their Companions, firſt he hits them a Box on the Ear, and then very diſcreetly retreats, and fairly runs away. But if Goliah, who took upon him to defy the Hoſt of Iſrael, ſhould as ſoon as ever he had done, have ſneaked out of the Field, and thought he had done manfully enough in making a bold Challenge, and in ſhewing his Teeth at them; I believe the Philiſtines would hardly have thanked him for that empty Shew of Valour, whereby he could not conquer, but only enrage the Enemy. And whether the Biſhops will not have the ſame Opinion of this over-forward and unwary Champion of theirs, I hope, Sir, you will neither enquire yourſelf, nor deſire that I ſhould: For I have already done enough to ſhew how much I am, SIR,

Your moſt humble Servant,

Jan. 21.

A Vindication of the Biſhop from Mr. Bagſhaw's Animadverſions.

London, for Henry Herringman, 1662, 4to.

A Vindication of my Lord Biſhop of Worceſter's Letter touching Mr. Baxter from the Animadverſions of D. E.

I expected when I firſt ſaw theſe Animadverſions, that my Lord Worceſter's Relation touching his Carriage to Mr. Baxter, had been falſe in many Particulars, and in all partial; for I could hardly believe any ingenuous Perſon could write ſo ſharply againſt a Father of our Church, if he did not believe that he had Truth on his Side, as to the main Occaſion of the Biſhop's Letter. But I confeſs I was much amazed, when I found our Animadvertor, not only ſilent as to the main Buſineſs, but of my Lord Biſhop's Opinion as to the Controverſy, if Dr. Gunning and Dr. Pearſon ſtate it right. And yet he is ſo angry, that through all this Diſcourſe, he gives the Biſhop not one civil Epithet, never calls him Lord, but taxeth him of Teſtineſs and Choler, of malicious and ill-grounded Fancy, of Unpeaceableneſs and Virulency, of trifling with Scripture, of Boldneſs and Impiety, &c. I never yet ſaw ſo much Choler in ſo few Words come from the Pen of any Perſon, much leſs from one whoſe Judgment, as he tells us, is for the Order of Biſhops, one whoever oppoſed the Covenant, and is a zealous Lover of the King. —— [Concluding.] And now I have anſwered all but his railing, and that I ſhall only do in our Saviour's Rule, in praying for them that curſe us and deſpitefully uſe us. I have nothing more to ſay, but that though the Biſhop by other great Affairs had no Leiſure to conſider ſuch Diſcourſes as this is, yet I that have more Leiſure will promiſe him to anſwer what he ſays, provided he keeps ſtrictly to the Buſineſs in hand, for if he runs out, to diſpute of the Power of the Keys, of the lawful Uſe of indifferent Things, and ſuch like Controverſies, I ſhall hardly find Leiſure to follow him, and I am ſure there is that already ſaid for them which neither he nor his Party can anſwer. Finis.

The Biſhop liv'd to vindicate himſelf againſt Mr. Baxter.

Bp. Morley's Preface to his ſeveral Treatiſes, 1683, 4to. p. 1.

A Letter of mine was publiſh'd a little while after my Sermon at the King's Coronation, written to vindicate myſelf from ſome ſcandalous Aſperſions caſt upon me in Print by Mr. Baxter. Which Letter of mine Mr. Baxter having taken no Notice of for near twenty Years after, I thought it would have been the laſt Trouble of that kind, that ever I ſhould be put unto, eſpecially after I was above fourſcore Years of Age, and had left off the having any Thing to do in the World, but to prepare for my going quietly and comfortably out of it. But O fallacem ſpem meam: For I was no ſooner got into the Harbour where I might and thought (for the little Time of my Life that was left) to reſt ſecurely, but Mr. Baxter hales me forth again, by an Addreſs made to the Biſhop of Ely and me, before his Book called the only true Way to Concord. In which Addreſs of his, though there were ſome Things untruly ſaid to my Reproach, yet I did not think them tanti (and ſome of my very good Friends were of the ſame Opinion) as that I ſhould for the refuting of them, engage myſelf into a new Quarrel, whereof, in all probability, I might not live long enough to ſee an end.

And truly upon this and other Conſiderations I was more than half reſolved to take no more Notice of what he had ſaid to me and of me in that Addreſs of his, than for ought I knew, he never until then had taken of what I had ſaid of him, in that aforeſaid Letter of mine. And in this Suſpenſion of Mind I continued, until he ſent me a Book, containing ſeveral Treatiſes, and one of them, (as he ſaith himſelf in his Preface to that Book) written purpoſely to confute Biſhop Morley's groſs miſtaking Charge againſt him. Then indeed I began to think myſelf concerned to re-examine what I had ſaid of him in that aforeſaid Letter of mine, or in my Cenſure of thoſe Aphoriſms of his, annexed to, and printed with that Letter; as likewiſe what he hath ſaid of me, or againſt me for the juſtifying of myſelf, and to give the World an Account of both, to judge, as they ſhall ſee Cauſe, betwixt us.

But whilſt I was doing, and had almoſt done as much as I thought neceſſary in order to this End, out comes a Book of a French Jeſuit named Maimbourg, wherein he reciteth ſomething, which he ſaith was written by the late Ducheſs of York to juſtify her leaving the Communion of the Church of England to embrace that of Rome, &c.

Mr. Baxter complains of a Book wrote againſt him by Dr. Boreman of Trinity College Cambridge;

Dr. Boreman of Trinity College wrote a Book without his Name, and had no other Deſign in it than to make me odious; nor any better Occaſion for his Writing than this: There had many Years before paſſed divers Papers between Dr. Thomas Hill, then Maſter of Trinity College and me, about the Point of Phyſical Efficient Predetermination as neceſſary to every Action natural and free: I had written largely and earneſtly againſt Predetermination, and he a little for it: In the End of it the Calamities of the Sectarian Times, and ſome Sickneſſes among my Friends, had occaſioned me to vent my Moan to him as my Friend, and therein to ſpeak of the Doubtfulneſs of the Cauſe of the former War, and what Reaſon there was to be diligent in Search and Prayer about it. When Dr. Hill was dead, Dr. Boreman came to ſee theſe Papers: Both the Subjects he muſt needs know were ſuch, as tended rather to my Eſteem, than to my Diſparagement, with the Men of theſe Times. Certainly the Arminians will be angry with no Man for being againſt Predetermination, and I think they will pardon him for queſtioning the Parliament's Wars. Yet did this diſingenious Doctor make a Book on this Occaſion, to ſeek Preferment by reproaching me for he knew not what. But to make up the Matter he writeth, that it is reported, That I killed a Man in cold Blood with my own Hands in the Wars: Whereas God knoweth, that I never hurt a Man in my Life, &c. I began to write an Anſwer to this Book; but when I ſaw that Men did but laugh at it, and thoſe that knew the Man deſpiſed it, and diſſuaded me from anſwering ſuch a one, I laid it by.

A Parſon indicted for treaſonable Words in the Pulpit.

A Parſon was indicted upon the new Statute, 13 Car. II. for treaſonable Words, which he had uttered in the Pulpit: The Government of the Church of England is Popiſh, Superſtitious, and Will-worſhip: And who hath required theſe Things at your Hands? The Jury found him guilty; but when brought to the Bar to receive Judgment, Exceptions were taken to the Indictment, becauſe he was indicted for a Matter Spiritual and Eccleſiaſtical, and not for any thing concerning Civil Government. To which the Attorney-General anſwered, That the Civil and Eccleſiaſtical Government was a Compound together, and both concentred in the King, and that one Government could not ſubſiſt without the other; and for that Reaſon the Indictment was good. Upon which the Offender, Field, was ſentenced to be diſabled from enjoying any Office Eccleſiaſtical or Civil, fined five hundred Pounds, and impriſoned 'till he ſhall have paid the ſaid Fine.

The Jury found him Guilty. Exceptions taken, but overruled; and the Offender diſqualified, fined, and impriſoned.

The Triumphs of the Papiſts for the Murder of K. Ch. I.

When the late King was murthered, Mr. Henry Spotſwood riding caſually that Way, juſt as his Head was cut off, eſpy'd the Queen's Confeſſor there on Horſeback, in the Habit of a Trooper, drawing forth his Sword, and flouriſhing it over his own Head in Triumph, as others then did. At which Mr. Spotſwood being much amazed, and being familiarly acquainted with the Confeſſor rode up to him, and ſaid, O Father, I never thought to have found you here, or any of your Profeſſion at ſuch a ſad Spectacle! To which he anſwered, that there were at leaſt forty or more Prieſts and Jeſuits then preſent on Horſeback beſides himſelf. For the Truth of this I refer to Mr. Pryn in his Brief Neceſſary Vindication, &c. P. 45.

Foxes and Firebrands, P. II. by Sir James Ware, 8vo. Dublin 1682.

Amongſt theſe Prieſts and Jeſuits then preſent at that bloody Work, there were two of the late Queen's Confeſſors, one of whom went under the Name of Captain Thomas Preſton, and had a Command of a Troop of Horſe under Oliver the Uſurper. This ſaid Impoſtor came over into Ireland, and lay for a Time at Alderman John Preſton's Houſe in Skinner-Row in Dublin. —— This pretended Captain upon the Reſtauration of our now gracious Sovereign King Charles II. laid down his Arms and declared what he was, ſaying, that he would fall to his old Calling, and being aſked what that Calling was, he made Anſwer, That he was the Queen's Confeſſor, and was not aſhamed to own it. Several of the City of Dublin have heard this, and can teſtify the ſame.

Mr. Edw. Bagſhaw would have frightned the People with the Signs of the Times, and Prognoſticks of future Judgments.

To feed the ſeditious Fancy of the Malecontents about Signs and Tokens of impending Judgments and divine Vengeance upon the Land, a turbulent Preacher (who called himſelf a Preſbyterian) publiſhed a threatning Diſcourſe by way of Sermon, entitled,

When the King on the ſecond Day of his Tryal returned from Weſtminſter-Hall to Cotton-Houſe, he told Mr. Herbert, he had view'd all them who ſate in the Court, but knew not the Faces of above eight, and theſe he named, and among them, William Lord Mounſon and Sir Henry Mildmay. A. O. II. 521.

upon three ſeveral Sledges, on Monday laſt, the 27th of this Inſtant January, being the Day that our late gracious Sovereign King Charles received that horrid and moſt unjuſt Sentence to loſe his dear and precious Life before the Gates of his own Royal Palace: With the Manner of the Proceedings at Tyburn, in order to the Degrading and Diveſting of them of their former Titles of Honour, and their declaratory Speeches to both the right worſhipful Sheriffs of London and Middleſex.

Concluding.] The 'foreſaid William Lord Mounſon, Sir Henry Mildmay, and Robert Wallop, Eſq; were drawn from the Tower of London on three ſeveral Sledges with Ropes about their Necks to Tyburn, being guarded with the Sheriffs Officers, &c. The firſt was the Lord Moundſon, who lay along on the Sledge, and ſeemed very much dejected, having almoſt the Picture of Death on his Face. The ſecond was Sir Henry Mildmay, who lay, as it were, crooked upon the Sledge in a long Gown: And the third was Mr. Wallop, who likewiſe lay in the like Poſture. But when they came to Tyburn, after ſome Diſcourſe with the worſhipful Sheriffs, and the Priſoners in order to the Effect and Cauſes of their being brought to that Place, with ſo great and deſerved Reproach and Ignominy, the Lord Mounſon declared that what he had done, he was ſorry for from his very Soul, and had he ten thouſand Lives he would ſacrifice them all for the King. The like Regret of Spirit was upon the other two, who when they came near to the Gallows ſhaked their Heads, and ſaid, it was but juſt, their Sins had deſerved it. And all the three Sledges being drawn under the Gallows, they were afterwards guarded back to the Tower. ——

Sudden Death and Self-Murder of ſome Traytors, as related in the Publick Occurrences.

Perfect Occurrences to May 25, 1660. 4to.

The ſudden Death and Self-Murder of ſome Traytors was thus related in a publick Paper. As a guilty Conſcience needs no Accuſer, ſo Treaſon needs no Tryal, eſpecially when ſo horrid and bloody, that they prove their own Executioners, or are taken off by the Hand of Providence. As one Bland in White-Chapel, who threatned to imbrue his cruel Hands in the precious Blood of his Sacred Majeſty, immediately bled to Death at the Noſe. And one Daſhwood at St. Giles's having alſo ſpoken reproachful Words againſt the King, on Sunday laſt fell down dead in the Church. An Apprentice alſo in Cheapſide, who ſaid he had rather lay violent Hands on himſelf, than ſee the King come to London, became his own Executioner, and hang'd himſelf, &c.

James Chaloner, one of the Judges of King Charles I. Governour of a Caſtle in the Iſle of Man, heard of Meſſengers ſent in March or April 1660. to take him into Cuſtody, but he having received timely Notice of their coming, he diſpatched away himſelf by Poyſon, taken, as 'tis ſaid, in a Poſſet made by his Concubine, whom he there for ſeveral Years had kept.

Hiſtory of the Engliſh and Scotch Preſbytery, printed in French 1650. in Engliſh 1660. 8vo.

I cannot paſs the laſt Act of this hideous Treaſon without letting the World behold another Piece of the damnable Hypocriſy of Oliver Cromwell. The Day aſſigned for the Execution of the King being come, the Council of War ſate, which was then the great Council of the Kingdom. A Letter without Name was addreſſed to this Council, to repreſent to them, by Reaſons of Prudence and Conſcience, the formidable Conſequences of ſo ſtrange and hateful an Execution. Cromwell ſeemed to be much touch'd at it (which cauſed ſome Suſpicions, as though he himſelf under hand had procur'd it) and propoſed it to the Conſideration of the Council. Part of this Company began to yield to the Force of Juſtice and their Duty, and to lean towards Compaſſion. Cromwell beholding this made a Turn to the Door, and ſent one of his Confidents to thoſe to whom the Execution was committed, to command them to diſpatch the Buſineſs: Then returning to the Council Table, he made a long Diſcourſe, ſhewing the Inconvenience of this Execution, and adviſed them to ſecure the Perſon of the King for the Time to come, that he might neither do nor receive Hurt. This Diſcourſe was ſeconded by others, and then again reaſſumed by himſelf, with a great many Words to lengthen out the Conſultation; until one briſkly entring into the Chamber told them, Gentlemen, you may ceaſe to conſult, the Work is done, the King is executed. Upon this Cromwell ſuddenly fell upon his Knees, with Signs of great Devotion, crying out, that this was a Work of God, and a true Stroak of Heaven; the Council being diſpoſed to ſave his Life, but the Divine Juſtice would not ſuffer ſo much innocent Blood ſhed by this Tyrant to paſs unpuniſhed, and hereupon made an eloquent Prayer to give Glory unto God, and acknowledge his Providence.

Wednesday Jan. 29.
An Introduction to the 30th of January, by a very honeſt and good Man, Dr. Peter du Moulin, Prebendary of Canterbury.

In Fair Warning, Part II. 1663, 4to. he is called Father Sarabras the Queen's Confeſſor.

Dr. Peter du Moulin's Vindication of the Sincerity of the Proteſtant Religion, &c. 1664. 4to. p. 58.

When the Buſineſſes of the late bad Times are once ripe for an Hiſtory, and Time the bringer of Truth hath diſcovered the Myſteries of Iniquity and the Depths of Satan, which have wrought ſo much Crime and Miſchief, it will be found that the late Rebellion was raiſed and foſtered by the Arts of the Court of Rome; that Jeſuits profeſs'd themſelves Independents as not depending on the Church of England, and Fifth-Monarchy-Men that they might pull down the Engliſh Monarchy, and that in the Committees for the Deſtruction of the King and the Church, they had their Spies and their Agents. The Roman Prieſt and Confeſſor is known, who when he ſaw the fatal Stroke given to our holy King and Martyr, flouriſhed with his Sword, and ſaid, now the greateſt Enemy we had in the World is gone.

When the News of that horrible Execution came to Roan, a Proteſtant Gentleman of good Credit was preſent in a great Company of Jeſuited Perſons; where after greateſt Expreſſions of Joy, the graveſt of the Company, to whom all gave Ear, ſpake much after this Manner: The King of England at his Marriage hath promis'd us the re-eſtabliſhing of the Catholick Religion in England, (which ſaith Dr. du Moulin is moſt falſe) and when he delayed to fulfil his Promiſe, we ſummoned him from Time to Time to perform it: We came ſo far as to tell him, that if he would not do it, we ſhould be forced to take thoſe Courſes which would bring him to his Deſtruction. We have given him lawful Warning, and when no Warning would ſerve, we have kept our Word to him, ſince he would not keep his Word to us.

That grave Rabbie's Sentence agreeth with this certain Intelligence, which ſhall be juſtified whenſoever Authority will require it: That the Year before the King's Death, a ſelect Number of Engliſh Jeſuits were ſent from their whole Party in England; firſt to Paris to conſult with the Faculty of Sorbonne, then altogether jeſuited, to whom they put this Queſtion in Writing: That ſeeing the State of England was in a likely Poſture to change Government, whether it was lawful for the Catholicks to work that Change, for the advancing and ſecuring of the Catholick Cauſe in England by making away the King, whom there was no hope to turn from his Hereſy? Which was anſwered affirmatively.

After which the ſame Perſons went to Rome, where the ſame Queſtion being propounded and debated, it was concluded by the Pope and his Council, that it was both lawful and expedient for the Catholicks to promote that Alteration of State. What followed that Conſultation and Sentence, all the World knoweth, and how the Jeſuits went to work, God knoweth; and Time, the bringer forth of Truth, will let us know. But when the horrible Parricide committed on the King's ſacred Perſon, was ſo univerſally cried down, as the greateſt Villany that had been committed in many Ages, the Pope commanded all the Papers about that Queſtion to be gathered and burnt. In Obedience to which Order, a Roman Catholick in Paris was demanded a Copy which he had of thoſe Papers; but the Gentleman who had had Time to conſider and deteſt the Wickedneſs of that Project, refuſed to give it, and ſhewed it to a Proteſtant Friend of his, and related to him the whole Carriage of this Negotiation, with great Abhorrency of the Practices of the Jeſuits.

[See the Continuation under Jan. 30, 1662-3.]

Dr Peter du Moulin of papal Tyranny, 4to. p. 51.

The Paſſage of the Prieſt flouriſhing with his Sword when the King's Head was cut off, was printed thrice before I ventured upon it; twice by Mr. Prynne and once by Mr. Foulis: And upon Mr. Prynn's Credit I alledged it. To him I did write (tho' a Stranger to me) upon the Noiſe made about it; and he confirmed it to me by his Letters which I keep.

Another Paſſage is punctually true in all the Parts thereof: It is worth relating here again. An underſtanding Gentleman viſiting the Fryars of Dunkirk, who are Flemiſh or French, put them upon the Diſcourſe of the King's Death, and to pump out their Senſe of it ſaid, that the Jeſuits had laboured very much to compaſs that great Work. To which they anſwered, that Jeſuits would engroſs to themſelves the Glory of all great and good Deeds, whereas they had labour'd as diligently and effectually as they. So there was ſtriving among the Papiſts for the Glory of that Atchievement, and the Fryars ſhew'd themſelves as much jeſuited as the Jeſuits.

When they boaſt what they did not, they might do well to remember what they did. They put the King though not to Death, yet upon the certain Expectations of Death, as knowing there are but few Steps between the Priſons and Graves of Princes. They did not kill the King 'tis true: But 'tis as true they could not, yes, but they would not, if they could. How ſhall we know that? By their Proteſtations. Friendly Debate, Part III. Append.

The horrid Execution of King Charles the Firſt was not only juſtified in Print by John Goodwyn, but there was one L. S. who defended the execrable Fact in a Book called Nature's Dowry: Or the People's native Liberty aſſerted. It was not printed till the Year 1652. but written (as the Author tells us) three Years before, upon Occaſion of a Queſtion propounded to him by a Member of Parliament and Committee of State. After one full Chapter, that Kings agreeable to the Laws of God may in ſome Caſes be forcibly reſiſted by their Subjects, and likewiſe depoſed: He comes finally to reſolve, that Kings may render themſelves obnoxious to the Penalty of Death, according to the Law of God, in ſome Caſes to be inflicted by publick Authority, in others by private Men.

Journal of Edward Earl of Sandwich riding in Tangier Bay.

Journal of Edward Earl of Sandwich before Tangier.

Wedneſday Jan. 1, 1661-2. About Noon came in the Colcheſter from Cales, with Mr. Herbert, Major Stevens from Seville and Mr. Lever.

Saturday Jan. 4. The Nightingale brought in Mr. Brown from Algiers. This Day I wrote to Mr. Mules, offering the Help of 400 Men.

Sunday Jan. 5. The Martyn ſailed for Cales with Mr. Brown, Mr. Rolt, Mr. Lever to buy me Proviſions.

Monday Jan. 6. I ſent Mr. Muley another Letter by Capt. Cuttance, ſhewing at large the Reaſons for putting our Men into the Caſtle to the Governor's Aſſiſtance.

Wedneſday Jan. 8. The Hampſhire ſailed for England with a Packet, in it Letters to his Royal Highneſs, Mr. Coventry, &c. Copy of the Articles prepared for Algiers and Mr. Brown's Inſtructions forgot, and muſt be ſent by the next Packet.

Saturday Jan. 11. The Norwich ſent to look in at Cales, and bring News what Uſage the People find there that went to buy Proviſions.

Sunday Jan. 12. About Noon came in the Nonſuch Ketch from Cales, and brought me Letters from Mr. Lever and the Conſul.

The Portugueſe in Tangier made a Salley, and were ſurprized and beaten by the Moors.

This Morning the Portugueſe 140 Horſe in Tangier, made a Salley into the Countrey for Booty, whereof they had poſſeſſed about 400 Cattle, 30 Camels and ſome Horſes, and 35 Women and Girls, and being ſix Miles diſtant from Tangier, were intercepted by 100 Moors with Harquebuſſes, who in the firſt Charge killed the Aidill with a Shot in the Head, whereupon the reſt of the Portugueſe ran, and in the Purſuit 51 were ſlain, whereof were 11 of the Knights, beſides the Aidill; the Horſes of the 51 were alſo taken by the Moors, and all the Booty relieved.

Tueſday Jan. 14. This Morning Mr. Mules came to me from the Governor, for the Aſſiſtance of ſome of our Men into the Caſtle.

Thurſday Jan. 16. About eighty Men out of my own Ship, and the Princeſs, went into Tangier into the lower Caſtle about four of the Clock in the Afternoon.

Friday Jan. 17. In the Morning by eight a Clock, the Martyn came in from Cales with Proviſions, and about ten a Clock I ſent Sir Richard Stayner with 120 Men beſides Officers to the Aſſiſtance of the Governor into Tangier. This Evening alſo I ſent the Nightingale to Cales to bring Proviſions.

Sunday Jan. 19. In the Morning came in a Ketch from Cales bound for Tetuan. The Norwich alſo came in that had been blown into the Streights, and in ſome Danger, brought News from Gibraltar, that there were 3000 Soldiers lately come into that Town. This Day alſo I ſent away the Martyn to Arzile with the Moor and a Letter to Gayland.

Monday Jan. 20. About Noon came in the Aſſurance from Leghorn and Genoa. News that the Dutch Fleet are cleaning at Minorca.

Tueſday Jan. 21. About Noon the Aſſurance proceeded on Convoy with ſix Merchants he brought with him from Italy, two bound for England, by whom Captain Gun ſent a Pacquet for England, with a Map of Tangier to preſent his Royal Highneſs; the other four Merchants with the Aſſurance bound for Liſbon to clean and re-victual; by him I wrote to the Conde de Ponte, Mr. Mountague, the Conſul, and Mr. Cockes.

Wedneſday Jan. 22. The Colcheſter came in from Cales with Proviſions: And the Martyn from Arzile, having landed the Moor there that was on board me.

Thurſday Jan. 23. This Evening the Martyn ſailed for Cales to help to bring off Proviſions. Yeſterday I ſent 100 Men more into Tangier, ſo that now I have between 3 and 400 Men in the Town and Caſtles, and the Command of all the Strengths and Magazines.

In Tangier Bay now with me, Royal James, Mary, Mountague, Ann, Princeſs, Yarmouth, Norwich, Colcheſter: The Nightingale, Martyn, and Nonſuch Ketch are at Cales for Proviſion: At Toulon the Aſſiſtance and Newcaſtle: At Zant the Crown and Nonſuch. With Sir John Lawſon, the Swiftſure, Fairfax, Portland, Conſtant Warwick, Greyhound.

Sunday Jan. 26. The Yarmouth with Mr. North and Mr. Herbert went for Gibraltar to bring Wood. In the Evening came in the Nightingale from Cales with Proviſions, alſo came in her Mr. Rolt, and Mr. Brown, and Mr. Prideaux; by her I had Notice of Sadlington, who with an Engliſh Ketch and Engliſh Colours had taken a Spaniſh Boat, and killed ſome of the Men near St. Lucar or Rota.

Lord Peterborough arriv'd with the Gariſon for Tangier; and took Poſſeſſion of it.

Wedneſday Jan. 29. About Noon my Lord of Peterborough with the Garriſon for Tangier, arrived in the Bay of Tangier with 27 Sail of Ships: And in the Afternoon his Lordſhip and I went aſhoar to ſee how to diſpoſe Things in Tangier, and were received by the Governour, who delivered up his Authority to my Lord of Peterborough.

Thurſday Jan. 30. About Noon my Lord of Peterborough's own Regiment was landed at Tangier, and he himſelf in the Head of it marched into the Town with it, and had Poſſeſſion of all given him, and the Keys of the Gates by Don Lewis de Almeida, and a Horſe with Saddle and Bridle, Cimeter, Silver Spurs and a Lance.

Friday Jan. 31. Sir Richard Stayner brought our Seamen on board again from the Town.

Preface to the Reader.

The Perſon whoſe Death did occaſion this Diſcourſe, was one that about five Years ago removed from her ancient Habitation at Appley in Shropſhire to Kiderminſter, where ſhe lived under my Paſtoral Care, 'till I was come up to London; and before ſhe had lived there a Twelvemonth (for thither ſhe removed) ſhe died of the Fever then very common in the City. She lived among us an Example of Prudence, Gravity, Sobriety, Righteouſneſs, Piety, Charity, and Self-Denial. ——

Her Work is done, her Enemies are conquer'd; her Prayer and Temptations, and Troubles and Fears are at an End: She ſhall no more be diſcomfited with Evil Tidings; nor no more partake of a militant Church in the Sorrows of her Diſeaſes or Diſtreſſes; we are left within the Reach of Satan's Aſſaults and Malice; and of the Rage and Violence which Pride and Faction, and Cainiſh Envy, and Enmity to ſerious Holineſs do ordinarily raiſe againſt Chriſt's Followers in the World: We are left among the lying Tongues of ſlanderous malicious Men, and dwell in a Wilderneſs among Scorpions. —— We are left among our weak, diſtempered, ſinful, afflicted, lamenting Friends; the Sight of whoſe Calamities, and Participation of their Sufferings, maketh us feel the Stroaks that fall upon ſo great a Number, that we are never like to be free from Pain. But ſhe is entred into the Land of Peace, where Pride and Faction are ſhut out; where ſerpentine Enmity, Malice, and Fury never come; where there is no Cain to envy and deſtroy us; no Sodomites to rage againſt us, and in their Blindneſs to aſſault our Doors: No Abitophels to plot our Ruin: No Judas to betray us: No falſe Witneſſes to accuſe us: No Tertullus to paint us out as peſtilent Fellows and Movers of Sedition among the People, &c. Thy Brother and Companion in Tribulation, and in the Kingdom and Patience of Jeſus Chriſt.

London, Jan. 31, 1661. RICHARD BAXTER.

The Grand Debate in Point of Prayer, 1662. 4to. p. 51.

There is a Poſition of Mr. Baxter's (in his unſavoury Volume againſt Mr. Crandon, or his Noſegay preſented to Mr. Joſeph Caryll, P. 83.) which if his Party had the Conſcience to practiſe it, would put an End to our Diviſions, and ſettle us in a happy State of Uniformity. For thus he ſaith, Let me be bold to tell my Opinion to my Brethren of the Miniſtry, that though I deny them to have either Credit or Authority againſt the known Word of God, yet ſo great is their Credit and Authority, even as Teachers and Guides of the Church, in Cauſes agreeable to the Word, and in Cauſes to the People doubtful and unknown, and in Cauſes left by the Word to their Determination (the Word determining them but generally) that I think the Ignorance of this Truth hath been the main Cauſe of our ſad Confuſions and Schiſms here in England, and that the Miniſters have been guilty of it, partly by an over-modeſt concealing their Authority; and partly by an indiſcreet Oppoſition to the Papiſts Error of the Authority of the Church: And I think, 'till we have better taught even our godly People, what Credit and Obedience is due to their Teachers and Spiritual Guides, the Churches of England ſhall never have Peace, or any good or eſtabliſhed Order. I ſay again, we are broken for want of the Knowledge of this Truth, and 'till this be known, we ſhall never be well bound up and healed. This is Mr. Baxter's ſober Conceſſion, and he thought it ſo ſignal a Verity, when he wrote it, that he ſet a Hand in the Margin to remark it, and point it out to every Reader, as moſt worthy his Obſervation. Let him preach the ſame Doctrine ſtill, and act accordingly, and I doubt not the Liturgy of the Church will become a laudable Form of Divine Service, and more frequented.

SUNDAY Febr. 2.

The Spiritual Lords are under no legal Obligation to withdraw in Caſes of Blood in our Reformed Church; ſince the Canon to that Purpoſe (at firſt founded in Superſtition, and now probably aboliſhed by Law, as being to the Damage or Hurt of the King's Prerogative Royal, 25 Hen. VIII. Cap. 19.) was diſregarded for a long Time after the Reformation. 'Tis true in the tumultuous Times this Advantage among many others was taken and inſiſted on againſt the Eccleſiaſtical State: But when it came to be a Queſtion in the Reign of King Charles II. *the moſt eminent Civilians gave an Opinion unanimouſly under their Hands, that the Biſhops might ſafely ſtay. Echard, Ch. II. p. 74.

Among various Debates in Convocation, a remarkable Piece of Law was conſider'd and examin'd, as how far it was ſafe and lawful for the Biſhops to join in the Houſe of Lords, in the Tryal and Condemnation of Perſons impeach'd of Treaſon: And after many Arguments it was agreed to take Advice of the chief Common Lawyers and Civilians in the Nation: Theſe, after ſeveral new Arguments, delivered their Opinion in, That the Biſhops might ſit and Act with other Peers in Parliament, without Detriment or Prejudice during the Tryal and Condemnation of Perſons guilty of Treaſon and Blood.

Hiſtor. Exam. of Gen. Counc. 4to. Pref. p. 4.

An Advocate of the Parliament of Paris publiſhed a Book of the pernicious Conſequences of the new Hereſy of the Jeſuits againſt the King and the State; dated Febr. 1, 1661-2. wherein he complains, that the Opinion of the Pope's Infallibility had got Ground in France; and that there was great likelihood of its ſpreading daily; it being the general Opinion of the Jeſuits, &c. and that Du-Vall endeavoured to introduce this Doctrine into the Sorbonne, but attempted it warily, &c.

Diſpute between the Dean and Prebendaries of Rocheſter about an Orchard.

Caſe as drawn up by Mr. Dean Pratt.

The Dean and Prebendaries of Rocheſter having a long Diſpute about an Orchard, Part of which belonged to the Dean and Part to the Chapter, they did now in 1661. make a ſolemn Agreement, indented, and ſealed with the Chapter Seal, and confirmed by the Biſhop as Viſitor under the Epiſcopal Seal, that inſtead of fifty Shillings per Ann. paid formerly by the Dean to the Chapter for the North Eaſt End of the King's Orchard, the Dean and his Succeſſors for ever, paying ten Pounds a Year, ſhould to their ſole and ſeparate Uſe enjoy the whole Orchard and Improvements of it for ever; thus the Deans Hardy, Mew, and Lamplugh quietly enjoyed, 'till the Prebendaries falling out with Mr. Dean Caſtilion upon other Matters, they diſturbed him in the Enjoyment of what his Predeceſſors had quietly held; and oblig'd him to refer the Matter to Arbitrators, who awarded half the Profits of the Premiſſes to the Dean ſolely, and the other half to the Fraternity in common. —— Yet it was again drawn into Queſtion between Mr. Dean Pratt and the Chapter.

It was obſerved by the Lord Clarendon, that all the Engliſh Catholick Clergy, who owed as much Allegiance to the King, or would be thought to owe as much, yet never wrote one Line, or publiſhed one Opinion againſt whatſoever the Rebels ſaid or did. Animadverſions on Mr. Creſſy, 8vo. p. 220.

Your Majeſty's faithful Subjects the Roman-Catholick Clergy of your Majeſty's Kingdom of Ireland do moſt humbly repreſent this their preſent Eſtate and deplorable Condition.

That being entruſted by the indiſpenſable Commiſſion of the King of Kings with the Cure of Souls, and the Care of their Flocks, in order to the Adminiſtration of Sacraments, and teaching the People that perfect Obedience which for Conſcience Sake they are bound to pay to your Majeſty's Commands, they are loaden with Calumnies, and perſecuted with Severities.

In 1643. October 3. was publiſhed, A Letter ſent from Dublin to a Member of the Houſe of Commons

That being obliged by the Allegiance they owe, and ought to ſwear unto your Majeſty, to reveal all Conſpiracies and Practices againſt your Perſon and Royal Authority that come to their Knowledge, they are themſelves clamour'd againſt as Conſpirators, plotting the Deſtruction of the Engliſh among them, without any Ground that may give the leaſt Colour to ſo foul a Crime to paſs for probable, in the Judgment of any indifferent Perſon. That their Crimes are as numerous and divers as are the Inventions of their Adverſaries, and becauſe they cannot with Freedom appear to juſtify their Innocency all the Fictions and Allegations againſt them are received as undoubted Verities: And which is yet more miſchievous, the Laity, upon whoſe Conſciences the Character of Prieſthood gives them an Influence, ſuffer under all the Crimes thus falſely imputed to them, it being their Adverſaries principal Deſign, that the Iriſh whoſe Eſtates they enjoy, ſhould be reputed Perſons unfit, and no Way worthy any Title to your Majeſty's Mercy.

That no Wood comes amiſs to make Arrows for their Deſtruction; for as if the Roman-Catholick Clergy, whom they eſteem moſt criminal, were or ought to be a Society ſo perfect, as no evil, no indirect Perſon ſhould be found amongſt them, they are all of them generally cry'd down for any Crime, whether true or feigned, which is imputed to one of them; and as if no Words could be ſpoken, no Letter written, but with the common Conſent of all of them, the whole Clergy muſt ſuffer for that which is laid to the Charge of any particular Perſon amongſt them.

We know what Odium all the Catholick Clergy lies under, by Reaſon of the Calumnies with which our Tenets in Religion, and our Dependance upon the Pope's Authority, are aſperſed; and we humbly beg your Majeſty's Pardon to vindicate both, by the enſuing Proteſtation, which we make in the Sight of Heaven, and in the Preſence of your Majeſty, ſincerely and truly, without Equivocation or mental Reſervation.

We do acknowledge and confeſs your Majeſty to be our true and lawful King, ſupream Lord, and rightful Sovereign of this Realm of Ireland, and of all other your Majeſty's Dominions. And therefore we acknowledge and confeſs ourſelves, to be obliged under Pain of Sin to obey your Majeſty in all civil and temporal Affairs, as much as any other of your Majeſty's Subjects, and as the Laws and Rules of Government in this Kingdom do require at our Hands. And that notwithſtanding any Power or Pretenſion of the Pope or See of Rome, or any Sentence or Declaration of what kind or Quality ſoever, given or to be given by the Pope, his Predeceſſors, or Succeſſors, or by any Authority, ſpiritual or temporal, proceeding or derived from him, or his See againſt your Majeſty or Royal Authority, we will ſtill acknowledge and perform to the uttermoſt of our Abilities our faithful Loyalty and true Allegiance to your Majeſty. And we openly diſclaim and renounce all Foreign Power, be it either papal or princely, ſpiritual or temporal, in as much as it may ſeem able, or ſhall pretend to free, diſcharge, or abſolve us from this Obligation, or ſhall any way give us Leave or Licenſe to raiſe Tumults, bear Arms, or offer any Violence to your Majeſty's Perſon, Royal Authority, or to the State or Government. Being all of us ready not only to diſcover, and make known to your Majeſty and to your Miniſters, all the Treaſons made againſt your Majeſty or them, which ſhall come to our Hearing; but alſo to loſe our Lives in the Defence of your Majeſty's Perſon and Royal Authority, and to reſiſt with our beſt Endeavours all Conſpiracies and Attempts againſt your Majeſty, be they framed or ſent under what Pretence, or patronized by what foreign Power or Authority ſoever. And further, we profeſs that all abſolute Princes and ſupream Governours, of what Religion ſoever they be, are God's Lieutenants on Earth, and that Obedience is due to them according to the Laws of each Commonwealth reſpectively in all civil and temporal Affairs. And therefore we do here proteſt againſt all Doctrine and Authority to the contrary. And we hold it impious, and againſt the Word of God, to maintain that any private Subject may kill or murther the Anointed of God, his Prince, though of a different Belief and Religion from his. And we abhor and deteſt the Practice thereof as damnable and wicked.

Theſe being the Tenets of our Religion in Point of Loyalty and Submiſſion to your Majeſty's Commands, and our Dependance of the See of Rome, no way intrenching upon that perfect Obedience which by our Birth, by all Laws divine and humane, we are bound to pay to your Majeſty our natural and lawful Sovereign, we humbly beg, proſtrate at your Majeſty's Feet, that you would be pleaſed to protect us from the ſevere Perſecution we ſuffer merely for our Profeſſion in Religion: Leaving thoſe that are, or hereafter ſhall be guilty of other Crimes (and there have been ſuch in all Times as well by their Pens as by their Actions) to the Puniſhment preſcribed by the Law.

Bartho-

mons in England, writing, There was a Fryer taken in the laſt Expedition into Connaught, about whom was found a Collection of all your Votes, Ordinances, and Declarations, carefully marked with ſhort marginal Notes, out of which he compoſed a large Manuſcript, entitled, An Apology of the Catholicks of Ireland: Or a Juſtification of their defenſive Arms for the Preſervation of their Religion, the Maintenance of his Majeſty's Rights and Prerogatives, the natural and juſt Defence of their Lives and Eſtates, and the Liberty of their Countrey: By the Practice of the State of England, and the Judgment and Authority of both Houſes of Parliament. It was penned (ſaith the Writer of the Letter) with ſo little Variation of Language, that the Name of Ireland being changed for England, and the chief Actors there for thoſe under the Parliament, your own Clerk would ſcarce know it from one of your own Declarations. Mr. Long's Hiſt. of Plots, 1684. 8vo.

This Romonſtrance was rejected by many of the Iriſh Papiſts, who thereupon were called Anti-Remonſtrants. And Father John Talbot pleaded for his own Excuſe, that it was to no Purpoſe to expect any Profeſſion, Declaration, Oaths of Allegiance, Fidelity, or Obedience from them in any certain (or even uncertain) Form of Words; being it was in Point of Conſcience lawful enough for ſuch as would or did take ſuch Oath, to decline from, retract, and break it even the very next Day or next hour after having taken it ſo. Provided only they followed herein the Doctrine of the Probability, i. e. they had known or did ſufficiently underſtand there had been or were then at preſent ſome Divines (nay, one ſingle Divine would ſerve at need) who held ſuch Formulary or Oath to be unſafe or unſound in Catholick Religion, or otherwiſe unlawful or ſinful. Theſe Things are certainly ſufficient to ſhew, not only how juſtly they may be ſuſpected of thoſe Doctrines of Prevarication, which make all their Profeſſions whatſoever inſignificant and unſatisfactory, but alſo how probable it is, which Way they would determine themſelves, in Caſe of Difference betwixt his Majeſty and the Court of Rome. —— Some Conſiderations of preſent Concernment, &c. 1673. 8vo. ſuppoſed by Mr. H. Dodwell.

And the Papiſts are thought to allow ſo great a Liberty of Diſſimulation, as that Diſpenſations have been granted from Rome, not only for coming to Church, which may not be reputed ſuch a Characteriſtick of Communion; but as the worthy Hiſtorian of the Church of Scotland land, Ann. 1580. tells us, to promiſe, ſwear, ſubſcribe, and do what elſe ſhould be required of them, ſo as in Mind they continued firm, and did uſe their Diligence to advance in ſecret the Roman Faith. And if ſo they can give no imaginable Security to any Government, ib. p. 375.

Nay the Pope keeps up his Title to Ireland, and therefore may prudently be expected ready to renew his Claim when he ſhall ſee fit occaſion. Nay in the Louvain Cenſures of this Iriſh Remonſtrance, this very Plea was particularly inſiſted on, which though it was ſent to Rome, and ſince ſuppreſſed as an unſeaſonable Warning to us of his Pretences, yet is is plain from the Anſwer of Dr. Synnick to F. Geanor when enquiring concerning it, how it was accepted at Rome. Miſimus Romam (replyed he) placuit Pontifici, reſervat in ſua tempora : Which is abundantly ſufficient to let us underſtand, that the Pope is ſtill as ready as ever to inſiſt on it in ſuo tempore, that is, whenever he dare do it, with Hopes of any probability of Succeſs. And particularly concerning Ireland it is further pretended that before the Engliſh Conqueſt, the Iriſh formally ſurrendred themſelves into the Pope's Protection; that this Right of the Pope was by him conferred on our Kings, yet not abſolutely, but on certain Conditions, the Performance whereof has been by our Kings not only neglected but refuſed, that therefore they have forfeited their Right, and the Pope may legally reſume it to himſelf, ib. p. 19.

This Paper without any Hands to it, (for the Gentlemen that conſulted of and drew it in this Form, did not then reflect on the Neceſſarineſs of any Subſcription to it; and if they had, they ſaw the Storm ſo great and furious, raiſed ſuddenly againſt thoſe Men chiefly who ſhould have ſubſcrib'd it, that it was impoſſible even for any ſuch or other End ſoever; and yet the making ſuch Addreſs to his Majeſty could not be delayed ſo, as to ſend about to ſearch for them where they could not be met with ſingly one by one, but after too much Time) therefore I ſay this Paper, without any Hands to it was delivered immediately to Father James Fitz-Simons (reſiding and hiding himſelf the beſt he could at Dublin) to be ſent (together with the Proclamation of the Lords Juſtices, and Ordinances of Parliament, and the forged Letter of Mac Dermot the Prieſt, and their own Diſcoveries of the Impoſture) to the above Father P. W. [Peter Walſh.] then at London as Procurator of the Clergy, to be preſented by him to his Majeſty and the Lord Lieutenant; and was accordingly ſent and delivered him by the Earl of Fingale, who had then ſome Occaſions of his own to go for England. Which the Procurator had no ſooner received, than, after communicating all to ſome others of the Iriſh Clergy and Gentry then at London, and preſs'd by them all to do what he was directed from Ireland, he delivered the ſeveral Papers to my Lord Lieutenant, and both humbly and earneſtly beſeeched his Grace to conſider of them, and preſent the Caſe to his Majeſty, and particularly that Remonſtrance, Acknowledgment, Proteſtation and Petition of the Clergy; than which ſcarce could any Thing more be expected from them for the future: Whatever they or any of them had been formerly.

See Feb. 3.

Anſwer of the Duke of Ormond, that it was only a bare Paper without Names or Hands.

For which Omiſſion Father Walſh made an Apology.

And promiſed it ſhould be ſigned by the Catholick Clergy in and about London.

Yet he dare not himſelf ſign it in their Names, tho' he had a general Power for it.

Becauſe he had not a ſpecial Commiſſion.

His Grace the Lord Lieutenant, Duke of Ormond, two Days after returned this Anſwer, that the Remonſtrance, or Declaration, or Proteſtation therein inſerted, although it might well in ſome Things be made more full and more ſatisfactory, yet however it might be uſeful were it not only a bare Paper, without any Subſcription, or hand to own it. Whereunto the Procurator had no more to ſay, but that likely they in whoſe Behalf it was, thought it enough himſelf ſhould own it in their Name: And that the Times were ſuch in Ireland, as they could not ſcarce three of them meet together, and moſt of their Biſhops were abroad in other Countries in Exile; whom to conſult particularly, either at home or abroad, would require a longer Time than the preſent Sufferings of the Generality at home, without ſome ſpeedy Commiſeration of them, could bear. That in the mean Time, until the reſt might be acquainted with the Exception againſt it for not being ſigned, thoſe few of the Clergy then at London, come from ſeveral Parts thither, which were about thirty in all, and one of their Biſhops amongſt them, would (he doubted not) own and ſign it for themſelves; whereby his Majeſty and Grace might ſee it was no Forgery or Impoſture. That he hoped the reſt would, when they had an Opportunity to meet, do the ſame generally. And yet, that although himſelf had, as his Grace knew, a general Power from them under their Hands and Seals to act for them all; nevertheleſs foraſmuch as this was a very ſpecial Buſineſs, and that he had no ſpecial Commiſſion from them to ſign this Inſtrument, or ſuch a ſpecial Declaration of their Doctrine and Conſcience, and becauſe he had formerly ſo much Experience of the Diverſity of their Affections, Inclinations and Intereſts in a Point of this Nature, and of the awe they or many of them ſtood in, or would ſtand in of the Court of Rome, and of their Dependences thence, which their titular Pretenſions there continued evermore; he dared not venture upon owning or ſubſcribing it in all their Names, though he was ready to do it in his own, even as their Procurator; but ſtill not owning a ſpecial Commiſſion herein from them. And yet hoped withal, that ſo much Affliction at home, and their Exile abroad for ſo many Years under the late Uſurpers, had made them all wiſer by this Time, than to ſcruple at the ſigning of a Declaration ſo Catholick in it ſelf, ſo juſt and neceſſary from them, and a Declaration moreover, which tyed them to no more than they were bound unto before by all the Laws of God and Man, without any ſuch Declaration or Subſcription whatſoever, if perhaps we except not under the Notion of ſuch Laws, thoſe papal Canons only, however rejected by all Chriſtians that are not ſubject to the Pope in his temporal Principality, and as well by right Reaſon and Chriſtian Religion condemned, as indeed ſuch Declaration and Subſcription was chiefly intended againſt ſuch.

And yet it was a Declaration ſo catholick in itſelf, and ſo juſt and neceſſary for them to make.

A Declaration to which they were before bound by the Laws of God and Man.

Except the papal Canons, binding only thoſe who are ſubject to the Pope in his temporal Principality.

The ſaid Remonſtrance was ſigned by the Biſhop [Titular] of Dromore, and twenty four others of the Catholick Clergy.

Yet four or five excus'd themſelves.

In purſuance of this Diſcourſe, and to clear as well as might be then and there at London, that rational Exception of his Grace, a mere Paper not ſigned by any, the Procurator having acquainted the Catholick Biſhop of Dromore then at London, and ſuch others of the Iriſh Clergy there, with it, and with the whole Buſineſs and Storm lately raiſed in Ireland againſt all the Catholicks on Pretence of that forged Letter; they met together two ſeveral Days at the ſaid Procurator's Chamber, about thirty of them, and with the Biſhop four and twenty more ſigned the ſaid humble Remonſtrance; the other four or five excuſing themſelves only on Pretence of Inconveniency or Unexpediency and ſuch like; not at all of any Unlawfulneſs or Uncatholickneſs in the Declaration, or any Thing elſe in the whole Paper, as they declared there publickly.

The Iriſh Nobility and Gentry ſubſcribe a like Declaration, even by Advice of the Engliſh Catholicks.

The Nobility and Gentry alſo of Ireland, in great Numbers at London at that Time, found themſelves no leſs concerned in this Matter. And therefore after having for eight Weeks conſequently together in ſeveral Meetings publickly debated it, and conſulted alſo ſome eminent Perſons of the Engliſh Catholick Nobility, and that alſo in a publick Meeting, where the ſame Engliſh Noblemen declared their Approbation of it; and having fitted for themſelves another Preamble and Petition, ſubſcribed the ſame Declaration Word by Word as thoſe of their Clergy had, and preſented it to his Majeſty by a ſpecial Committee ſent from themſelves, and by the Hands of the Earl of Tirconnel. The Original of which, ſigned by ninety ſeven Hands, the ſaid Earl keeps, as he was entruſted with it by his Majeſty, who moſt graciouſly received it, and kept a clean Copy with himſelf, as he had that formerly of their Clergymen.

And both of thoſe Forms were printed, with an Invitation for others to come in.

Soon after, both were publiſhed in Print, in diſtinct Sheets, with an Advertiſement to the Reader from the Procurator under that of the Clergy, which was percloſed with an Invitation, not only to the reſt of the Iriſh Clergy whereſoever, but to all thoſe of both Engliſh, Scots and Welch of that Function and Religion, to concur in the ſame or like, to wipe off their holy Faith and Communion the Scandal of ſuch unholy Principles in Point of Government and Obedience, which had ſo much prejudiced them and their Predeceſſors for a whole Age, and reduced them to thoſe Miſeries under which they groaned ſo long.

Yet ſeveral diſſented upon Exceptions and Arguments againſt it.

Upon which Father Walſh publiſhed his more ample Account, &c.

With his Anſwer to all Exceptions againſt it.

But in regard thoſe four or five Diſſenters (with ſuch others Engliſh or Iriſh Clergymen either at London or other Places as approved their unreaſonable Oppoſition) made uſe of their Exceptions and ſeveral Arguments whereon they grounded their Allegations of Unexpediency or Inconveniency, the Procurator found it neceſſary to give in Print (and in a little Book which he called the more ample Account, &c.) not only the Occaſion of tranſmitting from Ireland that Remonſtrance, but the Grounds at large which concluded both the Expediency, and Neceſſity incumbent on the Clergy of Ireland in particular, and above all others to ſubſcribe it; with Anſwers to all the Exceptions made till that Time by the Diſſenters. And by Occaſion of the laſt of them, enlarged himſelf on thoſe Arguments which evidently ſhew by Reaſon, Scripture, Fathers, Practice of primitive Chriſtians, and by Anſwers to all the grand Objections to the contrary, that it is in no kind of Contingency lawful or juſt in Subjects to take Arms on any Pretext whatſoever againſt the Prince or Laws, or in any kind of Caſe, wherein the municipal Laws of the Land do not warrant them. Which being addreſſed, and by Epiſtle prefixed, to all the ſeveral Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Vicars General, Provincials of regular Orders, Abbots, Priors, Guardians, Rectors, and all the reſt in general of the inferior Clergy of Ireland, England, Scotland, Wales, wherever, at home or abroad in other Countries, he ſent Copies immediately to the chief of the Iriſh Clergy: With other particular written Letters, from himſelf alſo ſome, and ſome from the ſaid Biſhop of Dromore, to invite them to a Concurrence, and ſhew them the Neceſſity of it in that Conjuncture. Particularly to John Burke, Archbiſhop of Tuam, Robert Barry Biſhop of Cork, Patrick Pluncket Biſhop of Ardagh, Andrew Linch Biſhop of Kilfinuran, at that Time all in France, and to Nicholas French Biſhop of Ferns, living then in Spain. Only the Archbiſhop of Ardmagh, Primate Reilly, then at Rome, he thought not fit to write unto at that Time; becauſe more than any of the reſt lying under too too great and ſpecial Prejudices in Ireland, and with his Majeſty and Lord Lieutenant: And therefore ſince the King's Reſtauration withdrawn, and even from Rome commanded to withdraw: And that wholly depending of that Court for a poor Subſiſtence, the Procurator thought not fit to bring new Jealouſies on him there alſo; which he feared his Correſpondence in ſuch a Matter would. For although he was very certain his preſent Holineſs would not (or that Court under ſo wiſe and moderate a Governor) declare any Thing publickly againſt the ſaid Remonſtrance or Subſcribers, foraſmuch as he knew moſt evidently there was nothing in it which was not the Senſe of the Catholick World abroad; yet he was perſwaded withal it could nevertheleſs but be ſomewhat unwelcome and diſpleaſing to the Flatterers of his Holineſs, and that there would not be wanting many both Engliſh and Iriſh Clergymen to incenſe that Court againſt the Subſcribers; as will be ſeen hereafter it happened.——

And an Epiſtle to all Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Regular Orders and Clergy to invite them all to concur in it.

Moſt of the titular Biſhops being then abroad, as in Exile for their Rebellion:

And yet Father Walſh was much afraid, that the Court of Rome would be incenſed againſt the Subſcribers of it.

Father Walſh wrote a larger Hiſtory and Vindication of it.

Printed Anno 1664. Fol.

See the Hiſtory and Vindication of the Loyal Formulary or Iriſh Remonſtrance, ſo graciouſly received by his Majeſty Anno 1661. againſt all Calumnies and Cenſures in ſeveral Treatiſes. With a true Account and full Diſcuſſion of the deluſory Iriſh Remonſtrance, and other Papers framed and inſiſted on by the national Congregation at Dublin, Anno 1666. and preſented to his Majeſty's (then) Lord Lieutenant of that Kingdom, the Duke of Ormond; but rejected by his Grace. To which are added, three Appendixes: Whereof the laſt contains the Marquis of Ormond, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, his long and excellent Letter of the ſecond of December 1650. in Anſwer to both the Declaration and Excommunication of the Biſhops, &c. at Jameſtown. The Author Father Peter Walſh of the Order of St. Francis, Profeſſor of Divinity.

Epiſtle to the Catholicks of England, Ireland, Scotland, &c.

Giving a fuller Account of the Occaſion of it.

—— The chief Reaſon of this Loyal Formulary, was the rather by that Means to induce his ſacred Majeſty to command the ceaſing of a rigorous Perſecution which was then (1661.) actually on Foot in that Kingdom, under the Triumvirate of Sir Maurice Euſtace, Lord Chancellor, and the Earls of Orrery and Mountrath, againſt all Roman Catholicks univerſally without Diſtinction or Exception of any.

How it was ſubſcribed by great Numbers, and preſented to his Majeſty;

Who was pleas'd to accept it.

And thereupon to countermand the Perſecution of the Catholicks in Ireland.

And graciouſly to ſmile upon them.
